

LIBRARY

OF THE

University of California.

Class

THE OCEANIC LANGUAGES

THEIR GRAMMATICAL STRUCTURE, VOCABULARY, AND ORIGIN

By D. MACDONALD, D.D.

OF THE NEW HEBRIDES MISSION.
MEMBER OF THE SOCIÉTÉ D'ETHNOGRAPHIE, PARIS.

HENRY FROWDE
LONDON, EDINBURGH, GLASGOW, NEW YORK AND TORONTO

1907

UENERAL

OXFORD: HORACE HART PRINTER TO THE UNIVERSITY

PREFACE

This work contains a Grammar and complete Dictionary of the language of Efate, New Hebrides, which is a typical specimen of the Oceanic languages which are spoken by fifty millions, or one-thirtieth, of the human race in islands of the Indian and Pacific Oceans, extending over two hundred degrees of longitude.

It contains also a Comparative Grammar, and, to a sufficient extent, a Comparative Vocabulary of these languages, together with the evidence of their Arabian origin; thus adding these fifty millions to those previously known as Semitic speakers, as, one hundred years ago, the many millions (now 219,725,509) in India were, by similar evidence, added to those previously known as Aryan (European) speakers.

It is a unique unveiling of the linguistic, mental, religious and moral life, social organization, and prehistoric antecedents of the existing Oceanic 'savages', or 'primitive' man.

To those engaged in the study of man, Anthropologists and Ethnologists, more especially to students of Linguistic science, Orientalists, and Semitic scholars, the work should prove a welcome, and even, it may be said, an indispensable aid. To all living and working among these fifty millions of people, missionaries, Government officials, and commercial men, it should be of practical use as helping to that thorough knowledge of the speech and character of the natives which means the power of dealing sympathetically and wisely with them to the advantage of all concerned. This last consideration, the author specially commends to the various Governments that now have possessions, and so have taken up 'the white man's burden' in Oceania—France, Germany, Holland, United States of America, as well as our own United Kingdom and her great self-governing Dependencies in Australasia.

The work should be very valuable among other things as a basis for further investigations all over the Oceanic World.

D. MACDONALD.

London, Oct. 31, 1907.

CONTENTS

Introduction .		e	•		•		ages i-xv
THE PROBLEM .	CHAP'	rer i		•	٠		1
Рнополоду	CHAPT	TER I	I	٠	٠		9
TRILITERALISM AND	CHAPT Internal V			NGE		•	34
Inflexional or Wo		Addi	TION	,		ES,	52
Pronouns and Par	CHAPT			•	•	•	7 2
Commence	CHAPT				0
Summary. Arabia Languages .	THE MOTH				·		90
THE OCEANIC L. VOCABULARY, S TIONARY, COMPA OF THEM, THE RIDES)	SET FORTH RATIVE AND LANGUAGE	IN *A ETYM OF E	Co ioloc fate	MPLET SICAL, (NEV	OF C	PIC- ONE EB-	-316
INDEX OF SEMI	TIC WOR	ng	n Annager			31 7 _	-359

INTRODUCTION

How the present writer was led to take up and prosecute for the last thirty-five years the studies of which the following work is the result may be briefly stated. Sent from Melbourne as a missionary of the Presbyterian Church of Victoria to the New Hebrides, and settled at Havannah Harbour, Efate, in the year 1872, it became his duty to study and acquire the speech of the natives, and to get a thorough knowledge of their mental life, religion and social organization. As these people, like the other New Hebrideans, were cannibal savages, without a written language, and inclined to be unfriendly, this was found to be no easy task. When, in the first years, they were suspicious and would give no help, or decreed a boycott as they sometimes did, there was still one resource open. One could study other Island languages reduced to writing by previous missionaries, and known to be of the same stock, as, e.g. the Aneityumese or Fijian or other Melanesian dialect; the Polynesian, as the Samoan, Maori, and Hawaiian; and going still further afield, the Malayan, and the Malagasy: and it was found that all these threw great light upon the Efatese, and that the Efatese, once, after long years, acquired so that one could think in it, and speak and write it as if it were one's native tongue, threw great light upon them. But still there was something wanting for a complete and satisfactory knowledge. These far-extended Oceanic languages, sprung from the abysm of prehistoric time, were manifestly and admittedly of one stock or origin. What then was that origin? The answer to this question is included in the following pages from which may be seen how great a light it throws upon the grammar and structure, and vocabulary of the Efatese, and of each and all of the other Oceanic languages.

In the sketch-map of the Indian and Pacific Oceans the red tint is not intended to show an exact boundary in Formosa, nor to indicate any view as to the language of the Maldives: and the white spot on the east end of New Guinea is merely to indicate that in that quarter there is apparently some non-Oceanic linguistic element. In the map of the New Hebrides the dotted line is not an exact boundary in Epi. It should be observed that the New Hebrideans are all Melanesian speakers with the exception of a few people on the east of Mai, and those of the villages of Meli and Fila, and of the islets of Futuna and Aniwa, who are Polynesian speakers. All the Efatese speakers have now embraced Christianity. The Efatese New Testament was printed in Melbourne by the British and Foreign Bible Society in 1889, and the Nguna-Efate Old Testament is now being printed by the same great society in London. Other translations of the whole or of part of the Scriptures have been printed in twenty-six different languages or dialects from Aneityum to Santo. Efate is to be the seat of government under the new Anglo-French Convention respecting the New Hebrides. Commercially and linguistically as well as geographically (see the map), it is the central island of the group, and no better standpoint could be chosen from which to study the languages in the other islands that extend from it southwards and northwards. And perhaps no better could be chosen from which to make such a study of the languages of the whole Oceanic family-Melanesian, Polynesian, Malayan, and Malagasythan that of which the result is set forth as briefly as possible in the following pages.

The Efatese, with the other New Hebrideans, are a truly primitive people, typical cannibal savages. These people, in accordance with the geographical position of the group, at the end of a long chain of islands extending from the Malay Archipelago, have for ages been completely isolated. cut off from the civilized world, and thus have lived out their linguistic, religious, and social life. The Polynesians, whose dialects are less numerous and differentiated, are more recent comers into the Pacific than the Melanesians. The Malayans and Malagasy, especially the former, have always been more in touch with the civilized world. Of the considerable number of Sanskrit words introduced into the Malayan, probably about the beginning of the Christian era, not a trace is to be found in the Efatese. And of the Mongol element of blood in Malaysia, not a trace is discoverable among the Efatese people. If it be asked in what millennium B. C. the forefathers of the Oceanicspeaking race passed from the Semitic area (see the map) into and settled in the Oceanic world, the question must remain unanswered till Orientalists who are experts in the history of the development of the Semitic race within that area can give the necessary information. Meantime two facts can be given from the Oceanic side which may help towards the settlement of the question. The one is that at the time of that migration the Semitic languages had already attained to their fullest peculiar inflectional development: see, for instance, in Chap. III. d, and in the Dictionary and Index, the words mataku, to fear; tili, or tuli, to tell; and toko, to sit, abide, in Efate (Melanesian), Samoan (Polynesian), Malay, and Malagasy. This is certain, though the Semitic speech of these migrants may even then already have passed through a subsequent development towards becoming a vulgar dialect or patois. The other is that at the time that oversea migration took place, southwards and eastwards, to Madagascar and Malaysia, the Semites were sufficiently advanced to have ocean-going commerce and vessels capable of making long sea voyages. The names by which those early voyagers called, for instance, their vessels, masts, and oars, and by which their descendants, the Efatese (Mel.), Tahitians (Po.), Malays, and Malagasy, still call them, are the names by which they were first called in Arabia and by which they are called there to this day: see the Dictionary under the words rarua, seme, tere, uose, and balu-sa, and the Index for these words. These ancient navigators also had all the same name for 'sail', for which see lai, Dictionary and Index.

Probably among primitive peoples no better standpoint could be chosen than Efate from which to make a study of the religion and social organization of existing savages. In connexion with what here follows may be consulted two papers by the present writer read before the anthropological section of the Australasian Association for the Advancement of Science, the one (consisting of answers to a list of questions) entitled 'Efate, New Hebrides', at the Hobart Session, 1892, the other 'The Mythology of the Efatese', at the Sydney Session, 1898. The Efatese cannibal savages were a very religious people. Their deities were spirits, some of unknown origin as uota,1 who was known and worshipped by all the Efatese, and li raba (goddess of famine), worshipped and known only by some of them. All the deities of this kind were represented by stones or rocks-as in early Arabia-which we may call their idols, and known by the general names fatutabu and atatabu. The spirits whose origin was known were the spirits of their ancestors, or deceased men, and properly called atamate. See also atua and sube. Names of acts of worship are fira, taro-s, to pray; ta bituatua, to speak (one's wishes) while making an offering; taumafa, to invoke while making an offering or sacrifice; bisa taumafa, to vow to make an offering or sacrifice; bali, to fast: see also naleouan, belaki, tamate, mala (Tahiti marae). The religious authority in every community was called natamole tabu: see tabu (English taboo), prohibited, then sacred, consecrated, holy. He was as the prophet or seer or holy man of early Arabia. See also arifon, and koro, kita, lume. A 'familiar spirit' was in some places called There were evil spirits greatly feared; see, e.g. libo, subua, suru-oli. For the names of the spirits who examine every soul immediately after death at the entrance of Hades, and inflict dreadful punishment on those found wanting, see seritau, maseasi, faus, and especially māki (for the same in Arabia). For the names of Hades or the Under-world, see magaboaboa and the six words following it, and bokas, ebua, buariri, liboki, rales, and tūk. See all the preceding and following words in thick type in both Dictionary and Index.

¹ See this word in other connexions on pp. xi, xiii, and see the Dictionary and Index.

As to social organization the Efatese people lived in small communities called launa, each occupying a certain territory or district. Each launa was independent, and comprised (n)afiti, slaves; (n)atatoko, native-born freemen; (na)manaki, sojourners (admitted from other launa); and the civil and religious heads, (na)uota, and natamole tabu. Underlying this was a certain organization according to which every one of the people of every launa, without exception, belonged by birth to one or other of certain kins. Such kins are found among savages elsewhere, and called by Mr. Andrew Lang 'totem kins'. In Efate these kins are (1) by descent in the female line, that is, each person born belongs to the kin of the mother, and the whole kin is necessarily descended from one original mother, and comprised at first only her and the children she had borne; and (2) with exogamy, that is, intermarriage between males and females of the same kin is prohibited as incestuous. Each kin has a totem name, the name of some plant or animal: thus in Efate we have, for example, the naui (yam) kin, the naniu (coco-nut) kin, the namkatu (a kind of yam) kin, the uit (a certain fish) kin, the karau (a shellfish) kin. The word for kin is felak (also kainaga, and mitarau); thus nafelak naui, the yam kin, and so with all the other kins. Now the word felak 2 (see bala) points back to the original mother (bila) of the kin consisting at first of her and her children; kainaga to the time when the kin consisted of her and her children all living and eating together; and mitarau to the fact that the kin or kindred branched out from one source. As marriage was at first rightly prohibited as incestuous between the direct male and female children of the original mother, so, and this is strange to us, the prohibition has remained binding for the same reason ever since upon all males and females however remotely descended from her in the female line. Thus we have the totem kin with descent in the female line and exogamy. As to how these kins originally got their totem names, the personal name of the original mother, e.g. of the naui kin, most probably was li naui, and so with all the other kins. Among the Efatese there was nothing religious about these totem names, or the plants and animals denoted by them: and this is in accordance with the statement of Mr. Andrew Lang that 'totems [in other parts of the world] probably in origin had nothing really religious about them'. ¹

¹ Social Origins, by Andrew Lang, and Primal Law, by J. J. Atkinson, 1903.

¹ Social Origins, &c., p. 159, &c.

² As in Early Arabia; see Kinship and Marriage in Early Arabia, by W. Robertson Smith, new ed., 1903, pp. 37 sqq., 175.

Along with and underlying the totem kin, which excluded the husband and father, was the Family which included him as its head. As marriage was by purchase of the wife, she called her husband uota,2 lord, ana uota, her lord. If a man purchased additional wives, they were called ruba, and he was of course the uota, lord and owner of every one of them. But for the most part monogamy prevailed among the Efatese, the family consisting of husband and wife, or father and mother, with their children. This among the Efatese savages was the normal family, one man and one woman united in marriage, with their children. Polygamy, though not prohibited, was abnormal, and therefore one great, perhaps the greatest, cause of the incessant feuds and bloodshed among these savages. In the normal family, marriage between certain members of it who were necessarily of different totem kins-and therefore inter-marriageable by the totem kin rule—was, and has ever continued, prohibited as incestuous; and this idea of incest prohibited by religious sanction, first in the family and then also in the totem kin, cannot be otherwise accounted for than as having existed from the beginning owing to the constitution of man as distinct from that of not-man, or brute. For the names or terms of family relationship see uota, guruni; ab' or afa, or tema, tama; bile, or bila, raita, ere, susu; natu, nati, nani, nai (see ani); tai, balu, kore, or gore; atena, tobu; alo, maternal uncle; mo, buruma; taku, tauien, or tawien, and tua,

¹ Op. cit., p. 136.

² For this same word so used in ancient Arabia, see Robertson Smith, op. cit., pp. 92 sq.

&c. The word mo denotes father-in-law, mother-in-law, and son-in-law. For the words which denote how a mother-in-law avoided and concealed herself from her son-in-law, see lake, guku: when she happened to find herself where he could see her, she crouched, covering her face and bosom until she got beyond the reach of his vision. This could not have been due to the totem kin, and must have been due to the normal, or primitive family: for by the totem kin rule mother-in-law and son-in-law were inter-marriageable as being necessarily of different totem kins; and the rule that such a union was deemed so incestuous as to be impossible must therefore have arisen, not with the totem-kin, but prior to it, in the normal or primitive family.

First, then, there was the normal or primitive family. After that arose polygamy, and the wife and mother's totem kin—a kind of guild from which the husband and father was excluded, but by which he neither was nor could be excluded from his natural kin or blood relationship with his children. This is contrary to Mr. McLennan's primitive promiscuity hypothesis, which Professor Robertson Smith in his work, above cited, has laboured, with much learning, but with conspicuous unsuccess, to apply in the Semitic field.

In the Efatese verbs in the following work, except in the Index, the formative ending t is preceded by a hyphen, thus, e. g. p. 218, luku-ti, and luku-taki, and in every such case the final i of the former and ki of the latter are the transitive particles, and the words might have been written luku-t i, luku-ta ki; see Chap. IV, and for the phonetic variations of the -t Chap. II. The na after substantives, as, e. g. aru na, p. 110, is the nominal suffix (genitive) pronoun third person; and the same na (or a, or n, or nia, or sa) after verbs, e. g. mesau na, p. 241, banako sa, banak ia, bunako n, p. 129, is the verbal suffix (acc.) pronoun third person: see Chap. V.

¹ For one criticism of which see The Primitive Family in its Origin and Development, by C. N. Starcke, 2nd ed., 1896. International Scientific Series.

This introduction must not be concluded without expressing thanks to the Government of the Commonwealth of Australia for defraying the expense of the publication of the present work.

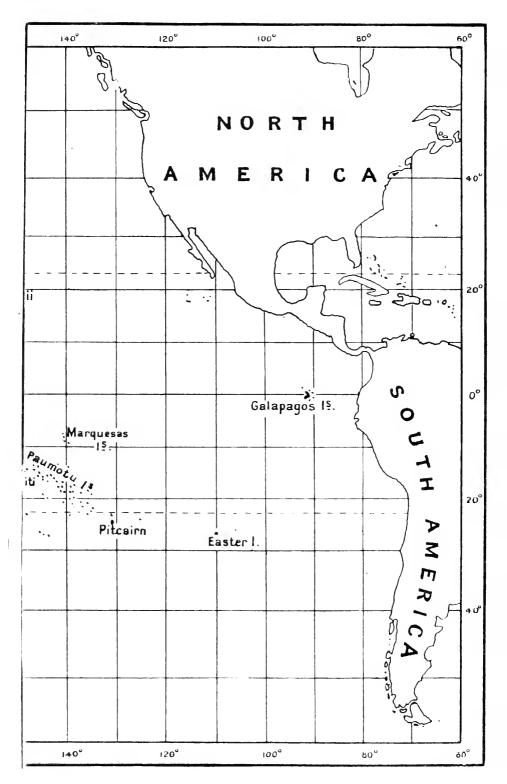

Note.—On p. 9, h'(hw) should be $k'(kw)\,;$ and omit balo-ni from third line from foot of p. 18.

	3
	1
	-

	à i
9
			.,

		•//
•
		5:

OCEANIC LANGUAGES

CHAPTER I

THE PROBLEM

During the past century linguistic science has endeavoured to solve the problem of the Asiatic (whether Indo-European, Turanian, or Semitic) relationship of the Oceanic family of languages. Some may question whether our knowledge of the Oceanic languages is as yet sufficiently advanced to permit of the final solution of the problem as to their continental relationship, as it certainly was not in the days of the attempted solutions of it by Bopp 1, in the year 1841, and by Max Müller 2 in the year 1854. If Bopp were living now it is probable that, with our present knowledge of the Oceanic, he would heartily agree with the verdict of linguistic science which has been given against his theory of the relationship of the Malayo-Polynesian languages through the Sanskrit to the Indo-European; and the same may be said of Max Müller and his theory of their relationship through the Thai of Siam to the Turanian. However that may be, the verdict of linguistic science has been decisively given against both of these theories. In the days when they were put forth our knowledge of the Oceanic, then called the Malayo-Polynesian, was too limited. Since then great advances have been made. The multitudinous languages of the Western Pacific-the Melanesian at that time little known, and erroneously supposed to be radically diverse from each other, and from the 'Malayo-Polynesian'-are now well known, and have proved to be closely inter-related, and, while not derived from, yet radically connected with, the Malayan and the Polynesian, as Gabelentz pointed out as far back as the year 1860. These three groups of languages and dialectsthe Malayan, the Polynesian, and the Melanesian—naming them in the order in which they have successively become known, are, as Friedrich Müller has shown,2 members or branches of the Oceanic, which is as perfectly well defined a family of languages as is the Semitic or the Indo-European. The Oceanic is, as its name indicates, insular. Its habitat, which we may call Oceania, stretches from Madagascar, off the east coast of Africa, across the Indian Ocean to the Malay Archipelago, and on through the Pacific Ocean to Easter Island. On the north it has invaded from the island world, and settled upon only the south-eastern extremity of the Asiatic Continent, hence called the Malay Peninsula. On the south it has not reached the Australian Continent, though closely approaching it in New Guinea. The Islanders who speak Oceanic number about fifty millions, or one-thirtieth of the human race.

¹ Über die Verwandtschaft der Malayisch-Polynesischen Sprachen mit den Indisch-Europäischen, von Franz Bopp, Berlin, 1841.

² In Bunsen's Christianity and Mankind.

To say that the Oceanic languages are a perfectly well-defined family, is to say that they are all sprung from one mother-tongue—the Oceanic mother-tongue; and to establish the Asiatic relationship of the Oceanic is to establish that that mother-tongue was originally carried by its speakers from the Asiatic Continent into the Island world. The question as to whether the Asiatic relationship of the Oceanic can be established is a purely linguistic question, which can only be answered from a due investigation of the available linguistic data. Three great Continents, Asia, Africa, and America, or, counting Australia, four, border on the Island world. It may be held as certain that the relationship of the Oceanic, whatever

¹ H. C. von der Gabelentz, Die Melanesischen Sprachen nach ihrem grammatischen Bau und ihrer Verwandtschaft unter sich und mit den Malaiisch-Polynesischen Sprachen, Vol. I, Leipzig, 1861, Vol. II, 1873. Compare the more recent work of the Rev. Dr. Codrington on The Melanesian Languages.

² Friedrich Müller, Reise der Fregatte Novara, Wien, 1867: Grundriss der Sprachwissenschaft, Wien, 1882. and following years.

it is, is not African, American, or Australian. Madagascar is near the African coast, but the Malagasy, which belongs to the Malayan or Tagalan branch of the Oceanic, is not related to the African languages. Easter Island approaches nearest, though not very near, to America; but its language, which belongs to the Polynesian branch, is not related to the American languages. And the Melanesian branch, which approaches Australia, is not related to the Australian languages. pre-historic geological history of the globe, whether as known or merely conjectured, throws no light on the problem of the relationship of the Oceanic. Were it proved, for example, than tens, or hundreds of thousands, or millions of years ago there had been a great continent in Oceania, of which the existing islands are the unsubmerged peaks, or were it proved that such had never been, in either case the Oceanic problem inviting the solution of linguistic science all through the nineteenth century, and now at the beginning of the twentieth still inviting it, would remain exactly the same, wholly unaffected by that proof. Nor would that proof throw any light on what we may call the apparent discrepancy of race and language in Oceania. It would still remain to be accounted for exactly as before. The Oceanic speakers, that is the Oceanic people or race, are a mixed race, not pure white, not pure black, not pure yellow, but, as De Quatrefages has observed,1 a mixture of all three. Nevertheless, the Oceanic speakers, however the Caucasian, the Negro, or the Mongol physique may be more in evidence in any particular part, constitute mentally, socially, and religiously, as well as linguistically, one great, though much diversified, race or people, just as the languages, though multitudinously diversified, constitute one great family. Though the cases are not exactly parallel, yet in North America at the present time we see Caucasian, Negro, and Mongol all speaking the same language-English, and we know that that language was not originally a Negro, or a Mongol, but an Indo-European tongue. If we could conceive of some future time at which every other means of knowing this had been swept away, the Indo-European speakers of North America having been fused into one mixed diversified race, linguistic science alone would still be able to prove it. Be that as it may, other means than those of linguistic science do not exist by which to ascertain conclusively the relationship of the Oceanic mother-tongue.

¹ A. De Quatrefages, The Human Species, 3rd Ed., London, 1883.

As a matter of fact three parts of the Asiatic Continent have been fixed upon as being, the one or the other of them, the starting-point from which the Oceanic race immigrated into the Island world, over which they gradually spread—the southeastern or Indo-Chinese Peninsula, the south-central or Indian Peninsula, and the south-western or Arabian Peninsula. were to confine ourselves, apart from linguistic science, to the question of the possibility of the race having spread over the whole Oceanic world from any one of these points, we might choose one or other of these three, but there would be no certain proof of the correctness of our choice. The fact that the Negro element in the Oceanic race is older than the Mongol-a fact indicated by its greater predominance in the extremities of Oceania, as well as in the interior and more inaccessible parts of the larger islands-is against the Indo-Chinese Peninsula as the starting-point of the race. In like manner the indications are that the race did not come from the Indian Peninsula into Oceania, but that after it was there Indian civilization came upon it in comparatively recent times, or about the beginning of the Christian era, confining itself mainly, if not wholly, to Java and neighbourhood, where its architectural and other relics still remain. The Indian modifications of the Oceanic alphabetic characters in the Malay Archipelago are such relics. Fundamentally these characters are not Indian, but Phoenician, altogether independently of the Indian, and of a more ancient type of Phoenician than the Indian. 1 No modern alphabets preserve the ancient Phoenician type so markedly as these Oceanic alphabets, and they are therefore to be regarded as of the highest antiquity. This favours as the starting-point of the Oceanic race the south-western peninsula of Asia, which was, according to Herodotus, the original home of the Phoenicians, from whence they colonized the Tyrian-Sidonian coast of the Mediterranean. And with this the following considerations all agree. From whatever point the Oceanic race migrated into the Island world, they did so in sea-going vessels, and we may reasonably infer that before doing so they were habitually in possession of such vessels, or were a sea-going, commercial people, as for the most part they are to-day. Now in the ancient world, long before the rise of Greece or Rome, it was in the waters of the southern seas alone that ocean-going commerce was begun and carried on for ages by the human race, and that not by the people of the Indian or the Indo-Chinese, but by those of the Arabian Peninsula. It was here that the commercial fleets of Solomon. manned by Phoenicians, made the first long sea-going voyages recorded by history, whether they went, as some think, to the east coast of Africa, or, as others hold with more probability, to India, or as Josephus, than whom there is no weightier historical authority on the subject, says, to the Malay Peninsula. What the Phoenicians of Tyre and Sidon were later on in the Mediterranean, that their ancestors and cousins were then and had been in earlier times in the southern seas of the Island world.1 In the Arabian Peninsula running out into those seas, and contiguous to Africa, there was, in ancient times, a great commercial empire. Then and to this day in the existing descendants of that long since fallen empire,2 which colonized the neighbouring Abyssinia, there is, and we may reasonably infer there always was from the earliest times, a large negro element of blood. If we suppose that the Oceanic race originally, in ancient times, migrated from that peninsular empire or from among that people, along the east coast of Africa to Madagascar, and along the south coast of Asia to the Malay Archipelago, this fully accounts for the negro element of blood in the race, as we now find it, manifestly an older element in it than the Indian or the Mongol. And as, when modern history lifts the veil from Malaysia, we find the existing or Mohammedan civilization of the Arabian peninsula there, newly introduced and predominating, so there is reason to think that that was only a later wave of immigration and influence from the mother-land of the Oceanic race.

¹ See Oceania: Linguistic and Anthropological, London, 1889.

¹ See Sir J. Emerson Tennent's Ceylon, 5th Ed., London, 1860, Vol. I, Part V, Chap. II, pp. 553-4, &c.

² On this 'vieux monde disparu', see Renan, Histoire des Langues Sémitiques.

But plausible as all this is it is not till we take into account the linguistic data that we get upon the solid ground of certainty. And first of all it is to be observed that though there was a negro element of blood in the race, due to intermixture, the race itself, as its language proves, was not negro. What that race was can only be determined from its language, and what that mother-language was is to be learned from an examination of its descendants and representatives, the spoken Oceanic languages and dialects of the present day. If the race came from the Arabian Peninsula, the Semitic motherland, sprung from the people of the commercial empire that existed there, then their language was Semitic. For the Phoenicians, the people of that ancient South Arabian empire and of their Abyssinian colony, and their descendants now in Abyssinia and Arabia, all are Semitic speakers. If the race came from the Indian Peninsula one might suppose with Bopp that the language was Indo-European; if from the Indo-Chinese Peninsula, with Max Müller that it was Scythian or Turanian. The problem thus, as is clear, can only be solved linguistically. And the praiseworthy efforts of Bopp and Müller to solve it are valuable if only as having led to the certainty that the Oceanic mother-tongue was neither Indo-European nor Turanian. Their attempts failed because made on insufficient data, and their methods were for the same reason inadequate. One great branch of the Oceanic, the Melanesian, with all the light it throws upon the subject, was to them unknown. They trusted mainly if not wholly on the comparison of words, chiefly the pronouns and numerals, in which there is always great liability to error, and which apart from comparison of grammar and structure can never be conclusive. As to the pronouns, for instance, Bopp, and Max Müller following him, chose to regard the Malay Kita, Kami, we, and Kamu, ye, as composed of an article ki, or ka, and the pronouns ta, mi, mu. This enabled Bopp to compare the latter with the Indo-European pronouns, and Max Müller, it should be added, to compare them with equal probability or improbability with the Turanian; and by this method the Oceanic pronouns might just as well be compared with any others The fact is, as the Melanesian clearly shows, that whatsoever. this ki, or ka, is not an article at all, and that this comparison of Bopp, and also that of Müller, founded on the notion that it is, is illegitimate and futile. And again, as to the Malay numerals, dalapan, 8, and salapan, sambilan, or sambalan, 9, Bopp, and Max Müller following him, chose to regard them as compound words, and the prefixed da as the numeral 2, and sa, 1, dalapan, thus signifying 'two taken (from ten)', and sambilan 'one taken (from ten)', or as Müller phrases it 'ten minus two', and 'ten minus one'. In this way Bopp for his part makes these words, though not Indo-European numerals, yet to fall in with his Indo-European theory, while Müller, on the other hand, finds in them, while admitting that the Oceanic numerals are not those of the Thai of Siam, a feature 'peculiarly Turanian'. But unfortunately for both contentions these are not compound words at all, but simple primitive numeral words with the first syllable reduplicated in the well-known Oceanic manner: thus dalapan is analogous to the Tagalan dalaua, 2, found in other dialects as dalua, darua, &c., the common unreduplicated form of the word being rua, or lua; and sa of salapan, 9, by transposition sambilan, is similarly accounted for.

NOTE

- In the following pages certain works are referred to thus:—
 - C.G.S.L. Comparative Grammar of the Semitic Languages. By W. Wright, LL.D., Professor of Arabic, University of Cambridge, 1890.
 - Von Maltzan. For the studies on the Mahri dialect of South Arabia by this writer, see Z.D.M.G., xxv, xxvii.
 - M.L. The Melanesian Languages. By the Rev. R. H. Codrington, D.D. Oxford, at the Clarendon Press, 1885.
 - Ray's List of New Hebrides Words. (For this see Journal of the Royal Society of N. S. Wales, 1893.) By Sidney H. Ray, London. This paper is valuable and contains (1) Introduction, (2) Classified list of Languages, (3) Comparative Vocabulary, and (4) Notes on the Vocabulary.
 - S.S.S. South Sea Languages. A series of Studies on the Languages of the New Hebrides and other South Sea Islands, Vol. II. Tangoan-Santo, Malo, Malekula, Epi (Baki and Bierian), Tanna, and Futuna, Melbourne, 1891. Vol. I. Three New Hebrides Languages: Efate, Eromanga, Santo. Melbourne, 1889. These two works edited by the present writer, were printed at the expense of the Trustees of the Public Library, Museums, and National Gallery of Victoria. They are sometimes referred to as Vols. I and II of this series, the present volume being the third and completing one.
 - The abbreviated titles of other works referred to, do not require any explanation, except L., which stands for Latham's Comparative Philology, and W., which stands for Wallace's Malay Archipelago, list of words at end.

CHAPTER II

PHONOLOGY

1. The twenty-two letters of the Semitic alphabet, numbered as in Syriac and Hebrew, are represented thus:—

(a)	(b)	(c)
1. ', a soft, guttural breathing
2. b, b and v
3. g, g and gh		g'(gw)
4. d , d and dh (as th in 'this')	ģ
5. h		$\mathbf{h}'(\mathbf{h}\mathbf{w})$
6. w, v and w
7. z
8. ḥ , a stronger h	ḥ' t'	$\dot{\mathbf{h}}''(\dot{\mathbf{h}}\mathbf{w})$
9. ţ, a palatal t	$\mathbf{t'}$
10. y		0.0
11. k , k and as 8		$\mathbf{k'}$ (\mathbf{kw})
12. 1
13. m
14. n
15. s
16. ', related to ' and h,	c c r grasséyé, gh, ng (which we represent b y ġ)
17. p, p and f
18. ș, ts	ș'
19. k , a throat k , related to '
20. r
21. s' (originally sh), sh, and s
22. t, th and t	t'
		111

To the original twenty-two letters, Arabic has added the six modified letters of column (b); Ethiopic the four of column (c).

- 2. The letters b, g, d, k, p, t had each two sounds, as in Heb. and Arm., the unaspirated as in English, and the aspirated v (bh), gh, dh, kh (like h), f (ph), and th. These letters when aspirated readily passed into h and disappeared. In Assy. m had the sounds of m and v (aspirated b), and when pronounced v readily disappeared: on the other hand, w (v) might be pronounced m. In Arb. d, t', t', s' are aspirated d, t, t, s.
- 3. In all the Semitic dialects the weak or vowel letters, h, w, y are 'quiescents', that is, readily lose their consonant power and disappear: in addition to these, in Assy. the letters h, ', and " are weak or vowel letters, or quiescents, all being pronounced as', or spiritus lenis, h', however, having the sound of h. As to the similar confounding and disappearing of ', h, h (h'), ', (") in other Semitic dialects, see C.G.S.L., pp. 49-50; and as to w and y, pp. 69-74.
- 4. Dialectically, one or more of the original sounds may be dropped: thus in Assy., as just noted, the sounds of h, h, ', and (if they were original) the aspirated sounds of b, g, d, k, p, t. In Assy. No. 17 is pronounced only p, in Arb. and Eth. only f; in Assy. and Eth. No. 21 only s, the original sh sound having been dropped. On the other hand, new sounds may be dialectically developed out of, or substituted for, the original, as in Eth. g', h', h'', k' (if they were not original); Arb. j (sometimes to s', s) for g; Arb. and Arm. ty or ch, also Amh. tsh, or ts', for k; Arb. dzh, or dz, or ch, for k²; Amh. ty, or ch, and dy, or j, for t and d.³ The ordinary sound of k throughout Arabia now is g, its original sound having been dropped.
 - 5. Gutturals: ', h, ḥ (ḥ'), ', ("), (h', ḥ'', g', k'), g, k, ḥ, y. Dentals: d (ḍ), z, ṭ (ṭ'), l, n, s, ṣ (ṣ'), r, s', t, t'. Labials: b, p, m, v, f, w.
- a. For obvious reasons letters of the same class readily interchange, gutturals with gutturals, dentals with dentals, labials with labials. For examples, see especially Gesenius, H. Lex., first article under each letter; Dillmann, Eth. Gr.; C.G.S.L.; and for Assy., the Grammars of Sayce and Delitzsch; and for the Mahri, Von Maltzan. As to the gutturals, g aspirated is pronounced like ", k aspirated like h, and k in parts of Syria, Egypt, and Abyssinia like", as is noted in C.G.S.L.

¹ C.G.S.L., p. 54. ² C.G.S.L., pp. 51-2. ³ p. 55.

- b. Interchange of letters of one class with those of another. Gutturals and Dentals: g and j (s', s); k and ty or ch, and ts; k and dz, or ch: see § 4. The change k to t is seen, e.g., in the Semitic personal pronoun of the first person: for h to r, 1, and 'to rh, see Von Maltzan. So 'to r is noted by Gesenius.
- c. Dental with Guttural. The change of t to k is seen in the Semitic pronoun of the second person, and that of s (s') to h, and ', in that of the third person, and in the Causative preformative; and that of t to h, and ', in the Semitic feminine and abstract formative ending. See C.G.S.L., pp. 61-4, for s, s', to ', ', k, and h, and g.
- d. Guttural and Labial: y and w; 'and w: C.G.S.L. See Eth. Gr., pp. 47, 98, for k (h) and f, or vice versa, ko to fo, demonstrative particle. The kw sounds in Ethiopic are combinations of Guttural and Labial.
- e. Labial and Guttural: Assy. m (probably through ng) and g: Delitzsch. B and h, Amh. ba to ha, preposition; Mahri boriq to horiq, 'lightning.'
 - f. Dental and Labial: Arb. t' and f: C.G.S.L., p. 66.
- g. Labial and Dental: in all the Semitic dialects m and n are often interchanged, as in the plural ending of nouns and pronouns, the mimation—nunation, and the radical letters of words.
- 6. Letters which readily fall away or disappear are the quiescents, § 4; the aspirated b, g, d, k, p, t, and m pronounced v, § 2: v and f pass into w, d and t into h, g and k into and h or h, k into , § 5 a; and so disappear: C.G.S.L. (as to d and t, p. 54). S, changed to h, readily disappears as in the Causative preformative, and the third personal pronoun; Mahri itit, 6, ستة; homo, 5, حمسة; ibet, 7, سبعة; hiriq, 'steal,' سرق. As to t, Mahri iset, Sokotra saah, 9, تَسْعَةً.

7. Words whose initial radical was one of the weak letters, or quiescents, § 3, were apt to drop the first syllable, as ידע, 'to know,' דעה, 'knowledge'; חד, واحد, 'חד, 'one'; הלך (ילך), 'to go,' Assy. halak, 'to go,' laku, 'a going.'

On the other hand, a syllable consisting of ', the prosthetic', with a vowel was often prefixed to a word to make the pronunciation easier: C.G.S.L., pp. 93-4.

8. The Vowels 1: a, e, i, o, u, as in Italian.

U, and u, or ui, as in Scotch gude, guid, y, in Egypt, yelept, syntax, i as in sin, e, o, and ī.

A, and ĕ, i, o, u; Assy. -anu, and -inu, Arb. -an, H. -on. I, and e.

The diphthongs: ai (ay), and ē, ī, a; au (aw), and ō, u, a.

9. The Oceanic sounds: the vowels a, e, i, o, u, as in Italian: in Efatese ă is often pronounced like ĕ, ĭ, or ŭ; thus banatu, or banotu, is often pronounced bĭnotĕ, which might as well be written bĭnotĕ. The long sounds of a, e, i, u, as in father, fate, feet, moon, are very different. Hence the verbal pronoun of the third person is written by one i, by another e, and, as we shall see, represents an original u or y: compare English do, did (A.S. dyde), Scotch di, or dae. The diphthongs are ai, sometimes written ei, and au: ai passes into ē, or i, or a, as in i bai, or i bi seĕ? 'he is who?' I mai, or i bē, 'he comes'; i bai, or i ba se, or i bē sab? 'he goes or comes (from) where?' So au passes into o, a, or u, as ġaut, and ġat; and in kabu, kobu, kubu, the a, o, and u are all for original au.

Consonants, and mode of representing them.

' is not represented, thus To. laa, 'the sun' (not written la'a).

b, in the Efatese of this work (and To.), represents both b and p, and when aspirated becomes f which represents both v and f:

¹ C.G.S.L., Chh. V and IX.

in some Ef. dialects, however, b, p, v, and f are all written. In Mg. and My. b as in English.

d, in Mg., My., Tanna, Ml., as in English; not in our Ef., but in Ef. dialect, and sometimes pronounced nd.

h, as in Semitic, not in our Ef., but in Ef. dialect, Mg., Tanna, Ml., &c.

w, in our Ef. written u as French ou in 'oui' (wi), written w in Ef. dialect.

z, as in Semitic, Tanna, Mare, Mg.

h, as in Semitic, in Mare, Tanna, Ml., Futuna.

t, tr, Mg., Ef.

y, written i in our Ef., but is written y in An., Tanna, Ml., My.

k, l, m, n, s, r, t, as in Semitic.

'. This represents various guttural sounds from g (gh) to '. It has been called 'the Melanesian g', and, says Dr. Codrington (who writes it g), "has been written g (hard), r, gg, gh, rh, and k... Bishop Patteson was struck by its resemblance to the Arabic Ghain ("), and Professor Max Müller's description of the Heb. ain (') as 'a vibration of the fissura laryngea, approaching sometimes to a trill, nearly equivalent to German g in tage,' closely suits it".1

p, in My., Mg., Tanna, Ml.

s, as in Semitic, in Ef. dialect, Santo, Mg. (written ts).

s', as in Semitic, in Fut., Mare; and in Mg. s before i becomes s'.

The different Oceanic dialects have variously dropped or modified some of these sounds. As to the latter, those, ch, My.; j, An. (ch in 'rich'); and j, My., &c., modifications, as in Arb., and Amh., of dentals, are not in Efatese: but the sounds represented by ġ, þ, and ṁ, which must now be noticed, are. The sounds of b and ṁ are not in all the Melanesian dialects, though perhaps in most of them from the New Hebrides to New Guinea. For the New Hebrides, see Vol. II of this series, and Ray's list of New Hebrides words; for the Sol. Islands, M.L., Ch. IV; and for Motu (N.G.), Law's Dictionary.

The nasalized guttural g is pronounced like ng in 'singing'. It is absent from Tahitian, but is in all the other Po. dialects except Hawaiian in which its place is taken by n, and Marquesan in which, according to Tregear, its place is taken by k. Ordinarily in Efatese it is a modification of k, sometimes of n, more rarely of m.

B: the guttural-labial sound symbolized by b is that symbolized by q in M.L. by Dr. Codrington, and in Motu by Laws. In Efatese it is impossible to say sometimes whether the sound is kw (like qu in English) or bw, or kb. It is a half-guttural, half-labial sound, and originally a modified guttural like the kw sound in Eth. and Amh. But now it sometimes represents not only an original guttural, but an original labial. It is a bridge between the two classes like the Latin QV, a guttural followed by a labial semivowel forming a transition from guttural to labial; thus:

```
Sanskrit kis, Lat. quis, Oscan pis.

,, qatvar, ,, quattuor, Umbrian petur.

,, quisque, Gr. \pi \epsilon \mu \pi \epsilon.

Latin cocus, ,, coquo, Lat. popina.

,, secundus, ,, sequor, Gr. \epsilon \pi o \mu a \iota.
```

m: This sound is like gm (gw), or mw. It is a nasalized, guttural-labial sound varying between the two classes. It is originally a modification of b (kw), just as g is of k: kw became gw, which passed into gm and mw, then m, exactly as kw passed into kb, bw, then b. Then sometimes an original b was pronounced b, and an original m was pronounced m, apparently just as the speaker pleased. In the Efatese New Testament m and m are both written m, but b (when distinguished) is written p.

'In the Banks Islands the suffixed form of the second personal pronoun (singular) is generally m, or ma, but in Merlav and Ureparapara it has become g, and in Maewo ga', Efatese ma, dialect ma. Neither g, m, nor m is the original sound in this word: it is k which passes into g, that into m, that finally into m: in Efatese the word is actually found in all these forms. But in Mota ima, Ef. suma, and suma, 'house,' Fiji rīġa, and Ef. dialect lima, 'hand,' both the m and g represent an original m. The same work states the view that ġ in some cases is a change from k, but generally from n. Efatese, however, the contrary of this is the fact. A glance at the Dictionary (infra) proves that nearly all the words beginning with k are pronounced also with g (often indifferently by the same speaker), and represent words first radical guttural. Only in some cases in Efatese g represents original n, and in other and fewer cases original m.

¹ Maori Comparative Dictionary, Introd.

² Smith's Latin Grammar.

Usually those who have reduced the Island dialects to writing have acted on the right principle of expressing one sound by one character, and if all had used the same character for the same sound nothing would need to be said. But as this is not the case, and to use the same character for entirely different sounds would in the present work be confusing and apt to mislead, such characters have to be as far as possible transcribed into the alphabet above given. Thus the Fijian e = th in 'the', and the An. e = th in 'thin', is here t'.

New Hebrides c = g (hard) is here g.

The Fijian $q = \dot{g}k$ is here \dot{g}' , and $\dot{g}g$ is \dot{g}'' .

New Hebrides, Sol. Islands, and Motu q is here b.

Maori, My., and Mg. ng is here ġ, as is also New Hebrides, Polynesian, and Fiji g (= ng).

Mg. and New Hebrides ts is here s.

,, tr is here t.

'The Melanesian g' (in M.L.) is here '.

The sound of ch in 'loch' is here h.

The Mg. o = u is here u.

The Mg. y = i (as in 'county') is here i.

¹ M.L., p. 214.

My. j = English j, and My. ch = English ch in 'church': in the New Hebrides j generally represents the latter, and in the Sol. Islands dialects sometimes the latter, sometimes the former.

The Mg. j = dz, and is a heavier z.

10. Dropping of letters: see §§ 2, 6. Letters aspirated and their disappearance. In Efatese b, i.e. b and p, is aspirated as in § 2, and then is apt in the same way to disappear. B aspirated is f, and this passes into w and then disappears, as bora, borauora, mauora, then maora. M, as in §§ 2, 6, is sometimes pronounced f (v or f), as num, nuf, then nu (nuw), 'to be ended': this accounts for the disappearance of the original final m in this word in Mg. and My. also (see bunu, 'to make an end of'), and for the fact that some words in Oceanic have v, f, or w for the original m, as Arb., Eth., mai, 'water,' Tah., Ef., vai, fai, Efate also after the article n-oai, for na-wai, and n-ai. jo, or'H, 'banana,' Fut. fuji, My. pisag, Ef. āti, aṣi, dialect vih (for vis), Mg. unti, id.; Ef. ānoi, dialect mani, 'male.' In Efatese m is often pronounced f (v or f), as matuna, fatuna, 'somewhat'; matoko, fatoko, 'to abide'; cf. Mg. mati, fati, 'dead, corpse.' Thus initial, medial, and final m sometimes disappears; final m also sometimes as in § 6.

For original m, see (Dictionary, infra) katau, jisa (kiha, jia), ra (ṭa), taot (tawot), rakum and rakua, ūna.

For original b, see rarua, kusue, borau, kolau, roa (roua, or rowa, 'to turn'), rau, kasau, koau (and kabu), ātĕ ('liver'), masoi (An. moijeuv, Tan. mahau), ui (uwi), barab (also, barau, baram, baraf, 'long'), karau (also karab and karam), au (and abu), rau (and raf), tau, 'time, season, year.' For f, see surata (suuara, suara), uose, ġalau, balu-sa, uolau, matautau, siuo (siwo, sua), kai (and kaf), malūs (and malifus).

So according to §§ 2, 6, g and k disappear, as also does k according to § 5.

For original g, see lau ('sea'), buto ('navel'), lība, fāra.

For original k, see to (and toko), borau (My. prahu, prau), abura (and kabuer), bau-si, (Mg. fehi-zi). Mg. often has h for k in the prefixed form-particle My. ka, Mg. ha, Ef. baka, and faka, Mg. maha, and faha. How original k passes into h and disappears, is seen in the first personal pronoun, My. aku, Mg. ahu, Sam. a'u, Maori au, Ef. kinau, An. a-iñak, Epi. nag'u, Ml. k-inag', Kisa yahu, Bu. iyak, Tanna iyah, iau, yak, Ero. yau, Mahri ho, 'I': so Assyrian nini, Hebrew anu, 'we': cf. the other Semitic dialects. According to Crauford, k 'by most of the Malay tribes, but not by all, is not sounded when it ends a word, or at most, only as a weak aspirate... even as a medial letter k is elided by some tribes aiming at softness of pronunciation'. The initial k of the suffixed second personal pronoun plural disappears thus, Ef. kama, and suffix mu, My. kamu, and mu: in Ef. dialects we have this pronoun (separate), after the demonstrative particle ni, with the k elided, thus, nikam, nëem, nem, nimu, 'ye.'

For original k, see buil (bulo, 'early, morning'), usi (and kusi), mataku (and matau), àso ('bow'), aso ('burn,' An. gas).

So according to §§ 2, 6, d and t disappear.

For original d, see fau (My. baharu), soko, kuli (My. kulit, Mg. hudiṭa), bia (My. piät, Mg. afi, and zafi), naḥe (dialect mbat), and the numeral word for 'one'.

For original t radical, see tolu (so M. Syrian tela), 'three,' and compare Arb. t'ali, 'third.'

For original t servile, see mi-saki (My. sakit), ma-taku (Mg. tahuṭa): in misaki, 'to be sick,' and mataku, 'to fear,' the servile t is dropped according to §§ 2, 6: see C.G.S.L., where cited there. Final t in Malay is in familiar discourse usually softened into a vowel or the aspirate, as sakit into sakih, takut into takuh.

As to servile -t in Efatese the rule is that when, as in the Semitic dialects, it has no suffix attached to it, it disappears, but when it has it reappears, as bulu, buluti; fafano, balosi; and third radical dental is often treated in the same way, as ala, alati; amo, amosi; kamu, kamuti, &c.

11. The quiescents: see § 3. These, as may easily be seen by looking in the Index (infra), under the various letters, have usually, not always, lost their consonant power or disappeared, even when they are the first radicals of words, much more of course when second or third radicals. The first radical quiescent has usually either (a) lost its consonant power, its vowel only remaining, or (b), as in § 7, both it and its vowel have disappeared, or (c) it has passed into another sound.

(a) For examples of this as to', see amau, afaru, āfa, alat, kani:

as to h, abu, bażobażo, atu, oro;

as to w, amosi, aseli, aso, atata;

as to h, and h', èlo, alo ('to wave'), alo ('uncle'), asi;

as to y, aru, atui, atu, uḥa;

as to 'and '', àfiti, àliàlia, ànu, àfina, ūta, àni, ara; Tahiti ahuru, 'ten.'

(b) For examples of this as to ', see fatu, rojo, safi, seli, sere, teru; sikai, 'one.'

as to h, ta ('to chop, cut'), mu, bosa, teratera, rifu;

as to w, tao, kot, sież, taki, kita;

as to h, bei, bau (bau-s), sike, turu (toro), sēs;

[No such example as to h' occurs, see Index under h'.]

as to y, būsa, tae (d. for atai), bia, ma-turu, ma (susa);

as to 'and ', bea, bila, taoti (tàwoti), fata (uota), tefi, lasi, moru, fasu, musu, sila (sol); Rotti hulu, Samoan fulu, 'ten.' [Note. Examples of (b) are common in reduplicated words as lolo (alo-fi, also loa-si, and lo-fi), momoa, bāb, and abāb (āb), &c.]

(c) For examples of this as to ', see (\bar{e}) , he, fei, sei, interrogative pronoun; tama, taliga, $\dot{p}inu$ ('to weave'), bati, $\dot{g}isa$, (kiha), kurun;

as to h, abu, libu;

as to h, and h', kabu, suma (hima, ema, uma), lima ('five'), laso, rakum, uis (wis, bis); sikai, tesa, 'one';

as to w, boroa, bani (banu-s), balu, balo-ni, maui (mau), kan (kano, kanoka), malat (malat), marag (burei), atĕlag ('moon');

as to y, faru (aru, 'hand'), uba and kuba ('day');

¹ For these words in other Oceanic dialects, see infra, the Dictionary, and for the same in the Semitic dialects, see the Index.

as to 'and ', uili (uli, oli), kari ('boy'), kasu (kau, 'tree'), uisi (bisi), bago) (mago), fili, bulo (bugo), binu ('to whistle'), mata, mota, mita (mata, 'eye'), mala (mala); Maori gahuru, Vila and Meli (Po. Ef.) gafuru, nofuru, 'ten.'

Modern English, it may be here observed, has dropped the guttural sounds of the Anglo-Saxon, which are still preserved in other dialects as Scotch and German: cf. lauch, Germ. lach-en, and laugh (laf); eneuch, Germ. genug, A.S. genoh, genog, and enough (enuf), enow; A.S., hoh, and hough (hoh). So with Efatese as compared with some other New Hebrides and Oceanic dialects. In such examples in English we see not only the sometimes complete dropping, or quiescence, of the ancient gutturals, but also sometimes the passing of them into letters of another class, as here h, h, g, into f, w, k, which now represent them. Such changes in English have taken place in the past, and we know that they have from the comparison of the present English with the other Indo-European ancient and modern dialects. It is exactly so with Efatese or other modern Oceanic dialects. The strong Semitic ancient guttural sounds, h, h, ', h', ', y, when in past times they were being dropped, either completely disappeared, or passed into other letters, as we have just seen. In My. initial h (written) is no longer sounded as hutan, Ef. uta, in which word the h represents an original y, غ: here we see the process of softening the ancient harsher guttural sound in operation as it were.

12. Dialectically one or more of the original consonant sounds may be dropped, as in § 4. In Tahitian all the gutturals have been softened to ', or lost, and s is always, f often, represented by h. In most of the Polynesian dialects all the sibilants have been softened to h, and Raratongan has lost even this h. Hawaiian has lost all the dentals, and softened s and f to h. Raratongan has lost both f and h, and also s. Tongan, like Arabic, has lost p; Malay, like Assyrian, f; and Malay v Malagasy w. Malay and Efatese have lost z, and, like Assyrian and Ethiopic, s'. In Efatese the sibilants have been reduced to s (which in one dialect is softened to h), the dentals practically to t, and the gutturals to k (g, b, m); though the sounds of d, g, h are heard dialectically. In the New Hebrides dialects the original Semitic guttural sounds have been well preserved: Futunese shows that Polynesian, and Tanna, Malekula, &c., that Efatese originally had them. The change of k, g, and t to j (ch and j), not in Efatese, is seen, e.g. in Aneityumese (as in Arabic), as in akaija, inta, 'we and thou'; aijaua, gaua, 'ye'; moijeuv, 'star,'j for original k, is in Ef. masoi, Santo masoi. So the s in Mg. sufina, 'ear,' is for original k (قُونْ), through j (or ch), as in § 4, My. kupig, and chupig, Lampong chiupig, Batta tshoppig (chopig). In Efatese sili-f ('enter'), q.v. My. julok, also salat, or salap, Mg. juluka (i. e. dzulu-ka), the My. j, Mg. dz, Ef. and My. s, all represent the original d. s. The same change of d to j and s is seen in the word for 'one', Ef. tesa, Gaudalcanar kesa, New Caledonia (Latham), tat, tedja, i.e. teja.

In Ef. k, g (sometimes g') according to rule represent (My. and Mg. k, g, and) the Semitic k, g, k, see Index under these letters.

In Ef. the guttural-labial b, m, sometimes represent the guttural quiescents, § 11 c.

In Ef. t (sometimes pronounced t, dialectically s, d) according to rule represents (My. t, d, Mg. t, t, s, d, and) the Semitic t, t', t', s, s', d, under which letters see Index.

In Ef. s according to rule represents (Mg. and Tanna s, and z, Mare s, s', and z, Fut. s, s', and) the Semitic s, s', z, under which letters see Index.

The Semitic s is represented in Ef. by t or s. See Index under the letter s.

In Ef. 1, r, n according to rule represent the Semitic 1, r, n, under which letters see Index.

In Ef. b (=b and p), f (=v and f) represent (Mg., Tanna, Malekula, &c., b, p, v, f, and) the Semitic b (v), p (f); and m the Semitic m: see Index under the letters b, p, m.

In Ef. w (u) in a few words represents the Semitic w: see Index under the letter w, and for the rest § 11.

13. In the Oceanic dialects, as in $\S 5 a$, letters belonging to the same class, gutturals, dentals, or labials, readily interchange. For instance, original k, g, k, gutturals:

(a)	dig	skin	rub	gape, wonder
	k	g	ķ
Ef.	kili, ģili, ģ'ili	kuli	kasi, ġasi, ġ'asi	maka, maja
My.	gali	kulit	gisi-k, kisi-k	ġaġa, maġa
Mg.	hadi	hudi!a	kasu-ka	jaja
Sam.	$^{ullet}eli$	$^{\circ}ili$	•asi	$ma\dot{g}a$
Ha.	eli	ili		•

- (b) Dentals: t to n, tuma-ni and noba-ni; tobu and nobu; binote and binen. The change of the Semitic formative -t to n is frequent, and found in all the Oceanic dialects, thus, bātč, 'four,' N. Guinea (Ray) bani, Motu hani; kofu and kafu-ti, Fiji kovu-ta and kovu-na, My. kapu-j; tuku, Fi. tuku-t'a, Sam. tuu-na; Mahri iti-t (z...), Mg. eni-na, 'six'; Syriac m-istuta, Mg. m-inuna, Ef. m-inuji, Sam. inu, 'drink.' In Madagascar some tribes use -ṭa (dialect -ṣa), and -na interchangeably.
- T, s: afiti and afisi; ta, sa, ti, di, ṣi, 'not'; tesa, sikai, siki-tik (redup.), 'one'; mita, Sam. and My. mata, Mg. masu, 'eye.' The change of the Semitic formative -t to s (Mg. s, and z, and dialect s) is frequent, and in all the Oceanic dialects, thus bātĕ, 'four,' Epi vāsĕ; taġi-si, My. taġi-s, Fi. taġi-t'a; lifa, ma-lifu-s, Mg. lefi-ṭa, My. lapi-t, lapi-s, Fi. lova-t'a, Sam. lava-si, 'to bend'; bunu-ti, dialect bunu-ṣi, Mg. funu-si. In Madagascar, Hova -ṭa is in Betsileo dialect -ṣa.
- T, r, 1: tiu and riu; tutu and lulu; bātě, 'four,' Epi věrĭ, Segaar (N.G.) fal. The Semitic formative -t becomes r, 1, thus, soka, soka-ta ki, soka-ri, Tongan hoko, hoko-ta ki; sumi-li, My. and Java sumba-t, sumpa-t, sumpa-l, sampa-l, My. tampi-na, Tong. umo-ji; tami-si, sabe-li, My. simpu-l; roġo, toġo, toġo, doġo, roġo-sa ki, Fi. rojo-t'a, My. daġa-r, Mg. rc, reni, reni-s, 'to hear'; kasi, My. goso-t, kisi-l, 'rub.' Mg. -ṭa with suffix attached to it becomes t or r, as ma-taku, Mg. tahuṭa, hatahurana (My. katakutan); Ef. mi-tiri, Mg. sura-ṭa, suratana, My. tuli-s, tulisan. The Semitic formative t- is sometimes changed to r-, ta-usi and ra-usi: so Fi. ra- and ta- are the same.

Note.—Wherever the name of the language is not given, the word is Efatese, and to be found with its meaning in the Dictionary, infra.

Original n to t, s: ma-nifi, My. nipi-s, tipi-s; mita, 'eye'; fatu, 'stone'; igita, An. inta, Mg. isika, pronoun inclusive, 'we and thou'; na and sa, n, s, pronoun third person, verbal suffix; the same pronoun separate, Ef. inia, My. iña (iya), Mg. izi, isi; the n of the 'nunation' sometimes becomes s, as Savu natun, My. ratus, 'hundred.' For this word see Index under letter p.

n to r: namu, 'mosquito,' Tah. namu and ramu.

s to n: isuma and inuma.

s to r: mesau, muri, 'to desire.'

r to s (z): muri, 'send back, return,' and busi; jori, jusu, 'nose'; karo, 'naked,' Mg. harihari, and hazihazi.

r to t: -ra and -ta, pronoun suffixed third person plural; roua and toua (roa, toa), 'to fall.' When initial r is reduplicated it is usually pronounced t, thus, roba, toroba; riġi, tiriġi; rafi, terafi: in such cases the original letter may be r or t (d).

r to n: mare and mane, 'man, male'; manu, Mg. vuruna, My. buruĝ, 'bird.'

r to 1: roko and loko.

1 to n: tulum and tinom.

In some cases the change may not be direct from the original, but secondary, or through intermediate change or changes: thus, original

1 to s, &c.: Arb. la, H. le, &c., 'not,' we find as ti, di, ri, sa, ṣi, ta, ni, Sam. le, Maori te, My. ta, Mg. ṣi; and so the article, Arb. al, l-, we find as na, ni, in, n-, Sam. le, Maori te, East Mai re, Mg. ni, Fi. na (and a). Of these, ṣ and s are from the original 1, through t. Tanna kimia, kimyaha, kumiar, Ef.-akamus, Fi. kemuni, Ml. P. hamdi, 'ye': here h, r, s, n, and d are all for original 1, which in kimia is elided, and is still 1 in Eromangan yoril, 'they.' See Ch. V, I, &c.

So s to 1: this may be through t or r (compare the change of s to 1 in Assyrian before a dental, and of s' to 1 in Mahri), as in the word for 'man,' Ef. ata, Epi ata-mani, Epi su-mano, Tanna yeru-man, Santo la-mani: the letter here represented by t, r, s, 1 is in this word in Arm. s' and t, Arb. s, t', t, Eth. s, Heb. s'. In the words for 'two,' 'three,' and 'eight,' the original initial Semitic letter is s', s, or t, t': Epi chua (jua), and lua, Ef. tua, and rua, and dua, and tua, My. duwa, Mg. rua, Sam. lua, 'two'; Amb. sul, Ef. tolu, tolu, and rolu, 'three'; My. lapan (reduplicated, dalapan), 'eight.'

(c) Labials: b and m, as bog, and mog; bunuti, and munuti; bai, mai, 'to come';

b and w, as bon and uon; bora, and borauora;

b and f, as bano, fano; bami, nafamian: be, fe, 'to come'; f and w, fai, uai, 'water';

m and f, ma-tuna, and fu-tuna, 'somewhat': this ma is the Semitic interrogative and indefinite ma, sometimes changed in Assy. to va, Himyaritic to ba, as in Ef. in the same word, ma-toko, it is also ba-toko, and fa-toko. The m of this word in the interrogative is in Ef. f, Mg. v, My. p; and prefixed, as in the Semitic dialects, in the indefinite sense, to verbs and verbal nouns, it is in Mg. m and f (ma-, fa-, mpa-, maha-, fa-ha-, mpaha-), My. m and b, and p, Ef. b and f, also m (as in matoko), Sam. m and f (as in mata^cu, Ef. mataku, and fa^ca-, Ef. baka-, faka-, Mg. maha-).

m and m, b and b, and vice versa, interchange.

w and b, as ualu and balu.

w and b, ualu and balu.

For original initial w, see the Oceanic word for 'moon', atīlaġ, Mg. vulana, &c.

For original initial m, see the Oceanic words for 'male', mari, man, &c., and 'female', fufine, &c.

14. Interchange of letters of one class with those of another, as in \S 5, b, c, d, e, f, g.

¹ See the Oceanic word for 'sun,' elo. Tong. laa, &c.

- (a) Gutturals and Dentals, as in § 5 b: Ef. fila, Bu. bilak, My. kilat, Mg. halaṭa, 'lightning'; قُوتُ My. kupiġ and chupiġ, Mg. sufina, 'ear'; Lobo (N.G.) komakoma, Timbora kiġkoġ, Mg. kintana, My. bintaġ, wintaġ, lintaġ, Chamori putiun, Haw. hoku, San Christoval (Fagani) figu, Marq. hetu, fetu, Maori whetu, Motu hisiu, Oba visiu, Santo vitui, maṣoi, Ef. masoi, An. moijeuv, مُوكِّكُّ, Mahri kabkob, &c., 'star.' K to n (through ġ), Batta (Sumatra) aka, Tanna ik, Ero. ka, My. and Ef. aġ, Ef. dialect ke-iġa and ke-ina (Mg. anau, ana-reu), pronoun second person singular. Ef. kumu and akam, My. kamu, Tanna ituma and kimia, pronoun second person plural. An. ni-kma and ni-jma, 'hand'; seik and seiġ, 'three.' Ef. kabu, Ml. kambu, Epi sembi, Motu lahi, Rotuma rahi, 'fire': for other examples, see § 11 c.
- (b) Dental and Guttural, as in § 5 c: Ef. sikai, siki-tik, Cayagan tadai, Sumatra sada, N. Caledonia tat, chika, 'one.' The Hawaiians wholly confound dental with guttural, t being always pronounced and written k. (In Samoan the increasing tendency is to pronounce t as .) Thus Maori ta-gata is in Haw. ka-naka, Fi. ta-mata, Ef. ta-mole, 'man.' In the personal pronouns we have Ef. igita, Mg. isika, 'we and thou.' How n may become k (or h), through g, is seen in this same word, thus igita (for inita, Mota inina) in one Ef. dialect is akit, My. kita, Gaudalcanar ihita (suffixed Ef. -nita, gita, Mg. -sika), and in the first person exclusive also, 'we and they,' the same n becomes k (or h), through g, and is sometimes elided, thus, Ef. k-inami. (Santo anam), Ef. dialect ağami, Aurora ikami, kami, My. kami, Ysabel (Gao) i'ami, 'ai, Mg. ahai (suffixed Mg. -nai, Ef. nami and -jami) Ulawa ami, Motu ai; Ef. au, dialect u, dialect pu, mu, verbal pronoun, for nami as Ulawa ami, Motu ai, Motu verbal pronoun a; Mg. vatana, My. badaġ, Ef. batako, 'body.' And thus the n of the Semitic formative suffix an, 5, in Mg. ana, My. an, Ef. an, or ana, is n in Haw., g in Maori, Sam., &c., k in Marquesan. In Ef. itself we have ran, rag, rak, 'time'; and in Maori ragi and raki, Ef. lagi, Haw. lani, 'heaven, sky.' So the n of the 'nunation' may become g, k as Mg. ulun, My. oraġ, Ulu (Sumatra) orak, 'man'; and Ef. tasi, Ceram taisin, and tasok, My. tasik, 'sea.' Not only n, but 1 and r¹ may become ġ, k, h, thus the 1 or r of the Oceanic numeral 'three' (tolu, tilu, selu, tir, &c.) is g, and k, in My. tiga, An. seik; Ef. taliġa, An. tikġa, 'ear.' Ef. tasila is in Ef. dialects tasiġa, and aheka; and bulo-ni is in a neighbouring village buġo-ni. Malo tura is in Epi taka, Ef. taku, 'the back.' The formative prefix in My. tar is in Tagala taga; and that in My. bar is in Tagala mag, Mg. maha, Ef. baka, or faka, Tah. faa, or haa, Maori whaka, the original Semitic being mata-. The formative prefix ta, ɔ̃, c̄, may pass into ka, ha (and then into a, as in Ef. dialect aheka = tasila, as just noted), thus Ef. tabara, Maori tawera, and hawera, 'burned.' This prefix (ta) in My. and Ef. is often ka, Mg. ha, as Ero. devat-uġi, Ef. kafate, or kefate (so with all the numerals), My. kaampat, 'fourth,' Mg. hefarana, 'four days.'

So the Semitic formative suffix (collective, abstract, feminine) t, n, i, often becomes k (or h) in Mg. and My., thus My. goso-t, goso-k, Mg. kasu-ka, Ef. kasi, 'to rub.' Mg. puṣiṭa, puṣiṭa. Ef. busa i, 'to smash.' This ending also changes through k, or, as in the Semitic dialects, directly, to h, and disappears (see supra): My. garu, garu-t, garo-k, Ef. karo, karu-ti, 'to scrape'; Mg. tapa-ka, Ef. tefi, 'to cut.' But always in such Mg. words the -ka, when another suffix (-ana) is attached to it, becomes h (or f, see infra under section c), as tapa-ka, tapa-hina (not tapa-kina), 'cut off.' This suffix, -t, is seen in the Oceanic numeral 'four', as Ef. bātē, Mota vat, Uea vak, Pentecost piët, N.G. (L., p. 332) fiak. The same change of t to k is seen in the Oceanic word for 'three', which is in Ef. tolu, Mare tini, but in Lifu koni, Uea kun.

(c) Guttural and Labial, as in § 5: Ef. kui and bui, kusu (dialect kihi = kisi) and uisi, bisi; Ef. kau, My. gawa and bawa: Ef. fila, 'lightning,' Bu. bilak, My. kilat (also kilap, as just noted).

¹ F. Müller, G. der Sprachw., My. §, p. 92, and fol., notes the change of r to g, k, h. Among the Malays the r is gutturally pronounced, like r grasséyé, Northumbrian r, in some places. So the Semitic r has a guttural tendency.

In Mg. the formative suffix ka, with another suffix attached to it, becomes sometimes h, sometimes f, sometimes either one or the other (e.g. hirika, hirihana, or hirifana, 'bored'), as, huhuka, huhufana (not huhukana), Ef. kūku, ġuku, ġukuta, 'bent,' 'curved.' Ef. dialect turuk, as in Arb., but turubi-si, as in Eth.: see Dillmann for this change in this and other words, e.g. Eth. Gr., p. 47. K, through ġ, to ṁ, m, Ef. k, ko, ġo, ṁa, ma, Tanna k, m, suffixed pronoun second person singular: for this k, ġ, to n, see supra, § 14 a. In the reduplicated word for 'star' the first k has become f, v, w, b, m, and p (wh, and h), and l, the second k appears as g, j, s, s, h, see § 14 a.

(d) Labial and Guttural, as in § 5 e: see Dillmann, where just cited for this change. Ef. bisi, Mg. fusița and kusița, 'to rub.' Ef. fila, 'lightning,' My. kilat and kilap. Ef. saluțe and saluke, 'to be ignorant.' Both Ef. p and m represent sometimes original gutturals as kuli, țili, and sometimes have passed into pure b or m; and sometimes represent, as in saluțe, saluke, original labials, and sometimes have passed into pure gutturals: that is, these sounds are bridges, which may be crossed either way, between the two classes, gutturals and labials. They are half-guttural, half-labial sounds.

Ef. fila, 'lightning,' Bu. bilak, Mg. halata, Mahri boriq, and horiq. The change of f to h, Ef. ban or fan (I have heard this in d. as han), An. pan (apan), and han, 'to go'; Tah. faa or haa, (Ef. baka or faka), formative prefix.

M to ġ and k: compare Assyrian m to g. Ef. lumi, and luġi, to swell ('rise up,' of the skin); cognate word laġi, My. laġit, Mg. laniṭa, Haw. lani, Maori raġi, dialect raki, 'the sky, heaven, above': in both of these cognate words, luġi (lumi), and laġi, the original letter is m. The change of original m to ġ is seen also in the word for 'wind', Bugis löma, Maori ma-tuġi, Fi. t'agi, Ef. laġi, which see. For the change of k, through ġ, to m, see (c).

(e) Dental and Labial, as in § 5 f. My. lakat and lakap, Ef. liku, likut, q.v., 'to adhere': the t in this word is the formative ending above mentioned as sometimes passing into

- k, h, and f. When it occurs in Mg. as ta, the t on the addition to it of the other ending (ana) passes into t, r, or f, as Ef. like, likot, Mg. rekiţa (or raikiţa), rekitana; Ef. mataku, Mg. tahuţa, hatahurana, My. takut, takutan, 'fear'; Mg. tarata, tarafina (not taratina), Sam. tilof-ia, Fi. tiro, tirova, Maori tiro, tirohaja (= Mg. tarafana), Ef. tiro, 'to look, gaze, peep, spy.' The original dental (t) of this ending, retained in one dialect, may have passed into and be retained only as a labial in another, as Mg. ilița, or idița, idirana, 'to enter,' Sam. ulu, uluf-ia, Ef. reduplicated alialia, ululia, 'entered (by a spirit), possessed'; My. salat, and salap, Ef. sili, silif, 'to enter, insert.' When the t of this ending has changed to n in Mg., this n, on the addition to it of the ending ana, often changes to m, as minuna, 'to drink,' minumana (not minunana), My. minum, Ef. minu, minug, Sam. inu, inumaga=My. minuman, Mg. minumana, Ef. minugiana (the i after the g will be explained below): so Mg. eni-na, Mg. ana-m, 'six'; original initial s in this word sometimes has become f, as Ceram wonen, Ml. won, Tah. fene; so second radical s in the word for 'ten', fulu, puluh, and that for 'nine', My. salapan (red.), Makassar jalatien (red.). In Santo m and n are often used indifferently by different speakers, or even by the same speaker (Vol. II of this series, p. 1). Thus we have Santo kanim = Fi. kemuni, 'ye,' pronoun second person plural, and Ef. komàm and kinàmi, 'we and they'; My. nipis and mipis, Ef. ma-nift, 'thin.' In Rotuma t is very often pronounced f, as fa, for ta, 'man'; maf, for mat, 'eye'; folu, for tolu, 'three,' and so forth.
- (f) Labial and Dental, as in § 5 g. In Santo owing to the confusion, noticed under (e), between n and m, we often have n for original m, as lina for lima, 'five.' In South Santo (Vol. II of this series, p. 1) there is a sound, represented by t, which is described as tp, or a sound between the two. It is a half t half p sound. On the opposite coast of Malekula there is a sound which makes the same confusion between f (or v) and t'. One hears what is at once labial and dental, just as in p and m what is at once guttural and labial: Santo vate, and t'ate, N. Guinea (L. 332) flak, and tiak, 'four'; Malekula ambitu, and wontit, Mysol (W.) fit, and tit, N. Guinea fik, tik, and sik, Java pitu, My. tujoh, Mg. fitu, and (dialect in Sir Joseph Banks) titu, 'seven,' Mahri ibet (for sibet, Assy. sibit); Ef. fanua, Santo vanua, and t'anua, 'house, country'; Ef. fafine, Malekula vavine, and t'at'ine, 'woman'; My. bulan, Mg. vulana, Bu. ulöğ, Timuri fulan, and tulan, Ef. atilagi, atlağ (prosthetic a), (Port Praslin kalan, Duke of York kalağ, see (d) above), Santo wula, Fi. vula, N. Caledonia malog, An. mohog, Rotti bulak, Sumatra bulen, bulet, bula, Mahri wareh, woret, eret, haret, worat, wurut, wurit, airit', Tigre werha, Sokotra irah, 'moon': see Index s. v. ω C4 (CC), CC), cot in Arabic.

15. Letters which readily fall away or disappear, as in § 6. For the aspirated b (=b and p), that is, f (=v and f), and m (when pronounced f which readily passes into w and disappears), and for k and t, see above.

S has sometimes disappeared as (ستة), Mahri itet, Mg. enina, 'six'; minugi, minuna (צֹבּבׁבּבׁב), 'drink'; Causative prefix a, Arb. a; pronoun third person, Tanna in, Ef. iga, inĭa, My. iña, Assy. sunu, sina, הַבְּהַ הַ, פּבּה, Mahri ibet, Mg. Sam. fitu, Java pitu, 'seven'; בּבּה, Mahri homo, Marquesan hima, Ef. lima, Mg. limi, and dimi, Maori rima, Epi yima, sima, &c., 'five'; سرق, Mahri hiriq, Ef. binak, finak, 'to steal.' In the word for 'five' it is the final s that has disappeared.

T initial has disappeared in (تسعة) Mahri iset, Sokotra sa'ah, M. Syr. icha (itsha), (Sula tasia) Bouru eshia, chia, siwa, Batta siah, Santo siwa, Mg. sivi, Tong. hiva, Maori iwa, 'nine'; (Sumatra lapan) Savu panu, Easter Island varu, Mg., Sam. valu, Maori waru, Carolines wan, wal, Santo walu, ālu, Malekula wal, ālu, Oba balu, 'eight.'

L, Ef. malūs, mäūs; سفل, 'to descend,' Ef. siwo, suwa, Tong. hifo, Sam. ifo, An. asuol (asuwol).

R, Ef. verb. pron. ru, and $\check{e}u$: the r here is for original n (m) 1 :

As in Tanna, verb. pron., r-, thus even, to go, in reven, he goes, for in neven, and so with all verbs. So Ef. ru ban, they go, is for nu ban, Dual rā ban, Tanna ilar, ilia (inira), אָלָה, Eth., Amh. elu, ela, Arb. ila, &c. (see Index under the letter א for this). This Semitic personal demonstrative plural pronoun is usually appended in Oceanic to the second and third personal pronouns plural, thus, third person, Ef. inĭa (now singular, but originally plural), My. iña, Mg. izi, isi (plural and singular), Ef. inira, Mg. izareu (for inareu), Eromanga irora (for inora), yoril (for yonil), Tanna iraha (for inara), dialects of Tannese ilar, ilat, ilah, iria, ilia, Fut. (Po.) ak-iria, Tong. ki-nau, 'they,' lit. (na-u), 'they—those.' Second person: Mg. anareu, Tanna kimiaha, dialects kumiar, kimia, itumat, Malekula dialect kamito, Ef. dialect akamus, Fi. kemuni, 'ye,' or 'you,' literally 'you—those.' أَرْحَيْهُ أَلَّ Amh. arut, at Arkeeko ubah, Sula riha, Tagala apat, My. ampat, Mg. efaṭa, Acheen (Sumatra) baat, Ef. bātē, 'four.' 'Fruit,' Aramaic pērah, pīra, Mg. vua, My. buwah, Ef. boüa, ua (wa).

N: see the word for 'man' under 8, and 3, in Index. Ef. ani, or an or a, 'to abide'; nani, and nai, or nei, 'child,' bano, ban, and ba, 'to go'; Ef. inau, Tanna iau, &c., 'I'; Arb. t'ina, Assy. sina, M. Syr. tera, Mahri t'aro, Sokotra tera, Celebes dia, My. dua, Ef. rua, tua, Mg. rua, &c., 'two.' Formative prefix i-, for -in, Ifal for Infal. So the formative suffix -na becomes sometimes -a, in Polynesian, and -ina in Mg. is both -ina and ia in Polynesian. The preposition ni is often i as in Fi., Ef., &c.

The final a of the word t'ina, rua, &c., 'two,' is the a of the Semitic dual ending.

Initial n of triliterals, as in Heb. and Arm., often disappears: see Index under the letter I for examples, as bisa, 'speak,' kat, 'bite,' saki, 'ascend,' buka, 'swell,' &c. Ef. and Fi. ni, and i, the preposition, in Arb. J. Final n also sometimes falls away, as in karo, 'throat, gullet,' sobe, 'nape of neck.'

M, as we have seen, may disappear whether initial, medial, or final. The m, in Arm. and Assy. changed to n, of the second and third personal pronouns plural, was apt to fall they two go, both ru, and $r\bar{a}$, being for nu, $n\bar{a}$, originally mu, $m\bar{a}$, A. humu, Dual humā.

away, Arb. antumu, antum, and antu, Amh. antu, dialect of Syria anku, أَنْكُو, and so My. kamu, kau, and aġ'au, Mg. anau, Ef. kumu, akam, egū, (suffix, Ef., My. -mu, Ef. dialect kama), Arb. tum, kum, Heb. tem, kem, Tigri kum, Eth. kemu, Amh. hu, Ef. d. gu, Arb. tu, Heb. tu, Syriac tun, Mandaitic tun, tu. in the third person plural, thus Talmudic in-ho, in-he, for in-hon, in-hen; M. Syriac an-i, in which all that is left of the original pronoun, in Assy. sunu, sina, Arb. humu, hunna, Heb. hem, hema, &c., is i, the an- or in- being demonstrative prefixes. The M. Syr. suffix of this pronoun sometimes retains its n but is usually without it simply as \bar{e} . In the Semitic dialects generally, however, this pronoun whether separate or suffixed retains its m or n: so also in the Oceanic dialects especially in the suffixed form, thus in My. it is $i\tilde{n}a$, or iya, suffixed $\tilde{n}a$. Mg. izi, isi, ia, i, suffixed ni, Sam. ia (and na), suffixed na, Ef. inĭa, iġa, na-i, suffixed na, nĭa, and mia. In My. ma-rika, 'they,' the ma is probably this pronoun, like the $\dot{g}a$, in Ef. ga-ra, and za (for na), in Mg. iza-reu, and ini in Ef. and Santo ini-ra, 'they.' This pronour occurs also as the last part of the combination of the pronouns of the first and third persons called the 'exclusive', 'we and they,' Ef. kina-mi, dialect agam, Santo ana-m, My. ka-mi, Mg. aha-i, suffixed Santo na-m, Ef. na-mi, Mg. na-i.

- 16. (a) Dropping of initial syllables of words first radical weak, or quiescent, and on the other hand, (b) adding an initial syllable to words with '(Aleph prosthetic) to lighten the pronunciation, as in § 7.
- (a) For instance, the three Semitic words given as examples of this in § 7 appear thus in Oceanic, Ef. atai, and tae, 'to know'; 'T, Sumatra sada, Gaudalcanar kesa, Epi saka, Ef. sika-i, tesa, Sam. tasi, N. Caledonia tat, &c., 'one'; and Assy. laku, Fi. lako, 'to proceed,' 'going.'
- (b) For example ''', 'name,' Ef. jisà, Malo isa, Santo kiṣa, Fi. yat'a; ball, 'sun,' see Index—Ef. elo, alo, ali, My. ari, Mg. andru, all show this prosthetic syllable, the sound represented by θ , $\dot{\omega}$, being difficult. So Ef. atmate, for temate, atelaki, for telaki; and atlaj or atělaj (the moon).

In Efate the first syllable of, for example, bati, 'teeth,' is of a different kind: for which see Index under the letter v. Thus 'teeth' is in Santo uṣu, and peti, Su. isi, Madura waja, Celebes ġisi, Savu ġutu, Gilolo ġedi, &c.; and 'head,' in Mahri here, haroh, hare (final s dropped), is in Celebes urie, ulu, Amboyna uruka, (Mg. luha), ulura, Ceram. yuli, Sunda pulu, Lampong uluh, My. ulu, Maori uru. As the Index shows, the additional initial syllable in these words for 'teeth' (and 'head'), is that of the Semitic 'broken plural', or rather collective singular. As such 'broken plurals' have almost entirely replaced in Arabic the old or 'sound' plurals, so the latter have almost completely disappeared from the Oceanic dialects.

- 17. We give here a few specimens showing the letter changes in the words for 'man,' 'male,' 'woman' ('female'), 'sun,' 'day,' 'bone,' and 'child,' &c.
- (a) اَسَانً , هَانِّكُ , زَاتُ , نَاسٌ, Assy. yasi, &c., 'man,' 'human being.' This is the word of which the following forms are given in Max Müller's Science of Language, p. 262, oraġ, raġ, oran, olan, lan, ala, la, na, da, ra. Ef. nātă, ata, ita, ta, and see below under (d), and (e).
 - (b) أُمْرَاةٌ , مُرَاةٌ (man, male, vir,' (c) إِمْرَاةٌ , مُرَاةٌ (woman, female.'
- (b) Ef. Malo, and Oba mera, Ef. mare, mani, and mā, Ysabel mara, and mane, and mae, Batta morah, Satawal mar, and mal: Reduplicated, Bima monemone, Ml. banman, Motu maruana, Bali muwani, Carolines (Mortlock), muan, Ceram manowai, Ef. anoai, anöi, Gilolo anow.

The Mg. and My. word for 'male' is quite different, lahi, and laki, ذَكَرٌ, إِذْكُرٌ.

(c) My. bini, N. Guinea bin, pine, Bu. bai, Bauro wai, Ef. bite, dialect matu: Reduplicated,

My. parampuan, Java parawan, prawan, Tanna pilaven, pitan, bran. Other Oceanic forms are mawina, vaivine, faifid, fafine, Mg. vavi, Motu haine, Ef. dialect fafine. The final n is for \bar{s} , the Semitic feminine ending.

(d) Combination of (a) and (b) signifying 'male', 'husband':

Ef.	ata-manĭ	${ m T}_{ m 2}$	Tanna yeru-man
	ita-mani			eru-man
Epi	eru-mŭne	M	1.	ulu-man
	ata-mane	Sa	nto	la- $mani$
	su-mano			le- man
Ml.	asa -m $a\dot{g}'$	Fi	i.	ata-ġanc
		Tong &	Sam	ta-ano ta-

Tong. & Sam. ta-ane, ta-ni

(e) Combination of (a) and (c) signifying 'woman', 'female,' 'wife':

Ero.	asi-ven	Santa Maria ta-wa
	yare-vin	Fi.	yale•wa	S. Cris.	$ura \cdot o$ li-van		ale-wa	$\mathbf{E} \mathbf{p} \mathbf{i}$	si- ra
	ahi-ven		le- wa		ti- ra
Santo	$le \cdot vina$	Ef.	la- i
D. of Y.	ta- $buan$	(la-i or le-i
Mota	$ta ext{-}vini$	Vanua Lav	ra re-be	N.G.	si- ne
Ml.	ra-bin		re-ene		s'i- ne
Satawal	ra- $bout$		dre-ne
		Ef.	kuru- ni	N.G.	kura-ni or juru-ni kuru-i
		1	or juru-i
		Santo	'ara-i
			·aṣa-i

(f) Feminine of (a) signifying 'woman':

H. 'is's'ah, Ch. 'ita, S. 'atto, A. 'unt'a. Ef. lai, le, li, Fi. adi, di, Mota iro, ro. But Ef. lai may be la-i, see under (e).

(g) Sun (also day, and daylight), and §§ 13 b, 16 b. See Index under $\theta + \mathcal{L}$ 'sun,' Tigre and Amharic sai, Epi (South-East ndae (dai), Tarawan tai, Cajeli lehei, Amblaw laei, Meli rea, Sulu Islands lea, Mota loa, Tongan läa, Samoan la, Maori ra, Lifa t'o, t'u, Mare du, Aurora aloa, Efate elo, alo, ali, Mg. andru, anru, My. ari, Lobo orah and orak, Mafoor ori, Vaturaga aso, Florida aho, Fiji siga, San Cristoval sina, Motu dina, Aneityum t'iġ, &c.

- (h) Bone, v. § 10, and Index under בְּשֹׁב, plural עַצְּמָוֹת, Mahri 'aṭaiṭ, at'āt' (the m dropped), Efate täot, or tawot, Mg. täulana (note the nunation), Guaham tolan, Lampong tulan, My. tulaġ. In this word Efatese has the original plural (feminine) ending t, which the others change to 1.
- (i) Child, father, mother: see Dict. s.v. ani (for nani). The initial radical (v. Index) is found as w, y, and '(l). It is a in My. anak, Ml. anatu-n, Mg. anaka, k in Ef. kanoa, kanoka, My. kanak, and z in Mg. zanaka, dropped in Ef. nati, nani, in which the middle radical 1 is represented by n, and in reita n by r, as in Mg. reni, An. and Ml. risi, but by 1 in Pa. lati, Fila leta, Celebes leyto. The third radical d is represented by t, as in Ef. natu na, by n, as in nani na, by k in Mg. and My. anaka, Ef. kanoka, and elided in Ef. nai na, kanoa, Mg. rai, Ef. ere, Ceram. ina, Epi la, Ef. reita. Fila leta, &c. 1

For the places in the foregoing where the letter changes in the numerals, and certain other much-used words (sun, moon, star, stone, fire, fruit, lightning, wind, heaven, water, ear, man (person), man (male), woman, eye, fruit) are explained, see Ch. VI; and for the same in the personal pronouns, Ch. V. In the foregoing are also explained the words for head, year, sea, navel, name, teeth, bone, skin, house, tree, canoe (ship), and many other nouns, verbs, and particles too numerous to mention here.

¹ See Index.

CHAPTER III

TRILITERALISM AND INTERNAL VOWEL CHANGE

It is now to be shown that the Oceanic primitive language had like each of its sister dialects, Arabic, Assyrian, &c., its share of the common stock of purely and exclusively Semitic triliteral words (nouns and verbs) with the purely Semitic common method of word formation or inflexion by internal vowel change, and external additions (prefixed, infixed, suffixed), and its share also of the limited common stock of purely Semitic particles. This, if it can be shown, will be admitted to be conclusive. The particles will be dealt with subsequently.

The ancient Semitic finite verb, with its perfect and imperfect, was simply a verbal noun i joined in a certain way with the personal pronouns, and with it or from it other and numerous verbal nouns were formed by vowel change and external formative additions. The ancient finite verb with its perfect and imperfect so formed is no longer found in the existing broken down Oceanic languages, though as analytic substitutes for it we have as the finite verb for instance in Efatese 'the verbal pronoun' joined with these verbal nouns after the fashion of the Imperfect, as a bano I (am, or was) going=I go (or I went), and in Malagasy the 'pronominal adjunctive' joined with these verbal nouns, after that of the perfect, as tiaku my loving=I loved, or, I love. The verbal nouns that were formed with or from that of the ancient finite verb were numerous, and in them we have the ground-

¹ C.G.S.L., pp. 164 and 178.

² Ibid., p. 195, and Wright's Arb. Gr., I. §§ 195, 196.

TRILITERALISM AND INTERNAL VOWEL CHANGE 35

forms of the modern Oceanic verb. We may compare here the following Arabic forms:—

1. وَمُعَلَّ fa'l (fa'lu, or fa'lo, fa'li, fa'la'; in the rest I shall not give these final vowels, but the reader should bear them in mind).

2. فَعُلِّ $fil.$	17. fa'il.
3. فُعُل $fitl.$	18. fa ʻıl.
1. غَلَقُ fa'lat.	19. fa'ilat.
ā. فَعَلَةُ fi'lat.	20. faʻilat.
6. فَعُلَّةُ fu'lut.	21. fá al.
 أَغَلَّ fu'al. 	22. fi ūlat (Heb.).
8. أَنْعَالُ fa'al .	23. fu'ūl.
 أَنَّعَلَةُ fa'ulat. 	24. maf'al.
10. قَعَالَةُ fa'ālut.	25. mat il.
. 11. وَعَلَّ . 11.	26. maf'ilat.
12. فِعَالٌ fiʿāl .	$27. \ maf`ul.$
13. فِعَالَةً fi alat.	28. mat'ulat.
14. لَغُغُ fu'al.	29. maf'alat.
15. fu'āl.	30. fuʻulat.
16. fuʿālat.	$&e.^2$

Of these forms 1-6 are the commonest in Oceanic. The difference from the Arabic form is mainly in the last vowel of 1-3 (this last vowel is not written in the above as explained) and in the last two vowels of 4-6 (the last being this same unwritten terminal) there being for the final u, or o, when it is not elided, sometimes a, or i, and for the a before the -t, often u, or o, as in other Semitic languages. We now proceed to compare the Oceanic triliteral words with Arabic, Assyrian, &c.,

¹ In Arabic as in the Semitic mother-tongue every noun ended with one of these italicized vowels, u, or o (nominative); i (genitive); a (accusative). Generally the other Semitic languages, and the modern Oceanic use these final vowels indiscriminately, without case signification.

² For these and other forms, see Wright's Arb. Gr., Vol. I. §§ 196-219, &c.

just as, for instance, we compare, say Assyrian or Himyaritic words with Arabic, Hebrew, Syriac, or Ethiopic.

Take for example Efate lifai, to bend round: malibai, bent (the final i, transitive particle, is explained below); lofa, a thing bent; lofai, to bend; malofa, bent; kalofa, or kolofa, bent; lufa (Samoan lavalava), a wrapper round the loins; Samoan lofa, to crouch; lofata'ina, to cause to crouch; lave, lavelave (Arabic lafelafa, to wrap round, &c.), to entangle; lavelavea, to be entangled; (for -a, and -ta'ina, see below). Fiji love, lovet'a (Samoan lavasi), to coil, fold, to bend; kalove, bent; salove, flexible; Malay lipat, lampit, lapit, lampis, lapis, a fold, to fold, plait; Malagasy lefita, also lufita, folded, bent, plaited; Arabic laffa, to be involved, intertwined, to wrap up, wrap round (oneself, as clothing), to fold; laff, liff, laffat, liffat, involved, intertwined, &c.; loffa, loffat, coil of turban, winding of road. In this example the above given six commonest forms of the modern Oceanic verb (or noun), the ancient verbal noun, are seen, viz.:-

- 1. lave.
- 3. lofa, love, lufa.
- 5. lipat.

- 2. lifa.
- 4. lampit, lavasi.
- 6. lovet'a.

The inference is irresistible that in the Oceanic primitive or mother-tongue this word was triliteral, and had the vowel changes peculiar to the Semitic languages most fully preserved in the ancient Arabic; and that as a triliteral word with the middle radical doubled it underwent the usual contractions, set forth in all Semitic grammars, of such words, as is plainly seen by comparing with the Arabic. These forms, originally verbal nouns and still often used as such, formed from the ancient finite verb, as lipat, a fold, lofa, a thing bent, or bending, have become ground-forms of the modern verb, as lipat, lipatkan, to fold; lofai, to bend; from which again are formed by external additions modern verbal nouns, and derived verb forms. Thus we have lipatan, a fold; lofaian, a bending or being bent; lavelavea, entangled or entangling; malibai, bent; and the derived verb forms (see below): 2—

¹ For kan and i, transitive particles, see below on the Particles. ² Ch. IV.

TRILITERALISM AND INTERNAL VOWEL CHANGE 37

Safal, Fiji salove, flexible.

Mafal, Malay malipat, to fold, plait; Efate malifus, bent, flexed.

Mifal, Malagasy milefița, folded.

Tafal, Fiji kalove, Efate kalofa, bent.

Manfal, Malagasy mandefita, to fold, bend.

Matafal, Samoan fa'alave, to take a turn of a rope as round a pin.¹

It is not proposed to give here these modern verbal nouns, and derived verb forms for the following words, but they may easily be found in the dictionaries.

As is seen in this example the vowels of the ground-forms of the Oceanic verb are retained in the modern derived forms and verbal nouns. It is in the ground-forms therefore that we find the proof of the part played in the ancient language (the primitive Oceanic) by internal vowel change.

To show that this is a fair specimen of modern Oceanic words, that it is not exceptional but only one out of the mass and of a piece with the rest, would prove conclusively that the Oceanic primitive or mother-tongue had like each of the sister dialects, Arabic, Assyrian, &c., its share of the purely and exclusively common stock of Semitic triliteral words with the purely Semitic common method of word-formation or inflexion by internal vowel change and external additions. This then is what we have now to endeavour to show, and we may begin with words belonging to the same special class as this, viz.:—

(a) TRILITERALS WITH THE SECOND RADICAL DOUBLED.

The figures refer to the above given verbal noun forms 1-30. Efate 1 tabu, Maori tapu, prohibited; Arabic (dabba, to prohibit) 1 dabbu, a prohibiting, or being prohibited.

Efate 1 malo, Malay 4 malas, disgusted, loathe, unwilling, averse. Arabic (malla, to loathe, be disgusted, unwilling, averse) 1 mallo, 4 mallat.

¹ For these prefixes, see below on the Formative prefixes.

Efate 1 tefa; Fiji 4 tuva, to put in a series, range troops in order of battle. Arabic saffa, to set or place in order in a series, to arrange the line of battle, 1 saff.

Efate 1 kari, karo, to scratch, scrape, shave, seize, grasp; karo, the throat, gullet; kāri, a plane; Malay garu, to rake; Efate 3 jura, to rake; Malagasy 3 kuri, to scrape; Efate 6 jurasi, to gnaw; Efate 4 karaka, karati, karisi, karafi, karuti; Malay garit, garis, garut, garok, garap, karut, karok; Malagasy harata, to shave; Arabic (garra, to drag, snatch, sweep, seize; Hebrew, garar, to scrape, sweep, saw); Arabic 1 garr: 4 garrat; 6 gurrat: Hebrew garon, the throat, gullet.

Efate 1 kalu; 3 kulu, a covering, as of cloth or a mat, to cover oneself with such; 4 kaluti; 6 kuluti, to cover with such, to clasp one round so as to hold him; kel, keleti, kelu, kelakela, turn round; Malagasy 6 hudina, hudidina, and herina, Malay gulig, gulug, golig; 5 gilig, kalilig, to roll, to turn round; Arabic (galla, to cover, &c., Hebrew galal, to roll) 1 gallu; 3 gullu, a covering; Hebrew gilgal, a wheel, a whirlwind, compare the analogous Malagasy hudinkudina, turned repeatedly; آگرگر گرگر کری در کری د

Efate 3 kusi, and, with k elided, usi, to follow, to track. to narrate; Malay 6 usir, to pursue; Arabic kassa, to track, to narrate.

Efate 3 soka, to leap, go swiftly, be inflamed with anger, to spear, inivit mulierem; Samoan sosoʻa, Tongan hoka, to spear, pierce; Arabic zaḥḥa, to leap, to go with vehemence. to burn with rage, inivit mulierem, to project, to throw.

Malagasy 4 haraka, scorched, dried up, parched; Malay garig, krig; Efate 1 kara, dry; Arabic harra; Hebrew harar, to be hot, burned, dried up.

Malagasy 1 tani, Efate tagi, to sound, clank, tinkle, hum, wail; Malay 4 taĝis, (Efate, Samoan) taĝisi; Arabic tanna, to tinkle, clank, ring, hum.

¹ In this paragraph there are two cognate words (for which see kel, kalu, in Dictionary), the one beginning with g, the other with k, both second radical, 1 or r, doubled. The doubled letter is seen in hudidina, kalilig, and the reduplicated form Arb. karakara, karakarat, Eth. an-k'ark'ara, is seen in Ef. kelakela, kelekelet.

Efate 3 kofu, to wrap up, enclose, to clothe; Tongan, kofu; Samoan ō'ofu, to put on a garment; Efate 4 kafuti, to wrap up, enclose; Efate kofu; Samoan ofuofu; Fiji 6 kovuna, to envelop in leaves food gathered into a mass to be cooked in the oven; Efate kofukofua (-a), bent so as to be concave, so Maori kohu, kokohu; Efate k elided, 3 ofa, 1 aba, to whirl round, so Tahiti ohu, which also denotes to bend downwards, to stoop; Hawaiian ohuohu, heavy; Efate 1 kabu (dialect koau), the native food ('pudding') gathered into a mass wrapped in leaves and cooked in the oven, the principal daily food of the natives. so Arabic kobba, kabab, 'kibby,' the national dish of the Arabs gathered into a round mass and cooked in the oven. kabba, to roll up into a ball, to make into balls food for cooking: to invert, to stoop, to be heavy; kabakaba, to be wrapped up, enveloped, to wrap up or envelop oneself (in one's garment): Ethiopic kabab, to whirl round.

Efate 1 saru, Malay saru, Efate 21 saruru, to sound, resound. roar; Arabic (ṣarra to make a noise, sound, roar) 1 ṣarru; 18 sariru.

Efate 1 kaf bent; Maori kapu, curly, the hollow of the hand; Efate kafikāfi, a native basket, to put the hand into such a basket to feel for and take out something; Arabic kaffa, to take something stealthily between the fingers; Hebrew kafaf, to bend; kaf, the hollow of the hand, a hollow vessel; and as to the form compare with kafēkāfē Arabic kafēkafa.

Efate 1 kasi, to rub; Samoan 'asi; Malay 6 gosot, gosok, 5 gisik, kisil; Malagasy 4 kasuka, to rub; Arabic (kas's'a, to rub) kas's'u.

Efate 1 raka, 24 maraka, to desire, will, be willing, desirous of; Syriac rag, to desire, will (this in Arabic would be ragga), 2 rega, desire, will.

Efate 1 sila, silasila, to sound, crackle, rattle (as thunder); Samoan fai-tilitili; Maori whai-tiri, thunder; Maori tiri, to crackle: Arabic salla, salășala, to sound, crackle, crack, as thunder. Efate 1 kala, kalakala, Malagasy 2 keli, or heli, little; 5 kelez, in imperative passive kelezu, verbal noun kelezina; kelezu is for kelezi of which the u=i in the other Oceanic languages, and written i in kelezina; 23 kululi very small; heliheli (and kedikedi) to move to and fro; Efate makalakala, to move about quickly (as ants). Arabic (kalla, Hebrew kalal, to be little) 1 kallu, kalli, kalla, 5 killat; Hebrew kilkel (pilpel); Arabic kalekala, to move to and fro. 1

Efate 2 siba, 3 suba (masiba, a fragment, broken); Fiji sove, to break; Malagasy 6 sumbina, fragment, broken; Hebrew, Chaldee s'abab (this in Arabic would be s'abba). to break, Chaldee s'ibba, a fragment.

Efate 3 sumi, 6 sumili; Malay sumpat, sumbat, sumpal, 1 sumpal; Malagasy tampina, to plug, stop an aperture; Arabic summa, to plug, stop an aperture.

(b) Triliterals with the Middle Radical w and y.

Efate 1 mate; Samoan mati; Malay mati; Malagasy (fati, a corpse) mati, to die, be dead; Malagasy 4 matesa; Mangarevan mater in materaja. Arabic māta, to die, be dead, 1 (mawt) mat.

Efate 1 masi, to shave; Arabic masa, to shave, 1 (maws) mas.

Efate 1 laġa, 4 laġat, to raise; Samoan 1 laġa; Maori raġa, to raise, Efate laġi, up, above, the sky, heaven; Maori raġi; Malay 4 laġit; Malagasy laniṭa id.; Maori 3 ruġa, the top, upper part, upwards, on high; Samoan luġa; Hawaiian luna, id.; Hebrew ram (in Arabic this would be rama), to be high, to raise; rum, height, elevation; ramah, ramat, Ethiopic rama, a high place, third heaven (Ethiopic).

Efate 3 soro, sore, suru; Malagasy 6 suduka, sudika, to tell lies, to deceive; Arabic zāra, to tell lies, 3 zuru or zoro.

Efate 25 mitiri, mişiri; Malay 6 tulis; Malagasy surața, surița, to make figures, draw, paint, write; Arabic ṣāra, to form, make figures, draw, paint, 6 șurat.

¹ In the foregoing the uncontracted form appears in some cases, as in My. kalilig, Mg. hudidina, Ef. saruru, Mg. kululi.

Efate 3 suru; Malagasy 4 saruna; Malay 6 suruk, to conceal; Ethiopic, sawara (this in Arabic would be sāra), to cover, conceal.

Efate 1 tani, 3 tuni, 4 tanumi, tanumaki; Malay tanam; Samoan, tanumia, tanuma'ki, to cover with earth, soil; Arabic tāna, to cover with earth, clay, soil.

Efate 1 tiri, sometimes pronounced riri; Maori rere; Samoan lele, to fly; Arabic ṭāra, to fly; 1 ṭayr or ṭair.

Efate 1 afa ki; Malagasy 4 afina, to conceal, bury; Efate 3 ofa ki; Samoan ufi, 6 ufita'i, ufitia, to cover, conceal; Efate 3 uwi; Samoan ufi; Malay ubi; Malagasy uvi, the yam (so called as being a root buried in the ground, or covered with earth); Arabic "āba, to be concealed, to conceal, to bury; 1 "āyb; 4 "aybat (cf. "ayab, roots).

Mota 2 esu; Polynesian 3 ora, ola; Malay 6 urip; Java 5 idup; Efate 25 mairi; Malagasy 26 veluna; Efate 27 mauri, dialect mole; Fiji bula; Tanna 28 murif, murep, life, to live; Arabic 'ās'a, to live; 5 ēs'at; 26 maīs'at; 25 maīs'.

From the examples of verbs middle radical w and y it is clear from comparison with the Arabic that in the ancient Oceanic such words underwent the regular contractions set forth in Semitic grammars.

(c) Triliterals with '. h, h (and h'), and ' (and ") Middle Radical.

In the Oceanic languages these verbs are contracted like those with w and y. In Assyrian Sayce (Assyr. Gr.) classes verbs middle radical w, y, $\dot{}$, $\dot{}$, h altogether as concave or quiescent verbs. In the Semitic languages in the course of their analytic development these consonants tend to become all alike quiescent, as for instance in Mandean. In Assyrian, according to Delitzsch (Assyr. Gr.), $\dot{}$, h, \dot{h} (and \dot{h}'), $\dot{}$ (and $\ddot{}$) were all pronounced alike as $\dot{}$, or spiritus lenis, that is, have lost their consonant power, \dot{h}' , however, being pronounced like Arabic \dot{h} : the modern Oceanic as distinctly compares in this with the Assyrian, as it does in the verbal noun forms with the Arabic. It is certain, however, that all these consonants were not always so pronounced, or quiescent, in ancient Oceanic. That they have become so especially when the middle radical of verbs is to be explained not only from their natural tendency to quiesce, but also from the fact that in the verbal noun forms 1-6, which are the common ground-forms of the Oceanic verb, the middle radical always lost its vowel. However it may be explained the fact is certain, as a few examples will show.

Efate 3 bolo or folo; Fiji 1 vala, to do, to act; Efate 6 bolosi; Fiji 4 valata; Arabic fa'ala, to do, to act; 1 fa'l; 4 fa'lat.

Efate 3 sulu, a torch, to light by a torch, to scorch with flame; Samoan sulu, a torch, to light by a torch; Malay 6 suluh, a torch; Malagasy 3 sulu; 2 silu; 5 siluvana, to light by a torch; Arabic s'a'ala, to kindle a fire, light a torch; 6 s'u'lat flame.

Efate 3 soro, to burn, flame (of fire, of rage); Maori toro; Efate 6 sorofi, to burn, to flame with rage; Fiji, t'oroja, to scorch; Arabic sa'ara, to kindle a fire, to rage; 3 su'ru or so'ro, flame of fire, flame of rage.

Efate bara, to burn, be burned, kindle; 21 bauri, bauria, to kindle a fire in the oven; Samoan 1 vela; 4 velasia; Maori wera; Tahiti vera, to burn, to heat, to be cooked; Hebrew ba'ar, to kindle, burn, be burned; Arabic 1 would be ba'r; 21 ba'ur.

Efate 1 taĝi, 2 tine, to carry sail (a canoe); mitaĝa, miten, to be laden, heavy; 12 tiana, or tiena, laden, gravid; Malagasy 1 entana, burden; Malay 4 taĝgung, to bear, carry; Syriac fen, to bear, be laden, fana, burden; fina, laden, gravid.

Efate 12 miala or miela, to be red; Samoan 1 melo; Malagasy mena, red; Malay mera, red, reddish-brown, bay; Arabic ma"ara (4), to yield red milk mixed with blood; ma"ir, red; ma"ar, reddish.

Efate 1 lami, to eat; Samoan lamu, to chew; Hebrew laḥam, to eat; Arabic 1 would be lahm.

Malekula 3 roso; 6 rosovi; Efate 3 loso, to wash; Arabi rahasa, to wash; 3 (would be) rohso.

Efate 3 rumi; Fiji loma; Samoan alofa, to compassionate, to love; Fiji 6 lomana; Samoan (in) alofajia, fealofani; Maori (in) arohatia; Fiji loma, the heart, the inner parts, midst or inside of a thing; Arabic raḥima; Hebrew raḥam, to compassionate, to love; Arabic 3 ruḥm or roḥm; Hebrew reḥem, the inner parts.

Efate 2 sila, to peel, shave off; Malagasy 5 silaṭa, silaka; Arabic sah'ala, to peel, shave off.

Efate 2 sinu, 3 tunu, to heat, be hot, inflamed; Malagasy, Malay, Samoan, Fiji tunu; Malagasy 4 tunina, taniku; Fiji 6 vakatununa; Arabic sah'ana, to heat, be hot, inflamed; 3 suhnu and suh'nu; 6 suh'nat, 4 sahnat.

Efate 3 bono, to be shut, closed, secret; 6 bonoti, bunuti, monoti, munuti, to shut, close, stop, cover, conceal; Maori 1 pani, to shut; Hawaiian pani, to shut, conceal; Tahiti 3 puni, to be enclosed, to hide; tapuni, to hide; Mangaiian puni, to hide; Tongan buni, closed, shut; tabuni, to shut, to close up; Samoan 6 punita'i, punitia, to stop with, to be shut up; and moniti, to stop, cork, plug; Malay 3 buni, hidden, to hide (and Sanfal form as in Amharic), sambuni, hidden, concealed, secret; Java 6 buntu, closed up, shut; Efate bunuta, mute, silent (English 'shut up' = silent); Hebrew baham or bahan, to shut, to cover; Arabic bahama, to shut, close, be covered, hid, mute, silent.

Efate 1 safa, sefa, to pant, to hasten; 3 sofa, phthisis (panting), to pant (to have phthisis) to hasten; Malagasy 1 sefu, asthma, sefusefu, or serusevu, hurry, haste, breathless; 4 sevuka, in haste, bustling; Hebrew s'a'af, to pant, to hasten.

Efate 1 bami or fami, to eat; Tahiti hamu, gluttonous, to go to a feast whenever one occurs, to be burdensome to others by eating their food; Hawaiian hamu, to eat fragments of food; Maori hamu, feeding on fragments; Tongan hamu, to eat one kind of food only; Mangarevan amu, to eat with the mouth, not using the hands; Hebrew, Ethiopic pa'am, fa'ama; Arabic fa'ama, to have the mouth full of food, to swallow down.

(d) Triliterals with the Third Radical: ', w, y(i), h, h (and h'), ' (and ").

Efate 2 siko, to look at; Malagasy zaha; Hebrew sakah; Chaldee sĕka, to look at.

Efate 23 tubu, to swell; tobu a tumour; tumbu, tuma, will; Polynesian 23 tupu, tubu; Malagasy tumbu, to spring forth, grow, increase; Malay 24 tumbuh; Samoan tupu' and tupul, in tupu'aga, tupula'i; Hebrew ṣabah, to come forth, to swell, to will; Aramaic ṣeba, to will; ṣebu, will; Arabic ṣaba'a and ṣabu'a, to come forth, rise, spring up, project; 23 ṣubu, ṣubut.

Efate 2 kili; Maori 1 kari, keri; Malay gali; Malagasy hadi; Fiji kali, 4 kalia, kaliva, to dig; Arabic kara (third radical w); Ethiopic karaya (third radical y); Hebrew karah (third radical h); Aramaic kĕra (third radical '), to dig; Arabic 1 karw; Ethiopic 4 keryat.

Efate, Fiji, tatalai, to warm oneself at the fire; Arabic sala, 1 saly, (5) tasala(y), to feel the heat of fire, to warm oneself at the fire.

Samoan talotalo; Tahiti tarotaro, to pray; 4 talosia; Efate tarotaro; 4 tarosi, to pray; Arabic sala; Ethiopie salaya, to pray; 4 salot.

Efate 2 tili; 3 tuli; Malay tutur; Samoan 1 tala; Malagasy 3 turi, to narrate, tell; Malay 6 turut, to follow; Arabic tala, to follow, to recite, secondary root from wala(y) (8).

Efate 3 toko, (shortened) to, matoko, to sit, rest upon, stay; Malay duduk, totok; Fiji 2 tiko; Efate 6 tokora; Fiji 5 tikora; Malagasy 6 tuaṭa, tuiṭa, tueṭa; Arabic taka, to rest upon, support oneself upon, sit, recline. This is a secondary root from Arabic waka (8) i.e. 'ttaka to rest upon, sit (Luke xiv. 8, Arabic Version).

Efate 1 taku, mataku; Samoan mata'u; Malay 4 takut; Malagasy tahuta; Samoan mata'utia, fear, to fear; Arabic taka, (Hebrew take), to fear. This is a secondary root from Arabic waka(y) (8) i.e. 'ttaka, to fear (to guard oneself being afraid).

TRILITERALISM AND INTERNAL VOWEL CHANGE 45

Efate 1 karai, to dislike, be averse from, hate; Malay 2 gili; Malagasy 1 hala; Arabic kariha, to dislike, abhor; 1 karh.

Malay 4 s'akit; Ilocan masakit; Efate 1 masaki; Tongan mahaki; Maori, Rarotongan maki; Samoan ma'i; Hawaiian mai, sickness, to be ill; Arabic s'aka, to be sick, have a disease; 1 s'aka(y), 4 s'akat.

Efate 1 maru, to rub, to joke; Maori 2 miri, to rub; Arabic marah'a, to rub or anoint with oil, to joke; 1 marh'.

Samoan 18 malic, well, agreeable, right, proper, good; Maori, Mangarevan marie; Efate malei or milei, good, well; Arabic maluḥa, to be elegant, beautiful; 18 mali(y)ḥ, maliḥ, beautiful, good, fit, proper.

Efate 3 boka or buka, to strike, to reprehend; Malagasy puka; Malay 6 pukul, to strike; Efate bukati; Arabic baka'a, to strike, to reprehend; 3 (would be) buk, and 6 buk'at.

Efate 23 roko, also loko, loku, and luku, and 1 laku, to bow, stoop; Samoan lolo'u, to bend, curve; Fiji roko, a bowing form or posture, curved; 24 rokota, to bend a bow; rokova, bow to, pay respect to; rokoroko, reverence, respect; Efate 4 lakosa; 24 lukuta; Mangarevan rokuroku, a final prayer when the torches are thrown down and extinguished at a funeral; Arabic raka'a, to bow, stoop, as from old age, or in prayer; 23 ruku'; 4 rak'at.

Efate 23 bulu, bule, complete, the whole; Tongan fuli, all; Malay bulah, the whole; Arabic bala"a, to complete, to go through to the end; 23 bulu".

(e) Triliterals with the First Radical v (w), y (i), $\dot{}$, h, \dot{h} (and \dot{h}'), $\dot{}$ (and $\ddot{}$).

Efate 21 amosi, mosi, musi; Maori muhu, to rub; Arabic wamasa, to rub; 21 (would be) wamus.

Efate 8 bara; Malay palu; Malagasy veli; Efate barati; Malagasy velez-, to beat; Arabic wabala, to beat.

Efate 8 atai, tai, to know; Malay tau; Hebrew yadu', to know; da'at, de'a.

Efate 7 buli, to abstain, fast; Malagasy fadi; Arabic 'abala, to abstain, fast.

Efate 8 kani, to eat; Fiji kana; Malay 24 makan; Malagasy (transposed for mahana), humana; 20 hinana; 10 hanina, to eat; Arabic 'akala, to eat; 8 'akāl; 24 ma'kal; Hebrew 20 'ăkilat.

Efate 21 rojo, dialect, dojo; Maori rojo, to hear, to smell; Samoan lojo; Malay 10 dajar; Malagasy renes; Efate 22 rojosa ki; Samoan lojolojosa 'i; Efate rojorojo ki, to proclaim, to report; Arabic 'adana, to hear, to smell, to proclaim; 10 'adanat; 21-22 (would be) 'adon, 'adonat.

Samoan 1 efu, dust, to become dust, dust-coloured; Malay abu; Tongan efu, dust, ashes; Efate abu, dust, ashes; abuabu, to fly in the air (dust); Arabic habu, to fly in the air (dust); 1 (would be) habw; 4 habwat, dust, colour of dust.

Efate 1 ta, to chop, cut, to speak, or utter quickly (as it were to make a chopping noise); Fiji, Samoan ta; Efate, Samoan 7 or 8 tata; Malay 9 or 10 tatah; Malagasy tatana; Fiji 4 taya, tala-ka, tava-ka; Arabic haḍḍa, to cut, to cut quickly, to chop, to utter speech quickly; 1 haḍḍa; 7 haḍaḍ; 8 haḍāḍ; 4 (would be) haḍḍat, and 9 haḍaḍat.

Efate 21 loai, to rub, smear; 22 alofi and lofi, also loasi, loari, and doubled loloasi, to rub, to smear or paint the face with a cosmetic or paint; Malay lulut and lulur, to cleanse the skin by friction and cosmetics, to rub the skin with cosmetics, to smear; Arabic hala'a, to rub, to smear; 21 halowa or haluw; 22 (would be) halowat.

Efate 1 elo, to be sweet, pleasant; Hawaiian 3 olu; Arabic hala', to be sweet, pleasant, agreeable; 1 halw; 3 holw.

Efate 23 ulu, to grow up, produce leaves, or foliage; ulu, a leaf; (doubled) lulu, to go up, be high; Hawaiian ulu, uluulu, to grow up, lift up; Arabic 'ala', to go up, be high; Hebrew 'alah, to go up, sprout forth, grow up; 'aleh, a leaf; Arabic 13 'ilawat, the head; 23 'uluw.

Samoan 3 ulu, 6 uluf (in ulufia, Hawaiian uluhia, Malagasy 5 idita and ilita, to enter, go in; Arabic "alla, to enter, go in);

Chaldee 'alal (this should have been placed above under verbs with middle radical doubled).

Efate 18 liko; 21 luko or luku, a rope, to adhere or be fastened to; 20 likoti; 22 lukuti, to fasten, make fast to; Malay 10 lakat and lakap, to adhere; lukatkan, to fasten; Malagasy raikiṭa, rekiṭa; Arabic 'aliķa, to adhere, to fasten to; 1 'alaķ, a rope; 18 'aliķ, 20 'aliķat, 10 'alaķat, 21 'aluķ.

Efate 21 bulu or fulu, any sticky substance used to cover with as paint, to cover as with a poultice, paint, oil; Samoan pulu; Tahiti puru; Fiji bulu, an external application or thing that covers, to cover with earth or external application, to repair or expiate (cover) an injury, a peace offering, or thing offered as a reparation for an injury; 22 buluta; Efate buluti; Samoan puluti, puluta'i; Samoan fulu, Futuna fufuru, Tahiti huru, Efate (dialect) 18 fili, Malay bulu, Malagasy vulu, hair (also down, feathers, wool); Samoan fulufulua, Malagasy vuluina, hairy; Arabie "afara, to cover, to cover and imbue (as the hair with a tincture), to be hairy, shaggy, to forgive; 18 "afir, hair; 21 "afuru.

(f) Triliterals Doubly Weak, that is with two of the above Weak Letters or Quiescents.

Samoan 3 nofo, to sit, dwell, live with, remain; Maori-Tahiti noho; Efate no; Samoan 6 nohoa; Mangarevan nohoka; Tahiti nohoraa, a seat; Paumotan nohokaja, nohoraja, abode, dwelling-place; Hebrew navah, to sit, to dwell (also na'ah); navat, a seat, a habitation.

Efate 1 leo, le, lo, to see; Samoan leo; Fiji rai; Fiji 4 rait'a; Malay liat, kaliat; Malagasy hiraṭa, hiraṣa; Efate (dialects) losi, lek, lumi, libisi, to see; Arabic raa; Hebrew raah; Ethiopic ray, to see; Arabic 1 ra'i; Hebrew reoh; Ethiopic rai; Arabic 4 ra't, rayat; Hebrew reot or revot; Arabic 6 ruvyat.

Efate ba, bai, be, mai, to come, to enter; Marquesan memai, to come; Efate and Polynesian mai, hither, towards the speaker; Efate dialect $b\bar{e}$; Efate 4 basi, enter upon, go upon; Fiji vat'a; Ethiopic bawi, to come, to enter; Hebrew $b\bar{a}$, to come, to enter; Arabic ba'a, to enter, &c.; Ethiopic 4 ba't.

Efate $n\bar{e}t$, dialect notu (Mosin nat, Vaturanga atu and tatu, outwards), to go outwards (opposite of mai or $b\bar{e}$, preceding word) atu or $a\bar{s}$ in banotu, $bana\bar{s}$; Maori whanatu; Polynesian atu, away, away from, outwards; Ethiopic $wa\bar{s}a$; Hebrew $ya\bar{s}a$; Assyrian $a\bar{s}u$, to go out, or outwards; Hebrew $ya\bar{s}o$ (infinitive or verbal noun = atu) and 4 $s\bar{e}'t$; Ethiopic $s\bar{a}'t$ (= tatu) and by change of s to n, $n\bar{e}t$, notu, as Fiji $yani=ya\bar{s}o$; ani=atu.

These two Semitic words are the opposites of each other, the one denoting 'exitus, egressus, sive, exeundi actus', the other (ba, bawi) 'introitus', as Ludolf, Lex. Eth., observes s.v. şa't.

Efate bano-mai or bana-mai, to come; banaṣ, i.e. ban aṣ, to go; Maori whanatu; Efate bano, to go; Maori whano, to verge towards, to go on, proceeding towards; Hebrew panah, to turn, to turn oneself, to turn the back, to turn in order to go anywhere. Thus banotu, whanatu=to turn, going away, or outwards, and bano-mai, bano-bē=to turn coming, to come.

So Fiji lako-mai=to proceed coming; lako-yani, to proceed outwards, away; lako, Malay laku, to proceed; Hebrew halak; Assyrian halak; Assyrian 7 laku.

For Maori haere in haere atu, haere mai, see below.

(g) Triliterals with the Weak or Fleeting' Letter n the First Radical.

The Oceanic in dropping this n compares with the Hebrew and Aramaic, and not with the Arabic.

Efate 7 saki, to ascend, go up; Tongan haki; Samoan a'i; Hawaiian ae; Maori ake; Aramaic něsak, to ascend, go up; Imperative (showing the dropping of the n) sak.

Efate 7 bīsa or basa, to speak; Tagala basa; Fiji 21 vosa; 22 vosata ka, to speak about; Efate visura ki, to converse, talk; Arabic nabasa and nabaṣa, to speak, talk.

Efate 21 buka, a swell, ground swell, to swell, be puffed up, then to have the belly swollen with food; Maori puku; Malagasy vuki; 22 vukis-; Malay 7 bakat; Efate 22 bukutu; Malay bukit; Malagasy vuhiṭa or vuhiṭa, a rise, a hill; Malagasy vua-vuhiṭa, swelled, bulged; vuhirana, made to bulge; vuhirina (buhiṭa), made convex, protuberant: so buhina, from 21 buhi, an inflated and puffed-up aspect; Arabic nafaḥ'a, to inflate, be inflated, to swell.

Efate 8 kat, a bite, to bite; Fiji kata, to bite; Raratongan kati, to bite (doubled), katikati, to bite; Malay gigit; Malagasy hehita, kaikita; Aramaic někat, to bite.

(h) TRILITERALS WITH THE THREE RADICALS STRONG.

Efate 8 samat, samit; 15 sumat, to beat, whip, chasten, hastening, being quick; Fiji 21 samuta, to beat; Malay 8 chamati, chamiti, a whip or scourge; Hebrew s'amat, s'amas, to smite, thrust; Arabic samasa, to strike, to thrust, to urge on a beast violently; sumas, hastening, being quick.

Efate $2 \, s\bar{\imath}uo$; $3 \, suwa$, to descend, downward, be low; Fiji sobu; Samoan $2 \, ifo$; Tongan hifo; Tahiti iho; Aneityumese asuol, (asuvol); Arabic $\mathring{\omega}_{\omega}$, to be low, to descend.

Efate 21 kamut, to nip, take with the hand, seize, grasp firmly; Fiji ġ'amuta; Hebrew kamas, to take with the hand; kamat, to hold fast with the hand, to seize firmly.

Efate 11 bilisi, dialect 14 bolisi, to spread out; Malagasy velața; Samoan 14 folas (in folasia); Arabic faras'a, to spread out.

Efate 23 fulusi, bulo ki, &c., to turn; Samoan fulis (in fulisia): Tongan fulihi; Maori huri, to turn, turn over; Tahiti huri, to roll; Hebrew falas', to roll, revolve (turn).

Efate 12 siuer (siwar), to walk, proceed, journey; 15 suwara, 3 sur, 6 surata; Samoan 7 savali, to walk, proceed; savalivali (Pe'al'al 1 form), to walk about; Maori haere, haereere: Hawaiian huele, hele; Moriori here; Arabic safara, to journey, go, proceed; 7 safar, 12 sifar, 6 sufrat.

¹ Hebrew and Aramaic.

These examples sufficiently show that the above Oceanic word first given lave, lapit, lifa, lipat, love, lovet'a, is not exceptional, but only one out of the mass and of a piece with the rest, and this conclusively establishes that the Oceanic primitive or mother-tongue had like each of its sister dialects, Arabic, Assyrian, &c., its share of the common stock of purely and exclusively Semitic triliteral words (nouns and verbs) with the purely Semitic common method of word-formation or inflexion by internal vowel change and external additions.

Passive Participle of the First Form 'KAL'.

Like the Arabic مَشْرُوعَة ,مَشْرُوعَة ,مَشْرُوعَة ,مَشْرُوعَة ,مَشْرُوعَة ,مَشْرُوعَة ,مَشْرُوعَة , are Efate masua. مَوْتُوق , bald ; Efate matūki (taki), Mg. matùki, مَوْتُوق , trusted, firm, steadfast, brave ; Ef. مَعْدُور , matùlŭ, swollen ; and malārĕ, or milate, Tahiti mariri, Samoan maalili, Maori makariri, Malo magariri. مَقْرُورُ (makrùrŭ, or ma'rùrŭ), cold, 'frigore affectus.'

On the other hand the form is used for the passive participle in Hebrew, seems to appear in bārua; Hebrew pārua, free from, made naked, devoid of. In such a word as kasua, hard, strong, the -a may be the feminine ending -ta with the t elided as in Modern Syriac, or it may be the participle kasu (Efate dialect), intensified by the adjective ending -a, for which see below.

ACTIVE PARTICIPLE OF FIRST FORM 'KAL'.

In this, in Arabic and Hebrew the vowel of the first syllable of the verb is made long: so Efate kǐlǐ, to dig; kāli, , a digging-stick, a thing for digging; so sār, lāġa, and analogously tīla, lēt, lōfa, lūma, nīfi, ōri, sēru, sīko, tūnu, sōro, &c.

An example of form 15 is seen in the Oceanic word for 'pig', Polynesian puaka, pua'a, puaa; Fiji vuaka; Efate uak, uaġo (فُوَّاقَ , and فُوَّاقَ, see Index), 15 فُوَّاقً

TRILITERALISM AND INTERNAL VOWEL CHANGE 51

An example of the original 'nomen actionis' of the Arabic Conjugation II, form فِعَالَ is seen in Efate rëàkĭ, to strain, a strainer (colum), وَوْاقَى (see Index), رَوَّاقَى, a strainer (colum).

Remark on Ch. III. It is easy to see from the above, how the ancient triliterals came to be pronounced in the Oceanic dialects, as they prevailingly are, as bisyllabic words with the accent on the first syllable.

CHAPTER IV

INFLEXIONAL OR WORD-FORMING ADDITIONS; PREFIXES, INFIXES, SUFFIXES

PREFIXES.

THE Semitic inflexional verb-form or 'conjugation' prefixes were three, the causative, the reflexive or reciprocal, and the reflexive; alone or with the pronominal particle m prefixed to them. These were:—

- 1. Causative—Arabic, Ethiopic, Aramaic, a, originally s'a, sa (ta, ti); Hebrew hi; Himyaritic sa, and ha. S to t, h, and elided.
- 2. Reflexive or reciprocal—Arabic, Ethiopic, Assyrian, Hebrew n, in, i. N elided.
 - 3. Reflexive—Arabic, Assyrian, Hebrew, &c., ta, it, it'.

These three were combined thus:-

- 4. Causative-reflexive, or simply causative, or transitive (1 and 2). Ethiopic, Amharic an; Himyaritic han; also Amharic asan (for san).
- 5. Causative-reflexive, simply causative, or reflexive, middle (1 and 3). Tigre, Amharic, Ethiopic, Himyaritic, Arabic, ata, ista (for sata), asta (for sata), sat'a, hat'a, or hat'.
- 6. Reflexive-passive, or reciprocal-reflexive (2 and 3). Assyrian, Himyaritic nit', inta, itta.
- 7. Reflexive-passive (3 and 4). Ethiopic, Amharic tan. Also Assyrian (2 and 7), ittan, intan.

The infinitives and participles of these often had the pronominal particle m prefixed, and then with this m prefixed were sometimes used for the finite verb. Thus we have ma Syriac (Maphel), causative, for the simple a (Aphel) of 1. In modern Syriac this has become almost the sole form of the causative. The m, whether prefixed to 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6 or 7, makes no difference in the signification.

- 8. Reflexive-passive (3 and 1). Syriac et'mu.
- 9. Apart from these three prefixes, this m, or ma, was sometimes alone prefixed to infinitives, and to passive participles of the ground-form. Thus in Mahri (modern Himyaritic) the common passive participle is expressed through m, which replaces many lost inner passives. See Von Maltzan on the Mahri in Z.D.M.G., Vol. XXVII. This passive form is frequent also in Oceanic, as Efate baku, to pluck out, mafaku, plucked out; basu, to snap off, mafasu, snapped off; bua, to cleave, mafua, cleft; koto, to break, makoto, broken.

In comparing the Oceanic forms, here following, of the above-given three inflexional prefixes, it is to be observed that the m (phonetically varied to b, p, v, f) is sometimes separably, sometimes (as in the Syriac Maphel) inseparably, attached to them. Thus we have number for number:—

- 1. Causative.—Efate sa; Tahiti ta; Malagasy a, ma; Dayak ma; Bugis, Makassar pa; Efate ba, fa; Mota va; Lifu, Mare a.
- 2. Reciprocal. or reflexive.—Dayak in, i; Tagala i; Malagasy i, mi; Efate bi, fi; Samoan fe; Fiji vei.
- 3. Reflexive.—Makassar, Dayak, Fiji, Efate, &c., ta; Malay, Java, Fiji, Efate, &c., ka (t to k); Malagasy, Dayak ha (k, or t to k); Fiji (and Ef.) ra (t to r).

And, as above, these three are combined thus:-

- 4. Causative, transitive (1 and 2).—Malagasy an, man; Malay, Tagala, Dayak, &c., man; Malay, Malagasy san. The n is often changed for euphony to \dot{g} , m, &c. See the grammars.
- 5. Causative-reflexive, causative, reflexive (1 and 3). Malagasy aha, maha; Tagala mag, maka; Makassar paka; Efate baka, faka; Fiji vaka; Maori whaka; Samoan faa; Malay bar.
 - 6. Reflexive (2 and 3).—Malagasy iha, miha.
- 7. Reflexive of 4 (3 and 4).—Dayak tan (Malay, Malagasy tan); the n changed for euphony, as in 4; also kan, Malagasy kan. Also (2 and 7), Malagasy itan, and mitan.

- 8. Reflexive, or passive of 1 (3 and 1).—Malagasy tafa; Dayak tapa; Efate taba; Oba tama; Mota tava.
- 9. Passive participle, or infinitive, of ground-form. See under 9 above. Frequent in Oceanic, Malagasy, Tagala, Samoa, Efate, Solomon Islands, &c.

To these must be added:—

10. Reflexive-passive of 5. Malay tar, formed from (b)ar, as tan from an, (m)an.

Other combinations in Oceanic of these inflexional prefixes need not here be noticed, as:—

11. Reciprocal.—Malagasy ifa (2 and 1), ifan (2 and 4). In Malagasy there are many other combinations of these three particles which need not be noticed here.

Infixes.

These inflexional particles are also found 'infixed' by transposition, as the one numbered 2, giving a reflexive-passive sense, in Java, and in a few words in Malagasy: it is found infixed in Arabic after the second radical of quadriliterals. In Himyaritic and Assyrian ta (3) was infixed, and in Assyrian ta (3 and 2). In Malagasy m is found infixed in a few words. In this case, as in that of the n of number 2, the prefix becomes, as in the Semitic languages, by transposition, an infix.

Examples. For the Malayan and Pacific Islands generally see F. Müller, Grundriss d. Sprachwissenschaft, and for Dayak, Grammatik der Dayakschen Sprache, by Frederik Müller, 1858. For the letter changes of these formative particles see above, Ch. II.

Prefixes.

- 1. (a) Safal, (b) Tafal, (c) Afal, (d) Mafal.
- (a) Ef. sarafi, sajalujalu; (b) Tahiti ma, clean, tama, to cleanse; (c) Mare waruma (Mg. veluna, Ef. moli, mauri), to live, awaruma, to make to live; (d) Mg. tahuṭa, fear, matahuṭa, and (in past and future tenses) atahuṭa, to fear; Ef. baġani, Fi. vakani, to feed, cause to eat, kani, to eat; Ef. marafi, see sarafi, and compare Syriac Afal and Safal of this word.

- 2. Ifal, Mifal (Nifal, Infal, Ifal). Ef. fiatu, fimeri, fimuri, bialo, biauli; Sam. alofa, love, fealofani, to love one another; Dayak pukul, beat, mamukul, to beat, imukul, to be beaten; Mg. (m)ilahata, to arrange oneself, to be arranged, from lahata; telu, three, mitelu, to three itself, to be divided into three.
- 3. Tafal. Ef. taḥaro, taḥelu, taḥare, taḥara, takel, tatalai, takusi, tausi, and rausi; Eromangan devat, Tanna kuvas, four, Ef. kefate, and kafat, fourth; and so with all the numerals.
- 4. Manfal, Anfal, Sanfal. Mg. mameluna (i. e. manveluna), ameluna, My. maģidupi (man-idupi) (and with same meaning 5, Ef. bakamauri, Fi. vakubula, Sam. faaola), to make to live, save. Mg. hudina (herina) (Ef. keleti, kelu), turning round, saģudina (san-hudina), a top (spinning, whirling round); My. buni, sambuñi (san-buni), to conceal, concealed. Ef. bon, bonoti, bunuti.
- 5. Matafal, Atafal. As seen in 4, baka-, in Ef., &c., may as to meaning be the same as man- in Mg. and My., as is easily explained etymologically, the final particles, in 2 and 3, being both reflexive. Fi. vakamatea, Mg. mahafati, Tah. haamati (My. mamati, for man-mate, 4, with same meaning), to make die, kill; Ef. mate, die, dead. Here it may be observed once for all that formative particles etymologically identical are not necessarily wholly identical in use either in the Semitic or Oceanic dialects. Thus My. bar- is the same etymologically as Ef. baka-, but not in use: one of the uses of Fi. vaka-, not in Ef., is the same as that of My. bar-, e.g. My. barumah (bar-rumah, rumah, house); Fi. vakavale (vale, house), to have a house; literally, make for, or to oneself a house.
- 6. Itafal (Intafal, Nithpael). Mg. fana (Ef. bani), warm, (m)ihafana, to grow warm; Ef. rausi, to follow, birausi, to keep on following, follow one another; toli, to go before (put behind), bitoli, to go before one another (as in a race). See usi and liu.
- 7. Tanfal, Itanfal. Mg. undrika, tanundrika, (m)itanundrika, stoop; laṣaka, tandaṣaka, (m)itandaṣaka, fall, sink. So kan-, as usa, cowardly, kanusa, a confirmed coward.
- 8. ('Etmafal') Tamafal. Ef. laĝa. (Mafal) balaĝati. to raise; tubalaĝa, raised.

9. See above under 9. On 1, 2, 3, 5, 8, 9 in the Melanesian dialects generally, see M.L., pp. 183-9.

For the added initial syllable of the 'broken plurals', see above $\S 16 (b)$, Ch. II.

Infixes.

(n) Mg. tapaka, cut off, tinapaka, to be cut off, Ef. tefi; Java rayah, to plunder, rinayah, to be plundered: (m) Mg. tani (Ef. taġi), and tumani, to wail, cry; and compare My. makan, Mg. humana, Ef. kani, to eat. Cousins, Mg. Dict., p. xvii, notes also ar, as ṣapaka, ṣarapaka, which may be the infixed t, as in the Arabic eighth conjugation, and Himyaritic 'Patal'.

Ef. kala, Mg. keli, small: then Mg. kineli=Arabic seventh conjugation, Hebrew Nifal of the verb פָלל, פֿרָ פֿרָ Suffixes.

In the Semitic languages we have—

- 1. t, forming abstracts and feminines: in all the dialects the t is sometimes elided leaving vowel only, as a, i, e.
- 2. an, Assyrian also in, Ethiopic also na, forming abstracts from verbs, and adjectives from nouns, and intensive adjectives from other adjectives and participles. The n is sometimes elided in Hebrew, leaving only vowel o for a.
 - 3. tan(1+2), abstracts and adjectives (participles).
- 4. awi, ai, a, i, adjectives from nouns, and intensive adjectives from other adjectives or participles.
 - 5. iyyat, iat, it, ut, ot (4 + 1), feminine adjectives and abstracts.
 - 6. ani(2+4), adjectives.

These are found in the Oceanic dialects thus:-

1. Ef. barua, and barbaruta, fat; bunuta, silent (shut up); bulubulut(a), sticky (like plaster or paint); Fi. dreġa, glue, dreġadreġata, gluey, sticky: these are really abstract verbal nouns used in the passive sense, from bono, shut, bono- or bunuti, to shut, and bulu, plaster, buluti, to plaster, Fiji dreġata, to glue. This formative ending forms abstract or verbal nouns which sometimes are thus used as passive verbs or adjectives, but which very often are used as active verbs usually with the transitive particles -i or -ki, My. -i and -kan: see below. The t or ta with the t elided is usually a, but sometimes i or e, as in Ef. sikai, one; lai, mulier, donna, lady; tokai, sukai.

- 2. Ef. arifon, a wise man, a diviner, عُرُفَان, 'arifan, sciens, from 'arafa, to know, to divine. Ef. oraorana and oroa, bilana, or bilena, and bila, teltela, and telatelana; ra, branch, rana branchy; Mg. kankana, worm, kankanina, affected with worms (see Index under p), (Sam. ane, anea, ancanea, has -a); lela, tongue, lelana, talkative; kiri, obstinacy, kirina, obstinate; vulu, hair, vuluina, hairy, Sam. fulufulua, has -a. Usually this ending forms abstract nouns or participles from verbs, or verbal nouns used as verbs; see below. In Ulawa, San Cristoval, and Pentecost the ordinals are formed by -na, as ruana, second, from rua, 2, &c.
- 3. Ef. barbaruta and barbarutena. fat; Mg. uzata. Ef. ua, sinew, uzatina, sinewy; ulita, worm, ulerina, wormy (Fi. uloulo, ulouloa, has -a); sumatu, beard, sumarina, bearded; taùlana, bone, taulànina, bony; Sam. ola, life, olataga, salvation, a saviour. Usually this ending forms abstract nouns from verbs, as My. takut, Mg. tahuta, abstract nouns (1), which are again used as verbs (compare such secondary roots as חַדֶּשִׁי from נַחַת, שׁוּחַ from (ניהַ from שָּׁהַם, from which abstracts or nomina verbi are formed by the ending an, as takutan, hatahurana. nomina verbi of these verbs, or of verbs without the -t, or of verbs with the -t alone, may be used, like the Semitic nomina verbi, in both an active and a passive sense, and in the latter case they are like participles or verbal adjectives: thus Ef. fami, to eat, famian, an eating, or to be eaten, eatable; bulu, buluti, to plaster, bulubuluta, to be sticky, as plaster, bulutian, a plastering, or to be plastered. Ef. taji, to wail, tajian, a wailing; tagisi, to bewail, tagisian, a bewailing, or to be In Ef. these nomina verbi formed by an cannot be used as verbs, but only either as verbal nouns, thus nabulutian ni nasuma, the plastering of the house; or in the passive sense as verbal adjectives, thus nasuma bulutian, a house to be plastered; nafinaja famian, food eatable, food to be eaten; tea tagisian, a thing or person to be bewailed. To every verb in the Ef. language with or without the -t this formative ending, -an, may be attached.

The i before this ending an, as e.g. in tajisian, is the transitive particle seen in My. and Ef. tajisi, to bewail, suffixed to the verb, but in My. it is never retained in the verbal noun which in this case is tajisan, never as it is in Ef. tajisian; and so in all cases.

- 4. (i) Aurora and Mota moai, first; Ef. bea, dialect bei, Sam. mua, (Aurora vagaruai, second). This word in Amharic fataña, first, has a more complex ending, according to Prätorius an, i, and a (ani as in 6).
- (a) Cf. tano, earth, soil; tanoa, earthy, soiled; oroa, sama, koa, lebalebā, lasoa. balea, sulia, fitta, ulua, koria; Sam. fulu, hair, fulufulua, hairy; nifo, teeth, nifoa, having teeth; 'eli, rust, 'elea, rusty; Fi. dravu, ashes, dravudravua, ashy.
- 5. Ef. turiai, young man, کُرِّیَةٌ, same meaning; tuai, عَادِیَّةٌ; munuai, from munu (bunuti); (lebalebā) lebalebāra, (baġbaġoa) baġbaġōra, (milesia) milesira.
- 6. Eromangan saiuģi, duruģi. deseluģi, devatuģi, first, second, third, fourth, from sai, duru, desel, devat, 1, 2, 3, 4; Florida ruani, toluni, second, third; Gaudalcanar kehani, first. So in Ysabel (Bugotu and Gao), the ordinals are formed by -ni; Mg. luhani, first, head-man, chief, from luha, head, Hebrew ris'oni (and ris'on).

In Polynesian and Melanesian there are two well-known prepositions, 1 Efate i, and ki; Maori i, and ki; Samoan i, and i ; (Fi. i, and ka, combined ki). These, often used as transitive prepositions immediately after the verb connecting it with its object, have come sometimes to be suffixed to the verb and treated as if a part of it; and to this compound verb, as to the simple verb, -ana or -a is suffixed. Thus from Samoan nofo, Efate no, to sit, dwell, we have nofoi, and noi, and from these again nofoia, and noiana. And so in Polynesian when ana is found as -na, as Efate uta; Maori uta; Efate utai, to put freight in a canoe, whence utaiana; Maori utaina. And so with ki, as Efate lua, Tongan lua, to vomit; then Efate luaki, or lua ki, Maori ruaki, whakaruaki, whence luakiana, whakaruakina. Malay for i, and ki, has i, and kan, as (daulu, first), daului, to anticipate, daulukan, to go before, to place before. Thus Ef. and My. tagisi; Ef. tagisian; My. tagisan. Malagasy never has kan, or ki, thus suffixed, but only i, thus Efate (bunu, Malagasy vunu), bunui, to kill, Malagasy vunui¹, whence bunuiana, or bunucana, and vunuina (for vunuiana); and Efate so, Malagasy ansu, to call, then soi, ansui¹, whence soiana ansuina.

¹ For those see below on the Particles.

The suffixes to the primary verb then are:

T^{*}	RLE	I
_1.∠\	BLE

Malagasy	$M_{\Lambda L \Lambda Y}$	5	Samoan	EFATE
ţa	\mathfrak{t}	ta	a, and a	t, or ta, or a ana, na	an	n	a, or a	ana, an i	i	i		i kan	ʻi		ki
ina		ii	na, or ia	iana
		Maori k	ina, or kia	kiana

On these suffixes it is to be observed that the rule is that:—

- 1. -ana, -ta, or -a, form abstract verbal nouns.
- 2. -ana, but not -ta, forms adjectives from nouns.
- 3. -ana, or na, or a, but not -ta, in Malagasy and in Polynesian forms the passives. The passives in Samoan thus formed—for they all end in this -na, or -a, as -a, -na, -ia, -ina, -tia, &c.—are actives when 'the pronoun precedes' (Pratt), that is they are passives or actives according to the construction of the sentence.

¹ Griffith's Malagasy Grammar, pp. 125, 127. Compare the use of this i in Fiji, Hazlewood's Fiji Grammar, pp. 32-9; thus rait'i, passive, 'to be seen,' except before proper nouns and personal pronouns, when it is transitive like the same word in My. liati, to see. When the verb with the transitive particle -i is used in a passive sense we have the passive of a transitive verb.

- 4. When -ta, or -a, and -ana (-na, -a), are combined, -ana is suffixed to the -ta, or -a, as in -tana (see below), or -āna (as in mataku-a, mataku-āna).
- 5. When -ana (-na, -a) is combined with the transitive particles i, and ki, it follows or is suffixed to them, as -ina, -ia, -kina, -iana, -kiana.
- 6. When -t, or -ta, or -a, is combined with these transitive particles they follow or are suffixed to it, as -ti, -taki, -aki.
- 7. Thus while the verbal noun, formed from the primary verb by -ana, or -na, or -a, and that by -ta, or -a, are both used also as verbs, it is only usually the latter that becomes the basis of a secondary verb, taking, like the primary verb, the suffixes -ana (-na); the transitive particles -i, -ki, and -iana (-ina), -ia, -kia, -kiana (-kina), as we are now more fully to see.

How large a part these transitive particles with the formative suffixes t, an, tan, play in the Oceanic dialects may now be shown.

The -t, or -ta, has undergone various phonetic changes: see above. Thus when the word with it stands independently in the Malagasy Dictionary, it is -ta (dialect sa), -ka, or -na; -ta being pronounced ta, or sa, and also -ka (t to k), and -na (t to n). But when in grammatical construction, -ta is pronounced -ta, -ra, or -fa; -ka is pronounced -ha, or -fa; and -na is pronounced -na, or -ma.\(^1\) In addition to these phonetic variants of -ta, there are -sa, and along with it -za, and along with -fa, -va. The -ta, with these phonetic variations is found in the other three Oceanic languages, Ef., My., and Sam., though of course in them -sa, and -za, are simply -sa, while -fa, and -va, in Malay are simply -p, and in Samoan and Efate -fa—but -fa in Efate is pronounced sometimes fa, and sometimes fa: again fa (for fa) is often in them found pronounced fa—and in Samoan of course, fa is always pronounced fa. In Samoan and Efate fa is also found with the consonant elided, as fa (Fiji fa), fa, fa). With independent words in the dictionary, as those with fa, fa

¹ Parker's Malagasy Grammar, p. 19.

[The letter that is pronounced variously is italicized.]

-tu, or ju, may vary to 'u, fuata, or fuaja' fuataja, fua'aja.

 $-\dot{g}a$ to -ta, -'a, as ola, to live, ola \dot{g} a, olataġa, ola'aġa.

.ja to -ma, as tanu, to bury, tanuja, tanumaga.

- $\dot{g}a$ to -sa, as leo, to watch, leoleo $\dot{g}a$, leoleosa'i.

-ja to -n(a), as alofa, to love, alofaja, fealofani, alofajia, Maori arohatia.

-ja to -ra, as Mangarevan mate, to die, mateja, materaga.

 $\dot{g}a$ to -la, 'a, as tupu, to increase, grow, tupu $\dot{g}a$, tupu $la\dot{g}a$. tupu'a $\dot{g}a$.

-ja to -a, as tuu, to leave, &c., tuuja, tuuaja.

- $\dot{y}a$ to -ra, as tu, to stand, $\begin{cases} tula, tula\dot{g}a \text{ (Samoan).} \\ tu\dot{g}a, tura\dot{g}a \text{ (Maori).} \end{cases}$

-a to ra, as Tahiti fanau, to be born, fanaua, fanauraa.

-t to -f, as Sam. una, to pinch, unatia, and unafia.

In Malay we have -t with all its variants in the dictionary with independent words, and also, but not as a rule, in Efate. In Efate the rule is, as in Malagasy and Samoan, that all the variants of -ta appear only in construction.

¹ So in Mod. Syr., see C.G.S.L., p. 54.

² Hazlewood's Fijian Grammar, p. 32.

Thus we have:-

TABLE II.

MALAGASY	MALAY	Samoan	EFATE	Fiji
ţa, ta	t	\mathbf{ta}	ta	ta
ka, ha	k	' a	ka	ka
na	n, ġ	na, ġa	na, ġa	na, ġa
fa	p	fa	fa	va va
sa	s	sa	\mathbf{sa}	t'a za
ra	r, 1	la	ra, la	ra, la ma	m	$_{ m ma}$	ma	ma
		a	\mathbf{a}	a, wa, ya

These Malagasy forms of this suffix, as also those below in Table IV, are used in, e.g. what Griffiths (Grammar, pp. 134, &c.) calls the 'Pronominal Adjunctive Conjugation', as surataku, I write, in which word -ta is the formative suffix of the secondary verb, and ku the suffixed pronoun first person singular nominative.

TABLE III.

MALAGASY	MALAY	Samoan	EFATE
tana	tan	taġa	tana, tan
rana	ran	laga, Tah. raa	rana fana	pan	faġa	fana
vana
hana	kan	ʻa ġa	kana
nana	nan, ġan	naġa	ġana
mana	man	maġa
sana	san	saġa	sana
zana		$\mathbf{a}\dot{\mathbf{g}}\mathbf{a}$	ana

Here the Samoan \dot{g} is for n, but the My. and Ef. \dot{g} (in $-\dot{g}ana$) for t, as in Table II. And as in Table II the -ta becomes sometimes in Sam. and Ef., and always in Tahiti, -a; so the Sam. $-\dot{g}a$ (in $-la\dot{g}a$, &c.) for na is always in Tahiti -a (as in -raa) by elision of the n, as in Table VI Sam. and Maori (and Tahiti) -ia is for -ina by the same elision.

INFLEXIONAL OR WORD-FORMING ADDITIONS 63

With -i, TABLE IV.

Malagasy	MALAY	Samoan	EFATE
ti	ti	ti	ti
\mathbf{ri}	ri	li	ri fi	\mathbf{pi}	fi	\mathbf{fi} vi
hi	ki
ni	ni, ģi	ni, ģi	ni, ģi
$\mathbf{m}\mathbf{i}$	$_{ m mi}$	mi	$\mathbf{m}\mathbf{i}$ si	${ m si}$	si	${ m si}$
zi

For these Malagasy suffixes in IV see remark under Table II. The Samoan are found thus with the reciprocal verb, as fealofani, to love one another. The Efate forms are very common as buluti, to cover with bulu, and from every such verb in Efatese you have the form in Table VI by suffixing -ana. The form seen in buluti, apart from the reciprocal, is not unknown in Polynesian, e.g. Samoan puluti (= Efate buluti), whence form of Table VI as pulutia. But often in Samoan we find the form like pulutia, while that like puluti is no longer found, or found only in the reciprocal, or in cognate dialects.

With ki, or kan, we have Table V.

MALAGASY	MALAY	Samoan	Efate	Fiji
[wanting]	-tkan	-taʻi	-taki	taka
	-rkan	-laʻi	-raki	raka, laka
	-pkan	-faʻi	-faki	vaka
	-kkan			kaka
	-nkan, ġkan	-na'i, ġa'i	-naki, ġaki	naka
	-mkan	-maʻi	-maki	maka
	-skan	-sa'i	-saki	t'aka
		-a'i	-aki	waka, yaka

In Samoan this form, like the previous, is found with the reciprocal verb, as felamata'i, to watch for one another, and also independently of it, as loġoloġosa'i, to report. In Efate and Malay it is found in this latter way, as Efate roġosaki, to listen, or hearken to, Malay liatkan, to see.

With -iana, we have Table VI.

MALAGASY	MALAY	SAMOAN	E FATE
$_{ m tina}$	[wanting]	tia	tiana
rina		lia	riana
fina		fia	fiana
\mathbf{vina}		whina (Mao	ri)
hina		kia (Maori)
\mathbf{nina}		nia, ġia	niana, ģiana
mina		mia	miana
sina		sia	siana
zina

As Mg. tahuṭa, ampi-tahurina, Sam. mata'u, mata'utia, being frightened (Ef. mataku, matakua, fear, Table II): here the Polynesian -ia is for Po. and Mg. -ina, Ef. -iana, by elision of the n (but the Ef. -a is for -ta, by elision of the t).

Finally, with -kiana, we have Table VII.

MALAGASY	M_{ALAY}	Samoan	E FATE
[wanting]	[wanting]	-taʻina -laʻina -faʻiga	-takiana -rakiana -fakiana -nakiana -makiana
		-saʻina -aʻina	-sakiana -akiana

As Samoan tuputupula'ina, to increase, from tupu, to grow, whence also are the forms tupula'i (V), tupuġa (II), tupu'aġa, and tupulaġa (III), tupua (I).

INFLEXIONAL OR WORD-FORMING ADDITIONS 65

Here let it be observed that all these suffixes are not found with every verb, and that a form wanting in one language may be found in another, e.g. it may be thus with (1) the basis (Table II) of the secondary verb wanting in Samoan folo (Maori horo), to swallow, but found in Maori horoja.

- (2) Some derived form of the secondary verb as Maori horomi (Table IV), to swallow, wanting in Samoan, while both have (Table VI) fologia, horomia, and Samoan folomaga (Table III), Maori horomaga.
- (3) Some derived form of the primary verb (Table I) as Maori whakahoroa wanting in Samoan.
- (4) In one language in the case of a particular verb the secondary form may be wanting, in another the primary form may be wanting, while in a third we may find both the secondary and primary forms of it, as e.g. in the case of the verb 'to fear', Efate mataku, primary only, Malay takut, Malagasy tahuta, secondary only, Samoan mata'u, mata'utia, both primary and secondary.
- (5) The -a of Tables I, II, and VI, whether for -ta or for -na, is distinct from the ending -a, No. 4, pp. 56 and 58, given above.

Ef. examples. Both the primary and the secondary verb with the transitive particles, i and ki, are transitive, and sometimes with ki (so My. kan), causative: in this way we have in the Oceanic dialects analytic substitutes for ancient intensives, or causatives. Thus Ef. rojo, to hear, roji, v. tr., to hear, rojorojoki, to proclaim, make to be heard: in the last case the reduplication is intensive. Then from these we have narojoan, a report, thing heard; narojoan, a hearing; narojorojokian, a proclaiming.

With -a, for -ta, mitiri, to write, na mitiria, a writing, so mataku, matakua; tabu, tabua; tanue, tanua; misaki, misakia; milate, milatea; tiro, tiroa; maieto, maietoa; moru, deep, na morua, the deep.

TABLE II.

bunuta

malifus

karaka

tokora (Mg. toeta)

talifa matakua

TABLE III.

bunutān karakān talifàn malifusăn matakuān

TABLE IV.

buluti sokari silifi

tanumi balosi

atuģi, buluni

TABLE V.

sokataki (soka)

atumaki (atu, atuģi)

tokoraki (toko) silifaki (sili) rogosaki (rogo) toroaki (toro)

tokonaki (toko)

TABLE VI.

bulutian sokarian silifian atugian, bulunian tanumian balosian

TABLE VII.

sokatakian tokorakian tokonakian atumakian

rogosakian toroakian

silifakian

Compare Fi. keli, kelia, kelivaka; Sam. nofo, nofoa, nofoa'i.

In Madagascar, 'Some tribes,' says Richardson, 'use them (-ta, -ka, and -na) interchangeably.' In the Hova dialect itself, as Parker has observed, they are interchangeable in certain words, thus silata and silaka, Ef. sila, chipping off; Mg. tanina

(also kanina) and tanika, and tunu, roasting, &c. For -n, -ġ occurs in dialects. Malagasy examples:—taraṭa, taraṭina, ps.p. (Sa. titotilo, to spy, tilofia, ps.); unuṭa, unutana, or unurana, ps.p. (Sa. una, to pinch, pluck off, unatia or unafia, ps.); hirika, hirihana, or hirifana, ps.p., bored; minuna (drink), minumina; andrasana or andrazana, ps.p., being watched; tandrina, tandrinana, or tandrimana, p.p., being taken care of.

Malay examples:—lulut, lulur (Ef. loai, to stroke, paint; lolo, loasi, or loari); lapit, lapis (Ef. lifai, malifus, to bend, bent); lakat, lakap (Ef. liko, likoti, fasten, &c.); garut, garok (Ef. karu, karuti, to scrape); gosot, gosok, rub (Ef. kasi; Mg. kasuka, kusuka); tambat, tambag, to bind, fasten; gulig, to roll (Mg. hudina); minum, to drink (Mg. minuna).

Efate examples:—As in Mg., My., Sa., and Fi., so in Ef., the t may have more than one phonetic form with the same word as keleti, kelufaki (kelu); sokari, sokataki (soka, to join on to); karuti, karisi, karafi, karaka (karo, kari, scratch); (dialects) balosi, baloni, buluni, bulugi (bafano, wash the hands), Sa. fufulu, Fi. vuluvulu; atugi, atumaki (atu, break, smite, &c.), munugi (dialect munuma, munu, to drink).

In Fiji, words with -t are usually transitive verbs, equivalent to Ef. with -ti. Fiji examples:—kovuta, kovuna (kovu, wrapper); tura, to place (Sa. tula, n.; Maori tuġa), (tu, to stand); tutaka, to defend (from tura); rait'a, to look at (rai, to look, seeing); vakaraitaka, to show (from rait'a); volia, to buy (voli, barter); volitaka, to sell (from volia); vuruya, to crumble (vuruvuru, crumb); vurutaka, to crumble (from vuruya); vosaka, to speak to (vosa, speak, speech); vosataka, to speak of (from vosaka); roġot'a, to hear, tr. (roġo, to hear, intr.); roġotaka, cause to be heard (from roġot'a); roġovaki, to be spread abroad, of a report (roġotaka); rokota, to bend, bow (roko, a bowing, bent); rokova, to bow to (roko, v for t); t'oroġa, to singe, scorch (Ef. soro, to blaze, burn); t'orokaka, to singe, scorch (from t'oroġa); unuma, to drink (Mg. minuna; My. minum).

Of the two non-inflexional suffixed particles, really transitive prepositions, i is for (ni, ri), li. And li is the Semitic preposition in Arb. li, of the same meaning, and, what is particularly to the point, of similar use in Arb. after verbal nouns. Arb., 'the verb may govern either (a) the accusative of a noun, or (b) a preposition with the genitive of a noun, which takes the place of the accusative, and gives a greater precision and accuracy to the expression. This government is not restricted to the finite tenses of the verb, but extends to the nomen verbi or actionis, the nomina agentis and patientis, and other verbal substantives and adjectives, whenever and so far as these different kinds of nouns contain somewhat of the conception or nature of the verb.' 'The nomen actionis (with the others above-named) often takes its objective complement not in the accusative, but in the genitive with li, in which case this preposition is used as an outward exponent of the relation between the nomen verbi and its object. Hence the Arab grammarians rightly call it . . . the lam (li) that strengthens the regent (the nomen actionis or the verbal power which it possesses: for since the verbal force which dwells in the nomen actionis is less than that in the finite verb, the language helps the former to exercise its influence upon the object by annexing to it a preposition expressing the direction of the action towards the object.' It is added, 'This use of li to designate the objective complement is common in Ch. and Syriac, rare in Heb. and Eth.' 1 No words could better describe the function of this transitive preposition, whether, as originally, not suffixed, or suffixed as in Tables IV and VI. The other is the Semitic particle ki, or ka, which was used, like li, in Southern Arabic, or Himyaritic, 'as the sign of the accusative, and even of the dative . . . or more exactly, perhaps, of the accusative alone.2

See M.L., pp. 137-40, for the following examples:—

-a, Mota matea (mate), death; Maori matiga, death; Ef. matigo, the grave (place of death).

-va, Fagani ma'eva, death.

-he, Saa maurihe (mauri), life; Java urip, Tanna murif.

¹ Wright's Arabic Grammar, II, §§ 1, 21, 29.

² Halévy, Études Sabéennes.

-ra, Mota togora (toga, Ef. toko), behaviour (way of abiding). Ef. tokora, a place (place of abiding).

The following word shows many of the changes this ending undergoes:—

مُعْنَّة, a net (fishing), Ef. dialects kubena, kubeja, Sam. 'upeja, Tah. upea, Maori kupeja, Marquesan upeka, Haw. upena, Tongan kubeja, a net (fishing): see Index مُعْنَّة.

PLURAL ENDINGS.

Ancient Semitic masculine in -m: see below on the personal pronouns.

Ancient Semitic feminine in -t: see Ef. taot, and Index under y.

DUAL ENDING.

See rua, two; Mod. Syriac tera, &c., and the verbal pronoun forms of the personal pronouns, infra, for the ancient Semitic dual ending -a in Oceanic.

REDUPLICATED FORMS.

1. Falfal (Pilpel).

Ef. kalăkala, قَرْقَرَ, to laugh.

Ef. kofŭkofu-a (kofu), A. kaběkaba, Sam. 'ofu'ofu.

Ef. kalăkala, A. ķalĭķala, H. ķelķel, Mg. heliheli, and kedikedi, very small, and of rapid motion, moving about, Ef. ma-kalăkala.

Ef. kelakela (kel) and kelekelet (Mg. hudinkudina), A. karékara, and 👸 💢 .

Ef. kaf ikafe (kaf), A. kaf ekafa, Maori kapukapu.

Ef. silasila (sila), A. salasala, Sam. fai-tilitili (Ef. fai, thunder).

In Ef. it is the radical part of the word which is reduplicated, not the formative prefixes or suffixes, thus, baro, tabaro, tabaro-baro (see Tafalfal form infra), and so bulu, bulubulut, bulut; so kelekelet, A. karekarat, &c. An exception to this rule is Ef. mitiri, mitimitiri, the mi having come to be regarded as radical.

The Falfal form is frequent in Ef. and other Oceanic dialects.

2. Fafal (Assyrian 'Papel').

Ef. kakasi (kasi).

Ef. kakat (kati), My. gigit, Mg. kaikiţa.

Ef. tuturu (turu, turuturu, A. s'alla, s'alĕs'ala); Fi. tuturu; Sam. tutulu, to drip.

My. duduk, Java totok, Ef. toko, and to, to sit, tokora, Mg. toeta. This form is also frequent.

3. Pe'al'al (Hebrew and Aramaic).

Sam. savalivali, to keep on walking (savali, to walk, Ef. siuer, suuara). Ef. uses, instead of this, form 2 in this word, sisiuer.

4. Sam. savavali, another form of savali, to walk: compare perhaps תֵּצוֹצֵר, the one word of this form in Hebrew, and the original form of the Arabic twelfth conjugation, for which see C.G.S.L., pp. 220-1.

The Falfal and Fafal forms may be said to have partly taken in the later Oceanic dialects, as Ef., the place of the ancient Intensive forms, in Arabic the second conjugation, in Hebrew Piel, but it is easy to show that such forms as these latter (the Intensive forms) belonged to the Oceanic mother-tongue. Thus:

(Arabic 2 and 5.)

Ef. rėàkě, to strain, and رُوَاقٌ , رَوَاقٌ : see above, and Index. And the fifth conjugation or form of the Arabic, which is the reflexive of the second, is seen in

Ef. paro, tabaro, to be heedless, refractory, ذرع, بُفَرِّعُ borai, to split, tabare (tabarre), to be split, تَفَرّ , فَرَى .

tatalai, to warm oneself, مَلَى, رَصَلَى, رَصَلَى.

tōli (liu), to go before (put behind), دَوَلِّ ,وَلَى .

talumi, to swallow, آلَهُمْ , أَلَهُمْ .

See also tafakka, tafagka, tageli (dialect takel), takusi, &c.

Such Tafalfal forms as taḥaroḥaro, takelkel, tabarebare are also ancient, as

Ef. rere, or rerea, tarere, אָנְעָע), to break (as breakers rushing on the shore).

(Arabic 1 and 8.)

So the reflexive of the simple or unaugmented verb, Arabic first conjugation, Hebrew Kal, is seen in Ef. kari, to hasten, takari, كُرّ, (originally) وَقَارَ 8¹: and that this form thoroughly belonged to the Oceanic mother-tongue, see above (Ch. III. d), the secondary verbs tuli, ma-taku, and toko, for which see also Index under letter n.

(Arabic 3 and 6.)

The form in the Arabic third conjugation, H. Poël, being simply a lengthening of the first vowel was apt to become unrecognizable in the analytic Oceanic dialects, but appears in Ef. sīuer (sīwer, sūwara), to make a journey, to walk; Sam. sāvali (سَفَرَ, Sam. savali), سَفَرَ, 3, n.a., سِفَارٌ, Sam. sāvali, Ef. sīuèr. We have perhaps the reflexive of this, as in Arabic 6, in Ef. naboa, or nabo (for taboa), dialect tamo, from boa, to be odorous, diffuse odour, or fragrance, فَاعَ (and فَاحَ), 6, n.a.,

¹ C.G.S.L., pp. 207-9.

CHAPTER V

PRONOUNS AND PARTICLES

See Dillmann, Grammatik der Aethiopischen Sprache, §§ 62-5, and 146, fol.; and C.G.S.L., Ch. VI.

1. THE DEMONSTRATIVES: this, that, here, there.

In the Semitic languages, as Dillman has pointed out, these are ta, by letter change da, da, za, sa, ha, a; na or an;

la, or al;
ka, ko, by letter change fo, po;
i.

In Oceanic these occur thus:—

Ef. se; Ethiopic ze; Tigre iz-; Merlav se, Samoan sia, sena, senci.

Ef. setu, and sentu; My. situ; Mg. izatu; Ethiopic zentu, zati.

My. and Mg. itu; Aramaic ide, idek.

Ef. na, ne, in; Sam. nei, na; My. and Mg. ini; Assyrian annu, anna, anni; Heb. hen, hineh.

Ef. sin, sana; Sam. senei, sena; My. sini; Mg. izani; Aramaic den and zen; Eth. zentu.

Ef. eru, eri, ri, ra (see Index under letter 5); Vanua Lava le, lo; Sam. la; Maori ra; Mg. iri; Aramaic harka, halka; Assy. ullu, ulli, ulla.

The Article, originally the demonstrative l, is in Arabic al, l-, a; Heb. ha; in Ef. in, ne, na, and sometimes a (very rarely l-, t-); Mg. ni; Sam. le; East Mai re; Maori te; Tong. he; Fi. na, a. In Ef. the article is written prefixed to nouns, and is used prefixed to other demonstratives thus:—

The Semitic plural demonstrative, 'these, those,' is formed from the demonstrative l, and is in Ethiopic elu, ela; Heb. eleh; Arb. ilā, ulai; Amharic ĕla, &c.; Mg. re, in ireu, ireni, iretu, &c., plurals of iu, ini, itu; so Florida raeni, these, plural of eni, this, exactly as Amharic elazia, those; elayah, these; plurals of zia, yeh, that, this; and so also Arabic dol, dola, plural of de, this; Vanua Lava ter, tar, plural of te, ta, this. In Amharic it is used also combined as a pluralizing word with the personal pronoun, as ant, thou; elant, ye: this is frequent in Oceanic, to mark that the personal pronoun (originally plural but now used also for singular) is used in the plural sense only, as Mg. izi, they, also he, but izareu, they; so Ef. nara, inira; Santo inira, they; nai, inĭa, being now used for singular 'he'. In Amharic ĕlā is used also to form the plurals of Interrogative pronouns (see for this in Oceanic below, on the Interrogatives), and also as an article before proper nouns forming a kind of honorific plural, or plural majestatis: 1 thus also Mg. ra, the honorific and personal 2 article.

Ef. ke; Mota ike; Maori ko; My. ika, iki, iku; Assy. aga; Aramaic (ha) ik, hak; Arb. hak (hadak); Amh. yĭh (for yik); Heb. ko; Aramaic ka.

This Semitic k is used before other demonstratives as an article, thus, before the above s, Assy. agasu; Ef. kis; Banks Islands (Gaua) kose; Volow iges; Bugis kotu. Thus also it is used prefixed to the above n, Ef. kin; Java kone, kono; Maori konei, kona; Assyrian agannu. This k is also suffixed to other demonstratives, Aramaic dek; Arb. daka; Santa Cruz deka; Sunda diyak; Santo ituga; and to this again the n is added, Aramaic diken; Vanua Lava tigen.

¹ Prätorius, Die Amharische Sprache.

² Richardson's Mg. Dict., p. xlix.

The f, or p, for this k (see above), fo, or po, for ko, ka, is used exactly as the k in Ef., thus kin, ke, dialects (ban, bon), uana, uane, uin, ua, uo (i.e. wa, wo), uone; so kis, dialects uis, uase, uose; Celebes (Holontalo) bo, wo, botia, wotia.

The demonstrative i is seen prefixed in some of the above examples, as in My. itu, Aramaic ide. In Ef. i alone in one dialect denotes 'this'.

The Semitic ha, or a, is prefixed to other demonstratives as may be seen in the above: when suffixed it points to a distance, thus Amharic yih, this (for zik), zia (ziha), that; Harari yi, this, ya, that; Ef. uane; Tongan ne, this; Ef. uana; Tongan na, that; Aramaic ai, this; aia, that.

1 a. Demonstratives prefixed to the Personal Pronouns.

The demonstrative syllable an (in, en) was so prefixed in all the Semitic languages: in Mahri it has been dropped now from all 1 except the 1st plural. But it is still found generally all over Oceania, 2 Ef. k-ĭnau, aġo or naġo, niġa, I, thou, he (see Index).

Another is k-, Ef. dialect ki (verbal pronoun, 3rd person, used interchangeably with i), Pentecost kea (pl. kera), Gurague (a modern Eth. dialect) kua, kia, Fi. and Po. ko, as in koia, kbya, pronoun, 3rd person. This is seen in Himyaritic k-, Eth. kia-, prefixed to the personal pronouns, usually in the emphatic sense and in the accusative, as kiaka, thyself, as for thee, thee thyself. As may be seen in C.G.S.L., in the later Semitic dialects this was used also in the nominative, and became in Arb. iya, Tigre i. This i is common in the Melanesian dialects and in Mg., as e.g. in Tigre ika, Tanna ik, thou.

Another is ha, a, Melanesian and Polynesian a, Gaudalcanar aia, i.e. a-ia; so e.g. in Aramaic ai, aia, for ha-hi, ha-hia.

 $^{^{1}}$ Z.D.M.G., XXV.

² For a long list of the personal pronouns, v. M.L., p. 112 fol., and Ray's list of New Hebrides words, and see S.S.S., I and II.

The Personal Article i: Melanesian (not in Ef.) ia, i, Mg. i, is connected with the third personal pronoun; compare C.G.S.L., p. 182. For Mg. ra, see above.

2. THE PERSONAL PRONOUNS.

For these see Index under the letters & and \(\pi\), and the above chapter on Phonology, places specified infra. Here we may observe—

- (1) That the loss in the Oceanic dialects of the distinction of gender in the 2nd and 3rd persons has taken place in the same way in Mod. Syriac¹ in the 2nd and 3rd persons plural, and in Mahri² in the 2nd singular.
- (2) As to the use of the 2nd plural for the singular in some dialects, as in My. and Mg. (not in Ef. and many others), we see an approach to the same thing in the use of Amharic antu (you) for the singular, as in English 'you' is commonly used for 'thou'. As to the 3rd personal pronoun, the ancient plural of which is now used in the Oceanic dialects also for the singular, e. g. in My. and Mg., or for the singular mainly, e. g. in Ef., &c., the 3rd plural is used by way of politeness in speaking of a distinguished individual in Amharic and Efatese; and in Mod. Syriac 3 the 3rd plural is often used also for the singular.
- (3) This made it necessary to distinguish the word when used in the plural sense alone, and this was done by using it in a different or less contracted form, or more commonly by attaching to it the ancient plural demonstrative (for which see above, and Index under the letter x, , &c.), or in some dialects tou, or tolu, three, thus Ef. and Santo inia, inira, Mg. izi, izareu, Tanna in, iraha (for inara), dialects (Tanna) ilar, ilat, ilia, iria, Futuna (Polynesian) ak-irea, all for inara, or inala, Sam. latou (for na-tou), Ef. (verbal pronoun) iru, ru, for inu, nu

¹ Stoddart's Mod. Syrian Grammar, p. 22.

² Z.D.M.G., XXV, p. 200.

³ Stoddart, p. 39.

(dialect $i\bar{u}$), 3rd person plural; and au for anu, or amu, for na-nu, or na-mu, dialects mu, pu, u, 1st person pl. 'exclusive'.

- (4) As to the so-called 'exclusive' and 'inclusive', Ef. ināmi, or nijāmi (nināmi), 'we and they,' and ninita, nijita, ijita, 'we and thou,' it is to be observed (a) that according to the native way of speaking the conjunction 'and' is left out in such expressions, thus in Ef. 'thou and John' is 'kumu John', literally 'ye John' (not 'thou John'); and 'he and John' is 'nara John', literally 'they John' (not 'he John'); and so 'I and thou' is 'we thou', nini-ta, iji-ta, and 'I and they' is 'we they', nija-mi, ina-mi, or niji-mi, ini-mi, probably for nina-umi, ina-imi, or nin-umi (the i or u as in Scotch gude); and (b) the order of the words in such expressions is different from that in English, in which we say 'you and I,' 'they and we,' and the same as in Arabic, in which the 1st personal pronoun is put first.'
- (5) The Oceanic mother-tongue formed the plurals of the personal pronouns like the other Semitic languages, and in the 2nd and 3rd, by the ending m (as in nouns), with the same interchange, and occasional elision, of m and n; and the Dual of the 2nd and 3rd as in Arabic by the ending \bar{a} (see the Ef. verbal pronouns and Index).
- (6) These pronouns played the same large grammatical part in the Oceanic as in the other Semitic languages, as separate, prefixed (nom.), and suffixed (to nouns and prepositions, genitive; to verbs, accusative; and to verbs, nominative).

In the Semitic languages the suffixed pronouns were all originally of one form and without the demonstrative prefixed syllable an, except 1st person plural and the verbal suffix 1st sing., which retained the n-, and except that the k of the 1st person interchanged with t, and the t of the 2nd person with k, from the very first. Thus we have the verbal suffix (acc.) in—

¹ Caussin de Percival, Grammaire Arabe Vulgaire, § 223.

			Nominal S
	Етн.	Ef.	ETH.	Ef.
Sing.
1.	ni (for naku)	nau, au (for naku)	i (for ku)	ġu, dialect k, Santo u
2.	ka	k, ko	ka	ma¹ (for ka through ġa)
3.		(pl. for sing., n , na)		(pl. for sing.)
$m{P}l.$
1.	na	$na \text{ (in } na\text{-mi,} \\ ni\text{-ta)}$	na	na (as before)
2.	kemu	mu for kumu (d. kama)	kemu	mu (as before)
3.	homu, omu Arm.hun,hon H. am, amo	n, na, ana	homu Arm. hon	n, na, ana

The verbal suffix in Ef. (and most other Melanesian languages) though written separate is really, and as pronounced, a suffix, and should have been written, as the nominal suffix is, suffixed. By prefixing the an to these we have the separate pronoun, Heb. ani, Assy. anaku, Ef. anu, k-inau, &c., 'I,' and so with the others (see above Ch. II on Phonology, and Index). The nominal suffix with slight phonetic variations here and there is found throughout the Oceanic dialects, and in the mother-tongue was undoubtedly as truly and unmistakably Semitic as in Arabic or Ethiopic. Now, the nominative suffix with the verb in Mg., (a substitute for the ancient perfect), is not used with the verb in most of the Oceanic dialects (and neither the verbal pronoun nor the verbal suffix, on the other hand, is now used in Mg. as it is in Ef.), and is identical with the above, thus:—

Sing.	MALAGASY.	ETHIOPIC.
1.	ku	$\mathbf{k}\mathbf{u}$
2.	nau (for kau, for kamu), pl. for sing.	ka
3.	(pl. for sing.) ni

¹ Aurora ga, Tanna k and m, Ero. ka and ma.

Pl.	MALAGASY.	ETHIOPIC.
1.	na (in na-i)	na
2.	na-reu (for ka-reu, v. sing.)	kemu
3.	ni (as nominal suffix)

The verbal pronoun (nom.) in Ef. (and many other Melanesian dialects) is never used except immediately before the verb, and any word with which it is used is a verb. Thus we have a substitute for the ancient imperfect which prefixed short forms of the pronoun to the verb.

	Ef.	ARB.	E _F .	ARB.	Er.	$\mathbf{A}_{\mathtt{RB}}$.
Sing.			Pl.		Dual.
1.	a	a	a -u (a for na ¹)	na
2.	ku (d. ko)	ta	ku, tu	tum, tu	tā	tumā
3.	i	i	iru,ru(for inu, nu)		irā,rā(for inā, imā)	humā

In the singular these Ef. short pronouns strikingly resemble the ancient in every way, but no such resemblance was possible in the plural and dual, which were not so prefixed in the ancient languages except in the 1st plural. The 2nd and 3rd had the same prefixed forms as the singular, and denoted the plural by suffixed particles. The Ef. plural and dual of the 2nd and 3rd persons are simply the short forms of the ancient short pronouns 2nd and 3rd plural and dual as used in the perfect. Here we give an Ef. verb with these verbal pronouns.

bano, 'to go.'

Singular.

- 1. a bano, I go.
- 2. ku bano, thou goest.
- 3. i bano, he goes.

¹ au for na-mu, see supra.

Plural.

- 1. Exc. a-u (dialects u, bu, mu) bano, we, they go.
- 1. Inc. tu 1 bano, (we) you go.
- 2. ku bano, you go.
- 3. {dialect, iu bano they go.

Dual.

- 1. Exc. a-rā² bano, we they-two go.
- 1. Inc. tā 3 bano, (we) you-two go.
- 2. ko rā bano, you they-two go.
- 3. rā bano, they-two go.

There are only two duals in these, $r\bar{a}$ in the 1st and 2nd being the $r\bar{a}$ of the 3rd, for $n\bar{a}$ (orig. $m\bar{a}$), they two, Arb. $hum\bar{a}$, and $t\bar{a}$, ye two, Arb. $tum\bar{a}$.

For the New Hebrides dialects, see S.S.S., Vols. I and II. For other Melanesian dialects, M.L. For the Mg., Richardson's Mg. Dictionary, p. xliv fol., and Griffith's Mg. Grammar. For Aneityumese, Dr. Inglis's An. Grammar and Dictionary.

For the letter changes in the Personal Pronouns, see above, Ch. II, §§ 9, 10, 13 b, 14 a, b, c, e, 15.

1st person.

II, § 10, separate, sing. and pl.

 \S 13 b, 'Inclusive,' and \S 14 b, and \S 12. The final syllable is the pronoun of the 2nd person.

§ 14 b, e, 'Exclusive,' suffix § 15 m. The final syllable is the pronoun of the 3rd person.

'Exclusive,' verbal pron., § 14 b.

2nd person.

II, § 9, and § 14 c (suffix); separate, sing. and pl., § 14 a; plural, § 10, and § 15 (m), separate and suffix.

And final syllable of 'Inclusive'.

- ¹ tu is for na-tu, in Aneityumese inta. See Inglis's An. Grammar and Dictionary.
 - ² The a in ara, as the a in au, is for na, we.
 - 3 tā for na-ta, as tu for na-tu, note 1.

3rd person.

II, § 13 b (suffix), and separate, § 15 (n) and (m), separate and suffix, and verbal pron.

Verbal pronoun, pl. and dual, § 15, R.

And final syllable of 'Exclusive'.

3. THE RELATIVE PRONOUNS.

These are in origin demonstratives, C.G.S.L., p. 116 fol.

Aramaic di, dĕ, Eth. ɛa, Assy. sa, Tahiti te, Ef. te, tea, Tanna si, Santo se, Mg. izai. Ef. te is used as in Aramaic as a conjunction, 'that,' 'because,' and also very often in the sense of 'that which,' 'what,' 'he who,' 'they who,' as te ku tilia i uia, 'what you say is good,' literally, 'that you say it, is good,' 'that which you say is good.' The demonstratives uane, naġ, or naġa are commonly used as relatives in Ef.

As in Arb. and Heb. the article is sometimes used as a relative. In Samoan the relative is $l\bar{e}$, with which we may compare the Modern Arabic $ell\bar{\imath}$. Maltese $l\bar{\imath}$.

4. THE INTERROGATIVE PRONOUNS.

See C.G.S.L., p. 120 fol.

- a. أي ayy, Eth. ay, Heb. \bar{e} , Aramaic \bar{e} , $h\bar{e}$, also \bar{a} , who, which, what, where ?
- b. 'Another interrogative pronoun in the Semitic languages is that which is characterized by the letter m. Its oldest forms appear to me to be man for the masculine, and mant for the fem.; but in practice man is used as the interrogative for persons of both sexes, "who?" whilst mant is employed in speaking of things, "what?"' Himyaritic usually changes the m into b (or v), and Mahri mon is used of all genders and numbers. The n is dropped in the Heb. mi, who? and the nt in the Arb., Heb., and Arm. ma, what?
- c. These two, (1) and (2), are combined in Arabic thus, أَدْعَا, Modern ama, what? which?
 - aa. The initial letter of (1), see Phonology, in Ef. has either lost its consonant power as in \bar{e} , or changed it as in $h\bar{e}$, $s\bar{e}i$, $f\bar{e}i$, who? Polynesian vai, wai, hai, ai, Melanesian hai, hei, t'ei, tei, sei, si, re, Mg. i-za, who?

¹ C.G.S.L., loc. cit.

bb. My. mana, who, what, which, where? Lifu mene, what? Epi va-i, what? Eromangan me, Tanna dialect ba, who? Torres Islands (Lo) va, what? And with the demonstrative suffixed, as in Arb. made, what? we have Ef. dialects uase, fite, feha, Carolines (Strong's Island) meta, what? Ef. uai, bai, uan, ue, mbe, Polynesian fea, &c., where?

cc. That is (1) and (2), Ef. safa, sefa, hefa, contracted sā, Ysabel, &c., hava, Fi. t'ava, &c., what? which? My. apa, Mg. zuvi and uvi (who? which?), Polynesian aha, aa, ā, what?

d. These pronouns are also as in Arabic, &c., used indefinitely, thus (1) Ef. sei, who? also some, any, some one, any one (see Dict. under the word seġa-, i.e. se ġa-); (2) Po. mena, mea, anything, something, &c.; and (3) Ef. sefa, what? also something, somehow or other, &c.; My. apa, Mg. zavaṭa; Ef. matun or fatun; Mod. Syriac mudi, for maden, C.G.S.L., p. 125.

In Ef. the ma, or ba, of (b) and (bb) is suffixed in an indefinite sense to the negative adverb, as it is in Assyrian, thus, ta, or ti, not, also tama, or tiba, as i ta bano, or i tama bano, or i tama bano, he did not go. It is also used, exactly as in Arabic, after nouns and personal pronouns.

This m, or ma, plays a very large part in the Oceanic dialects, as in all the Semitic languages, prefixed to participles and verbal nouns, and in Ef. may sometimes be used or not as the speaker pleases, thus we can say i toko, or i matoko, batoko, or fatoko, he sat, or abode. But usually it has become inseparably prefixed as in the verb-form prefixes ba-, baka-. In Mg., however, where it is prefixed in the present or indefinite tense, it is dropped in the past and future tenses: see below on the Tense particles.

5. THE INTERROGATIVE ADVERES.

Generally, in Ef. the above pronouns may be used in the sense of 'where?' 'what (place)?'

With the same particle of comparison suffixed to it and the demonstrative t, Arm. d, prefixed, we have in Ef. a word, taka, Arm. daka (see Index), and the same with the demonstrative n suffixed, Ef. takana, Aramaic dakana, how? and used indefinitely, 'so,' 'thus.'

With the final conjunction \mathcal{S} , (i) prefixed to the pronoun in (b) we have \mathcal{S} , Ef. kua (kuwa), or gua, Epi kava-i, that what? for what purpose? why? Wright's Arabic Grammar, I. 351. So with cc in Ef., kasafa and kasā, having exactly the same meaning in one dialect as kua in another.

6. PARTICLE OF COMPARISON.

This, as we have seen in dealing with the interrogative adverbs signifying 'how many?' and 'how?' is in Arabic ka, Hebrew kĕ, as. In Ef. it is ka or kĕ, as. Prefixed to the demonstrative da, de, di, it is in Arb. kada or kade (Arm. kedi), Java kadi, Ef. kĭte or kĭta, as; literally, 'as this.'

7. Particle of Negation (Negative Adverb).

Arabic la, Hebrew le, la, lo, Samoan $l\bar{e}$, Maori $t\bar{e}$, Paama re, Efate ti, ta, di, si, Malay ta, Malagasy si, not.

The same prefixed to a verb substantive, Aramaic ata, ita, is: Aramaic lata, Mandaitic laita, lata, Malay tada, tiada, Malagasy siadri, is not, no; and the same with the verb substantive ka, Arabic kana with the n dropped, Malay tadak 1, or with the verb substantive ka, is, alone; Mandaitic (and Talmudic) laka, lika, Samoan le'ai (lekai), Ef. tika, nika, sika, sia, Malagasy sia, Malay tak, is not, no; and with the l of the negative elided

¹ On this compound and these Semitic words, see Nöldeke, Mandäische Grammatik.

Ethiopic ako (so Nöldeke), Tongan ikai, is not, no. As already said, the Ef. tama, tab, or tiba, not, is the negative adverb with the m of the interrogative pronoun used indefinitely suffixed to it as it is in Assyrian: it is never used in Ef. except immediately before the verb.

8. Particles of Mood.

- (1) \mathcal{J} , (\mathfrak{P}), that, in order that, to, ut: in Ef. this is ka, or k-, or ja, Malagasy ka and hu, or k-, Malekula j'a, ga, Florida j'a, k-, Raratongan ka, Tongan ke.
- (2) i, fa, that, so that, in order that, &c.; Ef. ba and b-, Motu (N.G.) ba, Fiji, Maori, and Ysabel (Gao) me, Malagasy fa, Futuna pe, Tanna pa, Aneityum pu or mu, Malekula (S.S.S., p. 42 fol.) ba, b-.
- (3) '7, 7, H, di, dĕ, za, that, so that, in order that, quod, ut, Merlav, Mota si, Lakona sa, Mosin ta, Vaturaġa ti, Lo te. For Ef. te, see above on the Relative Pronoun, to which it is here to be added that in the sense of a final conjunction, 'that,' it is used with (1). Thus, taġa or tak fano, that I go, I may go, let me go, I will go, &c. In this Ef. tak there are three particles, the t of (3); a, I, the verbal pronoun; and k of (1); and it is to be observed, once for all, that these particles of mood (1), (2), and (3), by which what we call the Imperative, Concessive, Subjunctive, Conditional, and Infinitive are expressed, are also used as particles of the future tense: see below on the Particles of Tense.

In Ef. the ancient order, particle—verbal pronoun—verb, is yet used thus, ka fano, k-(1)—verbal pronoun (a)—verb, 'that I go,' 'to go,' 'I will go,' &c.; so 3rd person singular, ke fano, k-, e (so Florida ke=k-, e), fano, that he go, &c., and 2nd sing. ba fano, go (imperative), b-(2), a verbal pronoun 2nd sing. (for ka), and verb, literally, 'that thou go.' Generally in Ef. (1) is used, but in one dialect (2) is used instead of (1) throughout in the same sense. And another order, viz. verbal pronoun—particle—verb, has become the usual order in most dialects, thus instead of ka fano, ke fano we have aja fano, ija fano, in exactly the same sense, but, literally, 'I to go,' 'he to go.' This variation in Ef. of the order of the three elements of the expression in no way varies the sense, and seems to be purely for euphony, and it is for the same reason that in Ef. and many other Melanesian dialects the verbal pronoun of the 2nd person singular has dropped its consonant and retained only its vowel.

In Malekula (S.S.S., p. 42 fol.) the particle in (2) is used thus (imperative, infinitive, and future):—

	ML.	Ef.	FLORIDA.	$\mathbf{E}_{\mathbf{F}_{\bullet}}$
Sing.	$To \ sit.$		To speak.
1.	ba tok	ka tok	ku bosa	ka bisa
2.	bo tok	ba tok	ko bosa	ba fisa
3.	bi tok	ke tok	ke bosa	ke bisa
Sing.	Ef. (dialect)
1.	aġa tok			aġa bisa
2.	kuġa tok			kuģa bisa
3.	iġa tok			iġa bisa

The particles (1) and (2) are also used thus in Ef.—(1) i kani kai buka; Mg. nihinana izi ka vuki, he ate (so) that (or, and then, or thereupon) he was satiated. Here Ef. kai is ka (as in Mg.) with the verbal pronoun i.

- So (2) Ef. i kani bo buka, exactly the same meaning, and bo (o the ancient 3rd pers. pron.) is used exactly as the Arabic fa, see Wright's Arabic Grammar, II, § 140. Also in such expressions this particle may be left out, exactly as in the later Arabic usage, thus i kani buka. 'He spoke saying', or 'he spoke and said', is in Ef. either i bisa bo tuli or i bisa tuli. The latter mode of expression is exceedingly frequent in Ef., one verb following another, and this is the explanation of it. Here we may note the peculiar Semitic idiom to express 'again' before the verb.
- 9. 'Again.' This is expressed in Hebrew by المات (Arm. المات (Arm.), 'to turn,' 'return,' and in Syriac by غرص, 'to turn.' The former of these verbs is used in exactly the same way in Ef.

(see Index), and the latter in Polynesian, Aniwa foke (Sam. fo'i; Maori hoki; Tongan foki, to turn). Thus Ef. roa (rowa, for rova), to turn, i ro bano, he again went, literally, he 'turned went', or 'he returned went'; and with the prefixed me, i mero bano, which again is often, the r elided, i mo bano. In one dialect it is i mer lēr bano, he again went, literally, 'he turned returned went' (lēr, dialect for liliu, q.v.). In Aniwa foke, as in Syriac, is thus used, see Index for you, and Uhleman's Syriac Grammar, § 82. In Hebrew and Syriac the conjunction is sometimes left out, as always in Ef., in this characteristic expression.

10. Particles of Tense.

The Present Tense.

(a) The present or indefinite tense particle is in Ef. mo (which in different dialects becomes bo, fo, uo, and even o), Mg. m-; Malekula m-; Lifu me; Santo, Oba mo; Pentecost ma, me, &c. In Ef. this particle is, according to its origin, for which see the Interrogative pronouns used indefinitely, Semitic ma (compare Hebrew, also mo), rather, as in all the Semitic languages, a participle or verbal noun prefix than a tense particle. That this is what it is even in Mg., where it has most the appearance of being a tense particle, is certain: see Richardson's Mg. Dict., p. xxxv, and what has been shown above on the Formative Prefixes. In Mg. it is dropped in the past and future tenses, but in Ef. it is not dropped in the future tense, and the indefinite tense is used for both present and past, with, or without (as is the rule) tense particle. On this Semitic m, as a similar kind of tense or participial particle, see Isenberg's Amharic Grammar, p. 73.

The Future Tense.

(b) The particle for this in Mg. is the above (1) in §8: see Particles of Mood. This is hu, or h-, alone, in Mg., and the same in Ef. k-, or ja, but prefixed to (a), thus ka fo bano, I will or shall go; ke fo bano, he will or shall go; and in Ef. with

(2) in § 8, b-, or ba, as ba fo bano, thou shalt go; iba mo bano, he will or shall go; in another dialect, iġa uo bano, he will or shall go; aġa uo bano, I will or shall go. For Florida with k-, alone, and Malekula, with (2) b- alone, Aneityum pu or mu alone, Santo pa alone, see under Particles of Mood. In Polynesian, Raratongan, we have ka (imperative and) future: see Buzacott's Raratongan Grammar (1851), pp. 26-8.

Particle of Mood (3) is also, as well as (1) and (2), used as a particle of the future tense, but not in Ef., thus Tanna te, or t-; Banks Islands ta, t-; Sam., and Tongan te.

The Past Tense.

(c) The particle of the past tense is in Mg. nu, n-; Tanna n; Samoan and Tongan na. This is, so far as we can judge, the demonstrative n (see above); compare the use of this demonstrative with the participle for the finite verb, present, past, or future, in the ancient languages: Gesenius, Heb. Dict., s.v. Tanna. In Fiji na is the particle of the present, or future; Aurora n, ni, future; Pentecost n, nu, past and present, &c.

Ef. dialect ka (past); Fi. ka (past, sometimes present), is probably the ka in Ef. tika (v. Particle of negation), i.e. the verb substantive in Arabic kana, and is used like ka in Mandaitic which according to Nöldeke, is for אָרָא, whence אָרָא, אָרָא, יִרָּא, פּאַרא, er kommt; Ef. i ka mai, he came. In Modern Syriac ka, or ga.

11. Prepositions.

- (1) J, A, P, li, la, le, Tigre nĕ, nĭ, Gurague ya, Tanna la, ya, Holontalo (Celebes) li, Bugis ri, My. di, i, Mg. ani, Aneityum an, Tagala, Battak ni, Ef., Fi., &c., ni, i, Polynesian i; Ef., with suffix pronoun, na, a, Polynesian a, Mg. a, Fi. ne, no; to, of, for; sign of genitive, dative, accusative.
- (2) Himyaritic ka^1 , Amharic ka, My. ka, Fi. ka, Ef. ki, gi, Maori ki, Sam. i, o, Mare ko, o, Mg. hu; Ef., with suffix pronoun, ka, ga, ki, Fi. ke, Po. o, to, of, for, by, with, from; sign of accusative, genitive, dative, ablative.

¹ Halévy, Études Sabéennes, p. 92 fol.

- (3) , 0, 5, bi, ba, be, Amharic ba, ha, Tigre abe, a, Mg. ami, Aurora mi, Motlav, Volow b., Merlav be, Aneityum va, va-i, Fi. ve-i, Ef. be-i, ma, mi, My. pa-da, Hawaiian ma, Eromangan bu, pi (S.S.S., I, p. 79); Tanna with suffix pronoun va, fa, fu, pa, and consonant elided, Ef. a, or e, or i, Epi a, and Ef. after verbs in the sense of 'by' or 'with' (instrumental), 'from,' 'because of,' &c., the suffix pronoun of the 3rd person after it being always sa, s (for na, n); Po, e, sign of ablative, 'by,' &c.; on, in, at, by, with (instrumental), by (in swearing, Haw. ma), &c.; sign of dative, genitive, ablative.
- (4) (D), ma, Ef. ma, me, Melanesian and Polynesian generally ma, me, Mg. ama-na, with, together with; with suffix pronoun in Arabic and many Melanesian dialects, sign of genitive. As to the difference between (1), (3), and (4) in Arabic with the (genitive) suffix pronoun, see C. de Percival, Gr. Arab. Vulg., §§ 279-83. What is to or for (1) a person, and so (2); what is in or on (3) a person; and what is with or beside (4) a person; is, 'his,' or for him.
- (5) المجار , ila, ele, Aneityum, Tanna, Eromanga ira, Malekula (Maskelynes) ila, to, towards.
 - (5 a) عُنْدَ, near by, beside, Ef. uta, near by, beside.
- (6) (2+1) Epi kin, dialect kari, Mg. hu ani, for, My. akan, kan, to, for; sign of accusative, Malekula hini, gini, Vaturaga kone; Ef. with suffix pronoun kana, kini, Epi, kana, kona, to, for.
- (7) (2+3) Fi. kive-i, My. kapa-da. The da in My. pada is the demonstrative da, d, and is used suffixed to this preposition without changing its meaning exactly in the same way in Mod. Syriac, bud, but, Stoddart, Gr., p. 143; with suffix pronoun, Tanna kafa, kapa, Ef., Epi kia.
- (8) (3+2) My. baki, bagi, Ef. baki, Epi beki, to; Fagani fagi, with; Merlav mug, mugu, Ef. magi, contracted mā, Mota mo, Pomo, for (dative).
- (9) (3+1) Epi bani, to, Florida, Vaturaga vani, to, for; Ef. mani, mini, contracted mā, Po. mā, for (dative).

Prepositions with the Article as a Relative, or other Relative Pronoun prefixed, as לְּיֵל, שָׁלְּ, Hu, s'el, dil, zaba. Thus with the Article we have:—

- (10) (1) Ef. ani, ana, Erom. ari, Sam. la (for le-a);
- (11) (2) Ef. naģi, niģ, aģi, aģa, Epi neki, Sam. lo (for le-o);
- (12) (1+2) Ef. ana $\dot{g}a$.

The Article has sometimes become inseparably attached to the preposition as perhaps in Mg. ani, ami, and certainly in Ef. dialect naji, nij, the meaning and use being the same as that of the simple preposition.

With the Relative Pronoun we have:-

- (13) (1) Eromangan sore, Epi seni, Sam. sā, לַּיֶל.
- (14) (2) Samoan sō.
- (15) (3) Tanna sava, sei, Epi sia, Ha.
- (16) Sometimes the Relative alone is the sign of the genitive, as Assyrian sa, Ethiopic sa, Aramaic di, $d\check{e}$, Malekula, Epi, Tanna sa (S.S.S., II, pp. 38, 89, 123).

For the uses of the prepositions, which vary somewhat both in each of the ancient and in each of the Oceanic dialects, the Grammars must be consulted: see the Grammars in S.S.S., I and II, and those in M.L., and Gabelentz's Die Melanesischen Sprachen, Vol. I (1863), especially Ch. XII, and Vol. II (1873). Here we shall give examples of their use with the suffixed pronoun, and it will be sufficient to give that of the 3rd person only (for the other persons see above on the suffixed Personal Pronouns).

(1) Ef. ana, Sam. ana, Mg. azi (for ani), Fi. nena, nona, Tanna lan, Ethiopic lomu, lon.

Fi. a nena, Ef. (10) anena, anana.

Sam. lana (for le-ana).

(2) Ef. kana, kakana, Tanna kun, M. Syriac kahun, kai.

Fi. kena, Sam. ona.

Fi. a kena, Ef. (11) aġana.

Sam. lona (for le-ona).

¹ But the a- in Mg. ani, ami, may be a prosthetic. Cf. Tigre $ab\check{e}$, for be, (3).

- (3) Tanna fun, Pentecost bena, Eromangan buhni, pini, Heb. bam, Eth. bomu, bon, Mg. amini, Pentecost abena.
- (4) Epi mano, Fi. mena, Mota man, Ambrym mena, Arb. mahum, mahun.
 - (5) Eromangan iran, Malekula elan, Arb. ilahum, ilahun.
 - (5 a) Ef. utana, Arb. 'undahum, 'undahun.
- (6) Ef. kanana, kinin, Epi konana, kanana, M. Syriac kalahun, kalai.
- (7) Tanna kafun, Ef. and Epi kiana (possessive, with certain nouns), My. kapadaña.
 - (8) Merlav mugun; Mota mon; Po. mona, for (dative).
- (9) Ef. manena, dialect māsa (for mana); Po. māna, for (dative).
 - (10) See (1).
 - (11) See (2).
 - (12) Ef. anaġana, same meaning as (2).
- (13) Samoan sāna, same meaning as שָׁל: Eromangan soruġ, my, sorum, thy, soremi, your.
 - (14) Samoan sona, possessive.
 - (15) Tanna savani; Epi siana; Eth. zabomu, zabon.

Conjunctions.

For the Ef. \dot{go} , and; ko, or; and be, if, see the Dictionary, and for the final conjunctions ba, and \dot{ga} , or ka, see supra, § 8. 1, 2. The preposition me, or ma, with, is used also as a conjunction, and for this and temate, a conjunction used only with numerals, see the Dictionary.

CHAPTER VI

SUMMARY. ARABIA THE MOTHERLAND OF THE OCEANIC LANGUAGES

THE ARTICLE.

SEE II, § 13 b. It is written prefixed in Ef. as in Arb. and Heb.; and is often mistaken by voyagers in Melanesia, collecting from the natives lists of words, for a radical part of the word. It is written separate in Mg. and Polynesian. There is no article in My. as in Syriac.

THE NOUN.

Number. The ancient 'sound plurals' with ending m, or n, have disappeared except in the personal pronouns, and been replaced, as largely in Arabic, by the 'broken plurals': see II, § 16 b. These 'broken plurals', originally singulars with a collective signification, may take the verb either in the singular or the plural, that is, the verb with the verbal pronoun singular or plural in Ef., thus nata i bano, a man goes; nata ru bano, men go. The plural may also be denoted in Ef. by a pluralizing adjective after the noun, as, natamole laba, many men; natamole rafalu, some men, &c. For an example of the ancient plural (feminine) in -t: see Ch. II, the word täot.

The Dual. See II, § 15 (n), and the Personal Pronouns in Ch. V. In Ef. it is seen in the Verbal Pronoun, that is, the short pronoun, expressing person and number, by which the verb is conjugated. It is thus in Ef. retained more fully than in Hebrew, Aramaic, and Ethiopic

Gender. This is expressed by the words for 'male' and 'female' in Ch. II. Traces of the ancient feminine ending -t are still retained in the word for 'female', also in sikai, one, and lai, woman, lady. For this ending -t forming abstract nouns, throughout the Oceanic, see Chs. III and IV, and for its phonetic variations Ch. II.

Case. The ancient terminations in Arabic -u, -a, -i, nominative, accusative, genitive, are now used in Ef., as in Hebrew, &c., without case signification. The expression of the genitive by the 'construct state' is still, however, found throughout the Oceanic, as in all the Semitic dialects, thus Ef. mitana; My. mataña; Mg. masuni, his (or their) eye; Ef. mita nata, eye of a person; My. mata ari, Mg. masu andru, eye of day. The genitive and other oblique cases are also expressed by the prepositions, q.v., in Ch. V.

The letter changes that have occurred in the Oceanic nouns for the following English words, have been explained in Ch. II, viz.:—

sun, 13 b, 16 b. moon, 14 f. star, 12, 14 a, c. stone, 13 b. fire, 14 a. fruit, 15, R. lightning, 14 a, c, d. wind, 14 d. heaven, 14 d. water, 10, 13 c. ear, 14 a, b, 11 c. man, person, 14 b, 17. male (vir), 14 c, 17. woman, female, 14 c, 17. eye, 13 b, 11 c.

Many other words are similarly explained in the same chapter, q.v.

It would be easy to give here a long list of words, nouns, and verbs, which have suffered very little phonetic change as compared with these, and the numeral words, and pronouns, but this is not necessary, and may be done by any one from the materials in the following Dictionary, and Index.

The Nunation. For this see II, 13 h, 14 h. It is seen in My. kubiġ; Mg. sufina, ear, قُوفٌ; in (Ef. täot), My. tulaġ, Mg. täulana, bone, and in the words for 'hundred' and 'thousand,' &c. On this final n in the Semitic languages, see C.G.S.L., Ch. VII. It is frequent in My. and Mg., not so in Ef., and not so in Hebrew, Aramaic, &c.

The Numerals. The letter changes in these are explained in Ch. II (see the places indicated):—

1. 11 b, c, 12, 13 b, 14 b.	7. 14 f, 15.
2. 13 b, 15 (n).	8. 14 b , 15 .
3. 13 b, 14 b.	9. 14 e , 15.
4. 13 b, 14 b, f.	10. 11 a, b, c, 14 e.
5. 15.	100. 13 b , v. Index under letter \mathfrak{p} .
6. 13 b, 14 c, 15.	1000. v. Index under letter 8.

On these we may remark that 1 occurs both in the ancient masculine, Mg. isaka, and feminine form, Ef. sikai; and 4, 6, and 7, manifestly with the ancient feminine and abstract ending -t, throughout the Oceanic.

These twelve Oceanic numerals are the ancient Semitic numerals, but some of them have been lost from certain dialects. Thus, e.g. only the first five are now found in Ef., and in Ambrym the first five, and that for 'ten'. In Santo you find all the twelve in one village, and only the first five in a neighbouring village. In such cases as the latter the natives have found it easier than to remember the second five to substitute for them combinations of the first five thus: 5+1, for 6; 5+2, for 7; 5+3, for 8; 5+4, for 9; 2 of 5, for 10. These combinations in Ef. are la-tesa, 6, larua, 7, latolu, 8, lifiti, 9, rualima, 10, latesa being for lima tesa, &c., and rualima, two of five, for 10. And Ef. having lost or forgotten the ancient words for 100 and 1000, has substituted for them other words, bunti and manu.

THE ADJECTIVE.

For the adjective formative endings, see Ch. IV. In Ef. the adjective follows the noun, and every adjective may be used, with the verbal pronoun, as a verb: thus fatu kasua, a hard stone, fatu i kasua (the) stone is hard. By adding the formative ending -an to an adjective (as to a verb) an abstract noun is formed, thus nakasuān, the being hard or strong, hardness, strength.

THE PROPOUNS.

For these, Personal (Separate, Suffix, and Verbal), Relative, Demonstrative, Interrogative, Indefinite, see Ch. V, and for the letter changes in them Ch. II. (As to the Personal Pronouns the places where they are treated in Ch. II are pointed out in Ch. V.)

The conjugation (person and number) of the Ef. verb by means of the verbal pronoun is a real and natural substitute for the conjugation of the ancient verb. As in the ancient languages the verbal pronoun includes or implies in it the verb substantive.

THE VERB.

This, as in the ancient languages, is a verbal noun (see Ch. III), thus Arabic a-mata, Ef. a mati, I (am or was) dying, or dead, rather than, I die, I died. In Ef. from every verb may be formed a verbal noun by the formative ending -an, which, if the verb is transitive, may be used in both an active and a passive sense, see Ch. IV, and see the same for the verbal noun formative ending -t, with all its phonetic variations as explained in Ch. II. Also the verb forming prefixes (and infixes) are set forth in Ch. IV, and their phonetic variations explained in Ch. II. For the verb forms or 'conjugations', see Ch. IV.

THE ADVERB.

An adjective may be used adverbially with a verb, thus i sefa, he hastens, i sefa kasua, he hastens strongly; and with an adjective thus, uia, good, uia bibilena, greatly good.

For the interrogative adverbs signifying quot? and how? in indefinite sense tot, and so, thus; and for 'as', and the negative adverb, see Ch. V.

For the Conjunctions and Prepositions, see Ch. V.

When we say that Arabia is the motherland of the Island family of languages this does not mean that the primitive Oceanic tongue, of which the multitudinous dialects of Oceania as at present spoken are the analytic or simplified descendants as English is of Anglo-Saxon, or the Romance dialects of Latin was derived from Arabic; but that Arabia is the motherland of the primitive Oceanic, as it is of the Ethiopic, Amharic, and Tigre, and of the Assyrian, Phoenician, Hebrew, and Aramaic. See C.G.S.L., Chs. I and II. If it had more in common with Arabic than with any other Semitic language, that is because Arabic has more than any other preserved the features of the primitive Semitic tongue, the common mother of all of them. The primitive Oceanic must be regarded, not as a descendant of, but as a sister to the Arabic, Himyaritic, Ethiopic, Assyrian, Phoenician, Hebrew, and Aramaic, and the Ef., Samoan, Mg., Malay, &c., as cousins to the Mahri, Amharic, Tigre, Mandaitic, Modern Syriac, and vulgar Arabic dialects, due allowance being made for the fact that these latter have been always more or less under the conserving influence of the surrounding Semitic literature and civilization, from which the Island dialects have been for ages completely cut off, as well as completely isolated from each other. word for 'sun' in Oceanic, Ef. elo, Tong. läa, Tarawan tai, is not the common word for 'sun' in Arabic, &c., but it is the common word in Ethiopic, Amharic, and Tigre, șahai, șai: but this proves, not that it was derived from Ethiopic, but only that it was derived from the same source as the Ethiopic. Ethiopic and Oceanic word for 'moon', also in Mahri, Hebrew, and Aramaic, is not in Arabic. The common word for 'fruit', Ef. ua, in Oceanic, Ethiopic, Hebrew, and Arm., is not in Arabic. On the other hand, such common Oceanic words, as in Ef. toko, sit, dwell, ma-taku, fear, are in Arabic (v. Ch. III), and not in Ethiopic, though traces of them appear in Hebrew.

The word sarafi (Ef.), q.v., and the common Pacific Island word in Ef. saki, q.v., are in Aramaic, not in Ethiopic or Arabic. The word for 'star' is universal in the Semitic and Oceanic dialects, see Ch. II. In a number of dialects springing from the same original inflected tongue it is usual that one may drop one word or inflection, another another. The same is seen in comparing one Island dialect with another. Each dialect has its peculiarities, while nevertheless all have much in common, and this is true whether we compare the Arabic, Ethiopic, &c., with each other; or the Ef., Mg., &c., with each other; or the latter with the former, as shown in Chs. II, III, IV, and V, and as will further appear in what follows.

ABBREVIATIONS LIST OF

a., adjective. ad., adverb. art., article. c., with. c. art., with the article. cg., cgg., cognate, cognates. conj., conjunction. cf., compare. d., dd., dialect, dialects. d. syn. c., dialect synonymous with. dem., demonstrative. den., denominative. der., derivation. i.q., the same as. imp., imperative. inf., infinitive. inter., interrogative. interj., interjection. mid., middle voice. n.a., nomen action is (infinitive). n. ag., nomen agentis (active participle). n. p., nomen patientis (passive participle). nom.suf.,nominal suffix. num., numeral. opp., opposite, opposed. part., participle. pers.pron.,personal pronoun. pl., plural. pref., preformative. prep., preposition. prob., probably. pron., pronoun. ps., passive.

q. v., which see. redup., reduplicate. s., substantive. s.v., under the word (sub voce). sing., singular. syn., synonymous. syn.c.,synonymous with t., transitive. v., vide. v., verb. v.c., verb causative form. v. i., verb intransitive. v. r., verb reflexive, or reciprocal. v. t., verb transitive. verb. suf., verbal suffix. voc., vocative.

A., Arabic. Am., Ambrym. Amh., Amharic. An., Aneityum. Arm., Aramaic. Assy., Assyrian. Bu., Bugis. Ch., Chaldee. E., Ethiopic. E. Mai, East Mai. Ef., Efate. Er., Eromanga. Fi., Fiji. Fut., Futuna. H., Hebrew. Ha., Hawaiian. Ja., Java. Ma., Maori. Mg., Malagasy.

Ml., Malekula. Ml. A., Malekula Aulua. Ml. P., Malekula Pangkumu. Ml. U., Malekula Uripiv. Mod. A., Modern Arabic. Mod. S., Modern Syriac. My., Malay. Pa., Paama. S., Syriac. Sa., Samoan. Soc., Socotra. T., Tigre. Ta., Tanna. TaŚa., Tangoan Santo. Tah., Tahiti. To., Tonga.

Catafago's Dictionary of Mod. A. Freytag, Freytag's Arabic Lexicon. Ges., Gesenius's Dictionary of Hebrew. Nm., Newman's Dictionary of Mod. A. St., Stoddart's Grammar of Mod. S. After an Arabic verb 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, &c., denote its different forms, and (1), (2), (3), &c., its different meanings. After a Hebrew verb

Pi. denotes Piel, Pu. Pual, Hi. Hiphil, Ni.

Niphal.

THE OCEANIC LANGUAGES

THEIR MATERIAL, OR VOCABULARY, SET FORTH IN A COMPLETE

DICTIONARY, COMPARATIVE & ETYMOLOGICAL,

OF ONE OF THEM, THE

LANGUAGE OF EFATE

(NEW HEBRIDES)

A

ABU

A, verbal pron., I: d. ni, q.v. A, v., contraction of ani, q.v., to be, or dwell in.

A, prep., see Ch. V. 11, 1, sometimes e, or i, in, at, to, of. Used prefixed to nouns, as ataku, etaku, or itaku, at the back, behind; and to the suffixed pronoun of the possessive, as agu, my, ana, his, dialect enea, or inea, his, inu, my. [The same is found in Mg. ahi, my, azi, his, and in Sa. ana, his.]

A, art., or dem., prefixed to certain words, as to some nouns, and prepositions, ani, of, aki, or agi, of; and to verbs, nikam, d. agau, that which nips, or grasps. [Fi. a, an article, prefixed also to prepositions, as a nei, a kei, denoting the possessive case as in Efatese. The Fi. a is a form of the article na, and the Efate a, being the same as the Fi., must in that case be a form of the common article na (ni, ne, &c.), q.v. A gi (a gi) of, in Efate in one dialect is nag or nagi (na gi), of, and the above nikum, in another dialect, is agau. The same article is found in Ma. and To. as a. In Fi. and Ef., prefixed to possessive prepositions, it has somewhat of the force of a relative pronoun. H. ha, for hal; A. 1-, al, a, sometimes hal, art., used also sometimes as a relative pronoun prefixed to verbs and prepositions.

A, interj., O! lo! [Ha. a, Tah. a, lo! o!] Arm. ha, this, as an interjection, lo!

H. hē, A. ha, a.

Āb, s., d. voc., father. [Ma. pa, My. pa, pak, Mg. aba.] A. āb, H. āb, Ch. aba, father.

Aba, v. See ofa.

Abab, s., father. [Ma. papa, My. bapa, bapak, Mg. baba.] See āb, bāb. Redupl. of āb. Abu, v., to heal, get well (a sore), d. au, id., d. mau, to get well, recover from sickness. [Sa. mafu, to heal up, Ma. mahu, Mangaian mau, heal, Ha. maha, be convalescent, Mg. miafa, to recover from sickness. A. 'afa, 3, 4, restore to health.

98

Abu, s., ashes, also afu, au. See following word.

Abuabu, v. redupl., to be dusty, to fly in the air (dust), also afuafu, id.; tano afu, tano abu, tano au, ashes; libu, v., to be ashy, ash-coloured, dirty, or covered with ashes, as in mourning for the dead, hence malibu, v., to be a mourner thus, especially for a deceased husband or wife, and hence malibu, s., a widow or widower, thatis, one so mourning: libu, v., is also found (Bau d.) as lifu, lifulifu; mafu, s., a thick vapour like dust; uncleanness (ritual), which makes the sight dim. [Sa. efu, s., efuefu, s., dust, efu, v., to become dust, efu, a., reddish-brown, To. efu, s., dust, ashes, efuia, a., dusty covered with ashes, Sa. lefu, a., s., lefulefu, s., ashes, Ma. nehu, s., dust, nehunehu, a., dusky, whakanehu, v., reduce to powder, Ha. lelehu, To. nenefu, dimness or weakness of sight, My. abu, s., Ja. awu, s., dust, ashes, My. dabu, labu, id., kalabu, v., a., ashy, ashcoloured, also klabu, Ja. kluwu, Mg. vuvuka, s., dust, ashes, mamavuka, v., to dust, sprinkle with dust, mavu, a., brown, manavu, v., despise, blacken, sully, mavuana, a., unadhesive (applied to mortar), Fi. dravu, s., ashes, dravudravua, ashy, of the colour of ashes, hence vakadravudravua-taka, v., to make poor.] A. haba (habu), v., rise, float in the air (dust), become like dust, de carbone igne extincto, die, 4, raise or excite dust, habwat, dust, colour of dust, Ct. habut, dust, dust mixed with ashes, a thick vapour like dust, Nm. hebwa, fine dust, powder, mutahabbi, weak in sight.

Abuera, and abura, s., d. for kabuer, q.v.

Āfa (āva), s., father, an afa his father. See āb, d. voc. afa.

 $\bar{\mathbf{A}}$ fa, v., swim (man or animal), d. ofa:

Āfā i, v. t., carry (him, or it), d. ofe. The first meaning seems not connected with the second, to a European, but a native connects them thus: a man afa natas, swims or floats on the sea, the sea afa natamole bears or carries the man: soaman afa ki nakasu, swims holding a floating stick, but if he gets on to the stick and lets it float him ashore the stick is said to afa i carry him. sea or the stick carries him thus, hence afa, v. t., denotes carry a man on one's back, then to carry anything on the back: and as a man so carried clasps with his arms the carrier round the chest, the head of an axe is said to afa its handle, and as one carrying a basket on his back holds the string of it over his shoulder, so a man drawing a log by a string thus over his shoulder is said to afa it, and a tug steamer is said to afa or tow a ship. A dog afa a piece of meat, carrying it off firmly held by its teeth, and a man afa a pipe or a twig, i.e. carries it held by his teeth. A messenger afa, carries his message, a horse its rider, and a warrior afa, carries, i.e. leads his troop; also a person afa narogitesan, bears a disease or infirmity or trouble (see bāfa);

Afāfa, v. redupl., dd. ofaofa, ofafa. [My. apuġ, s., a float, ampuġ, a., buoyant, kambaġ, v., to float. Sa. opeope, to float, Ha. ope, bundle up to carry away, Epi mava, d. mia, to swim. A. 'āma, swim (man), go (camel), 2, dispose in sheaves or bundles: Nm. float, swim. 'Amat, a bundle, a float, or raft, for carrying things across water. In this A. word there is the idea of connecting together (as things in a bundle, &c.). In afai, carry him, as a floating stick carries a man in the water, or a horse carries him on land, the transitive preposition i=bi (afai = 'āma bi), gives the verb its transitive force, make to swim, to go, i.e. carry.

Afa ki, v. t., and ofa ki, to bury, Maka tāfaki*, pr. n.. name of the person who buried the first men who died in the beginning of the world, according to native story; cf. safaki. [Sa. ufi, v., cover, conceal, ps. ufitia, with instrumental particle ufita'i, ufi, s., a cover, ufi, s., the yam. Efate ui, or uui, (pronounced uwi), the yam, Mg. afina, vu ufina, is concealed, miafina, to conceal oneself, manafina, to conceal, to bury.] "āba, be concealed, 2 to conceal, to bury, 5 be absent. See cgg. s. v. bei, infra. "Ayāb', roots (so called because buried in the ground or covered with earth), Sa. ufi, Ef. uwi, Ja., My. uwi, ubi, Mg, uvi, yams.

Afaru na, s., d. ofari, wing. wings. [Ero. evlok, Tidore filafila, Torres Islands perperi, wing.] H. 'abar, Hi. to soar, mount upwards in flight, 'eber, and 'evrah, wing feather (with which birds soar). Af i, v. t., to be near to, d. of i, A. wahafa, to approach, draw near to.

Afin i, v. t.. afan i, afen i, also dd.,

Afis i, and afit i, to put or carry under the arm or arms, held between the arm and ^{*} Note.—Tafa-ki, and Safa-ki, lit., burying, is of the Ancient Tafal or Safal, i.e. Causative Form.

the side; to cover with its wings, as a bird its young, clasping between the wing and the side. Afinina, s., armpit, axilla, and d. afili na, id., also the groin. [My. kāpet, māngāpet, carry under the arm.] A. "abana, 8, sub axilla posuit, 1, 3, plait, ma"bin', groin, armpit.

Afiti, s., a slave. This word occurs with the article as nàfiti. [My. beta, Ja. patik, a slave.] H. 'ebed, Ch. 'abad, a slave. See bati, v.

Afo, s. See foga, and nafo. Afuafu. See abuabu.

Agau, d. nikam, s., a, or ni, art., and kam, or gau, nippers, tongs: from the verb kamu, q.v. [Fi. ai qamu. id., My. agkub, forceps, nippers, pincers.] See kamu, kamut.

Aga, for anka, art., a., and prep. ka, literally that or the to, or that which to; a particle prefixed to the nom. suf. pron., forming a poss. pron. Without the art. it is pronounced ka, q.v. See kagu, &c., for meaning.

Agana, poss. pron., 3 sing.; aga, na. See kana, kakana, kanana, and for meaning and use see under kiana. Fi. a kena.

Aġama, poss. pron., 2 sing.; aġa, ma. See kama.

Aġaġu, poss. pron., 1 sing.; aġa, gu. See kaġu. Aġ'ġami, poss. pron., 1 pl., excl.; aġa, ġami. Kaġamī. Aġaġita, poss. pron., 1 pl., incl.; aġa, ġita. Kaġita. Aġamu, poss. pron., 2 pl.; aġa, mu. Kamu.

Aġara, poss. pron., 3 pl.; aġa, ra. Kara.

Aġam, pron., 2 pl., you, ye; dd. iġam, niġami, niġkam (ġk for ġ), akam, eġū, the pers. pron. 2 pers. pl., which in one dialect is kumu, in another is kami, q.v.

Āġ, pron., 2 sing., you, thou; dd. nāġo, nīġo, nēġo. See k, ko, ku, ki.

Agi, or aki, particle consisting of the art. a, and prep. gi (for ki, q.v.) to, of; dd. nig', naġ, niġi, or niġki, in which the art. is na, or ni. Aġi is often equivalent to ani, q.v., but not always: ani, or ini sometimes means 'of' nearly in the sense of 'from', as rarua ini sē? a canoe of (from) what place? which cannot be expressed by rarua agi sē? See the preps. ki and ni. Aği is often equivalent to the simple prep. gi, or ki, but sometimes it means the, the (thing), that which, of, the art. having the force of a relative pronoun.

Āģiēģi, s., c. art. nagiegi, the air, breeze: lagi.

Aginago, poss. pron., 2 sing., thy, of thee; agi, nago.

Aginai, poss. pron., 3 sing., his, her, of him; agi, nai. Aginami, poss. pron., 1 pl.

excl., our and theirs, of us and them; agi, nami.

Aginara, poss. pron., 3 pl., their, of them; agi, nara.

Ağinau, poss. pron., 1 sing., my, of me; aği, nau.

Agita, poss. pron., a, prep., and nom. suf. gita,; a, gita. [Sa. a tatou. Mg. ansika.]

[Sa. a tatou, Mg. anṣika.] Ago, pron., 2 sing., you, thou;

aģ, nāģo, in dd.

Aġu, poss. pron., 1 sing., my; a, prep., and ġu. [Sa. aʿu. Ma. aku, Mg. ahi, my.]

Ağumu, poss. pron., 2 pl.,

your; a, kumu.

Aheka, d., tasila, d. tasiga; sila ia.

Ais, or eis, ad., here, d. ieta; a, or e, or i, prep., and is, see sa, se, s, this, here; d. esas, q.v. Mg. ati, eti, atu, etu, Ta. yesa. My., without prep., sini, sika, and with preps. di and ka, disini, kasini.] H. zeh, without prep., here, properly this, Ef. se, this, here, E. zĕya, here. Also H. bazeh, E. bazya, c. prep. ba, with which is to be compared, Ha. ma in manei, here, and also generally. The prep. a, e, or i was also similarly used. See examples of this under the word igin, infra.

Ai, s., c. art. nai, water, d. for nifai, q.v.

Aia (=d. āo), that's it; a, dem., and ia, 3 pers. pron.

Aîme, s., c. art. naime, a stream: preceding word, ai, and me, q.v.

Aka, a., d. koa, and koakoa, a., stringy, fibrous, as a yam when cooked (bad to eat); akoa na, or ako ana, root, its root, lit. and fig.; aka, a relative, family connection (considered as root or offshoot from), aka na, d. ek, eka na; in one place ek or eka denotes great grandand great grandfather, mother (which in another place is denoted by tai la, or tai, q.v.), in another place aka denotes mother (used by a child addressing its mother). d. iak (i, art.), mama; aka na, or uaka na (waka na). fissure, inside of fissure, as of the mouth, of a canoe (hold), of a bag or basket, or of anything; kaka naniu, the fibrous substance like coarse cloth that grows round the top of the stem of the cocoanut tree (naniu); makaka, to be ragged or fissured, as cloth: mako, or maka, offspring, in pr. nn. as mako naru, &c.: taumako, the wild yam growing on the hills, so called because koa or fibrous. Koa has the a. ending To. aka, Fi. waka, My. akar, Mg. faka, root, Ma. long and thin roots, akaaka, fibrous roots, kaka, a fibre or hair, a garment, a kind of net, Ha, aa niu = Ef, kaka naniu, also roots (small), offspring, a pocket, a bag, a coarse kind of cloth, Sa. aa, fibres of a root, family connection. Mg.

kaki, ikaki (i art., cf. Ef. aka, iak), father, papa, Tah. aa, root, sieve, &c., aaa, the stringy substance in any kind of food or vegetable, native cloth that is not well worked. A. 'akka, n.a. 'akak, to be split, fissured, 'akko, a fissure, 'akikat', a bag (pera viatoria, Ha. aa), also like 'akiko and 'ikkat', hairs of a foetus; 'awako, small shoots sprouting from the upper part of a palm, 'ikkano, shoots sprouting from the roots of palms and vines. 'akka, 4, to send forth such shoots from the roots (palms or vines), Mg. faka, root, caus. verb mamaka, to send forth roots, and My. akar, roots of a plant, scandent plant. parts of a plant that climb.

Akam, d.; you; pers. pron., 2 pl. See kumu.

Akamus, preceding word, with dem. suffixed. See Ch. II. 13 b.

Akē, interj. See ako, ako ri. [Mg. akai!] A, interj., and ke, q.v.

Akē ri, interj., akē, or aki, and ri, as in ako ri, q.y.

Aki, prep., i.q., aġi, q.v.

Akit, d., pron., 1 pl., incl., we and you. [My. kita, Tag. kita, Fut. akitea, An. akaija.] See nininta.

Akoa na, or ako ana, s., root. See aka.

Ako, interj. For ri, dem. particle, used also as an ex-pletive, and la, ad., see these words.

Ako ri la, interj.

Ako ri, interj. Ako expresses surprise, wonder, admiration, also mourning, commiseration. A, interj., and ko, q.v. Āl, d., syn. with ēlo, d. āli, the sun. See ali.

Alat ia, v. t. (and let, q.v.) to press together, nip as with scissors, or with the teeth, press between two things drawn together, to press, urge, persist, be importunate with, to grasp. The final consonant is often dropped;

Ala, s., c. art. nāla, a basket or purse the edges of whose mouth can be closed by being drawn or pressed together, women's carrying basket;

Alati, s., scissors, nippers, clippers;

Alaterabati, also alati bati ore, to gnash the teeth, lit., press the teeth together creaking. See bati and ore;

Ala goro ki, v. t., press, urge. See goro;

Alāla, a., compressing. [Mg. lasiţa, mandasiţa, to pinch.] H. Laḥaṣ, to press, squeeze, 'alaṣ, to urge, S. 'elaṣ, coegit, arctavit, A. laḥiṣ, angustus, arctus (drawn, pressed together).

Alalu, i.q. elalo, q.v. See alo na.

Alau, s.; a, prep., and lau, sea; also elau, d. elà, the sea, on the sea, seawards. [Malo a lau, Epi lau, My. laut, Ja.

lahut, lot, Tag. dagat, Marshall Islands lojet, the sea, My. lauti, v., and malaut, v., to put to sea, be at sea in a boat or ship.] A. logg', and loggat, or lojjat, middle and depth of the sea, ocean, lajja, or lagga, 8, the sea was wide and deep, or such a sea was sailed over, 2, he entered the vast and deep sea.

Alekabu, c. art., talekabu, d. for arekabu.

Ali, s., c. art., nāli, leaf. leaves: ulua.

Āli, s., day (d. ali, sun, d. ali, light, see lina). Sera ali, every day, toko ali, stay at home during the day, not going to work. Usually this word is doubled, as,

Aliati, s., day. [An. at'iat]. And,

Aliati, v. to day, to dawn, to lighten as the dawn. See al, alo, elo, the sun, also meta ni al, meta ni elo, the sun, lit., eye, i.e., source of day or light. [Mg. andru, Malo alo, My. ari, hari, Sa. la, Ma. ra, day, Sa. la, To. laa, Ma. ra, My. mata-ari, Mg. masu-andru, the sun.] For this word see Ch. II. 17, above.

Āli, v. t., for ġali, or kali, q.v.

Ali, and alia, s., place, part, alia n, its place or part, d. male n, or mile n; luān, that place, there, for alia uan, li bān, d. lo bōn, there (li for alia); mala, and malo, a place, a part, malo, time, i.e., a part of time, as malo ni aliati, a part of the day. malo uan, that time, or that place, malo, trunk of the body, or of a tree, mala, malala, an open place or plain, also the village dancing and public worship ground, malmal, redup., a small place or part; mālu, malumalu, to be bare, clear, as a piece of ground, to be bare, devoid of hair, as the face, malamala, naked. [Fi. mala, a part, Sa. malae, the open space where public meetings are held, Tah. marae, the sacred place formerly used for worship, marae, a., cleared, as a garden. or a place of worship. Ma. marae, enclosed space in front of a house, a yard, maramara, a small piece.] A. 'ariya, to be naked, 'arā', 'arā', 'araţ, an open place, tract, part, mo'rai, and mo'rat', naked part of the body not covered with clothing. H. 'arah, to be naked, 'arah, a naked or bare place, masar, a naked space, void space. ma'ărah, a naked place, i.e. a plain or field devoid of trees, 'A. mo'arrai, naked. bare.

Āliāli, v. i. (doubled). to delay, be slow, and taliali, id., intensive. [Cf. Ha. alia, v., to wait.] A. āla (alu), and, 2, alla, and, 5, to delay, be slow.

Alialia, v. i., or a., insane. to be insane; connected with this is ululia, inspired, possessed, or entered by a deity (natemate) or demon, and, therefore, as a matter of course, out of one's senses. Alialia is not used in some places where ululia (for uluuluia) is used in both senses; this latter word is also pronounced luluia, and lulia. It is a reduplicate and has the ending ia, and literally means entered (i.e. by a spirit), possessed. [Sa. uluitino, enter the body, possess (as by an aitu), ulu, to enter, and tino, body, Ha. uluia. and uluhia, to be inspired. possessed by a spirit, ulu, to have spiritual possession, good or bad, ulala, insane, out of one's senses. Tah. uru. to be inspired, uruhia, inspired. This last word corresponds to Sa. ulufia, which simply means entered, being the passive of ulu, to enter. Corresponding to Sa. ulu, to enter, is Mg. idița, or ilița, to enter, and with this latter is connected the reduplicate adala. insane. senseless, a lunatic, a fool (cf. Ha. ulala). Ef. lāla, an idiot, senseless person, fool, may belong here also, and cf. Fi. lialia, foolish, crazy, an idiot. Ch. 'alal, to enter. S. id., 'al, he entered imp.. 'ul, enter, A. "alla, he entered.

Note.—The A. is followed by prep. fi, the S. by b and also 1 (A. li): the first of these preps. is used in Mg. (ami), as in Jno. xiii. 27, Satan nidita amini, entered into him; and the second (ani, sometimes contracted to an and a), as in Lu. xxii. 3, and often: in Sa. we have the last in the i of ulufia, i of Ha. uluhia, and in the i of ulu-i-tino, and of Ha. uluia, and Ef. luluia, &c. This is the verb constantly used in S., Mg., and Sa., to denote the entering into a man of a spirit. The Ef. and Fi. use another and synonymous verb, Ef. sili, to enter. Fi. t'uru, id., which is used also in A. to express this idea: for the A. verb corresponding to sili, t'uru, see sili, infra.

Alo, s., d., the sun. See ali.
Alo-fi, v., wave (with a circular and rolling motion) to him. beckon to by so waving the hand, or a branch of a tree; alof, and prep. i: bialo, v. r., wave often, or wave to each other, alo-alo, wave repeatedly, tālo, go round, avoid, turn round, taloalo, keep going round (as on a zigzag or crooked path), turn round. See next word.

Alo n, or alu n, s., belly, abdomen, the front, before, d. al' naru na, belly, i.e., palm (or front) of his hand; reduplicate lalo n, or lalu n, id., elalo, before (e, prep., and lalo, front). [Fi. yalova, Ml. P. oruvi, Ml. U, oluve.

TaSa. lobe or love, Malo alovi, to beckon, To. talu, to beckon, Sa. alo, to fan, talo, to fan, to beckon, to wave a piece of tutuġa over the dead, begging him to take calamities and diseases with him, aloft, to sit in a circle, alofilima, palm of hand (i.e., front or belly of hand), Sa. alo, belly, under side, Ma. aro, face, front. Ha. alo, belly, face, Ma. arohi, to look for, arohirohi, to turn round and round, Ha. aloalo. to turn this way and that, alo, to elude, to oppose (face, front), to swim (wave hands), double (as a cape, i.e., go round).] A. hala, to turn round, twist about, desire, look at, turn the eyes or face towards; hiyalo, the front of a thing, Ef. alo, the front (as of the hand, or body), reduplicate with prep. e, elalo, at the front, as opposed to etaku, (see taku), at the back; hayalo, shadow, image of a man in a mirror, spirit, Fi. yalo, id. The Ef. f, Ma. h, is the Semitic servile t of the n. a. For this see Ch. II. and Ch. III.

Al' (naru) (for alo naru), d., palm (front) of the hand. [Ml. P. aro, Malo lolo.]

Alo ana, s., maternal uncle; vocative (reduplicate) lolo cf. abab, mama). [In Ef. dd. syn. auaua, bau. Malo taura (ta art.), maternal uncle.] A. h'alo, maternal uncle.

Aloara, a.; formative ending ara or ra; and Aloaloara, a., redupl., ornamented, painted (as cloth). See alo-fi, loa-ri. [A different word is Sa. ilaila, a., spotted, marked, ila, s., a mother's mark, a mark in the skin, To. ila, a mole or mark in the skin. A. h'alo, pl. h'īlān, mole or mark in the skin, ah'yalo, a., having such marks in the skin, spotted, marked.]

Alo-fi v., rub on (to) it. paint. See loa, loa-ri a, loa-si, and lo-fi. A. ḥalā, ḥalū, or ḥalō, rub, smear, paint, adorn.

Ālikas, s., c. art. nālikas, for na uli nakasu, leaf or leaves of trees. See uli, and kasu. Ālsēr, s., c. art. nālsēr, dried or withered cocoanut leaves, so called because jagged: from nal for na uli, leaves. and sere, jagged. hairy.

Alu na, s., for alo na, q.v. Āma, poss. pron., 2 sing. thy: a prep., and nom. suf. ma. [Sa. au, Mg. anau, thy.]

Amau, a., true: in loamau, q.v., lo, a thing, and amau, also mau, mori, mauri, true. H. aman. See mau.

Amos i, v., to carry on the shoulder, to bear, to carry. Often the final s is dropped; hence

Amo, v., to carry, to put a load on the shoulder; and Amo-taki, d., id.; and Amo-rua, am'rua (rua, two), to carry two (burdens), one on each end of a stick (as a Chinaman carries two baskets); the word also occurs in tak'amo, d. takiamo, to carry a burden on only one end of such a stick; and Amoamo, c. art. namoamo, s., a burden, lit., that which is carried. [Sa. amo, v., to carry on the shoulders, amoġa, s., a burden, Ma. amo, amohia, Ha. amo, to carry a burden on the shoulder, to carry.] H. 'amas, bear, carry, especially lift up a load and put it on a beast.

Amo, s., c. art. namo na, the lungs, but also

Am' kanoa, the heart, and Am' insat, the lungs (see kanoa, insat); and Am' molu, the spleen. [Fut. ama, Sa. mama, the lungs, To. mama, id., Ha. akemama, the lungs, from ake, liver, and mama. In To., Sa., Fut., and Ha., mama (a reduplicate) means light, to be light (opp. of heavy), but this is not the stem to which the word mama denoting the lungs belongs. and does not occur at all in Ef., though the Ef. amo is manifestly the same as Fut. ama, and Sa. (reduplicate) mama, the lungs. analogues of akemama, see under the word ate, the liver. In Ef. uateam, q.v., the kidneys, is ua ate am', lit.. fruit of the liver (or inside) of the belly (am', the belly):

uateau (d. uateaf), is d. for uateam', and balau, q.v. (for balam'), the common Ef. for inside, is lit. the hollow of the am' (amo), i.e., belly. See following—

Amo, s., c. art. namo, the soft forming kernel of a young cocoanut: so called like the internal parts of man or animal from the softness and smoothness:

Amoamo, v. i., a., reduplicate, to be soft and smooth, as the forming kernel of a young cocoanut, or the intestines or viscera, or any smooth or polished surface: d. momoa. Sa. mama, a., clean (i.e., Tah. clean. smooth). soiled or polluted, To. and Ma. ma, clean. white. ma'y', pl. ām'a', intestinum; also, a level place between two rugged places (Ef. na momo, or na amo'mo, a smooth and level place between the rocks in a reef). ma'a, 4. to have dates ripe or ripening (a palm), ma'w', dates on the tree, ripe or growing ripe, mai, soft. smooth (of food), ma"y' softness of skin, H. me'eh, only in pl. me'im or m'ey intestines, the belly, then the bosom, heart: cg. is A. maha, to gleam with whiteness, to gild, whence mahw', new soft dates. Gesenius gives the radical meaning as 'flowing softness'. see down. ma'ah.

Amo'mo, or am'mo, c. art. namomo, or nam'mo; see s. preceding word: d. momo.

Amorĭ. See mori.

Amos i, v. t., to rub, to rub in order to make smooth: mos i. mus i. A. wamasa, to rub (a thing), to rub (a thing) that it may be smooth.

Amu, poss. pron., 2 pl., your: a, prep., and nom. suf. mu.

Ana, form of pers. pron., 3 sing., he, she, preserved in aneana: other forms nai. enea (inia), ġā.

Ana, poss. pron. 3 sing., his, her, its: a, prep., and na, nom. suf. \[\int\]Sa. ana, id., Mg.

azi.

Anagagu, anagama, anaġana, anaġaġita, anaġami, anagamu, anagara (or anagata), poss. prons., syn. c. aġaġu, aġama, &c., q. v. See Ch. V.

Anaga, in these words, is the art. a, and preps. na, and ga (for ka). With anagagu (for anakaku), cf. Mg. d. anakahi, id.

Anai, poss. pron., 3 sing., his, her, its: a, prep., and nai.

Anāna, poss. pron., 3 sing., his, her, its, d. for aneana,

Anĕana, poss. pron., 3 sing., of him, his, her, its: ane or ani, q.v., prep., and ana, a form of the pers. pron. 3 sing., orig. pl.

Anekabu, c. art. nanekabu,

d. for arekabu.

Anekama, c. art. nanekama, d. for arekabu.

Anekabu, c. art. tanekabu, d. for arekabu.

Anêna, d. for aneana.

Anēra, for anĕara, often pronounced anēta, anĕata, d. arěara, poss. pron., 3 pl., of them, their; prep. ani, and ara, pers. pron., 3 pl.

Anēta, d. for anēra.

Ani, prep., particle consisting of the art. a and prep. ni, q.v., and often used for the simple prep. ni, of, belonging to (genitive prep.), for (dative, rare, this is usually expressed by magi, d. syn. nag', or nig', q.v.): generally synonymous with agi, q.v. for a difference.

Anigami; d. syn. c. aginami; poss. pron. 1 pl. excl., of us —them (of us and them): ani, prep., and gami (for nami), pers. pron. 1 pl. excl. See nami, kinami.

Anigita; d. aninita, q.v.; poss. pron. 1 pl. incl., of us -you (of us and you): ani, prep., and gita (for nīta). See ninita, nita.

Animu; d., syn. c. agumu; poss. pron. 2 pl., of you, your: a, prep., and nimu (for nikamu), d. nikam, pers. pron. 2 pl., d. niëm.

Aninita, d. obsolete, syn. c. anigita: ani, prep., and nita, pers. pron. 1 pl. incl. See ninita, nita.

Anĭ, v., usually pronounced eni, d. oni, contracted to an, en, a, o; c. preformative m' or ma, it is, mān, mā, bān, (and mbān), bā, dd. bon, bēn, bao, baon, maon; to abide, to be, as i ani, or, i an suma, he abides or is at home (in the house), i man, or, i ma tafa, he is on the hill, i man, or, i ma rarua, it is in the ship or canoe, i ma, or, i an til ia, bat ia, he abides (continues). or is telling it, doing it.

Note 1.—The verb an may be thus used before any verb, like toko (contracted to), to sit, dwell, be, with which it is nearly synonymous. But an tano, lies or is on the ground, toko tano, or to atano, sits on the ground, tu tano, stands on the ground. Both tu and toko are used before other verbs like an, and toko til ia, tu til ia, like an til ia, denote to abide, continue, or be telling it. Another verb, tau, q.v., is used in the same way before other verbs, as i tau til ia, bat ia, he abides, or is constantly, habitually, or addictedly, or repeatedly, telling, doing it. So Fi. dau, which is the same word. These verbs thus used before other verbs express continuance, intensity, repetition.

Note 2.—The preformative m', ma' (mĕ, mĭ) is used with toko, tu, and tau, as well as with ani, an, as matoko (or mato), dd. batoko, fatoko (vatoko), matu, batu, fatu (vatu), mitau or mětau: with this preformative these verbs have much the same meaning as without it; they have the same meaning with the added idea of continuance. [Mg. munina, dwell, reside, inhabit, unenana, funenana dwelling), mpunina (dweller). A. (4) "aniya, to dwell, abide (8) to be, ma"na, dwelling, cf. 'un, to rest, to dwell, ma'on, a dwelling.

(Ani na), nani na, s., child, son or daughter, dd. nati, natu. [My. anak, Mg. anaka, Ml. d. anati, id., My. kanak (see kanao, kano, infra), Mg. zanaka, id.] A. wald', walad', walid, E. walde, Amh. wande, T. wade, H. yalid, one born, child, son, from the verb H. yalad, A. walada, to bring forth, bear (a mother), to beget (a father), A. walid', parent, genitor, father, walidat' mother, genitrix (Nm. wêlid, wêlida, Ct. walidah). My. bâranak (Makassar, ma-ana), to bear a child, bring forth any offspring, have children, be a parent, Sa. fānau (cf. A., 4) to bring forth, fananau, fanafanau, fanaua (ps.), fānau, s., offspring, children, fanauga, s., offspring, child-bearing.

Note.—The word nani, or nati, natu, son or daughter. probably represents an original masculine (and so that denoting father, A. walid, Ml. and Santo tata, Santo d. tai, Mg. rai), but the word belonging to this stem denoting mother, the ancient feminine (wêlida, walidah). This is in Ef. d. raite na, or reita na, mother, d. ere na (for era na), Ta. iti, d. rih, Am. rahi, An. risi, Ml. risi, d. are, Epi d. la, Pa. lati, Fila lēta, Celebes leyto, Ef. kiliti, q.v.: Ef. voc. tete, also in Epi mother, in one d. la, in another is kaine, i.e. ka, art., and ine (for ina) mother, and this latter is the prevailing form of this word in the Malay Archipelago Wallace's list), Amboyna, Ceram, &c., ina, Mg. reni, and ineni, (Ta. d. nana). Celebes undo, Bu. indok, ina, My. indu, J. iduģ; also Ysabel ido, San Cristoval ina, Mare nene, Duke of York na. On these letter changes see Ch. II, above. Ānoĭ, or ānuĭ, d. ānoai (ānowai), s.. c. art. nānoi, or nānuĭ, vir. husband, male: m has been elided from the beginning of this word as in noai, d. nai, d. nifai (nivai), q.v., water; d. mane (mwāne), ma'an (mo'an), male. mani, and Ch. II, 17. Anu, d., pers. pron. 1 sing., I.

Anu, d., pers. pron. 1 sing., I. See kinau.

Ānu na, s. c. art., nanu na, his, her, its shadow, i bi ān' fūr, it is an empty appearance, mere shadow (worthless). [Epi ununo, Malo unu, Ml. d. nunu, id.] And,

An', s., a rope, c. art. nān'. These two meanings are also found in the A. A. 'anna, n. a. 'annu, 'ananu, 'ununu, to present itself, to appear, 2, to hold with a rein; 'ānu, a long rope, 'ananu and 'inanu, adparitio rei, 'ananu, clouds, H. 'anan, a cloud: A. 'a'nan', demon nature, ma'nun and magnun, possessed by a demon or spirit.

Note.—The radical meaning of anan, is to cover. and cognate are kanan, and ganan; A. ganna, to cover, to be dark (of the night), to be possessed by a demon and insane, ginnu, darkness of night, also demons, spirits, or every kind of them (this is the jin of the 'Arabian Nights'), hin, a kind of demons, ginniyyu, a demon or spirit, ganunu, genii. In Ef., d., unu, ghost, d. inini, spirit, soul, Ml. P. oni, noni n, his soul, or his shadow, Epi d. anunu, soul or spirit, Epi (Baki) unu, c. art. niunu, soul or spirit, ununo, shadow; and Ml. oni, Malo unu, one's likeness in water. or in a looking glass. Ef. ate, q.v., denotes the soul, a spirit, one's shadow, and one's likeness in water, or in a looking-glass.

Ao (or au), v., d., to bark (as a dog). See bakau. [Sa. ou, id.]

Äo, ad., yes. [Ma. au.] See äu.

Ara, form of pers. pron. 3 pl., preserved in areara: other forms nāra, niġara (ġara). enera, kiniara. See Ch. V. Ara, s., a fence: c. art. nāra, d. nār: see koro, c. art. nakoro, id. (ara has the initial k elided), Nar fat, d. for nakoro fatu, a stone fence.

Ara i, v. t., seek. ara ika, search, look for fish, come seeking, ba ara, go or come seeking, ti ara, press after seeking. [Fi. qara, v. t., seek, qaqara, qaraqara, vakasaqara.] S. har, to see, look (for).

Araara, or arāra, v., reduplicate of ara, to join to, join together, connect with, arāra naui, attach the yam vines to stakes, arāra nia, connect it, arara ni ora naui ki nakau, connect or attach the yam vine to the stake: arāra ki nalo na, agree to his voice (judgement, opinion, &c.), lit. join on to it, syn. sokari nalona. A. "arā, 3, to join together one thing to another.

Arān, or orān, d. arain, d. oraone (redup.). d. on, d. uen, s.. c. art. nārān, &c.. sand. In on, and uen (wen), the radical r is changed to n. [Sa., Ma., Tah., To., Ha., one, and oneone, sand; oneonea (a, a. ending), sandy.]

A. horr, or horron, sand, from harra, to be hot.

Arai, d., dem. pron., this, that. For the final ai, see uai. THa. la, Ma. ra, there, Fut. ra, that, Mg. irua, that, there, eri, ari, there. S. hal, H. halah, there, connected with the dem. H. hal, A. al, the art.; Ch. alu, aru, Ch. and Talmud harē, are, dem., lo! there! Of this dem. syllable al, hal, ar, har, Gesenius remarks—'It is hard to say which form is the more ancient and primitive; ' it is seen also in Arm. harka, halkah, here, H. elleh, &c., these, those, and in Ef. arog, (d.), eri, erik, eru, q.v. See Ch. V.

Areara, d., for aneara, anera, q.v.; the prep. ani, or ane, is are, in this word, orig. ale, art. a, and prep.

Arekabu na, s., c. art. narekabu, the liver. See ate.

Arifon, s., c. art. narifon, diviner, magician. A. 'arrafon, a diviner, from 'arafa, to know. divine, 2, make known, 'arefan, one who knows.

Ari, v. t., to plane, scrape off, rub off. [Sa. oro, id.] S. gra', to scrape off, shave, H. gara'.

Aroġ, d., dem. pron., this. See arai and erik. The final ġ, as in naġ, naġa, dem.

Āru na, s., c. art. nāru na, hand, arm; fore-foot of a quadruped: nāru, arms, i.e., weapons of war, war; i bi aru uia, he is industrious, lit. a good hand, i bi aru sa, he is handless, lazy, lit. a bad hand. [New Guinea. dd. uadu, dei, Ml. P. fera, Ml. A. verua.] H. yad, hand, S. id., A. yadu (and yaddu), dual, yadān; also, 'adu, dual 'adān, hand, arm; fore-foot of a quadruped.

Asa, or isa, prep. a, or i, and sa, suffix pronouns 3rd person. d. syn. kina, prep. ki, and s. p. na, Fi. kina, with, by, on, at. from, because of, him or it. For this prep., see Ch. V, Prepositions, 3.

Asa, ad., the day after tomorrow. See uāsa.

Asèlĭ na, s., a friend. [Ml. U. sele n, Bu. sölao, id.] A. waṣīl', intimate friend, from waṣala, to join, be joined.

As ia, d. uas ia, v. t., cut, cut out, as asi naniu, cut out the kernel of a cocoanut (to make a water vessel of it). asi (lua namena na), cut (out his tongue), asi intàlĕ, cut the roots of taro (while it is in the water, to pull it out of the ground): hence maseasi, q.v. A. ḥ'adda, fidit, sulcavit, and

Así na, s., c. art. nāsí na, the part of the face bearded. jaw. jawbone, chin. [Malo ase, TaSa. ese, chin, Ml. P. fese, chin, ese, cheek.] The radical idea is that of cutting, sharp, tearing. A. ḥ'add', mala, gena; and

Āsĭ ta bunu, jaw cutting dead; and

Asi tageli, crooked jaw: these expressions denote, the latter crooked talk, the former talk calculated for and resulting in the death of one hated. See ta, bunu, tageli.

Aso, v. i., to burn, be burning (a fire), be kindled, to be burnt or scorched (as one's skin, or food in being cooked). [Fi. qesa, qesaqesa, a., burnt or scorched, as in cooking. Sa. 'a'asa, 'To. kakaha, An. egesgas, a., burned, agas, or gas, to burn; hot, burning.] A. wakada, n. a. wakdo. H. yakad, S. ikad, to burn, be burning, be kindled.

Aso, s., a kind of crab, the robber crab.

Āso, or āsu, s., c. art. nāso, or nāsu, a bow (for shooting arrows). [Aurora usu, Paama hisu, Ml. P. vus, Ml. U. vis, Amblaw busu, My. busor, Saparua husu, id.] A. ķawsu, or ķāsu, id. So called from being curved.

Asoara, s., the rainbow. Cloth brilliantly variegated with different coloured bands or stripes is called na kalu asoara, a phrase in which the word is an adjective. Also a stone fence constructed of three rows or bands of stone is described as asoara. See Index, A. zabara.

Asolat, see soli.

Asua, v. i., to smoke, c. t. prep., asuè nia, to smoke on to it, or him: c. art. it is s., naasua na, the smoke of it, its smoke. [Mg. etuna, s., smoke, manetuna, v., to smoke, My. asâp (probably this word lit. means smoke of fire, api) bârâsap, to smoke, Malo asu, s., mo asuasu, v., TaSa. asu, s., m'asu, v., Ml. P. ese, s., mi es, v., Ml. A. nahamp basua, s., lit. the fire smokes, basua, v., Sa. asu, s., asua, and asuina, v. ps. H. 'as'en, to smoke, 'as'an, smoke, A. 'at'ana, 1, 2, 4, to smoke.

Āt, or āṣ, c. art. nāt, q.v., banana.

Ata (or nata), s., c. art. nata, d. na eta for na ata, a man. a person; one, some one; nata nata, every one. atamole, atemate, ata na, atamanı. [Motlav et, Ureparapara at, man. See below, Note 2. A. nat', for nas', which is the commonly used plural ('pluralis fractus', a collective or abstract, or singular with a collective meaning), of 'insan', man, male or female, a human being, also umbra hominis (the older plural is 'unas', with which corresponds H. 'enos', Arm. 'anas'a, a man, men), and denotes men, also genii, demons.

Note 1.—A. 'insan, for which there is also 'īsan, corresponds to H. 'īs'on, which is formed from 'īs' by the ending on, and denotes, when followed by the word eye, 'little man of the eye, i.e. pupil in which as in a glass a little image of a man is seen '(Ges.); the A. denotes in addition to the meanings given above 'the little image appearing in the pupil of the eye': A. 'insan is from the root 'ans and H. 'is', vir, 'is'ah, woman, from 'ins', 'ins'ah, hence the pl. of 'is'ah is nas'im, corresponding to A. nisā, niswat, and niswan, women. The words 'is', vir, is'ah, woman (and their equivalents in the cognate languages), must be carefully distinguished from that given above under ata (or nata) denoting 'a human being' whether male female, though they belong to the same root or stem.

Note 2.—According to the above, the t in ata, like that in A. nat', represents an original s as in nas'. In Ef. dd. this t is sometimes pronounced nearly as r, and s. In other New Hebrides dialects this consonant is found as t, s, r, 1; thus corresponding to Efate ata-mani, male (vir), are An. ata-maig, Fut. ta-ne (for ta-ane), Ta. yeruman, Epi dd. ata-mani, sumano, Ml. U. oro-man, TaSa. la-mani. My. oraġ, Mg. uluna belong here, and =ata. Note 3. See Ch. II, 17.

Ata na, s., c. art. nata na (or nate na), his spirit, his soul; his shadow; his image (in water or a glass). This is the same word as the preceding, but in this use has the nom. suf. [Sa. ata, a spirit, a shadow, Fut. ata, a ghost, shadow, image (as in water), picture or likeness, Fila tano ata, his soul, Ha. aka, the shadow of a person, figure, outline, or likeness.] See preceding word.

Ata i, or atai, v. t., to know,

d. tai, q.v.

Atakasua, a., jealous; suspicious: from ata (soul), and kasua, q.v.

Atălàgi, s., usually written atelagi, d. atlag, the moon.

See Ch. II. 14 f.

Atamauri, or atemauri, s.. the spirit of a living man that has gone out of him during sleep and been seen by someone. This word occurs in one dialect and is composed of ata, the soul. and mauri, q.v.. to live.

Atamate, or atemate, s., c. art. natemate, spirit of one dead, ghost, spirits of the dead, demons, good or bad spirits, supernatural beings, objects of worship, gods (gen. name). The word is composed of ata (above), and mate, q.v., to die, be dead, a. dead. [Ml. P. demej, Epi dd. atamate, simaro, Ta. yeramis, Ml. A. temes, An. natmas, id.] The primary meaning of natemate seems to be 'dead man': thus a corpse may be called natemate, and natemate sometimes denotes 'the dead' in a collective sense.

Atamole, s., c. art. natamole, man, male or female, a human being, same as ata, or nata, with the addition of mole, q.v., to live, a. living. Natamole lit. denotes 'livingman'. Mg. ulumbeluna, id. The Mg. is composed of the same two words as the Ef.; for uluna, see ata (above), and for veluna, to live, see mole (below); and the meaning of the compound word is the same in each case. Fi. tamata, Sa. taġata, Tah. taata, id., belong here, and My. oragidup.

Atamani, s., c. art. natamani, male, lit. a male human being, from ata (above), and mani, q.v., male. [For New Hebrides forms of this compound word, see ata (above), Note 2. Fi. tajane, Sa. tane, id.]

Atatabu, or at'tab, s., c. art. natatabu, or nat'tab, lit. sacred spirits, sacred stones identified with such spirits, and objects of pagan worship: from ata (above). and tabu, a.v.

Atama, s., d. syn. c. ore, the pointed rubbing stick for producing fire by its friction with another stick: a, art., and tama i, q.v.

Atara. See natara.

Atāta, v. i., or a., a reduplicate, to have white spots or marks such as show where sores have healed. See next word.

Atāta, s., an albino. The radical meaning would therefore seem to be white. [Mg. haṣaṭa, white, pale, wan, sickly, Sa., Ma., ata, dawn, Ma. ata-marama, moonlight.] A. waṣ'aḥ', white spot appearing on the head or feet of a horse, waṣ'āḥ, whitening spots of leprosy, waṣ'iḥ', very white; from waṣ'aḥa, to be manifest, white (as milk), &c., shine as the dawn, moon, &c.

Ātě, c. art. nātě na (d. nānte na), the liver (of a shark), the spleen; in arekabu (for atekabu) it signifies the liver or principal viscus of the kabu (or kobu, q.v.), inside, and in uateam, q.v., the proper meaning seems to be the middle, the middle and more important part. [My. ati, the liver, then the mind, heart or inside, Mg. ati, the liver, the inside, Sa. ate. Ternati hut, the liver. A. kabd', kabid', H. kabed. E. kabdě, the liver, Amh. hodě, the belly. A. kabid, also denotes the belly with its parts, the middle and more important part (of a thing), the middle (of a thing). E. kabdě, viscus (nom. gen.), stomach, belly, inside, and particularly the liver, as the heaviest of the viscera. (See Ludolf's E. Lex.) H. kabad, E. kabda, to be heavy (primary meaning), &c. The verb is in Ef. dd. kauota (kawota), kōt, and ēt.

Note 1.—Ārēkabu, q.v., c. art. nārekabu, dd. tālekabu, nānekabu, tānekabu, and nānekama, the liver, is composed of āre (for ate), the liver or principal viscus, and kabu (for which see kobu, the belly, the inside), and lit. denotes the viscus (or liver) of the inside; with are (for ate) corresponds Ml. U. ere, and New Guinea, Maclay Küste arre, the liver.

Note 2. — With Ludolf's statement (above), compare that in the Ha. Dict., where ake (for ate) is defined as 'the liver', and also 'a general name for several internal organs, qualified by different terms': thus akeloa, spleen (loa, long), and also akeniau: akepaa, the liver, as well as the simple ake: akemama, the lungs (see above, s.v. amo). In Sa. atepili, the spleen, atevae, the calf of the leg, Tah. aterima, the thick part of the arm. In Ef. uateam' (d. uateau), the kidneys (see above, s.v. amo), ua-nate-natuo, or ua-natetuo, the calf of the leg, in one dialect is denoted by uateau natore, lit. kidneys of the shin (i.e. the leg from the knee to the foot, see tore), and uateau laso denotes kidneys of the scrotum. Ua-nate has exactly the same meaning as uate (i.e. ua-ate), the only difference being that in the former ate c. art. is nate; ua, fruit, is used because the parts spoken of are round or fruit-shaped. In Ef. dd. the calf of the leg is uateau natore, ua-nate tuo (or natuo), and nabela natore, of which the last lit. denotes the belly of the leg (below the knee).

Atelaki na, or d. telaki ana, s., the owner of it, owner: from a, art., or a, prosthetic, and telaki, q.v.

Atena na (d. atia na), s., maternal grandmother; voc. tata. A. gadat, id.

(Ati na), s., nati na, child, d. nani na, q.v. [Ma., Tah., ati, offspring.] See s.v. ani na.

Atia na, s., paternal grandfather or grandmother: voc. tia. See atena na, tata, tematete ta, tia, tematia ta, and s.v. atena.

Ati(a), d. uati(a), v. t., d. for ari a, q.v.

Atoara, see natoara.

(Atu na), s., natu na, d. nati na, his, her child, offspring. See ani na.

Ātŭ, c. suf. atu-ġi (d. uātŭ), beat, smite, break off or divide off (as a piece of a plantation); atu (namauri), utter (an incantation), at' usi, utter rehearing (see us i), àtŭ saki, plop up (of a turtle, also of the sound of the breath in the throat of a man recovering from a faint or dying); and atu taku, turn the back (to anyone on being addressed, as if not aware of it), atu taluko, turn oneself (from someone); atu tuai, break in pieces (a plantation) giving him (a portion); flàtu, v. r., to be fighting, to be smiting each other: nalagi atu, the wind beating, a hurricane; atu nabau, kill (by smiting the head); atu ualubota, rout enemy (smite, break the enemy). With the ending and prep. ki, the word, atumaki, means jerk, snap, as atu-maki, jerk (as the branch of a tree), balusa atu-maki, to paddle jerking (with a jerking motion of the paddle), atu-maki nalo ra, jerk their voices, or snap their voices. A. hatā, beat, smite, hatiā, be bent, stoop (a man), Nm. heti, declaim: cf. hatta, to break, to beat off (as leaves from trees), to utter (words). Atuta (see ta atuta ki), s., set time, or place, as i ta atuta ki nia, he declares a set time to (one), i.e. to meet him on a certain day, or at a certain time (to do something), ru tu natūta, they kept the set time, i risuģi natuta, he changed the set time. See ta atuta.

Atu-maki, v. See atu.

Atu saki, at' saki, v. See atu and saki.

Atu taku, at' taku, v. See atu and taku.

Atu taluko, at' taluko, v. See atu and taluko.

Atu, see banotu.

Atua, s., God. Introduced word. In Meli. c. art. the word tetua (East Mai retua, To. hotua, he otua, Sa. le atua), denotes among the heathen the same as natamate, that is, any spiritual being regarded as having supernatural qualities or powers, as a demon, good or bad, a ghost, a god: it is a general name. A human being on dying immediately becomes a tētua or natamate--that is, not only a spirit, but among the heathen, an object of superstitious regard. In Sa. aitu, a spirit. a god, seems to belong to the same stem, whence, with a. ending a, aitua, haunted. The word in Ha. (akua), To. (otua), Ma. and Sa. (atua). now denotes God in the Christian sense, and it has been introduced with this meaning into Aneityum, Tanna, Efate, Epi, &c. Der. uncertain; but cf. the A. word under Ef. tuai, matua, old. [Mg. matua, old, matuatua, ghost, spirit, atua, a song sung in honour of the sovereign, the idols. If this is the origin of the word it accords with the ancestor worship of the islanders.

Atum-kol, s., echo, lit. offspring of the call or shout, and Atuma, in pr. nn. atumaneru, offspring of war, &c. See kola, and for atuma, offspring, see futum.

Atuta. See p. 115.

Au, verb. pron. 1 pl. excl., we they, d. pu, d. mu, d. u: separate pron. kinami, we they; au is a-u, a for na in na-mi, kinami, and u, d. u, d. pu, or mu = mi in na-mi.

Äu, ad., yes, d. äo. A, dem. prefix, and u, or o, for which see o. H. hahu', that (is it). Au, v. i.. to heal, get well, d. for abu, id., q.v.

Äu, s., a kind of lizard, d. for käu, id. Au, v. i., to bark. See ao.

Āūa (āwa), s., veins, muscles, or nāūa: i bi aua, or naua (a-, or na-, art.), he is strenuous (veins, or muscles standing out). [Fi. and Sa. ua, Bu. urök, My. urat, Java, wad (through uhat, uat), Mg. uzaṭa, huzaṭa, la. 'irk,' &c., veins, &c., v. 'araṣa.

Aüà (awà), ad.. no, it is not:

d. eŭo, q.v.

Auaua, s. (awawa, a reduplicate), d. syn. bau, q.v., maternal uncle. [My. uwa, wa, wa, uwak, an uncle or aunt.] A. 'amm', an uncle.

Aue, interj., surprise, commiseration. [Sa. aue, alas!

oh! of wonder. A. awwi (&c.), alas! ah! oh!

Aui, interj., surprise, commiseration; a, dem., and ui, q.v.

Auis, interj., surprise, commiseration; a, dem., and uis, q.v.

Aul i, v. t., dd. ul i, ol i, uil i.
See ul i.

Aum, s., e. art. naum, d. for aime, q.v.

Aure, s., a singer, bard, a, art., and ure, or ore (see ore). [Fut. joro, Ma. whakaoriori, Ha. olo, My. uraura. Mg. hira, to sing. &c.] E. halaya, to sing.

Aüta, s., or ad., auta, ashore, on land, d. euta, q.v., a, prep., and uta, q.v.

Ba-, or fa-, caus. prefix, originally ma. [Mg. ma-, fa-, mpa-.] S. ma- (Maphel conj.), Mod. S. ma-, caus. prefix (St., pp. 110, 111): the Mafel or Maphel is simply the verbal noun of the ancient Aphel (H. Hiphil, A. 4). See Ch. IV.

Ba (bwa), and ua (wa), v. i.. to rain = d. boua (bowa). [Epi mboba, mbobo, Ta. ufu, id.] A. ba'a, to rain continuously, ba'a'a, rain. rain water.

Bà, or fa (va), v.. to come, enter (a ship, &c.), tread (go upon), with suffix, ba-si, to tread tread upon (go upon or in). (Fi. va-t'a, to tread upon.) This word in Ef. is found as bai, be, to come, to possess, to be like, to abide, to be (before nouns), also in latter sense, d., bi, and d. mi; d. mai, to come, d bē, to come. [The form mai is common in Polynesian and Fi., and is the well-known 'directive', see Ch. III, 'Triliterals doubly weak.' Mg. avi, to come; Tah. vai, to abide, to be; Ma. whai, to possess.] H. bo, ba, bawi, come, enter, be like, A. baa, faa, be like, abide, possess, and bawa, bawaa, be like, abide.

Bā, v., to come from (from a place), as, Ku bā se? you come from where? i bā nalia uan, he comes from that place, dd. bai, be, bāki (where the prep. ki = from). [Mg. avi aîza? = ba sc? = come from where? come whence? avi, to come.] See preceding word.

Bai, v., d., bā, q.v., to come from as, bai se? come from where? See under banotu.

Bai, v., to be, d. bi, q.v.

Bai a, v. t., to gather together in order to carry home, as firewood, or fruit, &c., to put in. insert, ba, to enter, and prep. i, make enter a basket, bai a nāla.

Bà ki, v., c. prep., to go to (a place): ba, to go, and the prep. ki, to: ba is contracted for ban, bano, to go, q.v.

Ba, d. mba, final conj., that: used in the conjugation of the future and imperative and infinitive of verbs;

Ba, that thou, sign of 2 pers. sing. imperative; includes verbal pron. 2 pers. sing., a. [Motu ba, used in the same way in fut., inf., and imp., Fi. me, in imp. and inf., Ma. me, forming a kind of imperative future, Mg. mba, that, Ml. P. ba, b', that, used in conjugation of imp., inf., and future.] A. fa, that (final conj.), &c.

 $B\bar{a}$, v., d. for $m\bar{a}$. See ani, v. $B\bar{a}b$, s., d. voc., father $=\bar{a}b$, bābu, abāb, id.

Baba na, s., hollows, or channels; and

Baba, s., c. art. nababa, a hollow, channel, or bed of a stream, dry except after heavy rains: it is an opening through the jungle;

Baḥa, s., c. art. naḥaḥa, a board: [Sa., Tah. papa, My. papan, id.;] A. baba-t', facies, board, table, slab, bib', channel, bab', door, gate, hall, baba, to dig a hole, &c., H. babah, a gate.

Babu na (d. bamu na). s., c. art. nababu na, the cheek. [My. pipi, Mg. fifi, id.] A. fakmu, and facmu, id.

Babatēġa, v. i., or a., variegated, versicoloured, as cloth: the formative prefix, ba, doubled; said to be denominative from tôġa (toġa), q.v., a versicoloured woven basket.

Bābu, s., d., voc., father: dd. āfa, āb, abāb, bāb.

Bāfa, s., a small separate house used only by women dwelling apart from men during menstruation, also at the time of parturi-From afa, to bear, tion.carry, c. pref. ba (for ma). See bäofa (d.), which is from ofa, d. for afa, bear, carry: bäofa, though etymologically the same as bafa, has a different meaning, no such custom as is implied by the bafa obtaining among the speakers who say 'baofa.' It denotes the act of menstruating, not the house for those menstruating.

Note.—In Ha. the house for menstruating women was called hale pea.

Bafanau, same as fanau, q.v. Bafano, or fafano, v., to wash the hands. See bano-li. [Sa. fafano, wash the hands and mouth. Fi. vuluvulu. wash the hands. See bulu-ni, bano-li, balo-ni, &c., infra.]

Bafatu, or fafatu, v. t., to trust in, confide in, rely upon.

See fatu.

Bağa, v. c. See bağan i, to feed, charge, fill;

Baġan i, v. c., to feed, lit. make to eat, baġan ià sa, lit. make him eat it; caus. prefix ba, and kan, to eat. With the n elided baġa, as baġa nata, feed anyone, baġa sisi, load a gun; baġa, absolute, as i baġa (of a pig or a fish), to wander about in search of food; faġa (of fire), nakabu faġa, a burning or devouring fire, i faġa, it burns, devours, or eats (of fire, and of an ulcer); nafaġa, a bribe, nafaġafaġa, a bait. [Fi. vakani-a, Sa. fafaġa, feed, cause to eat, Mg. mamahana, to feed, also load (a gun), caus. pref. ma, and fahana.] See kan-i. Baġau-nabau; the feeder of the oven with the slain; baġa, ua, nabau.

Baga, s. See bago, a hill. d.

maġo, d. beġa.

Baġa, s., d. for maġa, the banyan tree.

Baġabaġa, v. i. See baġo-bago.

Baġarai, v. c., to dry, lit. make dry: from ġara, kara, dry. [My. maġariġ kan, id.]

See ġara, kara.

Bagaranu ai, den. v. c.; from ran, c. art. niran, fresh water; to wash with fresh water after bathing in the sea: d. bakanaru-mi, id. (naru, transposed for ranu). faalanu, to wash off salt water, ps. faalanumia; with 'i, faalanuma-'i.] See ran, s. Baği, v., to mount, climb, ascend (a hill, ladder, tree. ship, &c.); may also have the prep. ki before the object, as baği nakasu, or baği ki nakasu, climb the tree, baği, to go up, ascend, baği ki, go up on. Mg. akata, miakata, id., My. mig'ah. id., Ma. piki, to climb, pikitia.] A. 'aka', (4), to ascend.

Baġobaġo, v. i., or a., to be crooked. [Sa. pio, piopio, id., Ma. piko, bent, Mg. vukuka, crooked, My. beġ'ok, Ja. beġ'oġ, crooked.] H. hafak, S. hpak, A. 'apaka, to turn, &c., H. hapakpak, crooked, twisted. Hence Baġobaġoa, a., crooked, twisted: -a, a. ending; and Baġobaġōra, a., id.: a. ending -ra.

Bago, v., to be behind, i bago asa, he is behind it, as i bago nakoro, he is behind the fence (of a man behind a fence put up about his house to shut out the public view), i bago nafanua, it is behind the land (of a ship taking shelter under the lee side of an island in a hurricane). The word bago na, s., denotes the heel; the lower part of the back (syn. bisi na); bago nafanua, west end of an island, is the opp. of meta nafanua, east end of island (fore-end and heelend); bago na kelu, or baga na kelu, is the after part of an army that (kelu) goes in a circuitous course to surprise the enemy—and in all these senses the word in one dialect is pronounced mago na. The hills behind the villages. or not far back from the shore, on which there is no jungle, are called beġa, baġa, d. mago. This word is much names of places, used in points or heels of the land: thus Bagona is the name of west end of Deception Island, Havannah Harbour, and Bago, of the long point of land on the south of Fila harbour; Selimbaga, a place on Tongoa, &c. The end of anything, as the land, a stick, &c., is called meta-bago na, lit. the eye or point of its [TaSa. pigo na, end or extremity.] H. 'akab, A. 'akaba, to be behind, to come from behind: cf. A. ma'kob: H. 'akeb, the heel, A. 'akib', id., and the end of a thing: H. 'akeb, also denotes the extreme rear of an army, and 'akob, a hill, acclivity (A., E., id.).

Bago na, s., d. mago na, heel of foot; back part of body; hinder end (of an island) in opp. to meta na, fore end (i. e. east); hinder part of an army; an end (of anything); end of a house (the Efatese house has two ends), hence, inside of a house at the far ends, and then generally in one d. inside (of a house); end, i. e. bottom, of a hole or deep pit. See preceding word and mago.

Baġote-fi, v. c., to buy it, purchase it, lit. to break, separate (from its former owner) a thing, d. bakotufi. See koto.

Bagokot, or bagot, v. reduplicate of foregoing.

Bā ġote-fi, v., to break a thing (as a stick) by treading (see bà) on it. See koto.

Bai, v., d. bā, to come from (a place): ba v., and prep. i., d. bā ki, id., has prep. ki.

Bai, or bei, v. dd. bi, mi, to be, as, i bai fatu, it is a stone. See bi; and bà.

Baibai, or baibaia, v. i., or a., to be large, wide; said to be d. for bebea, q.v.

Bai na, s., d. for bau na, the head. See bau na.

Bai, s., d., c. art. nabai na, feathers or covering of a bird: d. mau na. [Ml. dd. bai, moe, id.] Same word as preceding: see bau.

Bai! baibai! interj., surprise and pleasure. [Mg. baba, id.]

A. bah'i bah'i, id.

Baina, v., to go there (away from speaker): d. for binēn': d. syn. banotu, q.v. Baina, is ba ina.

Baka, d. sometimes for baki, v.. ba, to go, and prep. ki (rarely ka), to, as i baki nalia uane, he goes to that place.

Baka, or faka, caus. prefix. [Fi. vaka, Sa. faa, Ma. whaka, Mg. aha, maha, faha, mpaha.] vide Ch. IV.

Baka roa, v. i., to jerk over to the other side (a canoe sail): boka-ti, to strike, and roa, to turn round.

Bāka, s. a fence, a fence of stone or wood made for protection or fortification in war. [Ha. pa, a fence, Ma. pa. a stockade, fortified place, pā, to block up, obstruct.] H. ma'āķeh, a parapet (surrounding a flat roof) to hinder one from falling off, from 'aķah, A. 'aķa', to hold back (and 'āķa), hinder, impede.

Baka-si, d. transposed for kaba-si, koba-si, to follow.

Bakabase, v. c., d. syn. c. suer i, to scold, vituperate: from base, id.

Bakabātě, or bakafātě, v. c., make the fourth time: from bātě, 4. [Mg. fahefaṭa, the fourth.]

Bakabulu-ti, v. c., nearly the same as the simple verb bulu-ti, q.v.

Bakabunuti, bakamānu, &c. See bakaralima.

Bakafakal i, v., to console, comfort: reduplicate from bakal i, id., q.v.

Bakafia, d. bakafisa, v., make how many times? make how often? See bisa.

Bakafiti, v., fold the arms across, hands on sides (fiti na): baka for kafa, kafi-ti, see fakarogo; lit., cover the sides.

I. Bakal i, v. c., to soothe, comfort, take tender care of (as of a child, or one in sorrow): see kal. A. 'agila, to soothe, comfort; E. 'egal, a child, Ef. kal, fakal, and d.kekel, id., usually vocative, and much used in proper names of children, as kal nagusu, child of the point (promontory), kal, or fakal tamate, child of peace, &c.

II. Bakal i, v. c., to sharpen (as a knife, axe, &c.) H. kalal, Pilpel, to sharpen; to move to and fro, A., E., id. See makal, sharpened, sharp, kala, little, &c. H. kalal, to be light, to be swift, fleet, to be diminished, little, so A. kalla, to be despised, H. kalon, shame, pudenda, Ef. makal. See Ch. III.

Bakalailai, v. c., nearly same as simple verb lailai, q.v., to be delighted.

Bakalarua, v. c., make the seventh time, or seven times. See larua, kalarua. [Mg. fahafitu, the seventh.]

Bakalatesa, v. c., make the sixth time, or six times. See latesa, kalatesa. [Epi vaari.]

Bakalatolu, v. c., make the eighth time. [Epi vaarolu.] See latolu.

Bakalifiti, v. c., make the ninth time. [Epi vakoveri.] See lifiti.

Bakàleba, v.c., make (himself) great, be proud: leba, laba.

Bakalima, v. c., make the fifth time, or five times. [Mg. fahadimi, the fifth.] See lima.

Bakamataku ki, v.c., to make afraid, to threaten, frighten: from mataku, to be afraid. [Mg. mahatahuṭa, My. manakuti, manakut kan, Sa. faamata'u.]

Bakamaturu ki, v. c., make to sleep, put to sleep: from maturu, to be asleep, to sleep. [My. manidor kan.]

Bakamauri, v. c., to make alive, save: from mauri, to be alive, live. [Sa. faaola, My. maġidupi, Mg. mameluna.]
Bakametà sa, v. c., to direct the eyes to, look at: a bakametà gu is, i bakameta nà sa, &c., seems to mean lit. I direct my eyes, make my eyes upon it, &c.: meta, or mita, q.v., v., and s. Bakamita, id.

Bakamirara. See mirara.

Bakanaru-mi, v. c., naru, transposed for ranu: d. for baġaranu a i.

Bakarairai, v. c. Nearly the same as the simple v. rairai, q.v.

Bakarau sa, v. c., divide it (among a number of persons), distribute it: from rau, q.v. Bākàroġo, v. c., make (himself) hear or obey, be humble, quiet, meek; from roġo, q.v. Bakāru. See bukaru.

Bakarua, v. c., make the second time, or two times. Seerua, karua. [Mg. faharua, the second.]

Bakaralima, or bakarualima, v. c., make the tenth time, or ten times. [Epi vaduŭlimo.] See rualima, or ralima, karalima.

Note. — The caus. prefix baka may be attached to the word or words denoting any number, as bakabunuti (bunuti, 100), bakamānu (mānu, 1000), make the hundredth, thousandth time, or one hundred, one thousand times, bakaralima lima (ralima lima, 50), bakamanu ralima (manuralima, 10,000), make the fiftieth, ten thousandth time, or fifty or ten thousand times, &c.

Bakas, or bokas, s., c. art. nabakas, flesh; then, a pig (not a sow or a boar) specially reared and esteemed for its flesh. [Epi bukahi, a pig (not boar or sow), Fut. pakasi, a pig (gen. name), Ero. mpokas, a pig (gen. name), An. pigat', a pig (gen. name). A. manhus', having much flesh, fleshy, from naḥas'a, to denude a bone of flesh, to take the flesh from off a bone.

Bakasa, v. c., bakasa ki, or bakasa i, to paint (as the face), hence nafakasa, s., a festival (adornment); to clean, make clean (as a place), to clear, make clear. [Fi. ai qisa, paint for the face.] A. nakas'a, to paint, to colour; to clear, make clear (as a place): bakasa, dd. (trspd.) bisaki, biski.

Bakasau, v. c., dd. bisakau i, bisaui, bisaku-ti, to make or build up a fire, lit., make to join on to, i. e., one stick to another, to make a bigger fire. (By joining together the smouldering ends of two fire sticks and then joining on to them the ends of other sticks a fire is built up.) The initial bĭ, or ba, in this word is the causative prefix: the simple verb is sĭku-ti, q.v.

Bakaser i, v. c., to loosen or remove a tabu (as from a place), make common or nontabu. See ser i.

Bakasere, v. c., to treat kindly carefully providing for, to entertain hospitably. See sere, ps. masere.

Bakasikai (d. fakasikitika), v. c., make the first time, or one time. [Mg. faharaika, the first.] See sikai, kasikai. Bakasiki-ti, v. c., to tie or bind fast the edge of a mat where the plaiting ceases: see siki-ti.

Bakasoro-fi, v. c., make to burn: from soro, v. i., to burn, q.v.

Bakatabtabu ki, v. c., make tabu, or declare tabu. See tabu. [To. fakatabu, to interdict.]

Bakatar i, v. c. Nearly the same as the simple verb tar i, q.v.

Bakatau, v. c. Nearly the same as the simple v. tau, q.v.

Bakateba, v. c., caus. form. to watch, to look out or watch for, as bakateba nabai saki ni aliati, watch or look out for the rising flush of dawn. [Sa. tepa, tetepa, to look towards.] H. sapah, to look out, view, watch. look out for.

Bakatilas i, v. c., to suffice: from tilas i, q.v., and see also the simple v. las i.

Bakatogo i, v. c., d. for Bakatoko i, v. c.. to make a show or feint of striking or pushing. See the simple v. togo-fi.

Bakatolu, v. c., make the third time, or three times. [Mg. fahatelu, the third.]

Bakatuai, v. c., to prolong, put off, delay. [Sa. fa'atuai, id.] See tuai.

Bakau, or bakauĕ, v. c., to say or shout auĕ! auĕ! or au! au! to make a howling or barking noise in a well-known Efatesewayexpressive of joy, triumph. or derision: the howl or cooee repeated several times, ending in the loud jerking or barking utterance of au! au! H. 'avah, to howl, cry out, A. 'aui, to howl, as a dog, wolf, or jackal.

Bakauli, v. c., to make like, imitate, to be like to, resemble: the simple v. is auli (dd. uli, oli), or uli, q.v.

Bakauti, v. c., d. buti, q.v., make an end, finish. [Fi. vakaoti, To. vakaochi. Sa. fauoti, Ma. whakaoti.] H. kaseh, an end, kasah, A. kas'a', 2, to finish: for k to ', v. Ch. II.

Bake, d. baku, v., to search, to search for (as to search for insects in the head, or for fleas and such like in mats or cloth). S. bka', or bko', to search.

Baki, v., to go to (a place). ba, to go, and ki, prep. 'to': d. be' (nearly beh), id.

Baki, prep., to, unto. See Ch. V, Prepositions.

Bāki, v., d., to go or come from (a place), dd. bā, bai: bā, to come, and prep. ki (to), from. For bā see bai, bā, bà.

Bakē, d. for baki se, go where? bakē is for baki ē, go to where? se, d. ē, where? See Ch. II.

Bakilina, v., to go or come into the light, i. e., into view, to appear: baki, go or come to, and lina, light. See lina, d. ali.

Bakitakita, d. for makitakita, q.v.

Bako, s., shark, d. baké. [Malo bagio, Epi bekeu.] Der. uncertain.

Bākor, v.. d., to come in front of, to appear: bā, to come, and koro, q.v.

Bakotu-fi, v. t., d. for bagote-fi, q.v.

Baku, v., d. for bake, q.v.

Baku, v. t., to pluck out, baku sa, pluck it out, ps. mafaku, plucked out, tafakaka, d. tafaġka, (i. e., tafak'ka), v. i., to burst, explode. [Sa. fa'i, pluck, extract, mafa'ifa'i, extracted, Ma. whakiwhaki, and kowhaki, to pluck, My. kopak, to burst, break out, Mg. vaki, burst out, mitifaka, to burst, mitefuka, to sound (as the explosion of a gun).] A. faka', to burst, to pluck out, tafaķķa', 5, to be burst.

I. Bala, v. i., to be smooth. Sa. molemole, lamolemole, id.,

Tah. moremore, smooth, without branches, as a tree; even, without protuberances; also, hairless, more, v. i., to drop or fall, as pia leaves when ripe, Ma. moremore, v. t., to make bald or bare; strip of branches, &c.] A. māra, n. a. maur, to fall off (as wool or hair from the body, feathers from an arrow); to pluck out or off (as hair, wool).

Bāla, i bi bāla, it is smooth, level. See preceding word.

Bala-ġara, v. i., d., to be poor. lit. smooth (or bare) dry, bare and dry: ġara, or kara, dry,

q.v.

11. Bala, v. i., often pronounced bela, d. bola, to incline to: be close to: i bala nakasu. inclines and keeps close to a tree (hiding), balà sa, inclines and keeps close to it, bala-afi nafanua, hugs the land (a ship), (see af i); bala is close to (as a man to a tree, or one board to another), hence to be stuck and inclining from side to side to get through (as a man in the vines of the jungle, or in any confined place, as a narrow door; a bone in the throat, or the branches of a fallen tree in those of another); balatagoto, or bala-goto, incline across, hence cross, a., nakasu balatagoto (see goto), a cross beam, or cross stick, hence fāla, a ship's yards (because they are fixed across or on the mast), and sticks fastened across or on a tree for a ladder to climb it are called fala, or balafala, and bala-ġalu (see ġalu), is the upper cross board at the end of a canoe; fāla, also denotes a litter, so called because the sticks forming it are fastened across or upon each other. Sa. pilia, to be entangled (as one tree falling against another, &c.), pilipili, be near, pipili, a cripple, Ma. piri, to stick, come close, keep close, skulk, hide oneself. pipiri, come to close quarters, join battle, Ha. pili, to cleave to (as to a friend). A. māla, n. a. mayl', to incline, incline to, bend or lean to (something); to be close or near to; to have a part of the body (vitio naturae) inclined or bent to one side (used also of a building leaning to one side); 3, make a hostile incursion. Nm. miel, v. i., slant, deviate, incline (towards), mail (gerund), slope, inclination, propensity.

III. Bala, s., the belly, usually pronounced bele, q. v.; balau, for bala am' (like uateau for d. uateam'), the inside of a man, or of anything (hollow or womb of the am', abdomen), baloa (ending a), a hollow, a valley, balua, a hollow or hole in a rock, falea, a cave, balakutu na, the hollow at the back of the head (lit. the hollow of his kutu, q.v.), baloleba, the stomach (lit. the big hollow), bile na, or bela na, his mother (lit. his womb, the womb that bore him), nafelak, a family, tribe, bela-ki, to gird (oneself), to tie or fasten under one's girdle or belly, to take with one, to conceive (a woman), bela, source, belu, uelu, to hide, be hidden, to be doubled up, tabelu, doubled up, bent. Ma. wharua, a., concave, s., valley, whawharua, s., mother, whare, a house, people of a house, wharetagata, connection by marriage, Tah. fare. a house, furefure, a., hollow. as the stomach for want of food. H. beten, the belly, the inside, the womb. mother, batan, properly to be empty, hollow, vain, i.q. batal (see balo infra), A. batn', belly, inside or middle of anything, pl. connections by marriage, a tribe (small). batana, to have the belly distended with food, to be intimate and familiar. to be hid, 4, to fasten the girth under the belly (of a beast of burden), to cover. hide, 5. to put a thing under one's belly, S. btan, to conceive, have in the womb, A. batuna, to have a great belly.

Balāf i, v. t., incline to keeping near to: bala II., and āf i.

Balagote-fl, v. t., incline (or bend) across it: bala II., and goto, or koto.

Balafis i, v. t., hug (as a ship hugging the coast): bala II., and afis i.

Balaġa-ti, v. c., to lift up (as the cover from anything); and Balaġa-saki, v. c., lift up, stripping off (as the husk of reeds): Hence

Balaġa na, s., husk, scale, or similar thing that is or may be lifted up from what it covers or encloses: syn. laġalaġa na. See laġa-ti, laġa.

Balafalà sa, v., to be entangled (as one tree falling against another). [Sa. pilia, id.] The radical idea is seen in bala to be entangled or stuck in the throat (a bone); the bone inclines to one side and so sticks. See bala 11.

Balafala, s. See fala, s.

Balas, c. art. nabalas, i.e., naba or nababalas, big hollow; nabua nabalas, the road of the big hollow or gorge behind Utaon.

Balau na, s., the belly, inside; inside, middle of anything: bala III., and au for amo: balau is, lit., the hollow or middle or inside of the belly. Balaus i, v. t., to go through or along a thing lengthwise, not to go across it (balagotefi): bala II., and us i, to follow, go through or along (as a road, &c.).

Balea, s., d. for baloa, valley: bala III., and a. ending a. Balebalea, and belebelea, full of hollows, bellied, large: bala III., and a. ending a. [Ha. pele, to have a large belly; to be large.]

Bale-si, v. t., d., to husk, strip off (as the envelope of sugar cane); and Bala-saki, v.t., id. A. wafala, to decorticate.

Balĭ, v. i., to fast;

Bali ki, v. t., to fast from (a thing);

Balifali, v. i., to fast (many people). [Mg. fadi, id.] A. 'abala, or 'abila, to abstain; to be devoted to the worship of God, 2, to mourn (the dead).

Balĭkau i, v. t., to go or step over: ba, to go, and lĭkau, or lakau, q.v.

Balo, v. i., a., ad., to be empty, vain, null and void, to no purpose or effect: i balo, it is empty, nasuma balo, an empty house, lo or te balo, an empty, i.e., a worthless thing, a trifle, nothing, i toko balo, he remains in vain, to no purpose, for nothing, idle; d. mole; hence sera te balo, or sera te mole, to deem worthless, vain, to despise. [Fi. wale, uselessly, for nothing, idly, Ha. wale, Sa. vale. A. bațala, n. a. buțl', or botl', to be vain, nothing, to no end or purpose, in vain, for nothing, idle, H. batal, to be empty, vacant, idle (cognate batan, bala III.), E. batala, to be empty, vain.

Bālo, prep. or ad., d., above.

up: see (b') prep., Ch. V, and ulua, v. [Malo aulu (a, prep. 'on'), (Fut. weiluġa, see elaġ, infra, Ha. maluna, above, up, ma, prep., and luna, Ef. elaġ).] Amh. balai above, and exactly as Ef. bālo ki (above to), balai ka, as above his house, or above anything: the prep. ba, E. ba, on, and lai, the upper part, high, A. 'alu, 'alo, upper part.

Note.—Compound preps. or ads. of this kind consist of a preposition prefixed to another word, which may be an ad., s., or a. used substantively (as English above.aboard, around, i. e., on-bove. on-board, on-round): thus Ef. elaġ, d. bālo, Sa. iluġa, Ha. maluna, Malo aulu, Amharic balai, above, on high, on the upper side or part, all consist of the preps. e, i, or a, q.v., or ba, b', or ma, q.v., and words signifying high, up, or the upper part and side, for which see ulua, elag, lu, laġa, infra.

Balo-ni, v. t., dd. balo-si, or bilo-si, bulo-si, bulu-gi, bunu-li, bulu-ni, bano-li, to wash (anything) to wash (by rubbing): fafano, or bafano, q.v., to wash the hands. [Sa. fufulu to rub, to wash, My. basuh, Mg. uza, to wash.] A. maṣa, n. a. mauṣ' to wash; to rub with the hand.

Baloa, s., c. art. nabaloa, a valley. lit. what is hollow or concave, -a being the a. ending. [Ma. wharua, a., concave, s., valley.] See bala Baloleba, s., the stomach: balo, cavity. See bala III., and leba, laba, big.

Balōtu, v. i., d., to go there, or thither (away from the speaker), dd. banōtu, bĭnōtĕ, bĭnāṣ, nēt, to set out, go away(from the speaker),hence a common word of farewell to one departing is, Ku balotu, you are going away, to which the one departing replies, Ku mato, you remain. See banotu.

Balua, s., a hole or hollow in a rock: see bala III.

Balu-saki, v. t., to paddle (a canoe), row (a boat);

Balu-sa, v., to paddle, row, balusà sa, paddle or row with it (a paddle or oar). [Epi dd. mbeluo ka, mbahua kin, v. t., An. ahelet', to paddle, to row, to sail, Am. fuloh, to paddle, Fi. ai vot'e, an oar, vot'e, to paddle, to row, vot'e-taka, v. t. (= balu-saki), Pa. palusa, Ml. d. masu, Ml. A. sua, Malo mo sua, Ta. asua, Fut. sua, Mg. vui, act of rowing, mivui, to row, vuizina, rowed, fivui, an oar, My. d'ayug, an oar, d'ayug, bârd'ayug, to row.]

Note. — Balu-saki is the same as vot'e-taka. The verb 'to row' is balu, vot'e, (m)-beluo, (m)bahua, vui, masu, and without the preformative b' (v'. m'), asua, sua, d'ayuġ, and the 1 in balu, t' in vot'e, h in mbahua, s in sua, d in dayug, all are variations of the same original consonant which is elided in vui. word for 'oar', ai vot'e, fivui, is in Ef. uose, d. uohe (wose, wohe), Fut. foi. In Fut. the connection between sua, to paddle, and foi, an oar or paddle, is not so apparent as that between Ml. P. su, to paddle, and bos, a paddle, because in foi, as in vui (= Fi. vot'e) the s has been elided; and the connection between Ef. balu, to paddle, and uose, a paddle, is not so apparent as that between Epi mbahua, to paddle, and voho, a paddle, Epi d. bahua, to paddle, boho, a paddle. See uose, infra. A. gadafa, kadafa, (or 'at'afa), Amharic kazaf (or 'azaf), to propel with oars, to row, Mod. A. kaddaf, or 'addaf, part. mo'addif (anc. mo'addif, or mo'azzif, cf. vot'e, bose, uose, vui, foi). Sua is without the preformative, cf. 'azafa, 'addaf: balu seems to have the same prefix as Sa. pale, to row, without which is Sa. ālo (ps. alofia), and alo-fa'i, to paddle, row, and with another verb, Sa. taualo, to row, to keep on rowing. As to the prefix in balu compare that in batok, batu, q.v. Balu na, or balu na, s., relative, friend; a brother's brother. or sister's sister. A.

ma'lai, helper, relative, friend, associate, walai to be closely related, to be a friend, helper. Balu-naki, v. t., to be a balu to a brother or to a sister.

Balu gor i, v. t., help, befriend, take the part of. See gor i.

Paluk, s., c. art. nabaluk, an inlet or small bay, a cul de sac: ba, and luku: v. baba, and luku.

Bamasokò sa, v.t., come upon, find: ba, go, and masoko, q.v.

Bamau-ri, v. t., d. bamau sa, come upon, find it; ba, go, and mau (sa), q.v.

Bamau, v., to reach to, or terminate at, as i bamau nalia uane, it reaches to, or stops or terminates at, that place; hence, absolute, i bamau, it terminates, stops, or ceases: ba, go, and mau, q.v.

Bamu na, s., the shoulder blade, shoulder, d. bau na. Tah. papa, the shoulder blade. See baba, a board. Bamu na. s., d. for babu na.

q.v.

Bān, v.. d. for mān; ānĭ, q.v., c. preformative m.

Ban, v. i., for bano.

Ban, s., and baniben, s., armlet, worn between the elbow and the shoulder, and woven so that the outer surface consists of different coloured beads (carved out of shells) arranged in regular figures. [Malo ban, Epi beni.] See banu, binu, banaga.

Banĭ, v., to act violently, to be hot, angry, to oppress, as ru banĭ kiena, they violently destroy or take away a man's property (from his house or plantation), as in time of war, or as a punishment for crime; baniban us i, follow him, acting oppressively, persecute him. See bani a, infra.

Banako, v. t., dd. binako, bunak, to steal, banakò sa, and banak ia, d. bunako n', steal it. [Ma. whanako, whenako, Fi. butako, Ero. prok, Ml. fenake, My. choloġ, Ja. ñoloġ, Mg. halaṭa, c. pref. maġalaṭa, id.] A. saraḥa, n. a. sarḥ', Mahri heriq, heliq, and desoq, to steal.

Banaga, s., mats, d. banu; so called because they are plaited, see binu.

Banei, v. i., to come here (to the speaker); same as banimai, or bano-mai. [Ml. P. vine, id.]

Banei, s., d. bane, volcano: see bani a, v. t. [Pa. ba-nei, id.

Bani, or ban i, v. t., to burn; to roast, to cook by roasting on the fire; ben or fen cooked or roasted, dd. beni a, banu sa, banu-s. See banei; [Sa. faafana, to warm up food, mafanafana, to be warm, To. mafana, heat, warmth, Ma. mahana, warm, Ta. mahana, warm, the sun, a day, Ja. panas, hot, warm, panaskan, to heat, Mg. fana, vua-fana, warm (applied to food cooked and warmed the second time), mafana, mafanafana, warm, hafanana, s., heat, manafana, and mahafanafana, v. t., to heat, mihafana, v. i., to be hot, grow hot. A. wamiha, to be hot, n. a., wamat, wamhat.

Banımai, v. i., to come here (to the speaker), opp. to banotu, go there (away from the speaker): see banomai. [Epi mbinime.] See bano, and mai.

Bano-li, d. bălo-si, v. t., d. for balo-ni, q.v.

Bano, v. i., to go, go off, or away. [Malo vano, Epi mbano, mbene, Ma. whano, Meli fano, Fut. fano, Ta. uven, Anapan.] H. panah, to turn the back, turn to go. See Ch. III. f.

Banomai, banamai, or banimai, v. i., to come here or hither, dd. ba bē, umai, mai, bē: bano mai; with ba, for bano, corrupted to u, umai; and, without bano (or ba), mai, d., or bē, d., as a verb in the sense of the full expression, bano-mai, or babe. See ba, bano, supra; and under the following word. [Meli fano mai.] For mai, see bà, bā, to come, supra. Mai is for bai, ba, for which also is d. bē: d. bā bē= bano mai.

Banōtu, sometimes pronounced balotu, v. i., to go away (in a direction from the speaker), to go there or thither, dd. bǐnōtǐ, bǎnāṣ, bǐnāṣ, binēn, baina, and nōtu, nēt. [Ma. whanatu, whano, and atu.] Bano, and atu. See Ch. III. f.

Note 1. Mai, or be, coming after a verb is an ad. or 'directive' signifying here, hither. [So in Fi., Sa., Ha., Tah., To., Ma.] Coming before a verb in Fi. it signifies to come, as au sa mai kauta, I have come to take; so in Ef. a mai buati, I have come to take: in two Ef. dd. a mai, a bē, I have come. So Mg. avi is also a verb signifying 'to come'. Before a noun or the ad. 'where', mai signifies 'from' in Fi., Sa., Ha, To. (mei, or me), Ef. (bai, bā, be), and Mg. (avi), thus Fi. maivei? Sa. maifea? Tah. mai hea? To. meife? or mefe? Ef. bā se? bai se? or bē sabe? Mg. avi aiza? from where? whence? The Mg. and Ef. are verbs—i bā se? avi aiza izi? he comes from where? In the other cases the mai, as in mai hea? is called a prep. Ef. i bā, or bai se? is, literally, he comes (from) where? and in one dialect the prep. ki = from, is expressed as, i bā ki ē? he comes here (or hither) from where? In Fi. mai is also a prep. signifying in, at.

Note 2.—Notu, or net (or atu), in two dialects is a verb (nōtu, nēt), with the same meaning as banōtu, for which it is used, as dd. mai and bē for banomai, bābē. For notu, or nēt, see Ch. III. f. In Ef. atu, is not used separate from bano.

Bānu, s., d. panaga. q.v. Banu sa, and banus. See bani a, to roast.

Bão, v. i., d. for mā, mān, bā, bān, bōn. See anĭ, v. i.

Bäofa, s., d., menstruation, i su baofa meamea (said of a woman menstruating while still suckling a child): bafa.

Bara, v. i., to be burned (as food in cooking): see būria, d. bouria, or bauria, tabara.

[Ma. wera, burnt, hot, and tawera, hawera, s., heat, pawera, hot, S. vevela, to be hot, ps. velasia, vela, done, well cooked, My. parik, marak, to kindle, set on fire.] H. ba'ar (Ch. bĕ'ar, to burn, Pael, to kindle), to burn up, to kindle, to be burned.

Bara, v. i., or a., to be barren, d. oro. E. 'abara, to be barren, 'ebur, barren.

Barab, v. i., or a., long, high (as a hill). [Malo barauo, Fi. balavu, Ml. U. periv, long, also wide.] Ef. dd. baraf, baram, barau, birerife (see laba, leba), prop. extended, cf. Ml. U.

Baraf, d. barab.

Baragai, d., transposed for bagarai.

Bara-ti, v. t., to beat. [Fi.

waro-t'a, My. palu, Ja. pala, Mg. veli. A. wabala, to beat.

Bara-ti, v. t., to bind together. [My. barot, to gird, to bind round.] H. hibar, to connect, join together. See farati, infra, H. hoberet, a joining.

Barabara, v. i., to cluck (of a hen): cf. meromero.

Baram, d. barab.

Bara-tuna, s., d. for bura.

Barau, d. barab.

Bārau, v. i., to reproach, speak loudly reproaching. See rau. Barě, v. i., to be moved, move about, bare ki, v. t., to move, agitate, barefare ki, id. A. farěfara, to move, agitate.

Bare, or barea, v. i., or a., d. uorea, or orea, to be blind (a man), to have a white speck (of an eye whose sight is lost), to be dirty looking, like a sightless eye (of half-raw food). [Ml. A. bar, U. oror, Epi mbili.] H. 'avar, E. 'awir, to be blind; and

Baretau, a., black and white spotted (as a pig), also a yam that has been peeled, or a tree that has been barked, i bi baretau: tau, white, and bare, for which see the following word; and

Barea, or borea, d., v. i., or a., black, dirty coloured. [My. biru, blue, TaSa. berika, black.]

Baro, v. i., or a., to be heedless, taliga baro, deaf, d. na baro, one deaf, barobaro, to be heedless, indifferent, tabaro, to be heedless, refractory, lawless, bārua, free from, as i tumana bisa bārua ki nia, he declares himself free from it (as a crime), marua, to cease, leave off, lo bārua ki nia, see the nakedness of someone, literally, or as to his poverty or being devoid of food, &c. baror, būra. H. para, to loose, let go, make naked, pāru'a, lawless, unbridled, A. fara a, to empty, leave off, be free from (as free from cares or labour, careless, idle), 5, tafarra a, to be idle.

Baro, c. art. nabaro, s., one deaf.

Baro-si, or baru-si, v. t. This verb was used thus in the old days: to fell a big tree they burned round the base of it, then ru baru-si, or baru lu, namalifera, that is, smashed, broke, shaved, chipped, cut, or scraped off the charred wood; then burned new exposed surface again, smashed or cut off (with the karau tare) charred parts again, and so on till the tree fell; to rub, grate, as one branch of a tree on another, or anything on anything. On E. Mai barusi naniu= Ef. koi naniu (see koi). farofaro, that which cuts, shaves, rasps off, barobaroa (a. ending -a), fit for rasping off (as sandpaper or a grindstone). [Fi. varo-ta, to file, saw, or rasp, Sa. valu, scrape out nuts (= Ef. koi), to scrape (as taro), ps. valua, Ma. waru, to scrape, shave, cut (the hair), Ha. walu, to scratch, rub, rasp, polish, Tah. varu, to shave, to bark a tree, to scrape, My. paras, to shave, to pare close to the surface, Mg. fara, scrape, scratch, make smooth.] A. faraka, Nm. to rub, grate.

Baroaki, d. See boroaki.

Barobaroa, a. See under baro-si.

Baror, s., one careless, heedless, lawless, wicked, foolish. See baro.

Barobaro, v. i., or a. See under baro.

Bārua, v. i., or a., made naked, devoid of, clear or free from. See baro.

Barua, or uarua, v. i., or a., fat, big, large. [Mg. baribari, bari, large, full, well made, Fi. vora, to grow fat or stout.] H. bara', to grow fat, bari', fat, A. wara', to be fat.

Barubaruta, a., fat; ending -ta: barua.

Barubarutena, a., fat; ending -tena: barua.

Ba-si, v., go upon, tread upon, basi namatuna, tread upon something: ba, to enter. [Fi. va-t'a.] E. Ahr.

Basa, to speak. See bisa.

Base a, v. t., to break off (as a branch from a tree), to break off with a snap or jerk, basu, id., mafàsu, d. moàs (mowàs), broken off, þase-raki, takes a different object, as base nara nakasu, break off the branch of a tree, base-raki na-usu, break off from a reed (the husk or covering, so as to make it bare), basebase-raki nia, id., basu-li a, to detach, break off, tabasuli, detached, broken off, separated. [Fi. basu-ka, or -raka, to break, also to open one's eyes or mouth, basi-a, nearly syn. c. basu-ka. Sa. fati, to break off, ps. fatia. A fas's'a, to break off, fassa, detach, shiver off, H. paşah, q.v., to distend, open (the lips), A. fașa, to separate, detach (as flesh from a bone).

Basē, v. t., c. verb. suf., scold, vituperate, rail at, d. syn. suer ia: bakabase, id. A. nabaza, to reproach, blame, rail at.

Basiu, s., a bone piercer. See siu.

Baso i, v. t., to pierce. See sui. [Fi. veso-ka and sua-ka.]
Bastak, v., d. for bātaka: basi, taka.

Bastufi, v. t., d., to follow, to be like: basi, and tufi. A. tabi'a, to follow.

Basu-li. See basĕ a.

Bātaka na, v. t., to be like, equal to, sufficient for (bastufi, and mautaka, nearly syn.): bā, q.v., and taka, like, similar to.

Batako na, or batoko na, s., the body, d. mole na. [Ta.

buti, My. bataġ, Mg. vatanā.]
A. badano, the body.

Bāte, v., d. for bātu, q.v.

Bātĕ, num., four. [Mg. efaṭa, My. ampat, Sa. fa.] A. arba'aṭ', four.

Batĭ-ġāt, and d. batĭ-ġaut, s., a thorny plant, with crooked, grasping thorns, like teeth: for ġaut, see under ġau, taġau.

Bati-rik, s., mosquito: bati, and rik, q.v. Lit. small-tooth.

Bat i, or bati, v. t., to do, make, work at; afiti, q.v., slave. [My. buat, to do.] S. 'bad, to do, to work, work at, make, Ch. 'abad, slave.

Bātīk, d. uārīk, v. i., or a., few, to be few. See tik, or, rik.

Batĭra, s., precipice, rugged declivity:

Batībatīra, a., rugged and precipitous: syn. na tiroa. See tiro, tiroa.

Bàtok, v. i., d., to remain: toko, q.v.

Bàtu, v. i., d., to remain: tu, q.v.

Batu, s., na batu, an adult, young man. A. fatiy', adult, fata', young man.

Bātu, v., d. bate, to close up the roof by weaving thatch on the ridge-pole: na fātu, the ridge-pole. [Epi bofujo, v., id. Ma. whatu, to weave, Sa. Tah. fatu, to plait, interweave.] H. 'abat, to interweave, 'abot, wreathen work.

Bàtua na, s., the knee: prob. bau (q.v.), the head, and tua, leg. [Ml. A. lua, leg, mbulua, knee, Ml. P. and Malo bau, knee.]

Bātua ki, v. t., to depart from (any thing or person): bā, to come, and tua ki, to place, lay down: lit. go laying down or leaving.

Bau na, s., d. for bamu na, q.v.

Bau, s., one slain, lit. head, skull.

Bau na, s., the head; a head or chief, specially, d. maternal uncle, that is, head of the family. [Malo batu, San Cristoval bau, head, Epi baru, Motu bara, Ml. karu, id. Tefate bau, v. t., to be above, over, surpass, bau goro, to be over, covering, tabau, id., to surpass in dignity, also mau, feathers on birds, and head ornament of feathers, bo (for bau), bo-fi, bobo-fi, to be above, over, to conquer, and bo goro. fara'a, to ascend, surpass or excel in dignity, overcome, conquer, have the head covered with hair, n. a. faru, summit, top, vertex, head or chief.

Bau lulu, s., a proud person, lit. high head: lu.

Baua, or uaua (waua), s., a pillow: preceding word and ending -a: also, v., to pillow one's head.

Bau-maso na, s., portion of the property of one deceased inherited by a member of the family: bau, and maso, q.v. For bau, see s. bausi.

Bau, v. t., to be above, over, surpass, i bau gor ia. See tabau.

Bau-si, or fau-si, v. t., to fasten together; to plait (a mat); bau rarua, fasten together (the parts of) a canoe; bau uago, fasten a pig to the carrying pole: ora naui i bau, the yam vine fastens on or round the stake; redup. bau-fau; bau-maso (maso a portion) the portion collected or fastened or gathered together, bau-terag ia, fasten —to dry it (as wet cloth), i.e. fasten it on something in the sun or before a fire. Sa. fau (Ma. hou), tie together, fasten by tying, ps. fausia, To. fau, fillet round the head, turban, Fut. fausia, to fasten, tie, Fi. vau-t'a, to bind together, Sa. fau-la'i, to be heaped up, to abound, Mg. felii, felizana, to tie, knot. A. habaka, to weave, bind, interweave. n. a. habikat'.

Bau gor i, v. t., to be above, over: tabau sa, to be above (as covering a thing), to be over, surpass him (in dignity or rank). See under bau.

Bäu or fäu, bäo or fäo, v. i., or a., new. [Malo baro, Ml.

mermer, Motu matamata, My. baharu, Sa. fou, Fi. vovou, vou, Mg. vau (havauzana), new.] A. maḥdut', part. of ḥadat'a, to be new, new. H. ḥadas', S. ḥdat', id., E. ḥadas, to renew.

Bauli, v. c., to buy by exchanging;

Baulu, or faulu, s., the thing given in exchange wherewith to purchase something, barter (wherewith to buy by exchanging). See aul i, ul i.

Bau-raģi, or bau-teraģi. See bau-si. Teragi is for re-raģi.

Baus i, and bausus i, v. t., to ask him (or her), bausus ià sa, ask him it (or about it):

Bausu ki, to inquire about (a thing), bausu baki, to inquire at (a person), to ask, to question (a person). See us ia.

Bauria, d. for būria, q.v. See bara.

Bea (kbe, or bwe), s. See nabea.

Be, d. mai, v., to come here, like mai, q.v.; also d. for bā, bai, to come or go from, as i bē sāb? he comes from where?

Bē è mia, v. t., to have it, i bē nalo, he has a thing, d. i bi è nia, he has it: bi è nia, be è nia. See bà.

Bē, or bea, dd. bei, mia (tiamia), v. i., or a., to precede, go before, be first, first. [Sa. mua, and mua'i, first, muamua, to go before, first, Lakon mo, Volow mag, Arag moana, first, Fi. mada, to precede. A. fuhat, mouth, entrance (as of a river), hence the first or foremost part of anything, Amh. pat, or fat, fore-part, and c. a. ending fataña, first. Be, d., a particle used after interrogatives, then, now, thus uā be? sa be (sāb)? where then? takana aga bat ia be? how shall I do it then (or now). In other dialects it is not used. H. 'epo', then, now, as ayeh 'epo', where then? cf. 'epoh (poh, here), where? how?

Bě, fě, conj., if, should; ku fě bano i fē uia, should you go it were well, i bě fano i bě uia, should (or if) he go it were well. [Ta. ip, Fut. pe, if.] Amh. ba, bě, if, should (repeated in each clause as in Ef., Isenberg's Amh. Gr., pp. 158-9).

Be a, or fe a, redup. befe, v. t., to read, also to count. A. faha, utter, pronounce, speak.

Be, or bea, redup. bebea, v. i., or a., to be great, wide extended. [Mg. be, great, large, Mota poa, Gao bio.] E. 'abya, or 'abia, to be great, wide, extended, 'abiy, great, large. Bebe, s., butterfly, H. 'up, (Pilpel) 'ib'eb, to flutter.

(Pilpel) 'ib'eb, to flutter.

Beġa, d. baġa, q.v., a hill.

Bei ki, or bai ki, d. bi ki,
v. t., to show: d. syn. bisai
ki. [Tah. fai, divulge.] A.

baḥa, to appear, be shown, manifest, show, divulge, indicate; hence

Beifei ki, make manifest, indicate.

Bei, v., bei ki, to watch for (as for an animal to take or kill it). [Ma. whai, search for, spy.] A. ba"a (ba"ai), to watch, observe, look at, look out for, rush upon (the prey) from an ambush, seek, &c.

Bei, or bai, a thing hidden, concealed, i bi bei, it is hidden. See afa: cg. to the word there given are A. "abai, H. haba', A. h'aba', to hide.

Bei, d. for be, or bea, v. i., or a., to precede, first.

Bei, or bai, d. ba, prep. used mostly after verbs. connecting them with their object: lo, to look, lo bei a, look upon it, see it, taruba, to fall, taruba bei a, fall upon it, d. ro, to fall, ro bei a, to fall upon it; an, to be, to lie, an bei a, lie upon it; toko, sit, toko bei a, sit upon it; ba, to go, ba bei a, go or tread upon it (for instance, upon filth in the path, ba bai intai); the final i in bei or bai belongs to the pronoun of the third person. [Fi. vei, to, d. vu.] E. ba, A. fi, bi, H. b'. See Ch. V.

Bei, s., na bei saki ni aliati, the ascending rosy cloud of dawn, the dim cloudy or misty appearance preceding daylight at dawn: d. in tei saki, the rising rosy cloud. See tei.

Pefe, or fefe, s., oven cover (made of leaves); a covering trap (for catching fowls). [Sa. veve, oven cover of leaves.] See (poff), po.

Beigo, or baigo, s., a trumpet (shell); d. a kind of flute (cocoanut shell). [Sa. faġufaġu, a flute, To. faġofaġo, a flute blown by the nose.] A. baka, to blow a trumpet, ba'ku, or ba'ko, a trumpet.

Belaki, v. t., to gird (oneself), bela ki natali, put on one's girdle or belt; to tie or fasten anything or carry anything between one's girdle and the lower part of the belly': hence, to take with one, to have with one or attached to one. See bala III. The s. is nafelaki, d. nabulai, or balai, what is fastened, or girdle round the loins, girdle. Belaki, v. i., to be pregnant:

Belaki, s., c. art. nabelaki, d. syn. intamate, great heathen feast or series of feasts periodically held at every village, at which there was abundance of food, singing, and dancing: prob. so called because of the abundance of food, and friendly feeling: bala, III.

bala, III.

Běla, or fěla, if perhaps, if indeed, conj. bě, and ad. la.

Bela, v. i., to be smooth, level; bala r.

Bela, d. for bala II., q.v. Bela-tagot. See bala II. Bela-ġalu. See bala 11.

Bēle, s., the dead body of a pig: said to be so called because its belly swells. Bala III. [Ha. pele, to swell out, have a large belly.]

Bele na, s., the belly (or bălă na); the womb; a mother (dd. syn. eri na, raite na, susu na); a source, as bele ni torogo, the source or master of the torogo (a species of divination), also bele nai (naui) kanoa, the beginning or feast of the first ripe yams: bala III.

Belbel, d. for bile, bilebile, q.v.

Beles, s., c. art. nebeles, a dance in which the two parties keep meeting each other. See lasi, tilasi.

Bēn, or fēn, a., cooked, broiled, roasted: bani a.

Beni a, d. for bani a.

Bēn, d. for bān. See anī, to be, abide.

Belŭ ki, v. t., to fold, to double, tabelŭ (takwelŭ), folded, doubled;

Bēlu, v. i., to be doubled up, as it were folded together, hence to be hidden, to hide oneself, bēlu ki, to be hidden from, also uēlu.

Bèluuēlu, v. i., or a., folded, hence limp, doubled up, and beluueluki, a., doubled up, uneven, limp, limber, weak, flexible, tabelu. [Ha. pelu, to double over, bend, or flex, as a joint, to fold, doubled, folded over, pelupelu, to double over and over, doubled over, Sa. mapelu, mapelupelu, to bend, stoop, Fi. belu-ka, to bend, curve, kabelu, bent, Mg. valuna, folded, doubled.] See Bala, III.

Bera, or fera, v. i., to crumble, fall to pieces, berafēra, and taberafēra, to crumble, fall to pieces, be scattered about in fragments;

Bēra ki, v. t., to scatter about, tabēra ki, to scatter about, make to fall to pieces, and berafēraki, v. t., and taferafēra ki, v. t. [Fi. vuru-taka, to crumble, vuruvuru, v. i., to crumble, and S., a crumb, Mg. miveraberaka, v. i., to crumble, mahavera, v. t., My. âmbor, scattered, tabur, to be scattered.] E. farfur, a crumb, Talmud, parpor from H. pur, par, to break, Pilpel pirper, to break in pieces.

Bera-gi, v. t., d. bĭrĭġi, q.v.

Berakati, d. bera-ti, beratiki, v. used as ad., fully, thoroughly, accurately; also thus, tea berakati na, a thing fully his, a thing his own. See bura, d. biri, to be full, full. Berakati is by transposition for bera-taki.

Beru, v. d., syn. uma, to clear for a plantation, to cut down trees, cut or clear the jungle. [Mg. firala (fira, cut, ala, wood, forest), miferala, cut down wood in order to make some use of the ground, clear the forest, Ja. tipur, felling and burning the forest for cultivation, Ma. para, to cut down bush, clear. H. bere', Piel of bara', to cut down—'go into the wood and cut out room for thee there' Josh. xvii. 15.

Bēs, or bēsŭ, s., dry wood, hard dry wood used for fencing. A. yabīs', dry (wood), Nm. yabis, dry (wood).

Bēs, d. bēsŭ, s., a young pig whose mother is dead and which is brought up as a pet and is therefore tame and gentle; also a motherless child, syn. mitabusa. So called from being deprived of the mother's milk, and, as it were, arid. See preceding word and busa: A. yabisa, to be dry.

Bětà, or fětà, s., a tribe, a crowd or lot of people. or of animals, accompanying each other, as nabeta Togoliu, the tribe of Togolius, the Togoliu crowd, set, or lot; a shoal, nabeta naika, a shoal of fish. See bita, bitanaki, ta.

Beti, or bati, s., in proper names, as Togoliu beti, Metanibeti, &c.: beti seems a form of the word bati (see s.v. nabati na), and prob. means chief of the family, or shoot.

Beti, s., a kind of spear pronged with sharpened human bones, and feathered: called because SO pronged or toothed. See bati. Bi, v., d. for umba ki, q.v. Bi, or fi, dd. mi, bai, v., to be, only used before substantives, or words used as substantives, as i bi natamole, fatu, nakasu, it is a man, stone, tree, ru bi natamole uia, they are good men. [Epi supra. Bi è nia (d. bi è mia, or be e mia), v. t., to have; i bē nalo, or i bieni nalo, he has something. [With bieni, we should perhaps compare My. puñai, to possess.] See bà, mbe, re, to be, Ml. P. fe, A. mbe, be, U. vi.] See bā, supra.

Bi ki, v. t., d. for bei ki, q.v., to show.

Bi, s., only in meta-ni-bi, small openings in the ends of a house through which light comes, and which are left uncovered in thatching. Of same stem as preceding word, whence is A. buhu, a name of the sun, and buh, the uncovered part of a house or tent.

Bīa, or fīa, d. bīsa, or fīsa. [Malo, Santo, &c., visa], v. i., or a., how many? as ru bia? they are how many? natamole bia? how many men? And, not interrogatively, ru bia, they are so many, few, natamole bia, so many men. i.e. a few men. [Sa. fia, ad., how many? Fi. vit'a, ad., how many? Mg., ad., firi, how many? mifiri. v. i., into how many parts does it divide? The final part of bia or bisa, namely a or sa, is the interrogative pronoun. Compare as to the initial consonant, Tanna keva, d. kuva. See Ch. V. 5, and 4. Bi, or fi, reflexive verb preformative (ba, or baka, fa, or faka, being the causative verb preformative), as ru atu-gi, v. t., they smite him, ru flatu, v. r., they smite each other, they fight. auli a, v. t., exchange, replace, substitute for it, bauli a, or fauli a, v. c., nearly the same, make to take the place of, barter for it, ru biauli, v. r., they are bartering with each other, or they are replacing each other or taking each other's places (as men at the oar). [Sa. fe, 'the reciprocal particle', prefixed to verbs, Fi. vei, Mg. i, mi, reflexive verb preformative (Griffith's Mg. Gr., p. 112). See Ch. IV.]

Bia, bibia, d. biau, or beau, d. ia, s., a child, youth, bia kiki, little children, bia turiai, young men; and in names of children as bianaru, &c. [TaSa. pipi, infant, Ml. U. bibi, infant, Ml. A. pepe, infant, Mg. afi, zafi, My. piyud, piyat, piat, piyu, Ja. bayi, infant, child. A. (hafada), hafid, hafidat, ne-potes, offspring.

Biau, or beau, s., wave, waves. [Sa. peau, id., My. ombak, id.] E. ababi, A. 'ubāb', i.q. 'ūbab', flood, waves, from 'abba, to have broken waves (the sea). Hence

Biafiau (for biaufiau), v. i., to be raised in waves, rough (as the sea). [Sa. peaua, rough (as the sea), lit. wavy, full of waves; peau, and the a. ending a.]

Biauli, v. r., d. bioli, barter or exchange with each other; take each other's places, as men at the oar or other work, spell each other. See auli.

Bialo, v. r., to wave (beckoning); reflexive of alo-fi, q.v. Bib, s., d. for baba, a board.

Bibisinu, v. i., to ring, sing (of the ears): sinu; bibi, is the preformative bi doubled. Bibe, v. i., or a., for bebea.

Bibila, v. i., or a., big, great: redup. of bila, q.v.

Bīfera ki, v. t., to show by a fera (or omen): fera.

Bigo. See buigo.

Bikutu ki, v. t., speak to each other (against someone in his absence); decide about (someone). See kutu ki.

Bila, v. i., shine, lighten, gleam, flash, appear; bǐlafīla, redup., to do so repeatedly: lobilă ki, glance at; fila, lightning; bulĕ-meta, eyeball (gleaming part of the eye). [Sa. pula, pupula, pulapula, to shine.] A. barak, or bara', shine, gleam, flash, glitter, appear; lighten (lightning), 2, open the eyes, glance at, bark', lightning, pl. buruk, H. barak, S. barka: hence bila, or fila, bile, or file, s., lightning: c. art. nafila.

Bila i, or bilai, v. t., pick up, gather up (anything, as fallen leaves, fruits, fish lying on the ground, &c.);

Bila ġuru ki, bili lua, bili sai, &c. See ġuru, lua, sai, Bĭlai has the pref. b'. [Fi. vili-ka, pick up, as fallen leaves or fruits.] E. 'araya, gather (as fruits, herbs), glean (as after reapers): c. preformative.

Bila, also (dd. mbula, bur); Bibila, redup. (intensive), and Bilena, bibilena, v. i., or a. (-na, a. ending), big, large, great. [Mg. bulubulu, mibulubulu, a., thick, close, dense.] A. 'abula, 'abila, to be thick, big, 'abanbal', strong, great, large.

Bile, or bila, v. i., to be quick; hence sudden, confused, inaccurate, to err, make a mistake: redup. bilebile (d. belbel) quick, sudden, bilieli, sudden, quick, hence confused, erroneous: tabile, to be hasty, commit an error. Often used adverbially, as ba bilebile, go quickly, si bile, shoot missing (lit. hastily, erroneously, not hitting the mark), &c. H. bahal, bahel, prop. to tremble, be in trepidation, Piel to hasten. to hasten (as if to tremble) to do anything, Hi. id., Ch. (bĕhal) Ithpeal inf. hitbehalah, s., haste, speed, with prefixed bĕ, ad., quickly.

Bile, d. bīlĕ, v. i., to dispute, wrangle. My. babil, to wrangle, squabble. E. běhīl, (2) contradict, tabāhala, dispute, wrangle, bahl, dispute, altercation, wrangle.

Bili, v. t., bili meta, shut the eyes, redup. biliuili, id. (of many); hence

Bili, s., a blind person (with closed eyes); and

Bilil, s., a tree (whose leaves at a certain stage of their growth cleave together): d. bilbilo, wink, close the eyes. See uili, kuli: uili mita, eyelids, and i uili mita, or bili mita, close the eyelids. Bili, v. t., d. for belu ki, q.v.

Bilàki, v. i., to be terrified, tremble (as it were) with fear. H. balah, to be terrified, to fear, Piel billeah, to terrify, and suffix ki.

See bele Bĭle na, s. na, mother.

Bile-meta na, s., nephew or niece, child of a man's gore na, that is, his full or uterine sister. Lit. mother, i. e., source, of the tribe or family, such nephew being a man's heir (and not his own son). D. syn. fito na.

Bilāġa, v. t., bilàġà sa, seek, search for it. See lāġa, làġà sa, id.

Bilele, v. i., r., to turn hither and thither, to go backwards and forwards, round and round: lele.

Bilele, v. i., r., d. for bitoli, q.v.

Bĭlĭāsa, ad., the morning (day-break) of the day after to-morrow: bulo, āsa; bĭlĭ, as in bĭlĭ-boġ, bĭlĭ-mitamai.

Bĭlĭboġ, ad. (d. bulboġ), morning: bulo, bog.

Bilieli, v., see bile, bilibile, to be quick, &c.

Bilikit i, v. t., to peel (as a banana). [An. milaġa, to peel, Sa. mile'i, to husk, Fi. loga-ta, to peel. E. lahaşa, to peel.

Bĭlĭmitamai, ad., the morning (day-break) of the morrow; bĭlĭmitamai ki nia, morrow following it, sera bĭlĭmitamai, every recurring morrow: bulo, mitamai.

Bilis i, d. bolis i, uolis i, v. t., to spread out anything on the ground as a mat; hence to make a bed; hence na uol, s., that spread out, a bed, d. na mäuol; and from this latter is mäuoli ki, make a bed with (something), spread it out for a bed. [Mg. velața, mivelata, to spread, expand itself (be spread out), mamilata, v. t., to spread. faras'a, to spread out anything, as a mat on the ground, spread (a bed for anyone), hence fars', a bed.

Biliti, s., the fat in the belly of a pig: connected with bele na, the belly.

Bĭlĭsai, v., used as ad., together, as i tili bĭlĭsai ki nia, he told (two or more things) together: it is really a v. t., and tili bĭlĭsai ki, lit. he told gathering-together it: bila i, or bilai, and sai (see saisai).

Bilo, v. i., d. bulo, q.v., to awaken, to open the eyes; bulo-ni, d. bulobulo i, v. t., to awaken (from sleep), to cause to open the eyes. [Sa. ala, to awake, Ma. ara, v. i., wake up, whakaara, v. t., rouse, Fi. yadra, open the eyes, awake, yadra-va, watch for, vakayadra-ta, to awaken.] H. 'ur, to awake, be awake, cause to awake, Hi. to arouse, awake (from sleep); to watch, followed by the prep. 'al, to watch over anyone.

Bilo-si, v. t., d. balo-ni, wash.

Bilora, for bulora, q.v.

Bilu, or biliu, v. r., to go backwards and forwards between two places or parties: liliu, liu.

Bilu, uilu, uulu (wulu), q.v., to dance (a woman or women; men dancing are said to sali).

Bilulu, v. r., vie with each other, contend with each other for superiority. A. 'ala' ('alu), 3, vie, compete, contend for superiority: see lulu, or lu.

Bilubaki, v. r., to land cargo from a ship, or to land passengers (land each other): luba-ki.

Bimeta na, v. and s., to be his guide, lit. his eye: bi, to be, and meta, eye.

Binako, v. t., d. banako, q.v., to steal.

Binaka, s., mats, cloth: see binu.

Bināta, and dd. bunas, and Binauta, v. i., to be numb, devoid of feeling, as one's limb from stoppage of circulation of the blood in it: bi, to be, nāta, a person (as if the limb belonged to some other person). See ata.

Binēn, v. i., d. syn. c. banotu, q. v., and baina, q. v.

Binàs, d. for banōtu.

Binoinoi, v. r., be confusedly together (as different kinds of things, people of different districts or languages), tumara noinoi ra:

Binofinoi, a., confused, perplexed, d. bunofunoi: noi, nē.

Binōtĕ, d. for banōtu.

Binu na, s., as, binu nafanua, head of the country (the chief and natamole tabu are said to be binu naf.), binu naui, head of a yam, syn. bau naui, binu namīt, first half of a mat with long threads attached, from which the weaving or plaiting of the second half begins; hence

Binu, v., as binu namit, make a beginning of the second half of a mat, plaiting from the already finished half. See banu, ban, baniban, banaġa, binaka. [My. anam, to weave. E. 'anama, to weave, ma'nama.

Binu, v. i., to whistle, dd. bin, bòġĕ. [Am. mofin, Ml. P. and U., puinpuin, winwin, Mg. enu, nenu, manenu, to sound, crow, sing, ring, Sa. vivini, to crow.] A. maʿānu, cantor, A. ʿʿaniya, sing, coo, ʿʿina, cantus, H. ʿanah, sing, &c.

Binunu, v., complete, ba binunu ki, to go throughout, complete (a piece of a fence): nu, num.

Bio-so, v. i., to call or cry out, shout, calling: bio, and so, q.v. The verb bio, or fio (see rafioso), means to cry out, shout. [Sa. piapio, an outcry, a shouting, Mg. feu, voice, sound, report.] H. pa'ah, to call, to cry out. Bira-ġi, d.,

Biri-gi, d. firi-gi, v. t., to carry on the back, take, bring, lead. [Epi mbario, carry on the back.] A. hamala, to carry on the back, bring, send, impel to do something, S. hmal, collect, carry.

Biri-nāla, s., the plaited or braided (rope) handle of a carrying basket: see āla, and bir i, to plait.

Biri-ofa, s., the cloth in which a child is slung and carried on the back of its mother: birigi, and ofa (i), d. afa, both of which verbs signify to carry on the back.

Biràgoro, v., d. boragoro, q.v., to make, break into a noise near someone: see bora i, and goro.

Biraka, v. r., to give presents to guests at a naleoüan (feast after a death), lit. to give presents (or rewards) to each other: raka-ti;

Birakāna, s., the giving of such presents.

Biri-raki, v. t., to give presents to guests at a naleouan: biri a (biri nabo ra, i.e. make their hearts void of evil thoughts, i.e. pleased or good). See biri.

Birausi, v. r., to follow each other: rausi.

Bir i, or biri, v. t., to make void, bring to nought, as counsel, bisa biri nalo na: the radical notion is break to pieces, biri na maietoa, break to pieces or put an end to (one's) anger, appease, biri nabo na, bring to an end the evil feelings of one's heart, appease. This verb is much used after other verbs, as mițoa, bisa, &c., think void, i.e. despise, &c., and bā biri nafanua, means to go all through the land: tale, round, tale-firi, all round; reduplicated it is Birifiri, nearly the same meaning as biri i. H. parar, to break in pieces, Hi. hefer, to break, as a covenant, make void, be void, bring to nought: cg. para, and following word.

Biris i, and boris ia, v. t., to break down, destroy, birisi nakoro, break down a wall: the notion of breaking in pieces, asunder, is implied in this word, which is cognate with the preceding. H. paras, to break, break down, &c.

Biri, v. i., to warble, whistle (birds). [Epi faru, forfaru.]
A. watta, watwata, to twitter.

Bĭrĭ, d. for bŭra, to be full, q.v.

Bir i, v. t., to plait a string or rope. [Sa. fili, to plait; to be entangled, involved, Ma. whiri, twist, plait, Ha. hili, braid, plait, twist, fasten, Tah. firi, to plait, My. pintal, d. pilin, Bu. pitoi, Batavia bilan, twist.] A. fatala, n. a. fatl', E. fatlat, twist, spin (fetlat). In H., A., Ch., Syr., and E.

Bir i, v. t., d., to stick, stab. pierce, as, biri naui, to stick a knife or fork into a yam while being boiled to know whether it is cooked. See bur i.

Birife, v. r., to seize, pull hither and thither (to take away a man's property as a punishment). A. hadiba id.

Birigirigi, v. r., to be moaning, bemoaning oneself. See rigi.

Briģi, d., v. t., bri (i.e. bĭri), prob. for meri, q.v., to do. make: therefore it is bri-ģi (bĭri-ģi). See meri. Birigite na, s., d. for bura na, q.v.

Birīki, s., a part, side. [Mg. varaka, to separate.] A. farīķ', a part, from faraķa, to divide, separate, &c. Hence Birīki, s., a 'falling' star, a meteor: used also as a name of men.

Biri-sai, v. t., to pierce open, birisai na bago āso, pierce open the tunnel (or end of it) of the robber-crab, fig. to lay open some hidden wickedness: biri, to pierce, and sai, q. v.

Biroa, and biroaroa, v. r., to turn each other (in some work, causing it to be done in some other way), as, when one is doing some piece of work, to make him do it some other way is to biroa: see roa, to turn, to change.

Bisa, fisa, or basa, and bisuraki, v. i., to speak, na fĭsān, d. nafsan, the act of speaking, speech, a word; tabisa, to speak earnestly (ta, q.v., and bisa), tafisafisa, d. tafisfis, to speak earnestly; to pray (so used now in Christian sense); to utter inarticulate sounds (as those made by a cocoanut on the gravel which a rat is turning about trying to get at its kernel). [My. bacha, to read, recite, chant, Tag. basa, Fi. vosa, to speak, talk. A. nabasa, and nabasa, to speak; to peep or chirp (a bird); nabsat', a word.

Bisafisa, v. i., redup. of foregoing, to speak rapidly (as one in delirium).

Bīsa, or fīsa, d. bīa, q.v., to be how many? so many, a few; bīsa-mau, d. bisi-ba, to be only a few, few. See mau.

Bisab, d. for bisif, v. i., or a., surpassing, excelling, as, fonu bisab, an excelling (big) turtle, i uia bisif, it is good, surpassing or excelling. See safe.

Bisai ki, v. t., to show, d. bisā ki. See sai.

Bisakaui, d. for bisaku-ti, q.v.

Bisàki (d. biski), d. transposed for bakasa, q.v.

Bisaka, or busaki, v. c., to raise up, to place above, fig. to appoint or make one a chief. See saki.

Bisaku-ti, v. t., d. bakasau, q.v. See siku-ti.

Bisalot (for bosa-lot), v. i., to clap the hands, lit. bring (the hands) together, sound, or crack: bosa i, and lot.

Bisau, v. i., dd. futum, busuf, or busofu, bisobu, to sprout forth, spring up. See futum.

Bisaui, d. for bisaku-ti, bisakui.

Bisēka, v. i., d., to sit (as talking with a neighbour): sēka.

Bisela, v. r., to bear, bring forth, give birth to: sela-ti.
Bisera, biserasera, v. i., to be not of one size, to be different: sera i.

Bisere, v. r., to be near: sere a.

Bis i, or uis i, v. t., to take with the hand, grasp, take hold of, accept, receive. [Mg. hazuna, id.] H. 'aḥaz, A. 'aḥaḍ'a, Imp. ḥuḍ, Arm. 'ăhad, E. 'ahaza, n. a. 'ĕhazat, id.

Bisi na, or busi na, s., the posteriors, the backside, the rump. Compare busi, d. for muri, q.v. [Mg. vudi, the posteriors, My. buri, the back, the rear, Ma. muri, hinder part, Sa. muli, the rump.]

Bis ia, or bisi a, v. t., to beget, procreate, make to be born, as a father his child; mafis, one begotten or born, namafisien, the being begotten or born;

Bisi, or fisi, v. t., to rub one stick on another to produce fire, bisi nakabu, produce fire by friction. The rubbing stick is pointed and rubs a groove into the other, the rubbed out dust at the end of which gradually is ignited. [Mg. fusița, rubbed so as to produce fire by the friction, mifusița, to produce fire by friction.] A. fașa a, 2, to rub (a thing), so that its soft and broken interior may be emitted.

Bis i, or bisi, v. t., to uncover or dig up anything buried under ground, to dig up, or uncover, by removing the covering earth, a dead and buried body, or any other thing buried in or covered with earth, as a yam, &c. A. nabas'a, to uncover what was covered or hid, as what lies hid under ground; to dig up again, or uncover by digging (a corpse).

Bīsĭþà, v. i., or a., d. for bīsamau (bīsa-mau). See mau, and bisa.

Bisif, v. i., or a., d. for bisab, q.v.

Bisig, v. i., or a., to stink, be bad (mouldy, &c.), and of men, to be opposed, hostile: sigi.

Bisobu, v. i., to sprout forth, spring up. See futum.

Bisua, v. r., to meet together, to meet each other: sua.

Bisuaki, or fisuaki, v. r., or a., order or command (or send) each other; i bisuaki, he commands, that is, he commands some other person, or persons: sua ki.

Bisueri, v. r., scold or vituperate each other: sueri.

Bisuraki, or bisureki, i.e. bisu-raki, v., to speak, lit. to speak for, about; nafisuraki, speech, a word or utterance, nafisuraki sa, bad talk: bisa.

Bisuru, v. r., lie (deceive each other), bisuru ki, lie to (some one): suru, d. soresore.

Bitā, v. r., to be joined together, associated (of men); bitā ki, t., make to be joined together, or associated: tā, bitā-naki.

Bitabelu, and, d.,

Bitafetabelu, same as tabelu: belu.

Bitago, v. r., beg (from each other, or one from another), also bitagò sa, t., beg it, i.e. beg (for himself) it: tago-fl (q.v.), beg of him. D. for bitali, q.v.

Bitaki, v.t., to place or fix the hot stones on the nakoau in the oven, d. uataki a, bitaki nakeau: taki.

Bital i, or bitali, d., v. t., beg, ask him (for something): preformative bi, and tali. [Sa. fesili, to question, ask, sili. ps. silia, to ask, inquire.] A. sa'ala, to question, 5, beg, 6, question, ask each other, n.a. sa'lat, H. s'aal, n.a. s'ĕālah.

Bitānaki nia, v. t., r., to accompany one, bita-naki: see tā.

Bitau sa, v. t., to invite, and Bitautau (of many): tau, tautau.

Bitau-ri, v. t., to marry (her): tau-ri.

Bite, v. t., to cut; bitēsu, d. bitēïu, to cut reeds (see usu). [My. potoġ, to cut.] A. batta (and baṭṭa), to cut; hence Bītě, s., an instrument for cutting, knife.

Bitè lua i. See butè lua i.

Bitefa, v. r., to arrange themselves opposite to each other for battle: tefa. Bitei a, v. t., to paint, to smear with intei; tei, turmeric, a reddish powder (made from a plant) much used for smearing the body, or wounds, or the nafona (native cloth), and tei, d. bei, the rosy, reddish flush (of dawn). A. 'a'da'u, crocus, sanguis draconis, a red gum used for healing wounds, a plant with which cloth is coloured or tinged, yadda'a, to tinge or colour a thing with the thing called 'a'da'u.

Bitelo, d. butol, bitol, v. i., to be hungry. [Fi. vitolo, to be hungry.] A. ṭalaḥa, to have an empty belly, ṭoliḥa, id.

Biteriki, s., an old woman, a matron, opp. to māriki, an old man, a senior; mā-'riki, bite-'riki, see fiteriki; bite means 'woman'. The common word for 'woman' in one dialect is matu [Ja. wedo], q.v.

Bitia, or fitia, v. i., to germinate, put forth shoots. See buti, biti. Dialect syn. sulia, from suli na.

Bīto, s., one lame, H. pasaḥ, to be lame, pisseaḥ, lame.

Bitoli, v. r., to pass (or go before) each other: toli a.

Bǐtò-si, v. t., to extend, spread out (as cloth, &c.), i fito, it is stretched out. H. mataḥ, S. mtaḥ, spread out, extend. Bituà sa, v. r., give it, place it; hence bituāna, s., a giving, gift: tua i.

Bitua ki, v. t., place, lay down: tua ki.

Bitubetuba, v. r., lit. to be touching each other (of things) in a series, then, to be continual, uninterruptedly, constantly; not redup. it is,

Bitub, to be touching or reaching to each other, as in tālĕ bitub, it is all round (the two ends of that which goes round), meeting or touching each other: tuba ia. [My. tubitubi, successively, uninterruptedly.] See tuba i.

Bituma ki, v. r., to point to with the finger: tuma i.

Bo, conj., particle connecting verbs thus, i tulena bo lotu, he arose and worshipped, i tili a bo ban, he said it and went away: the bo can sometimes be and sometimes is omitted as i tulena lotu: d. syn. kai. A. fa, Wr., A. Gr., II. § 140, 'One finite verb may be put in apposition to another. In this case a) the first is the preparative act, introductory to the second, as in the above Ef. examples: 'the older and more elegant form is to insert the conjunction fa,' its omission being a later construction. As to the o in bo it seems to be the third pers. pron., i.e. bo ='and he' or 'and she', d. svn. kai.

Bō, d., other dd. fō, mō, uō, ō, a particle used after another particle to form the future tense, thus, i ġa bo ban, dd. i ġa uo ban, i ġ'o ban, k'e fo ban, i ba mo ban (or, i mba mo ban), he will go away: without the bo (uo, o, mo, fo) as, i ġa fan, &c., the meaning is imperative, or permissive, let him go, he must go, should go, may go, lit. that he go, the particles ga (or ka), and ba, being final conjunctions denoting ut, that, to (as in, I told him to go): see supra ba, conj., and infra ka (ga), conj. In Ml. P., Motu, &c., this ba alone forms future tense, and in Florida and Vaturanga this k' (ka, ga) alone forms the future, thus k'e fan, i.e. ke fan, that he go, Ef., is in these two languages not equivalent to this, but also equivalent to ke fo ban, he will go. It is therefore manifest that the particle bo does not by itself express the future idea, but, in Ef., &c., it is a final conjunction which does. See the following—

Bō, a particle used to form the present progressive or indefinite tense, as, i bo ban, he is going: i ban, denotes either he goes or he went. This is the same particle as is used in the future tense. It makes the verb to which it is prefixed a participle, thus, iġa bo ban, that he (be) going, i bo ban, he (is) going. See Ch. V. 10, a, b.

Bo na, redup. bobo na, or bobo na, s., the heart (i.e. the mind, the seat of the intellect and affections). The original meaning is seen in the phrase nakasu nabo na, the cartilaginous substance on the front of the throat, lit. the stick, or tree, of the bo (pectus). [Mg. fu, the heart, mind.] A. bahw, the cavity of the chest (pectus).

Boa, v. i., to emit odour; nabo, d. tamo, to emit odour, bon, odour. [Ha. po, puia, id., My. bau, Mg. fufuna, odour.] A. fāḥa, fāḥ'a (fā'a), to emit odour.

Bōb', d., father (voc.). See āb, bābu, &c.

Bobo. See bo na.

Bobo, v., as bobo ki atelaģi, to hail the new moon by making an exclamation or a series of sounds like bo! bo! bo! [Mg. babababa, cry, &c.] S. yabeb, clanxit, H. yabab, Pi. to exclaim, cry out.

Boboi, s., a mask, cover, or disguise; not only a mask for the face, but a cover of the whole body, made of kaka naniu, &c., and painted so as to appear terrific (to children); used at the naleöuan after the death of a chief when the nabea was set up. Perhaps so called from concealing oneself with the mask or disguise. [To. fufu, hide, conceal, disguise.] See bei, supra.

Bobu, s., redup., d. bua, grandfather (voc.), mother's father. See bua, tobu na.

Bo-fi, and reduplicate

Bobo-fi, v. t., to cover, to be upon a thing, or above it, covering it: see bau.

Boği, v. t., or buği, to overshadow;

Bogor i, v. t., bogi, and gor i, to be covering over—see gor i, and bogi, infra;

Bog-kor i, v. t., to be above, over, to overtop, overshadow, as a tree over a smaller plant, a higher chief over a lower (see kor i);

Bogi, or bog, s., darkness, night, also 'day' in counting as 'third day', bog tolu, or mog tolu, &c., to nabog, some day, some time, also naubog;

Bogien, s., darkness;

Bog, s., a dark black powder,

used in painting;

Bog, a., black, dark. [Sa. po, night, ps. pojia, to be benighted, Ma. po, night season, Hades (from being dark), Ha. po, night, darkness, v. to be dark, become night, to be out of sight, hence slain, lost, to overshadow (as the foliage of trees), assemble thickly together, a. dark, dark coloured, ignorant, obscure, An. pig. night, apig, black, poïg, dark. Ja. buġi, night. A. faḥuma, to be black, fuhum, black, faḥma-t, night.

Bok, redup. bokauok, v. i., onomat., to blow, to pant.

[Ma. puka, to pant.] H. puah, to breathe, to blow, Hi. to pant.

Boka-ti, v. t., to strike, bisa boka-ti, to reprehend. [My. pukul, Mg. puka, strike.] A. baka'a, to strike with repeated blows; to cut up; 2, reprehend.

Bokas, s., Hades; abokas, c. prep. in Hades. See s. v.

bua, عَمَاقَةً.

Bokauoka, redup. of boka-ti. Bokota, v. i., or a., dirty (as water): ġota.

Bolāf i, d. for balāf i, q.v., d. bolbolāf i.

Bolà sa, d. for balà sa, q.v. Bolau ki, to steer (a canoe or ship): boüolau.

Bole, d. buele, v. i., to be lost, absent: buele.

Polo, v. i., or a., to be empty (as a cocoanut): palo.

Bōlo, s., a small basket. [Ma. paro, a small basket. To. belu, a cup.] H. kpōr, or kĕpōr, a cup, E. kapar, a basket.

Bolo, v., to do, redup. bolofolo, to do, to act, nafolon, nafolofolon, deeds (doing, acting), work, conduct;

Bolo, d., to behave deceitfully;

Bolo-si, v. t., to do one, to treat him (as in quarrelling), to treat him, bolo sā, bolo uia ki, to behave ill, to behave well to. [Fi. vala, valavala, v. i., vala-ta, v. t., to make or do, vala, to fight, valavala, s., work, custom, habit.] H. pa'al, to make, to do, po'al, or poöl, deed, act, work, A. fa'ala, move oneself, act, do work, do (something to some one), 8, devise (deceit against some one), fi'l', action, work, fa'ilat, custom, n. a. fa'lat.

Bolis i, d. for bilis i.

Bolboloa, or bolŏboloa, d. for balebalia, large.

Bolof i, d. for balaf i, q.v.

Bologa, v. i., to turn itself about (as something sinking in water), tafiloga, id. See bulo ki.

Bōlu, v. i., to be blunt (as an edged tool). A. bohira, to be blunt (as a sword).

Bon, bono, v. i., to be shut, closed, stopped, bonò sa, shut because of it, bon, bonbon, to crowd together, crowded together:

Bono-ti, or bonu-ti (and mono-ti, bunu-ti, munu-ti), v. t., to shut, close, plug, stop, block up, and Bon, a., and s., 1,000, d. manu, 1,000; bunuti, bunti, 100. These words denote lit., a gathering, crowd. Sa. punipuni, shut in, close in, cover over, punita'i, to stop with, tapuni, to shut, momono, to plug, monoti, to cork, plug, puipui, to shut, Fi. vuni, vunitaka, Mg. afina, My. buni, Fut. buna, Epi mbin, Ma. pani, papani, block up, kopani, shut to, close up, close in, Mg. kumbuna, or humbuna, shut, closed, mikumbuna, to shut, close, coalesce, Ha. pani, to close, shut, stop, Sa. mano, a myriad, a great number. H. baham, bahan, A. bahhama, 2, 4, 5, 10, to shut, cover, conceal, be mute.

Bono-gor i, to crowd together (gor i) about him or it;

Bonbon, d., a., redup. of bon, crowded together, namer bonbon, people crowded together.

Boölau. See boüolau.

I. Bora i, or borai, v. t., to rend, split open, split; borai nabati na, part the teeth, i.e. open the mouth to speak, hence borai, to make a noise, borai-goro, make a noise (as children) about or near (one), borai-uora-goro, id., borà-goro, bira-goro, id., bororai, v. t., redup., rend, split open, elo borora, the sun (rising) rending or splitasunder or bursting through (the clouds), tabàre (tabàrre), v. r. (passive), to be split open, burst, hence to be open (as a door), maora, or mauora, redup. maoräora, v. i., to be rent, hence uora, a place, especially a landingplace for a canoe (perhaps from being an opening or split in the reef), and, therefore, often in names of places, a side (of an island), as, uora n tan, uora n lig, lower, upper side (of Efate), bora, a basket woven out of the frond of a cocoanut palm whose stalk is split asunder, and the frond itself, bora, the sides of the head or face, the temples (which women used to cut and tear open with a sharp shell (kai) in mourning for the dead). A. fara, to split, rend, slit, 5, tafarra, to become slit, rent, burst, i.e. open, faryat, tumult, clamour.

Bora, s., the temples: bora I.
Bora, s., cocoanut leaf, or basket made of it, or plaited for thatching houses: bora I.
Borabora, s., cocoanut leaf basket: bora I.

II. Bora, v. i., to spring up, sprout, grow (of plants), be born (of men); bakauora ki, v. c., make to bora (men and plants), nauora na, nauorauora na, offshoot, offspring (of plants and men), ora naui, the vine of the yam; fara, a cocoanut (fruit) that begins to shoot. [Motu vara, to grow, to be born, Oba biri, to grow. H. parah (A. fariḥ'a, 2), to break out, burst forth (of the young as issuing from the womb), to sprout, to flourish (a plant), Hi. to cause to do so, sprout, shoot, H. perah, sprout, shoot, A. farh', offspring, shoot or sprout.

Bora-bau, v. and s., over-head, noon, only in the phrase elo i bora-bau, the sun is over-head, lit. splits-head: bora I., and bau.

Bora-goro, or borai-goro, or borai-uora-goro, to make a tumult, noise near (one): bora i.

Borai, s., c. art., the sugar-cane;

Borairai, s., a reed like sugarcane growing in streams. A. bara', 4, to find sugarcane.

Bora-kai, v. and s., to tear or rend the kai (a shell-fish, or its shell): borai i. Men who were worthless and died poor, and had no pigs killed at their death and burial, bora-kai, in Hades, their jaws being torn and bleeding in doing so.

Bora-kese na, s., gills of fish; bora I., and kesa (dark coloured); dd. morese na, kurumase na.

Borau, v. i., to ride or be carried (on a canoe or ship, horse, vehicle, or other thing), to voyage. [Fi. vodo, embark, go on board, ride, Sa. folau, a voyage, the crew and vessel, To. felau, to navigate, make a voyage, a canoe, a fleet of canoes, a voyage, My. prahu, prau, a canoe, boat, ship, general name for any kind of vessel, bârprau, to travel by boat or ship. A. markab', E. markab, a ship, vessel, A. rakib', navigating, voyaging, rakiba, to be carried, to ride (A. markab', denotes a vehicle, carryingbeast, chariot, as well as a ship). H. rakab, to be carried (on a horse, chariot, the clouds, &c.—so Ef. borau).

Note.—A. markab', is an infinitive, and therefore is naturally in Ef. and Fi. a verb, My. and Sa. a substantive, and To. both a verb and a substantive.

Borea, s., c. art. naborea, a dream, or vision (in sleep);

Borea ki naborea, v., to dream a dream, or see a vision (in sleep). [Tah. ria, a vision in sleep, Santo popori, Lakon boro, id.] H. mar'eh, a vision (in sleep), A. rōya, sleep, what is seen in sleep, from ra'a' (H. ra'ah), to see, then to have a vision in sleep, E. id.

Bor i, or bori, v. t., to break, bori nakasu, break a stick, mauori, mauoriuori, to be broken, and Bori-si, redup.

Boriuori-si, v. t., break to pieces. [Mg. purita, Fi. vorota.] H. pōr, inf. of parar, to break, break to pieces (pur, to break), Hithpolel to be broken.

Borroa, v. i., to grow crooked, for boraroa: bora II., and roa.

Boro-silaia. See buru masila.

Boro-aki, v., also bĭro-aki, bero-aki, baro-aki, to bequeath to, or order to do (by will, when dying); to commission (one to do something), give orders to. [My. pâsân, to commission, enjoin, Sa. poloa'i, to leave commands (as on going a journey or dying), to command, Mg. hafaṭa (hafarana), a will or testament, order, bequeathed, ordered. A. wasa, 2, to bequeath by will, 4, id., and to give power to, or commission, by will; to command, to enjoin.

Borōri-si, contraction of boriuori-si.

Bosa i, v. t., to compress, manu i tumana bosa ia, a bird compresses itself (with its closed wings), i bosai naniu, he compresses a cocoanut (so as to break the shell). press together, squeeze (as a sponge), hence bosa, or uosa, v. i., to be compressed, i. e. narrow, and tabosa (sela uosa, a narrow track, natamole tabosa, a man thin as if pressed together), redup. uosauosa; bosa naru na, clap the hands, bosa-lot, clap the hands with a sound, d. bosa ki, i.q. bosa i. hamaza, to press with the fingers or hand, to compress, push, strike, bite, break.

Bosabosa, s., froth (coming from the mouth, as of one in sickness), sputum, d. fut. [Mg. futafuta, slaver, spittle, foam, mifutafuta, to slaver, to foam.] A. bozāķ', boṣāķ', saliva, sputum.

Bosi, v. t., twist (a rope). [Sa. fusi, gird, My. pusig, twist, turn round.] A. 'afaşa, to twist.

Bota, v. i., and a., to be, or become, different, other, alien;

Bota i, v. t., to divide, part, make one remove from the other, botauota (or botōta), redup.; i toko botauota, he is in the middle or midst, exactly between two things, lit. he is parting or dividing (the two things), māuota, or māota, to be divided or parted, hence na maota, the midst or middle space between two things, i.e. the space by which they are parted, removed, or distant from each other. [My. beda, or bida, distinct, separate, different, beda-kan, to separate, to distinguish, to make a difference.] E. b'ud, other, alien, different, baroda, and barida, to stand apart, be distant, remote, 2, 4, make to be so, 6, to be apart from each other, also to recede or go apart from some one, 3, make to be apart or distant, also to go apart or be distant, bo'd', distance: cf. banabota, diverse, different. Hence

Bota, s., c. art., a person unmarried (apart);

Botauota, and Botota i, v. t., redup. of bota i.

Botu, v. i., to swell (of a girl's breasts). A. nabata, (3) n. a. nobōt', begin to swell (a girl's breasts); (1) to germinate.

Boua (bowa), v. i., to rain, d. for bā.

Boüa ki (bowa ki), v., d. uā ki, to fruit, to produce fruit.

Ch. pērā, Syr. pīra, fruit, v. to bear fruit. See ua.

Boüolau ki, v. t., to steer (a canoe or ship), then, fig., to steer a country (bouolau ki nafanua), &c., that is, govern it, bouolau ki emeromina, govern the world (of God). [Ml. dd. barau, baro, walu, foro, Ef. uolau (wolau) in bouolau-ki.] E. hadafa, to steer (a vessel or ship), then, fig., to govern men, to steer, i.e. govern the world (said of Jesus Christ), maḥdaf, rudder, helm. See uolau, infra.

Note.—Boüolau ki is reduplicate, see bolau ki (d.), id., and uolau ki, and note the pref. b' (for m) in bolau.

Bu, d., verbal pron., 1 pl., excl., dual moa: d. au, dual ara.

Bua, d. bobu (q.v.), voc., maternal grandfather. [Fut. bua.]

Bu (nalo), v. t., to see (a thing). See bunu, bunu-si. [Santo d. vai, to see.] Bu, is for bunu. H. bin, to discern, perceive, see, n. a. binah, for binat.

Bu, s., c. art., a bundle. [Fi. ai vau.] See bau-si.

Bua, v., divide, as, ta bua i, cut, divide it (cut it open), mafua, and tabua, to be rent open, cracked, ti bua i, press, rend it (press, burst it open, as new wine old wine skins), and fai (or fae) in magafai, a half, a division (of a thing), and lao fai (see fai). [Sa. vaeja, a division, vaevae, to divide in parts, cut up, mavae, to be split, to be cracked open.] A. fa'ā, n. a., fa'w', or fa'y', 1, 4, to split, cleave, 7, to be open, to be separated, rent, cleft.

I. Bua, v. i., to be empty, vacant, having nothing (as an empty cocoanut), tābu, i.e. tā bu, men having nothing, or naked (name applied to the naked people of some neighbouring islands, i.e. people who use no waist cloth). A. bahiya, to be empty and bare (as a house). II. Bua, and bubu, d. mobu, v. i., and a., to be deep (as the sea, or a pit), i toko bua (said of a yam down in the ground), ebu or ebua, in the deep part (of a thing), i toko ebu, or ebua, and sofa ni ebu is consumption or phthisis in the deep part (i.e. inside) of the body (deep-seated); ebua and bokas, abokas, the abyss, Hades, Malo abua, id., buariri, abyss, Hades (riri, to sink), and bugi, or bubugi, to sink deep, d. na tibu. the deep. [Ma. kopua, deep, An. ubo, deep, Fi. tobu, d. nubu, deep.] A. amuka, and macuka, 1, to be deep, also, to be distant, far off (emai, ufea), 4, make deep, 5, to be deep, H. amak, to be deep, 'amek, 'amik, deep, 'ămūkah, A. 'amākat, E.

'amaka, to be deep, 'muk, deep, mā'mak, any depth, a valley, the abyss (Hades).

in. Bua or fua (in na fuagoro, d. na mua-goro, a spring on the shore covered by the flood-tide, (so called because the sea mua gor ia, flows over it), and mua, v. i., to flow (the tide);

Buafua, v., na tas i buafua, or naroa i buafua, the sea or current flows or carries things floating on it;

Bua-ti, v. t., to take (make to Buē a, v. t., make to flow upon (a thing), pour upon, moisten. [Ha. puai, to flow, as blood from a vein, or water from a fountain, to cast up; to boil up, as water from a spring, My. buwaj, eject, expel, cast.] H. naba, to bubble forth, gush out, Ch., S., A. naba', naba''. Cf. A. bara, to gurgle out (as blood). The connection between the ideas of going or flowing out and taking out (making to go out) is seen in the cg. Ch. něpak, to go out, caus. to take out, and also in H. yaba!, to flow, caus. to bring, bear, carry.

Bubu, v. i., to gargle. [Sa. pupu, to gargle.] See under preceding word, and cf. A. baba, or baba, gurgling sound of water flowing from a bottle or flask.

Bua na. See buĭ na. Buġi, and Bubuġi, v. t., to sink down, to dip (anything) [Ma. poko-poko, Ha. poopoo], put it down into the water; uta buġi rarua, load a canoe deep;

Bubu, v. i., to be deep:

Buele, d. bole, v. i., to be lost, missing. [My. ilaġ, to lose, be lost, missing, Fi. yali, Mg. veri, lost, missed.] H. 'abad, Mendaite awid, to be lost, missing.

Buġafuġa, v. i., to be awake, to awake, bugò-ni, v. t., to awaken one. [Sa. faġufaġu, fafaġu, to waken, rouse from sleep, ps. faġua, Mg. fuha, fuhafuha, imp., awake, mifuha, v. i., to awake, mamuha, v. t., to awake, fuhazina, being awakened.] See bulo, bilo.

Bugo-ni, v. t., to awaken. See preceding word, and bulo-ni, Ch. II. 14. b.

Bui na, or bua na, s., c. art., backbone, tail, rump. [Fi. bui, tail, Fut. bua, back, To. mui, after, the hindermostend, tip, or extremity of anything, Sa. muli, the end, the rump, Mg. vuhu, the back.] See muri.

Buigo, or bigo, v. i., to lose the way, be at a stand, perplexed, not knowing the way. [Compare Sa. poġi, to be benighted.] See boġ. I. Buka, v. i., to be filled, swell out, as the belly when filled with food, or as a sail filled with wind; namarita na i buka, his belly is puffed up or swollen, or pants (with rage), mafukafuka, to be swollen or puffed up, nafukāna, the being swollen or puffed up. [Mg. vuki, satiated, filled, mimuki, v. i., mamuki, v. t., vukisana, havukisana, My. bakat, stuffed, filled, Ma. puku, to swell.] A. nafaḥ'a, to inflate, 8, to be inflated, to swell, nafḥ'at', inflation of the belly, manfuḥ', ventrosus; obese;

Būka, s., a swell, as a ground swell. [My. bakat, id.] See buka:

Buk, s., as nabuk natamole, a band of men. [H. puu, a gathering or collection, sign of plural number, he puu kanaka, a gathering or band of men.] See buka.

Note.—This word is used in Ef. also for a gathering or collection of things, thus: nabuk anena i oni au, I am in his debt, but lit. his collection of things (which he has given me) remains on me (i.e. I have not yet repaid it).

II. Buka-si, or bukĭ-si, v. t., to open, as a roll of cloth, buka ūa (ūwa), open the oven. [My. buka, to open, unclose, uncover, Mg. vuha, opened, mimuha, v. i., mamuha, v. t., to open.] A. fakka, v. t., to open.

III. Buka, v. i., to bark (a dog), buka ia, bark at it, bukai kusüe, bark at a rat, d. syn. oro-maki; also, buka, to cough. H. nabaḥ, A. nabaḥa, to bark (a dog). [Mg. vuvu.] Formed from the sound. A. nabaḥa, is followed by acc. with or without a prep.

iv. Buka i, v. t., to hit upon, meet, fall in with, find, as, i ba bukai uago buele, he hit upon, met, fell in with, or found a lost pig. H. paga; id., as in Ex. xxiii. 4. Bukāru, or bakāru, d. fakāru, v., to joke, jest, bukāru ki, v. t., mock, deride. [Motu kiri, to laugh, My. gurau, to joke, and kara, id., bârgurau, mâġgurau, joke, jest, mâġgurau-kan, v. t., mock, deride.] A. kahara (5) laugh, joke.

Buko na, s., c. art., protuberance or knob, as nabuko naui, protuberance or knob of a yam. [Ha. puu.] See buka 1.

Bukoro, s., enclosure round a house at its base, name of a tree and its fruit (from its kernel being enclosed), a proper name (of men). [Ma. pukoro, sheath, case, halo, net.] See koro.

Bukota, v. i., or a., to be dark-coloured, dirty, blackish (as water with dust or earth in it): ġota.

Bukubukura, a., full of little swellings (pimples): ra, ending. [Ha. puupuu, id.; Sa. po'u, pimple, po'upo'ua, full of pimples.] See buka 1.

Bukutu, s., a rise, hill. [Ha. puu, id., My. bukit, a hill.] See buka 1.

Bul-meta na, s., eyeball, gleaming part of eye. See bila.

Bula, mbula, d. for bila, q.v., big, large.

Būlĕ, a., adult, nafera būlĕ, a lot of grown up men (adults). A. bala"a, to reach mature or full age, bāli", adult; and

r. Bule, v. t., complete, used after other verbs adverbially, as, i ba bule nafanua, he went completely through the land, le bule nagusu, it (a canoe) completely rounded the point, nafisan i soka bule nafanua, the word shot (lit. leaped) through whole land, from end to end, noai i sera fule (or fulefule) nalia, the water ran completely throughout the place. Bule is really a verb, in these instances, in apposition to the verb preceding it, as he went - completed (finished) the land, &c. bulah, the whole, To. fuli, all. A. bala"a, n. a. bulü", to complete, go through to the end.

II. Bule, v. t., to strip off leaves, ora naui i bule nakasu, the yam vine strips off leaves from the tree, mafule, to be stripped of leaves (a tree). [My. bulus, stripped of leaves.] A. 'abala, 1, 2, to strip off leaves, foliis nudavit arborem.

Būle, s., a shell, lit. gleaming, shining, glittering. See bila. Bulĭboġ, d. for bilĭboġ, for bulo boġ: bulo.

Būlĭ, s., a corpulent person; Bulia, a., swollen; and Bulifulia, a., swollen here and there (the body), a, a. ending; and mabulu, q.v. [Sa. fula, stout, fulafula, swelling, fulafula, fufula, to be swollen.] H. 'afal, prop. to swell up, be tumid, A. 'afila, to have a tumour or hernia. See telatela.

Bulai, s., d. for belaki, and Bulai, v. t., d. for belaki, to gird.

Bulo, d. buil, v. i., and s., dawn, break (of day): iġa uo bulo (bo) mai, he (or it) will come early, lit. will be early and come: bulo-boġ, dd. buil-boġ, bili-boġ, morning, lit. break of night (day-break); and so bulo asa, bulo metamai. [My. pagi, pagi ari, morning, early, by times, presently.] H. boķer, morning, dawn, day-break, presently, A. bukra-t, id., bakara, to be early.

Bulo, v. i., d. for bilo;

Bulò-ni, v. t., to awaken; bulo nameta na, open his eyes;

Bulobulo i, v. t., awaken him. See bilo.

Bulo ki, v. t., to turn, to twist, also bulosi, bulusi, bulisi; tafolo, to be turned, twisted, tafulus, to be turned.

bologa, to turn itself (as a thing in sinking in water), tafīloġa, id., bulora, or filora, twisted, confused (as a lot of things turned or twisted about). [My. pulâs, Ja. pulir, to wring, twist, to turn aside (out of the way), turn, turn round, Sa. totafuli, also, fuli, fulisia, turn round, milo, to twist, mimilo, milomilo, ps. milosia, milosi, to be twisted, to be perverse, milomilosi, Fi. mulo-t'a, to twist a single thread, Ma. miro, to spin, twist, Mg. fuli, fulisina, and mamulisa, id. H. palas (Talmud palek), turn round, twist, spin, A. falakat, spindle.

Buloi, s., a mask, cover of the face. [Sa. pulou, a cover, disguise.] See malöi.
Buloki, v. i., or a., to be Buloki, v. i., or a., to be sticky, d. bubulu. See bulu-ti.

Bulōra, v. i., or a., to be twisted. See bulo ki.

Bulu-si, or bulosi, or bilosi, v. t., to wash. See balo-ni. Bulusi, bulosi, or bulisi, v. t., to turn. See bulo ki.

Bulu-ti, v. t., to plaster, overspread with some sticky substance (as lime, oil, paint, pitch), to cover with a plaster or poultice, as a wound, nabulu, s., plaster, &c., bubulu, bulubulut, buloki (and mabulu, q.v.), to be sticky, as plaster; d. fili, q.v., hair. [Fi. bulu-ta, to bury or cover with earth, to apply an external remedy, ai bulu, an external application or thing that covers or buries, Sa. puluti, to glue, to pitch, pulu, glue, gum, resin, pulupulu, to cover the body with a cloth, pupulu, to interpose, to mediate, ps. pulutia, Fi. bulu-ta, to repair an injury, lit. to bury it, ai bulubulu, a peace offering, or thing offered as a reparation of an injury. H. kapar, A. "afara, to cover, cover over: A. "afara, to cover, cover over; to cover (white hairs, with some dye or tincture, Ef. bulu-ti); to pardon (sin), 2, to cover with dust, H. kapar, to cover, overspread with anything, as with pitch, to pitch, Gen. vi. 14 (H. koper, pitch); to cover (i.e. pardon) sin, Pi. to make expiation for an offence; A. "afiru, hair, &c.

Bulu, bulufulu, and fulufulu: bule 1.

Bulu, v. i., to fall down (as soft fruit from a tree, &c.), mala bulu, faint, fall down (a man): i bulu natano.

Bulu-aki, v. t., throw (as fire-wood on the fire, &c.), with a turning motion; and Bulu-aki, d. for bulo ki, to turn, twist.

Bulum, or buluma, d. bulim, v. i., to be changed, lit. turned: luma.

Buma, v. i., d. for fuga, to flower or blossom, nabuma na, s., its flower or blossom. [Ml. P. puġ, to blossom, puġan, its flower or blossom, Sa. fuġa, flowers, blossoms, My. buġa, flowers, blossoms, Mg. vuni, flower, mamuni, to blossom.] A. fukaḥ, flower. Buna sum i, v. t., to cork, plug, hence Bunaso, or funaso, s., c. art., a cork or plug: see bono-ti, or bunu-ti, and sume-li.

Bunàs, d. for binata.

Bunofunoi, d. binofinoi, v. r., to be confused, perplexed. See binoinoi: noi, no i, nō. Būma, s., an insect that makes a shrill sound in the jungle in the evening, hence, būma i ġai (the būma makes its sound) is often used for 'it is getting dark', 'it is evening'. Bunu, d. for fanau, q.v.

Bunu-li, v. t., d. for balo-ni, bulu-ni.

Bunu-si, v. t., to see (a thing). See s.v. bu.

Bunu, s., death, destruction, as, ru sua bunu;

Bunu e, v. t., to make an end of, to kill or destroy (fish, men, &c.), to extinguish or quench (a fire, or lamp), ru sua bunu, they met destruction (having fallen into the sea), mafunufunu, and mafunei, d. fanei, to be ended, to be finished. [My. bunoh, to kill, mambunoh, mamunoh, to kill, Mg. vunu, killed, mamunu, to kill.] Hence Bunufunu, redup. of preceding word. See nu, to be ended.

Bunu-ti, v. t., same as bono-ti:

Bunutia, s., hundred, d. bunti

(cf. bon); and

Bunuta (and bunta), v. i., or a., to be silent, lit. to be shut (the mouth), ba funuta, be silent, exactly equivalent to the vulgar English 'shut up', hence, nafunuta, s., a silent person, one that says little (a term of praise). See bon.

Bur, d. for bila, bula, to be big, large.

Būra, or fūra, v. i., or a., to be empty, to be devoid of, as, i bi an fūra, it is an empty shadow, a būra ki nalo, I am empty of the thing, devoid of it, A. fara a, 1, 2, to empty. See baro. Hence Bura, s., rubbish; nabura naniu, the husk of the cocoanut, nabura na, the husk or worthless part of a thing: hence the stalk of a fruit (as a worthless thing thrown away as rubbish) is called in different dialects bura-tena, bura-gitena, bara-tuna, biri-gitena, and miri-gitena, i.e. the bura of it.

Bŭra, d. bĭrĭ, v. i., or a., to be full, bakafura, to fill. [Mg. fenu, full, mamenu, to fill, My. pânoh, full, mâmânohi, to fill.] H. mala', to fill, to be full, Pi. to fill; with another verb, to do anything fully, i.e. thoroughly, so Ef. bera-ti, d. bera-kati (bera-kati, d. by transposition for bera-ti ki), as lo b., look fully or thoroughly at it, i.e. watch it, roġo b., hear fully, i.e. obey, i uia b., it is good fully, i.e. thoroughly good, and it can also be said tea berakati na, i.e. tea anena berakati, a thing fully or thoroughly his; A. mala', S. mla', same as H. Hence Burafura, furafura, s., the jungle, forest, vegetation: so called because it fills the land. A place covered with any kind of weeds, &c., is called nalia bura, a full place.

Bura-gitena, and Bura-tena, see bura, s.

Burasa. See marasa.

Burau, or burou, s., the sky:
H. marom, above, heaven.

Bure i, fure i, or bure, burei ki, furei ki, v. t., to wash, rub, as, bure naui, wash off the earth from a yam, furei ki natuo na, cleanse his feet, furei ki lu nasoga; bure biakik, wash, cleanse a child, bure nabau na ki naroro, rub his hair with oil, oil his hair. [Fi. bore-a. to scrape, or wash the dirt off a thing, to brighten.] H. marak, (rub), polish, cleanse by washing or anointing (egg. marah, &c.).

Bure i, or bura i, v. t., d., to leave, allow, forsake, abandon. A. bara', 3, to leave, abandon. [My. bir, to permit, allow.]

Burei, d. maraġ ki, v., to spit out, to spit, to spit on. E. waraķa, to spit, mĭrāķ, spittle.

Bur i, buri, v. t., to pierce, stick, buri uago, stick a pig: d. for biri. [Ma. wero, id.] E. barara, to stick, stab.

Buria, v. i., or a., to be swollen (of the body), to have the dropsy. [Ma. kopurua, dropsical, My. buru, elephantiasis, burut, hernia.] The a in buria is the a. ending. A. nabara, to raise up, heap up, 8, to swell, nabrat, a swelling on the body.

Būria (bauria, bouria), v., to kindle or make a fire (in the oven), ru būria ua (uwa), and ru būria, they make a fire in the oven, or, simply, they make a fire, kindle up: this is done every evening about an hour before sunset. See bara (H. ba'ar).

Burog, v. i., or a., offensive, mouldy, filthy (as food). [Ma. puru, mouldy, and kopuru, kopurupuru, id.] A. mara"a, to be contaminated.

Buru masila, v. i., to roar (of thunder), tifai i buru masila, d. boro silaia, the thunder roars, or thunders sounding: for masila and silaia, see sila. [TaSa. biri, Mg. varaṭa, thunder, and to thunder, Ml. P. omburumbur, Ml. A. amburambur, to roar (of thunder), Ml. P. berver, thunder.] A. barbara, to roar.

Būru, burufūru, v. i., or a., to be short: d. mīto, q.v.

Buruma ki, or bĕruma (or bĭruma) ki, v., to be in the relation of son-in-law to parent-in-law, or of parent-in-law to son-in-law, syn. monaki (monaki);

Burumà, or birumà, c. art. naburuma, s., one in that relation, son-in-law, mother-in-law, father-in-law: see mo na. One greatly reverences his buruma, and holds him so that he will not approach him. For the derivation of this word, see Index for the word mo.

Busa, v. i., or a., redup. busafusa, to be young, springing up (of plants and animals), hence to be inexperienced, foolish, to be spotted (the skin, as with cold, &c.). [My. mud·a, young, immature, not deep in colour (light), foolish.] A. wabis'a, to be spotted (with white and black spots, as the nails or skin), 4, to germinate, or put forth plants (the soil).

Būsa, s., or a., dumb, mute. A. yabisa, to be arid (see bēs), 4, to be silent, mute.

Busa, a., orphaned, meta busa, orphan. A. yabisa, to be arid, dry. An orphan is called meta busa, because deprived of its mother's milk. See bēs, bēsu.

Busi, v., i.q. bosi, q.v.

Busi, v. i., to blow, spout (as a whale). [Sa. pusa, to send up a smoke (also applied to spray, dust, and heat), Tah. puha, to blow (as a whale), puhepuhi, to blow out of the mouth, blow, as with bellows, Ha. puhi, to blow or puff, breathe hard, blow a trumpet, &c., Mg. fufuta, blowing the bellows, mifufuța, to blow the bellows, My. âmbus, to blow, make a current of air, âmbusan, bellows, âmbusi, to blow, drive, a current of air.] A. nafat'a, i. q. nafah'a, to blow with the mouth, blow out, puff, eject venom from the mouth (as a serpent), eject spittle (a man).

Busa, s., nabusa, a mist. See under preceding word.

Bus i, v. t., d., to lay down, leave, abandon;

Busfus ki, d., redup., d. for bure i, or bura i, q.v.

Busi, or fusi, v. t., d. for muri, q.v. [Mg. fudi, returned, sent back.]

Busa i, or fusa i, v. t., break or smash to pieces, smash (as a yam), mafusai, ps. [Mg. puṣiṭa, and puṣika.] H. puṣ, or fuṣ, to break in pieces.

Buta ki, d. for milei, q.v.

Buta, d., in meta-buta, blind, lit. eye dark. [Fi. matabuto. faint, buto, darkness, My. buta, blind.]

Buta, or futa, v. i.. to spring up or out, as water from a spring; to spring up or out, as smoke from a fire; to spring out, as a musket ball from a wound—i sī buta i, he shot him, the bullet springing out from, or glancing off his body, wounding but not fatal;

Butafuta, d. futfut, redup., to spring up or out, as water from a spring;

Butu-raki, or buti-raki, d., v. i., to appear, come in sight. [Ma. puta, v. i., pass through, in or out, come in sight, My. târbit, to issue, come out, emanate, spring, arise, appear, escape.] A. nabaṭa, to spring up or out, as water from a spring, 4, ps. form, to appear, go or come forth, come in sight.

Butāki, dd. mitāki, milāi, q.v. But, d. for bota, unmarried.

But i, or buti, or futi, v. t., to pluck, as a fowl, pluck out or up, as weeds, mafuta, to be plucked. [Fi. vuti-a, to pluck feathers, hairs off animals, hence, to pull up grass or weeds, Sa. futi, to pluck feathers or hairs, fufuti, ps. futia, My. bantun, to pluck, pull out.] A. namaṣa, 1, 2, to pluck out, as hairs.

Buti (for ba-uti), v., d. for bakauti, q.v. [Mg. vita, completed, finished, mamita, to finish.

Bute (lua i), v. t., to praise. A. madaḥa, to praise.

Buti na, biti na, s., germ, knob or excrescence growing on a tree, a joint (from its bulging out). See botu, and buto.

Butili, bitili, fitili, v. r., to speak of each other, speak of one behind his back: tili.

Buto, v. i., to germinate, bud. A. nabata, germinate. Hence

Buto na, s., bud, d. muto na. Buto na, s., navel, then middle; malēbuto (lit. the place of the middle), the middle (of the body, a land, anything), d. but, hence d. tu-but, rainbow, lit. stand in the middle (of the sky). [TaSa. buto, navel, taġa nabute, stomach, To. bito, Sa. pute, Tah. pito, navel, Tah. pitopito, a button, My. pusat, Mg. fuiṭa, the navel.] A. bugrat (or bujrat), the navel, a knob.

Butol, v. i., d. for bitelo, q.v. Butua, v. t., d. for bitua, q.v., to place, lay down, give; tā bituatua, to speak (or pray) while giving (or laying down) an offering (to the natemate). Hence Butut, s., a place where offerings to the natemate are put: now used for 'altar'.

Note.—The verb butua or bitua is the reflective of tua, q.v.: bā butua ki, go backwards and forwards between two things, to halt between two opinions.

Buturaki. See under buta, supra.

E, article, for a, sometimes i: a, nĕ, na, in.

E, dem., this, that, as mal e (for mala uai), that time, then: e is a contraction for uai: raġ uai, this time, now. See i (d.), dem. This e, or i, is used also as a tense particle—see i.

E, or i, prep., in, on; t. prep.: na, nĭ, a, î. [Sa. i, in, at, with, to, from, for, of, on, on account of, concerning, Ma. i, of, &c., and t. prep., My. i, t. prep., Fi. e, or i, in, with or by (instrumental).] A. li, H. lē, T. nĕ, Gurague ya, or ia.

Ē, inter. ad., where? See sē. Ei, ad., yes. [Mg. ei. Sa. e, id.] A. ey, or ei, yes.

Ei à, or ei ia, ad., yes, that's it: preceding word, and dem. Ei eri, ad., d. syn. ei à: ei, and eri, dem.

Ei, ad., here, d. i, q.v.

Ēï (ē-i), ad., no, it is not. [Er. ēyi, Mg. ai, id.] Neg. ad. e, and i, dem. H. 'i, E. 'i, not.

Eba, v. See tali-eba, tali-ofa.

Ebau, ad., at the head (of the island, i.e. the east), opp. to etu, at the foot (west); e, prep., and bau.

Ebago, ad., in the end (of the house), inside: e, prep., and bago.

Ebua, or ebu, ad., in the deep:
e, prep., and bua II. Also ebua, s., the abyss. Hades.

Ebut, d., in the middle; e, prep., and but, d. for buto, q.v.

Egura, s., the stick used for spreading (scraping) out the heated stones of the oven: e, art., and gura i.

Eis, ad., same as ais.

Eka na, s., a relative, family connection. See aka.

Ekatema, ad., on the outside of the house, outside: e, prep., and katema, q.v.

Eksakes, d. for kesakesa, q.v.

Eko, s. See neko.

Ekobu, ad., in the inside, in the house, inside: e, prep., and kobu.

Elà, d. for elau.

Elaġi, ad., and s., above, heaven: e, prep., and laġi, q.v.

Elalo, or elalu, ad., in front, before: e, prep., and lalo, or lalu, see alo, or alu na.

Elau, ad.. on the sea, by the sea: e, prep., and lau.

Ēlo, s.. d. ālo, the sun: āli.

Elo, or èl', v. i., to be sweet, pleasant, agreeable, redup. lolo. [Ha. olu, to be pleasant, agreeable.] A. ḥalā', ḥalw', id.

Elol, ad., d., in the belly. inside: e, prep.. and lol. [Ma. roto.] Ef. dd. rōara, lōġa. A. rawṭ'o, وْضْ garden. enclosure, lake, pool.

Emai (or emai), ad., in the distance, afar, far away; d. ufēa: e, prep., and mài. [Sa. mao, mamao, to be far off. distant, mamao, ad., far off. distant.] A. ma'oka, to be far off, distant, ma'k', distance.

Emalebuto, ad., in the middle, inside: e, prep., and malebuto na.

Emate n, s., d. for namatigo na, the grave: mate.

Enea, or inia, d., personal pron., 3 sing., he, she, it, dd. nai, niġā, kinini;

Enera, or inira, pl. of preceding word, they, dd. nāra, niġar, kiniara. See Ch. V.

En', vulgar pronunciation sometimes heard for nunu, to wipe, rub off.

Eni, v., d. for ani, contracted en, an, to abide, be.

Enu, pers. pron., 1 sing., I, dd. anu, kinau, kinu, ke-ino.

Ère na, or èri na, d., mother. See s.v. ani na, note.

Erai, dem., d., this: arai.

Eri, dem., this. See arai. Erik, dem., this, here. See s.

arai and ka. Eru, dem., same as eri, d.

nro, nra.

Eru, s., c. art. nieru, arms. war: āru na.

Esān, ad., here, there, and Esānien, id., and Esās, id.: e, prep., and the demonstrative particles se, na, q.v. See ais (eis). [My. sini, sika. here, sana, sanan, situ, there, and with prep. disini, here, disana, disitu, there, Mg. atu, etu, ati, eti, here.]

Esega. See asaga.

Esike, s., a forked stick, that which sike-ti, grasps, seizes: sike-ti, e, art.

Esai, or esei, s., the open, open space, d. esai leba, a road, lit. big open space: sai.

Eso, or ēsa, d., ad., yes: ei (supra), and so or sa, dem.

Esu, d., ad., outside, away, e, prep. and su. [Cf. Fi. esau (e sau), on the outside, sausau, outskirts, sausau kei vuravura, ends or outsides of the earth.] H. kĕṣu, or kṣu, only pl. kaswē, kiṣwoth, ends or extremities (of the earth), A. kaṣā', n. a. kaṣw', kaṣā', to stand apart, be afar off.

Esuma, ad., in the house, at home: e, prep., and suma.

Et, v. i., or a., d., to be many, dd. kōtĕ, kaüota, to be great, plentiful. H. kabad, kabed, id.

Etaku, ad., at the back, behind. [Sa. i tua, id.] E, prep., and taku na.

Etan, ad., on the ground, down: e, prep., and tano, the ground.

Etu, ad., at the foot (of the island, i.e. the west, opp. to ebau): e, prep., and tua na, the foot.

Ēuo (ēwo), ad., no, it is not: e, as in ēï, and uo, dem.

Euta, ad., on shore, ashore, on land, opp. to elau: e, prep., and uta.

Fa (and fe or fi), inter. pron., in safa, sefa, what? also where? It is ma in matuna, q.v. A. ma', H. mah, what? See Ch. V. 4.

Fäa na, s., d. mao na, the thigh: see mao.

Fa, or ba, q.v., to go.

Fafa-si, v. t., redup. of ba-si,
q.v., to tread upon (of many).
Fā, d. for mau, in mal fā nin = male mau ua = this very time, now.

Fafan, for bafano, to wash the hands.

Fafaġa, redup. of faġa, q.v.

Fāfatu, v. r., to trust, confide, fafātu isa, to trust or confide in him, or in it. See under fatu.

Fafine, s., d., a woman, and, a., female. See Ch. V. 17. c, for this word in the Oceanic dd., and in A.

Fagan i, v. c., same as bagan i, q.v. Hence

Faġafaġa, v., redup., and Faġafaġa, s., a bait, and Faġa, s., that which is given to eat, food; a present, a bribe.

Fai (vai), c. art. nĭfai, dd. noai (n'uai, i.e. n'wai), nai (n'ai), s., water. [An. inwai, Er. nu, Ml. nue, Epi ue, Sa., Fut. vai, Ma. wai, Bouru dd. wai, Ceram dd. wai, My. ayer, i.e. ay (ai), and er.] H. ma' unused in sing., pl. maïm, construct, mē', water; Nm. mâi, E. mai, water. For My. er, v. Ef. elo, èl'.

Fai, v. t., d., divide or cleave, as lao fai, plunge into, cleaving (with a spear): bua, to divide, cleave, and see also maġa-fai.

Fai, s., a skate (fish). [Cf. My. pari, Tag. pagi, skate fish.] Der. unknown.

Fakal i, same as bakal i I. Hence

Fakal, a. (in active sense) kano fakal, a comforting person, comforter (in passive sense), uago fakal, domestic or tame animals, lit. pigs cared for, or taken care of.

Fakalo, or fakal, s., war. [My. bârkalahi (kâlahi), to fight, to quarrel, kâlahi, fight, quarrel.] (Mahri ghorat, war), H. garah, Hith., to make war (with any one).

Fakamatua, s., c. art., an ancient story: matua, tuai. Fakamauri, i.q. bakamauri, q.v. Fakaraġo, s., c. art., the rough prickly scab that covers a sore: raġo. Faka-raġo, d. kafa-raġo, for which it is transposed. For kafa, see kafa i, infra.

Fakarogo, i.q. bakarogo.

Fakaru, i.q. bakaru. See bu-karu.

Fakaruku, s., the under part, as, na fakaruku ki nakasu, the under part of a tree (i.e. shade or shelter under its overhead foliage), ki nauot, (fig.) the shelter or protection of a chief: rukua (and the caus. prefix), q.v.

Fakasa, s., a festival: bakasa. Fakataliġa, s., an ear pendant: caus. prefix, and taliġa, q.v.

Fakatokoi, or fakatokei, i.q. bakatokoi.

Fakau, or fakaua, s., d. fikau, fikaua, a messenger, ambassador, agent sent to do something for a chief or community; and Fakau, or fakaua, s., a message such as the agent sent by a chief or a community carries to deliver, i ofi nafakaua, he carries the message (of state). See kau, ġau, grasp, take hold of, carry, &c. Sa. fe'au, to send for (v. r.), fe'au, a message, To. fekau, to bid, command, order; a message, order; My. and Ja. pâġgawa, a grandee, a noble: in Java it is the title of the five chief councillors of state, and the word is derived from gawa, to bear or carry, convey, bring, Ef. kau, to carry (as a club), Fi. kau-ta, to carry, Sa. 'au, to send, 'au mai, to bring, 'au'auna, a servant.]

Fāla, s. (see under þala 11), a ship's yards.

Falafala, s., cross sticks fastened on a tree for a ladder to climb it: pala II.

Falea, s., a cave. [Tah. farefare, a., hollow, fare, a house, Ma. whare, Sa. fale.] See bala III.

Fām i, or bām i, v. t., to eat. [Tah. amu, to eat.] H. pa'am, A. fa'ama, to have the mouth full, to swallow down.

Fanau sa, v. t., d. bunu, to teach, to instruct: to preach. [Fi. vunau-t'a, to admonish, harangue, preach to.] H.

'anah, to harangue, proclaim, preach, admonish.

Fanauen, s., c. art., the teaching, i.e. either the act of teaching or the thing taught, law (as 'law' of Moses, recent use).

Fanei, v. i., d., to be extinguished, out (of a fire): see bunu e, bunue.

Fānu, s., d., darkness, shade, only in kot-fānu, evening, lit. time of shade, d. raġ mēlu. See mēlu, and under ġota fanu, infra.

Fanua, s., inhabited country, land, My. bânua, id. [Malo vanua, house, Santo d. venua, house, village.] H. banah, to build, as a house, ps. part. banu', built, binyaha, building; A. bana', S. bna'.

Note.—The Santo word has best preserved the primary meaning 'house', or 'building'; then a country, district, or land is called banua, or fanua, because, like a house or village (or building), it is the dwelling-place of men, or place of heildings place of buildings.

Fāra ki nameta na, v. t., to fix the eyes. stare with open and motionless eyes. Nm. fagar, 2, fix (the eyes), stare. Fara, s., c. art., a cocoanut (fruit) that begins to shoot. [Cf. Fi. vara, a cocoanut ready to shoot.] Bora 11.

Fara, s., a chafed place on the skin, especially on the thigh (from being rubbed or chafed in walking): baro-si.

Fara, or fera, s., a row, or rank, or band;

Farafara, or ferafera, s., a row, a lot, a band (as of sores on a limb), lit. a number of rows;

Bifara ki, or bifera ki, v. c., to put or arrange in rows. [My. baris, a line, row, rank, file, troops, mâmbaris, v., and baris kan, v., and bârbaris, v., barisan, parade, place where troops are exercised.] H. ma'arakah (and ma'arot' for ma'arakot'), disposing, ranging in order, a row or pile, battle set in array, army, or band; from 'arak, to arrange in order, or in a row.

Fara-bule, s., c. art.. a rank, row, or band, of adults or full-grown men: fara, rank, and bule, adult.

Fara-kāl, c. art., a row or band of men connected together by relationship, as of brothers: fara, and kal, see bakal i.

Faràti, s., c. art., sticks fastened above and upon the rafters of a house: a pr. name (the name of the chief of Sesake, the chief binding the people together as the nafaràti (lit. that which binds together) do a house).

[My. bâroti, rafters, Fi. vorati, upper cross beams of a house.] From bara-ti, q.v. H. ḥibar (E. aḥabara, v. c.), to bind together, connect or join together, H. měhabírot, couplings.

Note.—In d. rub (raf)=d. farati; and in d. rau (for raf) is rafter, which in another d. is tokai.

Fare, farefare. See bare, barefare, to move.

Farea, s., the public house of a village, d. fare, outside. [Mota varea, outside, Ml. P. vere, Ur. vari, outside, Mg. ivelani, outside (i-velani).] A. barriyy', outer, external (Ct. barri), Nm. barrâni, outer. exterior (and barra, out).

Farea, d. for bi reko, to be poor: reko; and bi, to be.

Farofaro, a., tea farofaro, a thing that rasps. &c.: barosi.

Fāsi, i.e. fa-si, v. t., tread upon, fasi koro, bind together the reeds of the korofence (which is done by treading upon them): basi.

Fasu (na meta na), s., d., eyebrows, tafasi, v. r., to make a sign with the eye. A. "amaza, to make a sign (with the eye, eyebrows). 6, make such signs to each other.

Fasu, fasua na, s., a part, portion; member (of the body). [Sa. fasi, a piece. a place, fasifasi, to split up in pieces. fasi, to split. beat.] H. baṣaʿ, cut in pieces, A. baṣʿaʿa, cut, cleave, baṣʿat, part, a piece. (Cg. H. badad, to divide, bad, a part, pl. members of the body, A. badda, separate.

disjoin, budd', portion, part (of anything), badād', part. See s. v. H. badad.)

Fātă, s., a bench, shelf, stand, platform, dd. uēnr', uērĕ, uētĕ, kofeta. [Sa. fata, raised house for storing yams in, a shelf, a bier, Tah. fata, altar, scaffold, piece of wood to hang baskets of food on, &c., Mg. vaṭa (and vata), box, shelf for keeping rice, &c.] H. 'omed, platform, place, 'emdah, a lodging (place). See fatu.

Fatok, same as batok and matok: toko.

Fatu, same as batu and matu:

Fatu, hence fafatu, v., to trust in, rely upon, confide in; fāta (see ante); ġ'ofita, or kofeta, to be sticky, gluey, wet and sticky. Sa. faafatufatu, to persevere indefatigably, futu (-amoa), to have a swollen shoulder (from bearing burdens), Mg. feta, fetaka, petaka, sticky.] A. 'amada 1, 2, 3, to sustain, prop up, make firm or stable, with a column, to be wet and sticky, 8, to rely upon, trust or confide in (fāfàtu); also, 1. to have the hump or the back contused with carrying (a camel), H. 'amad, to stand (be firmly set), confide in, endure, persist, persevere, (cf. Sa.), A. 'imād, higher structures, column, stake, 'amōd', prop, column, stones put in the ground for supports for the foundation, column, prop of a family, chief, lord, the back, 'amīd', column and chief or prince (of a people), H. 'amūd, column, pillar, platform, scaffold. See fāta (ante).

Fatu, s., stone. [Mg. vatu, Ml. d. var, My. batu, Sa. fatu, id.] H. eben, E. ĕbān, stone.

Fatu, s., c. art. nafatu, the ridge of a house, ridge-pole: see bātu. [TaSa. papatu, id., Malo uobatu, id., Ml. U. uobut.] See batu, supra.

Fatuna, s., and ad., d. for matuna, q.v.

Fau, same as bau, q.v., a., new.

Faulu, s.. barter, i.q. baulu, q.v.

Faum, d. fau, new; na faumuen.

Faus i, same as baus i, ask, question; hence

Faus, pr. n. (Questioner), a spirit, officer of Saritau at the gates of Hades.

Fe, and fefe, same as be, befe; nafeāna, nafefeana, s., the act of reading, or counting.

Fĕ, conj., if, should, for bĕ. Fe, d., conj., then. but. A.

fa, id. Fēa. same as bē. or bēa. to Fēa, same as bē, or bēa, to precede, first.

Fefe, same as befe.

Fēĭ, or fē, d., inter. pron., who? [Sa. o ai, Tah. o vai, id.] See Ch. V. 4. (2).

Feifei ki, same as beifei ki; nafeifeien, s.. the act of indicating or showing, or the thing by which something is made manifest; a sign, token. See bei ki.

Feko, s., a cockroach, and similar insects.

Felak, s., c. art., d., a tribe, or family clan, dd. syn. metarau, kainaġa: bala III.

Felaki, s., c. art., girdle to which the nafon, or loin cloth, was attached: it is about six inches wide: belaki.

Fera, c. art., a row. See fara.
Fera-bule, fera-kāl. See fara-bule, fara-kāl.

Ferafera, rows. See farafara.

Fera, c. art., s.. an omen. also fefera; the natamole tabu, having poured out some namaluk (kava) to the natemate, drinks off his own cup, and then looking into it sees some blood, or a human hair, or some other thing, which is called fera, an omen, or indication, good or bad, as the case may be: or he perceives the omen, good or bad, by 'lo namo', which is another species of divination.

Fefera ki, or fera ki, and bifera ki, v., to show by a fera, as the natemate are supposed to do (see under the preceding word); to give an omen. [Mg. fambara, an omen, presage, My. fal, omen (A.).] A. fa'l', omen.

Fera, v. i., fera ki, v. t., ferafera, v. i., ferafera ki, v. t.: see bera.

Feroa, c. art., s., a crumb, food, H. biryah, food.

Fet, s., a bird's nest, made like a platform of woven twigs. [Sa. fataniga, a nest.] See fāta.

Feta, c. art., s., a tribe: beta. Fete, or fite, c. art. nafete, inter. pron., what? Nm. made, what?

Fetta, s., soapstone, a soft stone that can easily be cut: fatu, stone, and ta, to cut.

Fi, v., to be: bi.

Fiàre ki, v., to go into the presence of some one, to be unabashed (opposite of maliàre, or malière). See rairai.

Fiatu, v. r., to smite each other, to fight, war: atu.

Fière, v. r., d., to speak, converse. A. ḥāra, 6, to converse, talk together.

Fifi, s., anything binding round, as a fillet or turban, &c., then a thing going round, as a ship round a cape or island, then hostile talk (with which one's adversary as it were binds him round);

Fifi ki, v. t., to go round, as a yam vine round a stake, a ship round an island: fifi, is for fifisi, redup. of fisi, q.v.

Fifis i, v. t., to bind round: redup. of fisi.

Fikit, or fikat, v. r., to be savage, given to biting, lit. to bite each other: kat i. [Fi. veikata, id.]

Fikoba, v. r., lit. to chase, or pursue, each other: koba-si.

Fili, s., d., hair, feathers, &c. [Po. fulu, hulu, huru, Mg. vulu, My. bulu, id.] See s.v. bulu.

Fili, or filă, c. art., same as bila, lightning: bila. [Sa. uila, My. kilat, Mg. helața, id.]

Filifili, s., a gleaming or flashing shell worn as an ornament: bila.

Filora, same as bulora, and, redup., Filifilora. See bulo ki.

Fimeri, v. r., to be doing something to each other, usually in a hostile sense, to be fighting: meri.

Fimuri, v. r., to be returning each other, dismissing with presents, repaying: muri.

Finaga, c. art., s., food: kan i. [For other Oceanic forms of this word, see the lists of Codrington and Ray. Mg. hinana, id.]

Firā-ni, v. t., supplicate, or pray, him, and without object, firā, to supplicate, pray, also bifirā, bifirā-ni. [Tah. pure, to pray, pupure, to pray frequently.] H. falal, Hithp., to supplicate, pray.

Firaka, v. i., to delay. A. 'araka, (5), to delay.

Fisa, v., fisan, c. art., s., to speak, word: bisa.

Fis i, or fisi, v. t., to bind round, to bind about, as a fillet, turban, or vine round the head, a string round a parcel, a bandage round a wounded limb; fisi namanuk, to bind up a wound; a vam vine binds round a stake (twines round it), and fisi namē, to twist a rope (bind round the one strand on the other—this is usually bulo ki); a whip or rod binds round the body to which it is applied, hence tale fisi, to flog (see tale, to go round), lit. to go round binding about, d. mafisi, to whip, flog: often the final s is elided, hence fi-gote-fi, to flog him to pieces (for fisi-gote-fi), lit. to flog break him, and see fifi (supra), and tafifi; the word of an adversary is said to fisi the object of his anger, that is, bind him round; fisi uago, bind round a pig (in order to its being carried slung to a pole, so that it may not be [Sa. fisi, to entwine as a vine, To. fi, to twist, and fihi, entwine, twist, Ma. whiwhi, be entangled, whakawhiwhi, wind round, fasten, My. pusig, to turn round, twist. H. habas', to bind, bind on. bind about, as a head band, turban, tiara, 'the seaweed is bound about (fisi na bau ġu) my head,' Jon. ii. 6; to bind up a wound, to bind fast, shut up; cf. (A. 'afas), bosi, q.v.

Fisi, a used as s., i bi fisi (a boy that is circumcised, ru tefe a i bi fisi, they circumcise him, he is fisi). A.

'afṣa'u, e praeputio apparentem habens glandem puer, faṣa'a, a glande praeputium reduxit puer.

Firi na, c. art., s., d. fiti na,

Firi, or fir i, v. t., same as bir i, q.v., to make void, bring to nought; hence

Firi, in tale-firi, round-bringing to nought, i.e. all round. Firigi, same as biri-gi, to carry.

Fisau na, s., d., as nafisau naui = ora naui, the sprout, shoot, or vine of a yam: bisau.

Fisiko na, s., flesh. H. basar, Ch. bisra, or bisirā, flesh. [TaSa. veseko, id.]

Fiso, c. art., s., an annual reed-like plant whose top is used for food. [Sa. fiso, a species of reed.] Der. unknown.

Fisuaki, same as bisuaki. Fisueri, same as bisueri.

Fisuraki, c. art., s., talk, speech: bisuraki.

Fisurakien, c. art., s., the act of talking: bisuraki, q.v.

Fisurua, c. art., s., a lie. or lies; and Fisuruen, c. art., s., lying: bisuru, q.v.

Fiti na, c. art., s., d. firi na, the rib, or ribs, side. [Er. mperi, Santo d. porera na, Ma. rara, Mafoor raar, rib.] H. sela, Ch. 'ala', rib, side, A. ş'il', rib.

Fitaua, c. art., s., d. syn. with fakaua or fikaua: tau.

Fit, v. i., d., to run. A. fadda, to run.

Fite, interr. See nafete.

Fitèriki, or biteriki, s., an old woman, matron, lady, as màriki, an old man, senior, sir: māriki is mā', man, and riki, old, and fitèriki is fite, woman, and riki, old: for fite, see under fafine and matu; and for riki, old, what Ma. ariki, firstfollows. born male or female in a family of note, hence chief, priest, leader. E. lěhěka, to advance in age; be the firstborn, or eldest, in a family; be senior; alhaka, to grow old, lhīķ, advanced in age, aged; contracted lik, chief.

Fitefa, same as bitefa.

Fitili, same as butili.

Fitia, same as bitia, q.v.

Fito na, s., d., syn. bile-meta na, q.v.: buto, v. i., and buto, s., bud.

Fo, d. for bo, q.v.. particle used in the formation of the future tense.

Fōġa, s., d. nāfo, whetstone, grinding stone, and (because used as whetstone) pumice stone. [To. fuaġa (Ma. hoaġa, Sa. foaġa), a grindstone, a whetstone, fuafuaġa, pumice stone.] See nāfo.

Fona, c. art., s., d. syn. tofe, the native cloth, or clothing, made from the bark of a tree. [E. Mai funa, id.] See bono-ti Fōnu, s., the turtle or tortoise. [Fi. vonu, My. pâñu. Mg.

fani, Ha. honu, Sa. volu, To. fonu. A. 'āwinat, 'ayinat, the tortoise or turtle.

Fu, v. i., d. for mu, to hum, buzz, laġo fu, humming or buzzing fly (blow fly): mu.

Fua na, or bua na, s., nafua n rarua, the bottom (outside) of a canoe or ship, lit. the back, syn. na matu n rarua: bua na, buĭ na.

Fuagoro, s. See muagoro.

Fuata, v. i., or a., to have raised stripes on the skin (as from blows with a rod, or as are formed by the veins on the arm). See bua III, and bua-ti: the radical notion is swelling out.

Fua-ti, i.q. bua-ti.

Fuga, d. buma, q.v.

Fuġaġa, v. i., to well up, spring. bubble up, welling over or spreading asunder (as a spring): fua, or bua III, and ġaġa, for which see maġa.

Fuġafuġa, v. i., or a., i. q. buġafuġa, q.v. [Sa. faġu-faġu.]

Fugafuga na, s., as, fugafuga nabiau, the whitened or breaking crest of a wave, lit. its blossom: fuga.

Fule, and fulefule, or bulefule. See bule 1.

Fulu, and fulufulu: i.q. preceding word.

Fuluara, v. i., or a., to be bad, a rascal, ill-looking, horrid, malignant. A. 'afar, وَفُرِيِّ &c., malignant, horrid, &c. Fulus, v., to turn: bulusi. Fumafuma na, s., d. for fuġafuġa na, q.v.

Funaso, c. art., s., stopper: bunaso.

Fura, same as bura, to be full.

Furei, s. See futei.

Furei ki, v. t. See burei: rub, cleanse; furei ki natua na, cleanse his feet, as by rubbing or scraping them on a scraper, &c.

Furei a, same as burei, or bura i, to leave.

Furiāna, c. art., s., the being swollen, or having the dropsy: buria.

Fus i, same as bus i, d. mur i,

Fusa i, same as busa i.

Fusfus ki, same as busfus ki. Fut, c. art., s., d. for bosabosa.

Futei, dd. furei, fuței, mitoi or mitei, s., the white ant. See rei, tei. [Sa. loi, Tah. ro, ant, gen. name.]

Futfut, d. for butafuta.

Futum, v. i., dd. bisau, busuf, busofu, bisobu, to sprout forth, spring up, grow. [Fila, Meli, Aniwa, Fut. somo, id., Mg. miṣemuka, to germinate.] H. ṣamaḥ, Kal and Piel, to sprout forth, to grow (as plants, trees, the hair), and fig. used of the first beginnings of things which occur in the world, as Isa. xliii. 19, 'Behold I make a new thing; now it shall spring forth,' Hi. make to sprout forth or grow.

and fig. make something spring up or exist, H. seman, offspring, Ef. atuma, id.

Ġ (pronounced ng).

 $\ddot{\mathbf{G}}$ $\ddot{\mathbf{a}}$, d., pers. pron., 3 sing., he, she, it (nom. suf. n, or na). [Ma. $\dot{g}a$, pl. art., Sa. na, he, she, this, that, these, those, Ha. na, pl. art., and sign of pl. number; Mg. izi, My. $i\hat{n}a$ (inya), he, she, it, they.] See Ch. V. 2.

Ga, conj., usually go, q.v., and: ka, in kai, conj.

Ga, final conj., that, ut, d. ka, or k', q.v.

Ga, dem., this, here, there, always (in this form) suffixed as in naġ, naġa, q.v., alaġa (alia ġa), this place, or place here, i.e. here (d. li ke, see ke); but alaġa may be a contraction for alia naġa: ka, dem.

Gaber, a., and s., grey-haired, aged, a grey-haired, i.e. aged person: kaber.

Gāfa, s., a fathom (six feet). [Sa. jafa, a fathom.] A. kāmat (Nm. kama), a fathom (six feet).

Gafikafi, s., a small basket; and Gafikafi, v., to feel for or take hold of a thing in a basket with the fingers. A. koffat, a basket, kaffa, to take stealthily between the fingers.

Gaġa, v. i., to well out, or bubble up, as water from a spring, in fuġaġa. See maġa. Gai, or gei, redup. gaigai, v. i., to cry, sing, &c.: kai, or kei.

Gai (ga, final conj., and i, tense particle of the fut.). See i, dem.

Gaigai, v. i., to pant, be out of breath. [Sa. jacejace, to be out of breath, Ha. nac, nacnae, to be out of breath, to pant.] S. kaḥ, to pant.

Gai-tagoto, v. i., to scream (as in pain): gai, and tagoto, for which see koto, to break.

Ġakalau i (ġkalau i), redup. of ġalau i.

Ġakarafi (ġkarafi). See karafi.

Ġakasi (ġkasi). See kasi. Ġakat (ġkatak). See kati.

Gakau sa, v. t., to grasp (as an oar, in pulling, or a branch of a tree): usually pronounced gkau. See gau, kau.

Gakua, inter. ad., redup. of kua, or ġua, q.v.

Gala, v. i., or a., small: kala. Galakala, v. i., to laugh. [My. gâlak, to laugh loud continuously.] A. karkara, to laugh loud and long. karkara, to laugh, cf. kalla, 7, to laugh.

Galau i, v. t., d. ġalau sa, to cross over, d. (transposed) lakau i, q.v. E. ḥalafa, to cross over, aḥlafa, make to cross over.

Gale-baga, s., d., bowstring: kale-baga.

Gal i (al i, kal i), v. t., to stir round (as water or any liquid). Ma. jaru, a wave, jarue, shake, move to and fro, Ha. ale, well up, aleale, make into waves, stir up, as water, ale, a wave, Sa. jalu, a wave, jajalu, to be rippled, jalu, to be rough, break heavily on the reef, &c., My. alun, Mg. aluna, a wave. H. galal, to roll, hence gal, fountain, well, pl. waves, S. galo', a wave.

Galu, c. art., s., husks, peel, &c. (for pig's food), better part of a thing; pudenda; d. the inner bark of trees: see kalu-ti. Cf. Ch. gilla, S. gelo, A. gillu, gullu, chaff, &c., a covering, better part of a thing.

Galu-ti, v. t., galuti nāsu, to put the bowstring on a bow, nabela galu, covering board on end of a canoe; and Galu, c. art., s., bowstring. See kalu-ti.

Galuġalua, v. i., or a., d. saġaluġalu, to be aged, experienced (of persons), to be mature, also to be worn out as with age (of anything), as if to be full of agedness, and mere husk or skin: it has the a. ending a; naġalu matua, an aged, full-grown, or fullbearded person, or one not immature. A. galla, 2, to become aged and expert or experienced.

Ġan i, ġanikani, v. t., to eat: kan i.

Gara, v. i., to be dry: kara. Garagara, v. i., to be strong, vehement, and garakarai: kara, karakarai.

Ġarā sa, v., to meet (any person or thing), to come upon, hit, as, ru ba ġára nata, they went, met a person, i ba ġarā sa, it (as a calamity) came upon him, i sī ġarā sa, he shot (hit) it or him, i bisa ġarā sa, he spoke, met (or hit) it, i.e. he spoke to the point. H. karah, and kara', to meet.

Ġara ki, v. See kara ki. Gara, d., pers. pron., 3 pl., they: ġa, and 'ra. [Ma. ġārā, they, them. See Ch. V. 2. \mathbf{Gar} i, v., and, redup., Garikari. See kar i. Garo i, v. t. See kar i. Garu-ti, and redup., Garukaru. See karu-ti. Garei ki. See karei ki. Garaf i, v. t. See karaf i. Ġari, a., d. for kasi. Ġasa, inter. ad. See kasa. Ġas i, v. See kas i. Gasua, and gasukasua, a. See kasua. Ġāt. See ġaut.

Gat i, v. See kati. Gat, v. See kat. Gatikati. See kati. Gati, d. for kasi.

Gato na, d. karo na. Gau, v. t., to grasp: kau.

Gaua, a., barbed (of a spear): kau, v. t., tagau. It has the

a. ending a. Gaut. d. ģāt.

Gaut, d. ġāt, in bati-ġaut, a plant with hook-like thorns, lit. grasping teeth: kau, v. t., taġau.

Gel i, v. t., to clasp (in order to lift or carry), carry away; Gele-ti, v. t., id.; and Gelakela, v., used of many carrying away. See kele-ti, and kalu-ti.

Gel i, for gal i.

Gema, d., verb suf., 1 pl., excl.: ġami, nami.

Ġemi, d. ġami, nami, nom. suf. 1 pl., excl.

Gera-fi, for kara-fi.

Gere na, s., in mele-gere na, and na garagara na, the part of the tail of a fish which when it is feeding near shore appears above water like a shark's fin. [Ml. P. kare, tail; My. ekor, ikur, tail.] H. 'aḥōr, A. 'oḥ'or', hinder part, rear, end; Nm. êkir, end. Gesa, gesakesa, for kesa, kesakesa. Gi, prep., and ki, q.v., to, belonging to, of.

Ġī, s., porpoise: perhaps so called because of the squeaking noise it makes on rising out of the water. See next word.

Ġi, ġkī, ġiki, v. i., creak, squeak, ping, moan. [Fi. ġi, to squeak, Sa. 'i'i, squeak.] A. naṣṣa, naṣiṣ, creak, &c. Ġie na, or ġia na, s., name, dd. kiha na, and ġisa na, q.v. Ġiè sa, or ġie ki, v. (see preceding word), to have or acquire a name for or in connection with something.

Giki. See kiki, small.
Gil i, or kil i, or kili, v. t.,
to dig. [Sa. 'eli, My. gali,
Mg. hadi, to dig.] A. kara',
n. a. karw', to dig.

Note. - Kili natano, dig the ground, kili ki nakasu natano, dig a stick into the ground.

Ġkiliki (i.e. ġikili ki), redup., intensive, as ba ġkiliki natuoma, dig thy feet (into the ground), i.e. stand firm, or simply, ba ġkiliki.

Ġkita, i.e. ġikita, v. redup. See ġita, kita.

Ġinit i, v., ġini ġote-fi. See kinit i.

Ġiriġiri,v.i., or a., to be bright, brilliant, shining, polished. [To. ġiġila, bright, brilliant, polished, My. gilaġ, and gilau, to shine, glitter, be bright, brilliant, dazzle.] A. gala', to be clear, shining, &c., galiyy', bright, shining, polished.

Note.—The A. word also denotes to be or appear uncovered: Ef. d. karo, to be unclothed, have the clothes removed, naked.

Ġis, or ġisa, ad., together, lit. as one, with numerals, as, rua ruā ġis, two, two together, in twos, and so with all the numerals. H. k'eḥad, as one, i. e. together, Ch. ka-ḥăda. See ki, as, and sa, s, one.

Ġisa. See kisa, or kesa.

Ġisa na, s., c. art., name, dd. gia na, kiha na (for kisa na). [TaSa. kiṣa, Ml. U. se, Malo isa, Epi (Ba.) sia, (Bi.) kia, Ta. dd. riġe (nariġe). na'ġe ('ġe), An. t'a, Fi. yat'a, Am. sa, Paama isa, Ta. d. hġe (nahġe).] A. 'ism' and sim', H. s'em, name.

Note.—The Ef. gisa (kiha, gia) has k' (or g') prefixed, as Epi kia, and TaSa. kiṣa, for which see Ch. II. 11. c., not in Epi sia, Ml. se, Am. sa, Malo and Paama isa: in all these the final m of the original is elided, as it is in tā (q.v.), blood, and nu (for num); this final m appears as g in Ta.

Ġis i, v. t., to feel, touch, and Ġiskis, redup. See kis i.

Ġita i, v. t. See kita i.

Ġite toa i, for ġita toa i. See kite toa i.

Go, conj., connecting substantives and sentences, and. [Ml. P. ja, ka, Ml. U. ko, Fi. ka, and.] Amh. ka, and (with numerals).

Goba (gote-fi), v. t., to cut, as a nakoau, with a knife. Mg. kapa, cut, mikapa, v. t., to cut. H. gub, A. gāba, to cut.

Goba-si, v. t. See koba-si. Gobera, or gobăra, s., or kobara, side, as, kobara kerua, the other side. H. 'eber, Ch. 'abar, id.

Gofu sa, v. t. See kofu sa. Gofkofua, a. See kofkofua. Gkofita (for ġokofita), a., sticky, gluey. [Mg. feta, feta-ka, clay adhering, wet, sticking to.] A. 'amada, 2, 5, to be wet so as to stick (earth or clay).

Gogo, v. i., to wade, to wade half swimming;

Gogo, s., an aquatic bird. [An. aġaġ, to swim, Sa. 'a'uu, to swim, Fila kaukau, to bathe, Ma. kau, swim, wade, Ha. au, auau, swim, bathe, hasten, cf. Ja. kumbah, to wash.] A. hamma, 1, hasten, 4, bathe, or wash oneself in cold water, 10. bathe in hot water; and, general term, wash the body. Ġoi, or ġo i, v. t., or ko i, as, goi naniu, to rub, scrape, or grind out by rubbing or scraping the kernel of the cocoanut, suru-go i (cover-drain out) to cover with one's mouth the aperture of a drinking vessel and drain out the contents, koi, a mark or boundary, also koika nafanua; redup.,

Goko i, v. t., to scrape (nafona); to mark, paint, or smear (nafona, i.e. native cloth), koko, the paint used for this, gokoi (or gokai, or gokei) nafona. [Sa. 'o'ai, to mark or paint native cloth.] H. ḥakah, i.q. ḥakak, cut into, hack, engrave, carve, draw, paint, delineate, ḥok, a defined limit, a bound, A. hakka, 3, grind by rubbing, 1, hack, cut, pierce, 7, drain out (as milk), ḥakka, scrape, rub; hence also Ġko, or ġoko, v., to cut into, cut, hack, always followed by another verb, as, ġko bora i, ġko ġote-fi (used of cutting up the nakoau, or native pudding), na kokoen, s., the cutting up.

Ġokolau, see ġakalau (ġkalau i).

Gōlĕ, s., a cripple, one lame. A. gayala, to be lame.

Ġkola (ġokola). See kola, kokola, to be dry.

Ġkola. See kola, shout.

Ġkolau. See kolau.

Goli na, c. art., s., bird's beak, lips, mouth. [Sa. gutu, mouth (of animals, wells, bottles), Ma. gutu, lip, rim, whakagutugutu, grumble at, scold, Fi. gusu, mouth, Fut. ragutu, beak.] A. nakara, to peck with its beak (a bird); to scold, nakrāt, foramen (gulae), mankar, bird's beak.

Goloba, v. i., to be filthy, dirty. Karafa, 3, to be defiled, 4, to be infected, contaminated, Nm., 4, to disgust.

Ġkolofa. See kolofa.

Ġolu-ti, v. t. See kalu-ti. Ġon, v. i., to be firm, fast: kon.

Ġkon (kokon), redup. of preceding.

Ġkon (gokon), v. i., to be bitter: kon, kokon.

Gonai, v. t. See konai.

Gor i, or kor i, v. t., to enclose or surround with a fence (nakoro); then to enclose as with a fence a sick person (shutting out and prohibiting evil spirits or evil influences from him)—this is done by the 'Sacred Man' (natamole tabu)—hence gorokoro, to divine, and nekoro, divination, or incantation, with its accompanying rites; redup., gorokor i (native Christian prayer, Atua O, ba ġorokoro ġami auga toko loġa namolien anaġo—'O God, enclose us that we may abide in the loġa (enclosure) of Thy salvation)'; ġorò sa, to conceal it (as a crime with which one is charged); gor i, to prohibit, as, tuba gor i, prohibit, impede, obstruct, bisa gor i, speak, impede, or obstruct him; tu gor i, stand, obstruct; ġkoro (ġokoro), v., and nakokoro, s., a prohibition, also an obstruction or thing put to close up or obstruct the entrance to a house, a door. This verb is much used after other verbs as bā ġor i, to go obstructing, i.e. to meet, d. bakor, to meet, or rather to come or go before, i.e. appear before (any one), then to arise, come into sight (as a man, ship, &c.), and take place (as an event); meri gor i, bati gor i, like gor i, simply mean to enclose or surround with a fence. sera gor i, to enclose or encircle (the head) with a fillet, hence seragoro-bau, a hat; gore na, a brother's sister, or sister's brother, brother and sister being children of the same mother, or of the same nakainaġa. A. ḥagara, impede, prohibit, interdict, 2, to have a halo surrounding it (the moon), (see koro), 4, to conceal; higr', hogr', a fence, a wall, what is prohibited, genitals of a man or a woman, kindredship, relationship, hā-gir, a fence; H. hagar, to gird, hagōr, a girdle, clad. Nm., 2, to fence round, confine, forbid; E. hagar, town, village (Fi. koro, id.).

Gore na, s., brother's sister, sister's brother. See under preceding word.

Goro, v. i., or koro, to snore. [Ma. jojoro (redup.), My. jorok, Mg. eruṭa, id.] H. naḥar, A. (ḥ'arra, ḥ'arḥ'ara) naḥ'ara, S. nḥar, snort, breathe hard through the nose, E. nĕhĕra, snore;

Gore na, c. art., s., the nostrils, nose, dd. usu, gusu. [Fi. ut'u, Sa. isu, Ma. ihu, My. iduġ, Ja. iruġ, Mg. uruna, nose.] H. nḥīraim, du., the nostrils, S. nḥīro', the nose, A. noḥ'rat, aperture of the

Gorot i, v. t., to cut round, as to cut round a stick in order to break it; hence

Goro gote-fi, v. t., cut round, break it (as a stick). Nm. h'arat, to shave off in turning, H. harat (q.v.), S. hrat, cut in, engrave. See karati. Gota, redup. gogota, v. i., or a., black, dirty, bukota, dirty (as water with dust or earth in it). [Gilolo kokotu, kitkudu, black.]

Gota fānu, s., or ad., evening, d. kot' fān, d. syn. rāġ mēlu, lit. time of dusk, or sunset:

gota, or kot', a time (see kota). A. wakata, 1, 2, to fix a time, wakt', a time, a point or part of time: fānu. [Santo punu, to set (the sun), puni, dusk.] H. pun (perhaps i.q. A. 'afana = 'afala, cf. H. 'apal, see melu), to set (as the sun), to be darkened.

Ġot, v., cut. See koto-fi. Ġote-fi, v. t. See koto-fi.

Gotokoto, v. i., to begin (break or cut, as it were, into the doing of something, 'break ground' in the matter), as i gotokoto bat i, he began—did it: koto-fi.

Ġū, d. mu, nom. suf., your, 2 pl. (ku, verb. pron., 2 pl.): separate pron., 2 pl., kumu.

Gū, dd. mu, kama, verb. suf., you. See preceding word, and fol.

Gu, d. k (for ku), nom. suf., 1 sing., my, as, narugu, my hand. See Ch. V. 2.

Gua, inter. ad., why? lit. that what? It is used with the verbal prons., as, i kua, it is for what? Indefinitely i kua, it that so (assent): kua and gua are equally used. soil, that what? why? See Ch. V. 5.

Gua, v. i. See kua, Sa. gu, to growl.

Ġūku, v. i., to stoop, be incurved, maġuku, to be incurved, ġuku rumu ki mō na, to shrink or incurve the bosom to her son-in-law (of a mother-in-law bowing and covering her bosom and face so as not to be seen by her son-in-law), d. kuku ruma. [Mg. huhuka, bow down, cover.] E. g'uḥķa, to be incurved, bent, specially from old age, hence guḥuķ, one aged, bent, and shrunk together.

Guku-taki, v. t., to make ġuku. See ġuku.

Gulu-ti, v. t. See kalu-ti.

Gulu, v. i. See kulu.

Gum i, v. t., or kum i, to absorb in the mouth (as a lolly). H. gama', to absorb, to drink up, to swallow, i.q. Ch.

Ġum i, v. t., dd. um i, ġu i (gw i), m i (mw i), to seize, grasp, catch, hold, with or in the hand. [Sa. u'u, to take hold of, to grasp, ps. 'umia, Fi. qumi-a, ququ, id., My. gângam, Ja. gâgâm, to clutch, to clench, the fist, the clenched hand, To. kuku, hold in the hand, or mouth, bite, ravenous, Ma. kuku, grate, Mangarwan kuku, wipe.] A. ķamķama, to collect, to seize or catch with the hand, to take, kamma, to sweep, voravit.

Gunut i, v. t. See kinit i. Gura i, v. t., to scrape off, gura ua, to scrape or rake off the heated stones from an oven, magir i, v. t.. scrape, magura, v. i., or ps. a., diminished, lean. igura, d. igiri, the stick for scraping or raking the stones from an oven, gura biri ki (d. syn., sera biri ki), to startle (one) (as by coming behind one and suddenly laying or sweeping the hand on him): kar i, garu. H. gara, to scratch, to scrape, scrape off, then take away, withhold, to diminish, Ni. to be taken away, Note the Ef. mawithheld. ġura, denotes, lit. taken away from, i.e. diminished, lean, with the prep. ki, magura ki, to withhold from (one), meta magura ki, he eyes withholds (something) from (one), he is stingy; in one d. i meta makur ki, is said to denote he eyes withdraws from (one), he is covetous, lit. he eyes scrapes off (from some one).

Gure-si, v. t., to gnaw: see gura i and kar i. [Sa. jali, gnaw, Fi. quru, v. i., quru-tu, v. t., to eat anything unripe, to scranch, eat ravenously, to gnaw, My. greb, to gnaw.] This word seems properly to denote, scranch, scrape off, absorb, H. gara', scrape off, A. gara'a, to absorb, swallow.

Guru ki, v. t., to gather together, guru-maki, v. t., id., or kuru ki, kuru-maki, gkuruk (gukuruk), gather together (without object); and

Gurua, s., c. art., a field (of battle, of yams), so called because men or things are gathered together in it; kuru. A. kara (mid. وَرَةَ رَكُورٌ رَوْرٌ رَوْرُ رَالِي رَوْرُ رَالِي رَوْرُ رَالِي رَوْرُ رَوْرُ رَوْرُ رَالِي رَوْرُ رَوْرُ رَوْرُ رَوْرُ رَوْرُ رَوْرُ رَوْرُ رَوْرُ رَالِي رَاكُورُ رَالِي رَائِلُورُ رَوْرُ رَوْرُ رَوْرُ رَوْرُ رَوْرُ رَوْرُ رَوْرُ رَوْرُ رَوْرُ رَالِ رَوْلِ رَالِي رَالِي رَالِي

Gurui, and Guruni, s., c. art. naguruni, a woman, wife, female. See Ch. II. 17. e.

Gusĭ, v. i., to be crooked, contorted, maġusĭ, crooked, contorted. A. 'akis'a, to be crooked, contorted, 5, id.

Gusu, v. i., to stoop. A. nakasa, to stoop.

Gusu na, s., c. art., the nose: gore na, q. v.

Gusugisu ki, v. den., from preceding word, to nose (a thing), i.e. smell it. [Mg. uruka (from uruna, the nose), miuruka, to kiss by touching noses.]

Ġusu, v. i. See kusu, kosumi.

Ġusu-mi, v. t. See kosu-mi. Ġut i, v. t., and ġukut i (ġkut i). See kut i.

Gutu ki, v. t. See kutu ki.

I, verb. pron., 3 sing., he, she, it, sometimes pronounced e; also dd. i, e, verb. suf., 3 sing., him, her, it. [Epi Ba. o, Epi Bi. c, him, her, it; Fut. i, Ml. P. i, TaSa. i, he, she, it.] Separate pron. nai, dd. inia, or enea, ġa, or niġa, he, she, it.

I, dem., d., this, here, d. ei, rag i, this time, now.

I, or e, a tense particle used after ka (sign of past tense, as, i ka fano, he went), and ga, and ba (final conjs.), thus, i kai bano, he had gone, i ġai bano, let him have gone, the notion expressed being that the action (as going) was done or is to be done before the doing of something else. Dialect syn. ko, ba i bano = ba ko bano = that thou have gone, lit. that thou now (before something else to follow) go. [Cf. e after verbs in Ha. and Tah. Probably the dem. e, this or that (perhaps contraction of uai, this, now, that, then, thus, igai bano = iġa bano uai, which is sometimes used, the expression denoting exactly the same, only the ad. being differently placed, as English we might say, let him now go=let him go now), thus, i kai (or, ka e) bano, he went then (that time), ba i bano, go now (this time), d. kui ban, you now go (as bidding farewell).

I, dem., in ēï, not that, no: syn. ēüo, e, and uo, dem.

Ī, no, compare e in ēī. [This neg. ad. is seen in Sa. i (in i'ai, no). To. i (in ikai, no); for the kai, see tika.]

I, prep. (also e), contracted from ni (li), often t. prep. [Ma. i, id.]

Note.—The verb. suf., 3 sing., is often combined with this prep. ia, d. i, for iia, ii.

Ia, s., d. for bia, child.

Ia, verb. suf., 3 sing., dd. i, e, him, her, it.

Iak, s., d., mother (vocative). See aka, and i, art. [Mg. kaki, and ikaki, my father (voc.).]

Ibē! iebē! iboĭ! interj., exclamation of wonder, surprise, and pleasure, d. bai. See bai; i, as in io, iore.

Iġam, dd. aġam, niġami, kiġami, kinami, q.v., 1 pers. pron. exclusive.

Igin, d., ad., here; i, prep., and gin (or kin), q.v. [Sa. i inei, Fut. ikunei, id.]

Igira, d. for igita, 1 pers. pron. inclusive.

Iģiri, s., and

Iġura, s., same as eġura.

Igita, dd. agita, nigita, kigita, nininta: gita, for nita, 1 pers. pron. inclusive.

Ika, s., c. art. naika, fish. [Sa. ia, My. ikan, Santo d. ika.] Cf. H. dag, pl. const. děgē and dagah, const. děgath, fish. It is possible that ika is the same by the elision of the d. See Ch. II.

Iki, a., small, little; in kariki (kar' iki), little children. See kiki. [To. iki, small, little.]

Ikin, or kin, s., c. art. nikin, a bird's nest. [Mg. akani.] H. ken, A. wakn', wukunat, id.

Ilibagoen, s., a basket with closed bottom, a purse, or wallet: ala (basket), bago, uon (bon). Ili-fiki, v., also lele-, or lili-fiki, d. syn. kelu-faki, as, rarua i ili-fiki naġusu, the canoe rounds the point, or cape. See lele, lili.

Ilisela, ad., throughout, for lilisela, lit. all round (throughout) the way: lele (or lili), sela, q.v.

Imrum, d. imrau, ad., inside the house: i, prep., moru, hollow, um, house. See katema.

Īn, s., or nīn, the wind, the air: laģi. [My. aģin, Mg. anina, the wind.]

In, dem., this, d. na. [Cf. Sa. nei, this, now, Mg. ini, that, this, My. ini, this.] Assy. annu, this.

Inia, inea, or enea, d., pers. pron., 3 sing., he, she, it.

Inin, here: i, prep., and nin, this.

Inini, d., s., c. art. nainini, spirit, soul. See anu.

Inira, inera, or enera, d., pers. pron., 3 pl., they.

Inira, or nira, or nera, d., verb. suf., 3 pl., them.

Inuma, s., d. for isuma, q.v. Io, ad., yes. [Sa. io, Fi. io, or ia, yes, Ja. iya.] H. 'īhu', E. 'ewa, yes.

Iore, ad., d. ōre, yes. [Fi. iarai, yes.] From īo, and ri, dem. See eri.

Ĭra, or ĕra, or ra, verb. pron., 3 dual, they two.

Ira (d. ir), or ra, verb. suf., 3 pl., them.

Ïru, or eru, or ru, verb. pron., 3 pl., they, d. ĭu, or u.

Īs, ad., or interj., no, not so.[Mg. isi, id.] I, neg. ad., and s', dem. See sĕ.

Isi, s., c. art. naïsi na, basis, foundation; naisi matua na, its great foundation, naisi matua nafisan, the great foundation of the discourse or speech, its text, naisi namal, the foundation of the affair; and Isuma, d. inuma (s to n), s., a clearing for a plantation, lit. the foundation of the clearing for cultivation. See uma. A. 'iss', &c., a foundation.

Ita, s., c. art. naita, d. for nāta, a human being, man. See ata.

Īta, interj. of exhortation, come! now then! come now![Ta. ita, id.] A. hī'ta, adesdum, adeste.

Itaki, s., dd. otaki, uataki, a split stick for grasping and lifting hot oven stones, the native tongs: i, art., and taki.

Iu, or ĕu, verb. pron., 3 pl., d. for ĭru, or ĕru, they.

Ĭu, s., c. art. naiu, or naiyu, d. for nausu. See usu.

K, d., verb. suf., 2 sing., thee, d. ko. A. ka, thee.

Ka, kĭ, or kĕ, ad., as; tera kĭ māla, move (lit. fly) like a hawk (of the dancing of women who move with both arms stretched out like the wings of a hawk); usually prefixed to another particle, as, kite, as. A. ka, H. kĕ, as. K, d. ġu (ku), nom. suf., 1 sing., my, as, naruk, my hand. [My. ku, Mg. hu.]

Ka, k', tense particle, past indefinite, as, a ka bano, I went, i ka bano, he went. [Fi. ka, a sign of the past tense, sometimes of the present.] For this ka, see Ch. V. 10. c.

K', d. ġa, d. ka, final conj., that, in order that: prefixed to the verbal pron. it loses its vowel: in the d. in which this particle is pronounced ga, the verb. pron. is put before it—i ga, he that, i.e. that he, d. ke (k', that, e, he), that he, ka (k', that, a, I), that I, d. a ga: the order seen in ka, that I, ke, that he, is the older and more correct: examples, ka fan, that I go, ke fan, that he go, let him go, and so with every verb in the language. This is not a tense but a mood, though the idea of futurity is implied: to make the future tense fo (see bo, mo, uo) is added, thus, ka fo ban, I shall go, I will go, ke fo ban, he will go (he shall go, is rather ke ban, i.e., he must go, but also, let him go, and, he may go, and, to go, or, that he go). As final conj. A. ka', H. ki, that, in order that (with the future), Latin ut (with the subjunctive). It is not surprising that k' in some dialects denotes the future. Thus in Florida it denotes the future, as, ke bosa* (k', this particle, and e, he), he will speak, compare Tigre Matt. xvi. 27 (when the Son of Man) shall come (kimase), for the simple future in Ethiopic: this Tigre ki is k', the particle in question (A. ka'), and i, verb. pron. or preformative, 3 sing. Ef. d. $\dot{g}a$, d. k, final conjunction, Ysabel je, ji, Raratonga ka, usually kia, Ma. kia (the a is a dem. added), To. ke, Mg. h': Raratonga ka, future, in some places past, Florida k', future, Mg. k', future. See Ch. V. 8. 1. Ka, d., dem. ki, or ke, this, there (near), as, nauot ka, this chief; ke, and ga in naga. See word after next below. [My. iki, ika, iku, this, that, TaSa. aki, or ake, this.] E. ka, dem., seen in zěku, Amh. yěh, or ĭhě, for ĭkĕ, this, Arm. dek, dak, deka', dake', A. daka. With Semitic demonstrative ka (Dillmann, Gr. Eth., §§ 62, 65), seen in these words (whence E. kia, prefixed to personal pronouns) compares probably Assy. aga, this (Sayce, Assy. Gr.).

Note.—This Semitic dem. ka is seen also in E. 'elku, ^{*} Ef. ke bisa, that he speak, he may, must, &c., speak, let him speak.

'elkětu, Ch. 'illek, A. 'olaka, &c., these, those.

Ka, prep., usually ki, rarely ka (see Ch. V. 11. 3), as, d. i ba ka tafa (commonly i ba ki tafa), he went to the hill: ki, or gi, to, belonging to, of, for, from, and transitive prep. after verbs; prefixed to the nom. suf. it forms poss. prons., as kaģu, kama, kana. &c.; kana, his, for him, is syn. c. kakana, kanana; see Ch. V. 11. (6). [My. ka, to, unto, towards, after, according to, much used in composition in the formation of other preps. and ads., as in kan transitive prep. after verbs, and akan, to, &c., and particle of the future tense, Mg. hu, to, for, belonging to, and particle of the future tense, Ma. ki, to, towards, &c., and, after verbs, transitive prep. Amh. ka, to, of, from, Himyaritic ka or ki, after verbs transitive prep.; H. ki is a conj., that; compare 'ad ki, until (conj.), or until that, with E. and Amh. 'eska ('es, for H. 'ad), prep., to, unto. Thus the same particle which is a final conjunction (see above, under k' (ga, ka), final conj.) in A. and H., is a prep. in Himyaritic and Amh.

Ka, or ki, dem., rel. pron., art. (same as word before the preceding, above), prefixed to pers. prons., nom., kinau, kiġita; see Ch. V. 1. a.

Kaba-si, d. See koba-si, to follow.

Kabe, s., a small basket. [Ma. kakapu, a small basket for cooked food, so called from being curved (kapu) like the hollow of the hand (kapu).]
S. kapo', poculum H. kaf, or kap, hollow of the hand, pl. a hollow vessel, pan, or bowl (H. kafaf, to bend, curve).

Kabě, s., a kind of crab.

Kābe, d. kàfinĭ, s., a pigeon, d. kime. [Ma. kukupa, Tah. uupa, Am. um, Epi ama, id.] A. ḥama', pigeons.

Kabu, s., d. koau, the native 'pudding' (tied up in a bundle, and cooked in the oven); the main article of native food: see kofu. Tah. ohu, a bundle of some food tied up and baked in the native oven, Sa. 'ofu'ofu, to envelop in leaves (for cooking). A. kobbat, kabab', 'kibby,' the national dish of the Arabs, made of pounded or brayed wheat and fish or flesh, gathered into a round mass, and cooked in the oven. See the verb under the word kofu.

Kabu, s., fire; and Kabu teraġi, v., to burn heat ing it (cold food), to warm or heat (cold food). [My. api, Sa. afi, Mg. afu, fire, Sa. afia, ps., to be burnt accidentally.] S. ḥab, to burn, A. ḥobaḥib', (redup.) fire. See teraġi.

Kabu, s., in talekabu na. See kobu.

Kaber, v. i., or a., to be grey-haired, aged;

Kaber, d., s., a husband, lit. an aged man;

Kabera, d., s., a wife, an aged woman, d. abera, or abura, c. art. nàbera, nàbura (k elided). A. kabira, to be advanced in age, kabīr, advanced in age and fully grown, E. 'eber, old woman (k elided).

Kaf, v. i., to be bent (as with hunger). See also kai. [Ma. kapu, curly, kapu, the hollow of the hand.] H. kafaf, to be bent, kaf, hollow of the hand.

Kafa i, v. t., to cover (as a rotten wood board with another), A. kaffa, 1, 2, to cover, &c.

Kafa-raġo, s., see d. transposed faka-raġo.

Kafika, s., the rose apple. Fut. kafika, Fi. kavika, Ml. P. havih, Malo aviga, TaSa. kabika (khabika), id. H. tapuaḥ, an apple (so called from its scent, from nafaḥ), A. toffāḥ, an apple, not only the common one, but also the lemon, citron, &c.

Kafikafi, v., ġafikafi, q.v.

Kafini, s., d. kabe, q.v.

Kafi-si, v. t., to uncover, open (eye, basket, &c.), A. kafaḥa, to uncover.

Kafu-ti, or ġafu-ti, v. t., to wrap up (a thing, as a stone, with cloth, so as to cover it all round), same as kofu sa, q.v., which is used of thus wrapping up food to be cooked; hence

Kafukafu na, s., pellicle, as of an egg or fruit (its wrapper or covering), d. kamu.

Kai, v. i., to be bent, for kaf, q.v.

Kai, conj., d. syn. bo, conj., q.v.: ka (see ġa, conj.) and i, he, she, it.

Kai, or kae, tense particle (compounded of ka, q.v., sign of past tense, and i, or e) of the pluperfect. See i.

Kai (or kei), gai, v. i., to cry, sing (men, birds), sing out, sound, &c. [Ml. P. keke, to sing.] E. nakawa, to sound, give forth a sound (of the human voice, songs of birds, &c.), A. naka'a, to cry out, sing out.

Kai, s., a sharp shell used for scraping: goi.

Kaimi-si, v. t., to make to exist, as (the heathen used to say of the sea, &c.), i tumana kaimi-si, it made itself to exist; and Kaimis, s., c. art. nakaimis, one that does anything hiddenly and wonderfully, as destroying an enemy by changing one's form magically and deceiving, &c. H. kum, arise, exist, go forth, grow up, stand (be fixed). Hi. cause to arise, exist, A. kāma, 2, rightly appoint and dispose (a thing), 4, prepare (evil against a person), &c.

Kainaġa, s., c. art., a tribe or family clan. [(Sa. 'aiġa, a family, relations.) To. kainaġa, a meal, victuals.] See kan i. kainaġa is for kaninaġa, orig. kanitana.

Kaka, s., kaka naniu. See under aka.

Kakana (kakaġu, kakama, kakaġita, &c.), poss. pron., syn. aġana, &c., q.v.: kaka is ka prep. doubled. [Epi ġka, ġkana, his, &c.]

Kakat, s., a bite. See kati or kat i.

Kakei, s., c. art. nakakei, a story (traditional). A. ḥaka', to narrate, Nm. ḥucèya, narrative, tale.

Kāl, s., a child. See under bakal i i.

Kala, v. i., or a., little, small. See under bakal i 11. [Mg. keli, id.]

Kalai, d., s., a spider's web, and d. nilau, and Kalau, d., id., lit. a woven thing. [My. labalaba. and lawalawa, a spider.] H. 'arab, to weave. See kolau.

Kalau, ġkalau. See ġalau i. Kale-baġa, s., d. kalemaġa, bowstring (made out of the baġa or maġa tree): kalu.

Kāli, s., native spade, digging stick: kil i.

Kal i, or gal i, q.v., and redup.,

Kalikal i,

Kalu, and ġalu, s., bowstring, kalu nāsu: kale in kale baġa. See kalu-ti.

Kalu, s., d. kul, cloth, clothing, lit. a covering; and Kalu-ti (same as ġalu-ti), d. kulu-ti, v. t., to cover, as with a mat or rug, i kalu ki nakalu, he covers (himself) with cloth or clothing, i kalu, d. i kulu, or i ģulu, middle sense, he covers (himself), as with bedclothes, i.e. mats or such like, also to put the bowstring on a bow (or galu-ti) and to clasp round with the arms (a violent man, to restrain him, or a pig, &c., stooping to lift it in order to carry it): the vowels of this word are changed in kalu, kulu, kele (ġalu, ġulu, ġele), golu. See similar changes of vowels in the My. word under kela, infra. A. galla, 2, to to be covered, cover, 5, clothed, gullu, coverings, clothes, &c., as rugs: idea of covering arises from that of wrapping round or rolling up—see the cg. H. galal, to roll. and its related words in ${\it Ges.\,\, Dict...}$ and see below, under kela, kelu.

Kalumi, s.. the spider. See under kalau.

Kama, d. for kabu, in ane-kama, q.v.

Kama, d., verb. suf., 2 pl., you, d. mu, My. mu.

Kamam, d. for kinami, q.v. Kami, d., pers. pron., 2 pl., you.

Kami, v. t.. to seize, grip, take with the fingers, or with nippers, compress or squeeze between two things (like alat i); same as kamut i, q.v.

Kamu na, s., pellicle, d. for kafukafu na, q.v.

Kamut i, or gamut i, v. t., to take, grasp with the fingers, nip, then (like alat i) to nip or cut with scissors, to cut the hair; hence

Kam, s., c. art. nikam, native tongs (a split stick for grasping hot oven stones, and lifting them), lit. that which (kami, or kamut) nips, seizes, grasps, d. kau, q.v., or gau

(aġau), and

Kamkam, s., scissors. cubit, or chubit, Ja. juwit, to nip, pinch, My. $a\dot{g}kub = a\dot{g}au$, tongs, nippers, Ha. umiki, to pinch with the fingers, Fi. gamuta, to take hold of, or hold as with pincers, to shut (the mouth), ai qamu, anything to qamuta with (My. ağkub), as pincers, bullet mould, vice.] H. kamas, to squeeze together, hence to take with the hand, kamat, to hold fast with the hands, to seize firmly, kafas, contract, shut (as the mouth), kabas, to take, grasp with the hand, A. kabasa, to take with the tips of the fingers, kabaş'a, take, grasp with the hand.

Kana-, pref. to nom. suf., forming poss. pron., kanagu, kanama, kanana, &c.: kanana, d. kinin, is syn. c. kakana, q.v. [Epi kana-, d.

kona-, as, kanaku, my, &c.] Kana- is ka, prep., and na, prep. See Ch. V. 11. (6).

Kana, v. i., d. kano, to shrink from, to be unable; i kana bat i, he is unable to do it (shrinks from, or is afraid), i sua bo kin, or bo ki, he takes (acquires) a mind shrinking from, afraid, unable (to do something). A. kana a, to shrink from, not daring, or being afraid.

Kan i, v. t., to eat, redup. kanikani: tea kanien, that which is for eating, nakanien, act of eating, the eating, food, finaga, q.v., food, bagan i, to feed, make to eat, or faġan i, q.v., and faġa, faġafaġa, nakabu faġa, devouring (eating) fire, nalaģi kanikani, a strong wind, kana, a squall; kainaga, a tribe, family clan (from eating together). [Fi. kana, to eat, kani-a, to eat, vakani-a, feed, cause to eat, used also of the heat of the sun, and violence of the wind, Sa. ai, My. makan, Mg. (m transposed) humana, hanina, to eat. A. 'akala, to eat, 3, eat together, 4, to feed, cause to eat, 'akīl', one who lives with one. messmate, familiar friend (cf. kainaga, and A. 3), H. 'akal, to eat; A. 'akala, (2), to scratch (the head), 'akila, to be itchy, Ef. makinikini. to be itchy.

Kana, s., a squall. See under preceding word.

Kanäu, or kanäo, s., d. kanoa, kano, child; nasuma nĭ kanoa, or kano, the womb, lit. house of the child (or fœtus). In E. Mai this is called kiri fanau, the cover (kiri = kuli = skin or covering), or skin of the child. This word is familiarly used by men to each other as a vocative, as kanao, or kano, mate!(child!), pl. kanŏ magā, you people, d. nakanoa, kano ni Efate, man of Efate, pl. nakan Efate. people of Efate, lit. children of Efate, d. nati ni Efate (see ani, ati, child): hence kano is sometimes equivalent to 'person', as kano sa, kano uia, a bad, a good person;

Kan, c. art. nakan, children (of a place);

Kano, or kanoa, s., see kanäo;

Kanoa, s., c. art. nakanoa, see kanäo. [My. kanak, child, anak, id., as Ef. kanäo and ani, q.v., child, so Mg. zanaka and anaka, Sa. fanau, Ef. kanäo.] A. walada, H. yalad, E. walada, to bring forth, bear (of a mother), to beget (of males), and used in E. also of the earth bringing forth its produce.

Kano, or kanoa, d. kanau, or Kanoka, v. i., or a., to be produced (as it were born, of yams), naui i kanoa (d. kanau), the yam is produced, born, or growing (as if the insat, q.v., had brought it forth new born), naui kano, new or growing yams. See preceding word, and s. v. ani. For the change of the first radical of this Semitic word to f, k, and z, and '; of the second radical to n; and of the third radical to k, and ', see Ch. II.

Kara, or ġara, redup. ġaragara, v. i., or a., strong, and d. karakarai, or garakarai, strong, taġaraġara, strong, vehement. [My. kras, hard, violent, strong, vehement, Mg. force, heri, power. strength, force, might, miheri, strong, powerful, mighty, heri, being forced to, compelled, constrained. A. kahara, n. a., kahr', to be mighty, might, force, alkahharo, omnipotent (God).

Kara, or ġara, redup. ġaragara, v. i., or a., to be dry, bagara i, v. c., to make dry, to dry (a thing), nakarān, the being dry, also, being (bare and dry) poor, poverty; kara, dry, then hard, strong stiff, rigid (as dry wood). See also kara, s., and makarakara, v. i., My. krig, dry, krig kan, to dry (a thing), Mg. haraka, dried up, scorched, parched. H. harar, to burn, be hot (cf. A. harra, E. harara); the primary idea is that of 'the shrivelled roughness of things that are dried or scorched', Ges.; to be burned, to be dried up.

Kara, s., c. art. nekara, the nettle (so called from its burning; compare makarakara, to be burning, to be hot, as the mouth with pepper, or the skin stung by a nettle). See preceding word, and compare H. harul, the nettle, so called from its burning, from the root haral=harar.

Kara ki, or gara ki, v., to seize, grasp, and

Kari, or gari, v. t., to scratch, scrape, shave, seize, redup. garikar i, also karu-ti, or garu-ti, v. t., to scratch, and karo i, or garo i, v. t., to scratch, scrape, redup. garokaro, and karokaro, karokaroa, or ġarokaroa, itchy, scratchy, scabby, and garu, and tagaru, v. t., to seize, grasp, ġaru sera, (grasp everything) be grasping, redup. ġarukaru, id., karo, to scrape, sweep, to swim (i.e. sweep with the arms—to swim without doing this is afa, or ofa), karati, karakarati, scratched, marked, scored; kāri, s., a plane (from being moved with a sweeping or sawing motion, or shaving); kare-si, v. t., to scratch, scrape; gure-si, v. t., to gnaw, scranch. [My. garis, Ja. garit, to scratch, score, garu, to rake, &c., garut, scratch, scrape, claw, garok, to scrape, gârap, grasp at, gâraji, a saw, greb, to gnaw, karat, karot, kârot, grind or gnash the teeth, make a grating noise, karut, to scratch, kârok, to rub, curry (a horse), kikir, to rasp, file, a rasp, file, avaricious, Mg. harața, shaved, manarata, to shave, kuri, gnaw, scrape, Fi. kari, or karikari, v. i., kari-a, karitaka, v. t., to scrape, karokaro, prickly heat, itch, Sa. 'ili, a rasp, file, saw. A. garra, to drag, snatch, sweep, seize, H. garar, to scrape, sweep, saw (primary meaning), to drag or snatch away, to saw (měgerah, a saw), to gargle, produce rough sounds in the throat (see Ef. karo, throat, infra), cognates S. gra, to shave, H. gara', scratch, scrape (see Ef. gura i, magir i). &c.

Karab, s., dd. karau, karaf, karam, a cutting instrument. H. hereb, id.

Karafi, v. t., to scratch, scrape (the earth or ground); hence Karafi, v. i., to creep on the ground (as it were scratching or scraping on the ground): see kar i. Karafi is kara-fi.

Karaka, v. i., to move tremulously (creep), as crabs and such like animals do; karaka ki naburuma, (a mother-inlaw) creeps or shrinks away from her son-in-law (trembling and afraid): kara-ka, compare preceding word.

Karakarati, a., see kar i.

Karati, and redup.,

Kare-si, v. t., to scratch, scrape, and, from the idea of scraping together, being gathered together.

Karesi, or karisi, s., a cluster (as of cocoanuts), and Karesibum, d. for karesibunu (see bunu), pr. n., of a person mentioned in a myth, one of the two sons of a woman who came down from heaven, lit. seize—kill. See kar i, and bunu.

Karei sa, d. karei ki nia, v. t., to dislike, be averse from, hate. [My. iri, to hate, Mg. hala, hated, detested, abhorred.] A. kariha, to dislike, abhor.

Karei, or garei turi, to dislike (the thing he is bidden or sent to do) abiding with (some one). See turi, and cf. kita roā sa.

Kārī, s., a plane. See kar i. Kārī, v. i., to hasten, takārī, id. [Ma. kari, rush along violently.] A. kāra, 1, 8, to hasten.

Kari-iki (kariki), s., little child, little children, and

Kari-kiki (karikiki), s., id. (kiki, little), and Kari-riki (kaririki), s., d., riki, little, and kari, boy, child. A. "ail', Mahri gairu, H. 'ul, S. 'ula, boy, child. See Index under Karo, karoi, ġaroi, v. i., to swim (sweeping with the arms): kar i.

Karokaro, and

Karokaroa, scabby, itchy: kar i.

Karo na, s., c. art., dd. ġaṭo na (ġaro na), kanro na, the throat, gullet. H. garon, the throat, from garar (see kar i), E. g'ĕre, the throat.

Karo, v. i., d., to be uncovered, have the clothes off, naked. H. galah, to be naked. See girigiri.

Karu-ti, or karut i. See kar i.

Kasā, and kasafa, also kasāna, inter. ad., for what? why? d. kua: ka, final conj., and sā, or safa, q.v., what? See Ch. V. 5.

Kasāna, inter. ad., for what? kasā, with the dem. na suffixed.

Kasau, s., c. art., small branch, fruit stalk, nakasau na, its small branch, d. (transposed) sakau, id., and also a reef. See sakau. [My. gusoġ, a reef of rocks.] A. kaṣʾibʾ, long and slender branch, H. kiṣbeʾ, pl. const., 'the ends, i.e. the roots of the mountains (in the depth of the sea),' Jon. ii. 7; perhaps, the branches of the mountains (running out into the sea).

Kas i, or kasi, ġas i, v. t., to rub, wipe. [My. gosok, gosot, gosok, gosot, gosoki, gisik, kisil, to rub, Mg. kasuka, rubbed, mikasuka, to rub.] A. kas's'a, (3), to rub, kas'a' (kas'w'), to rub, wipe. Kas-toru, s., handkerchief, lit. sweat-wiper: kasi, and toru, q.v.

Kasi, v. i., or a., to be sweet, redup. ġkasi (ġakasi), dd.

ġari, ġaṭ, kati. [Cf. Mg. haniṭa, fragrance, maniṭa, sweet smelling, My. manis, sweet, luscious, mild, gentle.] A. naṭuṣa, to be sweet, naṭīṣ², sweet, fragrant with sweet odour.

Note.—The k elided and initial n retained in My. and Mg.

Kāsu, s., an old man, a kind of priest or sacred man. [Fi. qase, an old man.] S. kas'is'o, an old man, a priest, from kas', to grow old (Freytag), A. kas's', a Christian Presbyter.

Kasu, or kas, d. kau, s., c. art. nakasu, tree, wood. [Epi dd. yesi, lakai, Ml. dd. nige, nai, TaSa. tagai (taghai), Fut. rakau, Sa. laau, My. kayu, Mg. hazu, tree, wood, Mg. hazu, hard.] H. 'eṣ, tree, wood, Ch. 'a', from H. 'aṣah, A. 'aṣa', to be hard, firm. See Index.

Kasua, or ġasua, d. kasu, v. i., or a., hard, strong, redup. kaskasua, id., nakasuāna, s., the being hard or strong, strength. [Ja. kakas, hard, firm, rigid, stiff, cf. kuwasa, strong.] H. kas'ah, A. kasa', to be hard, stiff, H. kas'eh, hard, firm, fast, strong, powerful.

Note.—In Ef. nabona i ġasua, his heart is hard, meri ġasua ki nia, treat him hardly, or with violence.

Kat, or kati, v. i., to thunder, tifai i kat, or i gat, the thunder thunders. See following word.

Kat i, or gat i, v. t., to bite, to make fast, as, nakasu i gati natua na, the log makes fast his foot, i.e. jambs it and holds it firmly fixed against something; to compress between two things; to bite, redup. katikati, na kakat, s., a bite, fikit, to bite each other, savage; nalagi i katikati, the wind becomes fixed (in a certain direction); i tua gat ia sa, he gave him for it, i mate gat ia, he died for it, as, for sin; i kati, or gati, to thunder, is said to be the same word, tifai i gat, and when a 'thunderbolt' rends a tree it is said, tifai i gati bora ia, the thunder bites, rending it (bora 1). The Efatese say that the thunder has teeth, and the idea in tifai i gat is that the tifai is biting, i.e. grinding its teeth together, or rending with its teeth. [Ma. kati, block up, closed, kakati, a bundle, sheaf, and, v. t., tie up in bundles, katikati, v. i., champ, move the jaw as in eating, Fi. kata (vei kata = fikit), to bite, a., close together, as boards on a floor, My. gigit, to bite, gigitan, a bite, Mg. hehita, s., hold, grasp, seizure, clutch, bite, kaikita, a bite, bitten, manaikiţa, v. t., to bite, kekerina, being bitten. S. nkat, to bite.

Katak, v. i., to coagulate. [My. kantal, kandal, id.] A. h'atara, id.

Katau, s., a kind of crab. [Cf. My. kâtam. a crab; to nip, snip off.] Cf. A. kaṭama, to bite, cut off. See koto, a kind of crab, infra.

Kate, tense part., d., past, a kate, ku kate, i kate, au kate, &c.: ka, and te.

Kate, s., c. art. nakate, anything, a thing, lit. the thatthat, d. nete (ne te, the that). See ka, and te. [Fi. ka, a thing.] Dem. ka, and dem. te.

Kate, s., kate ni rarua, the stick on the outside of the canoe superstruction on the side opp. to the sama.

Katema, ad., outside of the house. H. hus, outside, and ema, house. See imrum, suma. In ekatema, q.v.

Kati, d. for kasi, sweet, redup. kakati.

Katoro, s., a basket. A. ka'-tarat, a basket.

Kau, s., a collection, bunch, herd, &c. A. gam', a collection, gama'a, v. See umkau, makau, ko-fakal. [Sa. 'au, a troop, gang, bunch, cluster.] Kau, or ġau, redup. kaukau (c. art. aġau, d. ni kam, tongs, forceps, nippers, for grasping), v. t., to grasp with the hand, i kau nabe, he grasps a club (carried on his shoulder), then to carry anything on the shoulder, i kau näuos, he grasps the oar (in rowing), i kaukau narā nakasu, (the flying fox) grasps the branch of a tree (moving along it as it were hand over hand, till it finds a resting-place), hence, ba kaukau, (of men) go seeking a resting-place. See kam, kamut i. [My. gawa, Fi. kauta, to carry.]

Kau, d. au, a lizard, perhaps from grasping or clinging.

Kau, v. i., to bend (as with hunger), also kai, and kaf, q.v.

Kau, s., d. for kasu, tree, wood.

Kau, v. i., or a., d. for kasua, hard, strong.

Kaua, s., an open worked wicker basket or trap for catching fish: so called because Kaukaua, a., full of openings or apertures, as if windowed, or apertured: the final a is the a. ending. A. kaww', an opening in a wall, kawwat, a window (Nm. couwa, dormer window), Ch. kaw, a window, from kawah, or kavah.

Kaukau, s., c. art. nakaukau, the upper cross (i.e. above, and across the kiat) or binding sticks between a canoe and its outrigger (sama); from grasping or holding together, kau, v. t.

Käuota, v. i., or a., to be great, plentiful, dd. kōte, ēt, q.v.

Kĕ, or kē (cf. kei), dem., this. See ka, id., and ko, id.

Ke, d., that he, k', final conj., and e (or i) verb. pron., 3 sing.: ka, k.

Kē, keke, interj. See ake! and ako! [Florida ke! keke!] Ke, d., verb. pron., 2 sing., you, dd. k, ma, ko.

Keikei, s., c. art. nakeikei, tattoo marks or lines upon the skin. [Fi. qia, to tattoo.] See ġoi (or koi, or kei).

Kei naniu, for koi naniu. See goi.

See goi.

Kei, d., dem., this, that (near), for koi, q.v.

Kekel, s., d. for kal, child, infant. See under bakal i I.

Kēl, redup. ġkēl (kekel), v. i., to sweep round or wheel in curves (of a bird in flight without moving its wings); and

Kēla, s., the curved beam or wall-plate that goes round the end of a native house; and

Kele-ti, v. t. (see golu-ti, ģele-ti, ģel i, ģulu-ti, kaluti), as, keleti, kel, or ģolu nāsu, put the bowstring on a bow, nuana i laba i keleti narā nakasu, its (a tree's) fruit plentiful bends the branch of the tree, i keleti uago (or other heavy thing to be carried), he stoops down and clasps the pig (or other heavy thing) to lift and carry it, hence, kelakela, or gelakela (of a people carrying such things, as in going to a naleöuan); and

Kelu-faki, v. t., to round or double a cape (of a canoe or ship), cg. syn. ili-fiki; and Kēlu, a., going round, as baġana kēlu, its (the army's) rear or hinder part (see bago, baga), going round, making détour (to surprise the enemy). My. gulig, golig, gilig, gulug, to turn round, revolve, roll, roll up, igal, to whirl, curly, and ikal, to whirl, gyration, Mg. kudia, a wheel, rolled, mikudia, mikudiadia, to roll, and mikudinkudina, &c., also kuriana, twirled, mikuriana, to twirl, and misigerina, misigerigerina, to turn, wind, roll, revolve, also hudina, &c.] E. k'arar, often red., A. karra, n. a. karat', go round, revolve, karkara, to turn (a mill) round, 2, to revolve, wheel (as a bird in flight). See Ges. s. v. H. karar, for egg.

Ken, for kana, v. i.

Kerikeri, v. i., to be deep, as a pit, the sea. A. ka'ara, to be deep.

Kesa, kesakesa, ġesa, ġesakesa. See kisa.

Kētaku, or kēĭtaku, s., the hinder end of a canoe, ad. behind: for ko itaku. See kobē, and ko, face.

Ki, ad., see ka, ad., as: also in kite.

Ki, d., k', dem., and i, verb. pron., 3 sing., syn. c. the simple i.

Kĭ, d., dem., this, or kĕ, id.: ka, dem.

Ki, v. i., to be fearful, faint-hearted, shrink from (for fear). H. ka'ah, A. ka'a, id.

Ki, prep. (the usual form), c. art., aki, the, that which to, or of, also gi, agi. See ka, prep.

Ki, same as ka, art.

Ki, redup. kiki, v. i. See ģi, ģki (ģiki). v. i., to squeak.

Ki, d., verb. pron., 2 pl., you, dual kia: ku.

Kia-, or kie-, pref. to the nom. suf. forming possessive pronouns kiagu, kiama, kiana, kiagita, kiagami, kiamu, kiara, or kiata: kiana, his (country, plantation, house, vicinity). The use of kakana is different, his or its (as a weapon to kill him, a door for a house, oar for a boat, &c.) [Epi kiaku, kiamo, kiano, kiandro, kiememi, kiemiu, kialo, same as Ef. kiagu, kiama, &c. Tef. kia-, is in Ta. kafa-, Ef. kiagu = Epi kiaku =Ta. kafak, 'my'. See Ch. V. 11. (3), (7).

Kia, d., verb. pron., 2 dual. you two, d. ko ra. [Epi ko, An. ekau, id.]

Kiaġ, d. for kiama, thy (vicinity): kia-, and ġ, suf. pron., 2 sing.

Kiat, s., c. art. nakiat, the sticks which cross from the canoe to the outrigger (sama) joining them together. [Sa. Tah. iato, Ta. nikiatu, Fut. akiato. Ha. iako. id.. Ma. kiato, thwart of a canoe.] A. h/āta, to sew, to join together, h'iato.

Kie, s., c. art. nàkie, the plant whose leaf is baked, dried, and split into thin threads to be woven into mats, &c. [Sa. 'ie, a fine mat, cloth.] See under neko.

Kiġami, d. kinami, 1 pers. pron. exclusive.

Kiġita, d. syn. niġita, 1 pers. pron. inclusive.

Kīkī, v. i., or a., and iki in kariki, small. [To. iki, id.] For riki, q.v.

Kikita, or ģkita, redup. of kita.

Kilakila, a., knowing, sagacious, shy, i meta kilakila (of an animal). [Fi. kila, wild, suspicious, on the lookout, as an animal.] A. 'akala, 1. 2, to be intelligent, prudent. sagacious, 'akil', a., id.

Kil i, or kili, v. t., to dig, hence kāli, s., a digging stick, and nakīli, s., a current (as in the sand, lit. that which digs). [Sa. 'eli, to dig, ma'eli, to be dug, My. gali, to dig, Mg. hadi, ditch, trench, &c., dug, mihadi, to dig, Ma. keri, kari, to dig.] E. karaya, A. kara', H. karah, Ch. kera', to dig.

Kīli, s., c. art. nakīli, d., a current: kili.

Kilikili, v., redup. of kili, used of many digging: ru kilikili, they (as the people of a district and whose yams are ripe) dig.

Kiliti, s., a sow, a mother-pig. [An. karite, or kerite, an animal that has had young.] Kiliti, lit. that brings forth (young), or the bringer forth, i.e. mother. See ani, note, and kano.

Kin, s. See ikin, nest.

Kin, d., dem., this: ki, dem., and in, dem. [Assy. agamu, this, aga, dem., and annu, dem.]

Kinam, d. kinami,

Kinami, pers. pron., 1 pl., excl., we, they; k', dem. ina, we, 'mi, they.

Kinau, pers. pron., 1 sing., I, shortened kinu, dd. keino, anu, enu: k', dem. prefix, and 'nau (for 'naku, hence nom. suf. ġu, d. k). [An. aiñak, Epi. naġ'u, TaSa. enau, Sa. o a'u (for ko aku), My. aku, Mg. izahu, ahu, I.] H. 'anoki, shortened 'ani, Assy. anaku, Aram. 'ăna', 'eno', E. 'ana, I.

Kinit i, also ģinit i, and ģunut i, v. t., nip with the fingers, nakini na, the fingers (nippers), kini gote-fi, nip, breaking it (reeds for thatching), hence nakini-got, reeds for thatching. [Fi. kinit'a, nip, pinch between finger and thumb, Sa. 'ini, to take hold of with the nails, pinch, ps. 'initia, Ma. kini, Ha. iniki, My. gântâs, to break off, nip off, snap off. A. karaşa, to nip (with the fingers), pinch, grasp with the points of the fingers or hand, snip off;

Kini na, s., c. art., the fingers, or toes, lit., the nippers, or graspers; also claws, talons;

Kini gote-fl, v. t., and Kinigot, s., c. art., see kinit i. Kintu, dem., that (near): kin, dem., and tu.

Kinu, I, see kinau.

Kiri, d., s., c. art. nakiri, d. syn. ori, rubbing stick for producing fire. [Sa. 'ili, rasp, file, saw.] See kar i, maġiri.

Kirikiri, s., gravel, pebble. [Sa. 'ili'ili, Ma. kirikiri, My. krikil, kârikil, karikil, gravel, pebble.] H. garger, A. girgir', a berry, from H. garar, see kar i, cg. A. garal', gravel.

Kirikiri, a., small, like pebbles, bia kirikiri, little children. See preceding word.

Kīs, s., a shell, used for cutting. A. giz'at, a shell, from gaza'a, to cut.

Kis, d., dem., this, here: ki, dem., and se, dem.

Kisa, a., in mita kisa, blind (the eyes sunk into the head). A. has, id. And Kisa, or gisa, v. i., or a., redup.,

Kisakisa, v. i., or a., to be putting forth leaves, hence to be green; hence

Kisa, s., c. art., nakisa, d. takis, a green stone or chalk (used only for painting himself by a chief), a chief's grave (in the bush, sacred). A. h'awiṣa, to have the eyes sinking into the head, 4, to put forth leaves (a plant), to germinate.

Kihi na, d. kui na, q.v.: kihi na, i.e. kisi na (h being for s in that d.).

Kis i, or kisi, v. t., also gis i, redup. giskis, to feel, touch, lo giskis, to look, exploring (as at a person's body partly uncovered). A. gassa, to feel, touch, to explore or grope with the hand or with the eyes, H. gas'as', Pi., E. gasasa, to feel, touch, S. gas', to feel, touch, to explore.

Kĭsau, v. i., d. kĭsur, to remove, get out, stand apart: i kisau ki nabua, he removes from, or stands out, or gets out of the road, ba kisau, get out (of the way), remove, stand away. A. kaṣa', kaṣww', kuṣuww', kaṣā', to stand apart, to be remote.

Kistu, dem., this here: kis, dem., and tu.

Kĭsur (ksur), d. for kisau.

See (d.) ēsu.

Kita, a., little, small, li kita, small place (name of small boat entrance of Havannah Harbour) opp. to li leba, big place (name of large entrance to Havannah Harbour). [Sa. iti, itiiti, small, few, Ma. and Tah. iti, itiiti, small, little, My. kate, kite, Mg. kitika, diminutive.] H. kaṭan, to be small, little.

Kita (rare), or kite, ad., as, takes the verb. pron., as i kite fatu, it is as (or like) a stone, kite, or kite uan, as, as if, i bisa i kite i maieto, he speaks as if he were angry, i marafi kite nifila, it is quick as lightning. A. kada, like, as this, as that. See ki, as, and te, kite, or kita, lit., as that, or like that: te, dem.

Kita, or kite, conj., or, d. ko: rarua kite boat, a canoe or boat; inter. particle at the end of sentences, d. ko, as i bano kite? has he gone? fully this is, i bano kite i tika? has he gone or not? For kite, disj. conj., see ko, conj., infra.

Kita, v., to divine, redup. kikita, gkita, lit. to perceive or feel with the eye or the mind (cf. rogo, rorogo), bati kita i, or gita i, to try (cf. bati rog i), lit. make or do feeling or perceiving or knowing or finding out. [Ma. kite, to see, know, perceive, find out, discover, matakite, to divine, s. one who foresees an event, Mg. hita, mahita.] A. wagada, to find with the eye or the mind (a thing sought), to perceive by the feeling of the body (a thing), or by the mind, 4, make to find or to perceive.

Kità i, and gità i, v. t., to hate, redup. kitakita i, to be envious of, to hate; and Kita roà sa, or kita roà i, to hate turning after him (someone), as a boy sent a message meeting another boy and (hating to do the message) turns after him to play. See roa. H. kut, followed by prep. bĕ, to loathe, also kus and nakat.

Kita, in bakita and bakitakita. See makitakita, id.

Kite. See kita, ad.

Ko, verb. suf., 2 sing., you, dd. k, ke, ma, ġ.

Ko, d., verb. pron., 2 sing., you, d. ku, d. ke.

Ko, sign of imperative, 2 pl. (sing. ba), lit. that you: k', final conj., and o, fragment of pers. pron., 2 pl.

Ko, d., ad. of assent, d. syn.

na, and redup.,

Koko, id., d. ko, interj. See ako and kori: ko, dem.

Ko, d. for uo (wo), as i ko toko (d. for i uo toko) he (is) remaining (has not yet gone). See bo, supra, (k for b).

Ko, dem. See koi, E. ku, dem.

Ko, d., disj. conj., or; interparticle at the end of a sentence, as, i bano ko? has he gone? fully, i bano ko i tika? has he gone or not? D. syn., in both uses, kite, or kita. [An. ka, id., Er. ku, or.] H. A., S., 'aw, or.

Note.—Kite has a dem. suffixed to ki, te, and therefore lit. denotes or—this.

Ko, s., c. art. nako na (or n ako), the face, a part; nakona, his face (see nako, infra), nakonako ki, to face (someone), nako nafakotoen, a part of the price, ba tu au nakon, give me a part, nakon ru bano nakon ru toko, a part (of the whole number of men) go, a part remain; and, without the article, shortened to ko, as, ko-bē ni rarua, or nakobe, the forepart of a canoe, keitaku ni rarua, or nako-itaku, the after-part of a canoe; ko-be, the part before, the front, i baki kobe, he goes to the front, kē-itaku, the part behind, behind, i baki kēitaku, he goes behind, or to the rear. A. wagt' (wagto), the face, a part or side, wigāt, a band, wagaha, 3, to face (someone).

Koa, a., fibrous, stringy, as a yam when cooked, naui koa: aka, ako, and a, a. ending.

Koakoa, redup. of koa, very stringy or fibrous.

Koau, s., c. art. nakoau, d. kabu, the native pudding. See kofu sa.

Koba-si, v. t., to follow, to drive away, to pursue: i koba nabona, he follows his own heart (does or strives to do what is in his mind); v. r., fikoba, to follow each other, or to drive away each other; Koba-usi, v. t., i.e. koba, and usi, to track; to follow after. A. kafā, to follow, to drive away.

Kobara, s., see gobara.

Kobu, d. See kubu.

Kofa, s., and redup.,

Kofakofa, s., an alcove, temporary house or shed, tent.

H. kubah, a tent, chamber (so called from its arched form, from kabab, to make gibbous and hollow, to arch, to vault). A. kubbat, tent, vault, chamber, hence the word alcove.

Kofakal, s., a herd of pigs cared for, lit. herd cared for: ko for kau, q. v., a herd, and fakal.

Kofe na, s., nakofena, his skull, the skull. A. kihf', the skull.

Kofeta, d., s., fata, q.v., a bench, platform.

Kofu sa, v. t., to enclose (as fish in a net), wrap up or enenclose (as a pudding in leaves, to be put in the oven). See kabu, d. koau, the native pudding; and

Kofukofua, a., redup., and with a. ending a, bent up at the edges, as a shovel, or anything, as it were rolled up or turned over. The pudding, koau, is laid on a mass of leaves, very wide and long, which are rolled up or over it all round, completely enclosing it, and then tied up. [Fi. blistered kovuta, kokofu(small balls or pimples), kovu, banana leaf in which native puddings are done up, d., a coat, kovuna, to do up in a kovu, Sa. 'ofu, a garment, 'o'ofu, put on a garment, 'ofu'ofu, to envelop in leaves (for cooking), 'ofulua, twenty leaf dishes of native food; Ma. kohu, kokohu, a., somewhat concave, bent or warped so as to become concave (cf. Ef. kofukofua), kohu, to cook in a native oven any article contained in a hollow vessel, To. kofu, to enclose or wrap up, to clothe, Ha. ohu, to roll up (as the sea that does not break) a roller, a swell, ohua, a crowd of people. ohui, to twist round, ohuohu, heavy, burdensome, a wreath worn round the neck, to dress in uniform, Tah. ohu, a bank or ridge of earth thrown up, a bundle of native food tied up and baked in the native oven, to bend downwards as the branch of a tree, to stoop, to twirl round as a wheel. A. kabba, to roll up into a ball, to make into balls (food) for cooking, to invert, to stoop, to be heavy, A. kobbat', kabāb', (see under kabu, d. koau, supra): kobbat also denotes a mob of horses, crowd or mass of men, herd of camels. a ball of threads rolled up together, a heavy ponderous thing, a hill, kabkaba, 2, to be wrapped up, enveloped, to wrap up or envelop oneself in one's garment).

Koĭ, d., dem., this, d. kei: ko dem., and i, dem.

Koia (ko-ia, ko-ya), same as preceding.

Koi, s., and

Koika, s., a boundary, from Koi, or ko i, v. t. See ġoi.

Koko, s., c. art. nekoko, reddish juice or paint for nafona, made from a plant

(also called nekoko): ġoko i. To. koka, Sa. 'o'a, id.]

Kokoro, s. See under gor i. Kokoti, s., a net for catching fish: koto.

Kola, d., and redup.,

Kokola, v. i., to be bent, d. kolo, kola ki na buruma, (a mother-in-law) bends or stoops to the son-in-law. Η. kara, id., transposed. Α. raka, see lako, infra.

Kola, v. i., and redup.,

Kokola, v. i., or gkola, to be arid, dry; hence

Kõla, s., a dry stick or log. A. kahala, kohol, to be arid, dry.

Kola, v. i., and gola, and redup. gkola (kokola), to call out, cry out, to speak loud; hence

Kola oli, s., echo, lit. calling out like. See oli. [Fi. kaila, to shout, Mg. akura, s., shouting. H. kara', to cry out, call out.

Kolau, redup. ġkolau. See galau i.

Kolau, s. See kalau, spider's web, dd. kalai, nilau; namera kolau, web of fat on the inwards of a pig. \[\Gamma \text{An.} \] nilva = kolau, nilvanilva =namera-kolau.

Kolau (see preceding word), pr. n., prob. originally given to a warrior full of stratagems. See also the verb under kalau, to weave, to lie in wait, watch in ambush (as in war). Λ . 'aruba, to be wily or cunning.

Kolobu na, s., its joint (of a bamboo or reed), applied also to the knobs or rivets on a A. karibu, joint of a bamboo or reed.

Kolofa, v. c., to be bent, as with hunger or famine, redup. gkolofa. See lofa i, lofa. [Fi. kalove, bent, from love-t'a, to bend.

Komam, dd. kinami, kimam. Kon, v. i., or a. (with ending n), and redup.,

197

Kokon, gkon, to be bitter (of anything), kona ki, to be bitter towards (someone), namarita na i gkon, his belly is bitter (he is angry). [Sa. 'o'ona, bitter, ona, 'ona, bitter, poisonous, 'onā, to be poisoned, 'o'ona, 'onasia. A. homa-t, E. hama-t, H. hamah, bitter, heat, gall, poison.

Konai na, s., c. art. nakonai na, his gall or bile: kon, bitter.

Kona, v. i., gona, to stand firm, to be fixed, firm, then, to have the mind fixed upon, to be occupied with, kona ki. H. kun, prop. to stand upright, Hi. to set up, found, then to apply one's mind to, Ni. to stand firm, fixed, steady, firm, constant;

Kona gor i, v., to stand firm protecting him (as in war). See ġor i.

Konā i, or konai, v. t., and gonai, to pierce (as a board with an instrument like an awl). E. kanawa, to pierce.

Konaisai, v., to pierce through. See sai.

Kore na, s., see gore na, brother's sister, sister's brother, children of the same mother (actually), or, if not, members of the same nakainaga.

Kor i. See gor i.

Korò sa, v. t., conceal it (as misconduct of which one is accused): ġor i.

Koro, s., c. art. nakoro, a fence, a wall, d. àra, c. art. nàra: ġor i.

Kōro, s., a fish fence, enclosure for catching fish; a ring (or halo) round the moon: ġor i. Koro, s., c. art. nekoro, incantation or rites of divination; and Koro, v., to divine: gor i.

Koroatělaģi, d., or nakoroatělaģi, the sky, dd. koroinlaģi, rikitělaģi, lit. the fence, or that which surrounds or encloses the atělaģi, q.v.

Koroinlaği, s., d., the sky, lit. the fence, or that which encloses heaven. See laği, elaği.

Koroki, v., to insist (as in argument), provoke, irritate. S. gareg (Pael), to provoke.

Kori, or koria, also kuri, or kuria, s., a dog, a warrior, a brave, cognate oro, to bark. [Sa. uli, id., Ma. kuri, a dog, any quadruped. To. kuli, a dog, Fut. kuli, Ta. kuri, Epi kuli, kuliu, TaSa. vuriu, Malo vuria, Ml. kuri, id.] A. gorw, a young dog, gariyy, brave.

Kori, interj., also in akori, kori la! this now indeed! here, or there indeed! ko, dem., ri, dem.

Koro, v. i., to snore. See goro.

Koroi, d. kurüi, a woman; and Koruni, kuruni, q.v. See Ch. II. 17. e.

Kos i, kus i, v. t., to cut or shear off (as the end of the outer covering of a young cocoanut fit for drinking); and Kosu-mi, v. t., to husk a cocoanut, also kusu-mi, ġusu-mi; i gusu, v. i., said of a ripe cocoanut which separates itself and falls from the tree, kusu-mi, or ġusu-mi, v. t., to gather cocoanuts from the tree, kusu, or ġusu, v. i., to be ripe, soft, makusukusu, to be ripe, soft, kusue na, s., the soft place on the top of a child's head, the last to close up, makus, q.v., s., cutter or knife. A. gazza, to cut off, shear; to cut (grass, &c.) in order to gather provender, to cut off the clusters of dates from the tree; to begin to ripen (dates), 4, to have (sheep) ready for shearing, or ripe grain, to be ready to be gathered from the tree (dates), to be ripe or ready for gathering (fruit of the palm tree), for reaping (grain), for shearing (sheep); migazz', a cutting instrument.

Kosu, s., a cutting instrument made of bone: preceding word.

Kosoāfa, s., c. art. nakosoafa, dd. nasoāfa, soāfa, a plant used in ceremonial or ritual purifications: it is swept down the limbs to carry away the uncleanness; lit. the tree that carries (away); kosu (see kasu), and afa i.

Kota, s., a time, in, i ta kota ki (a person), he appoints a time to or for (someone); and in Kotfān, d. for ģotafānu, ģota fānu, q.v., evening.

Kōte, d. for käuota, and ēt, q.v.

Koto bolo, s., a basket (see bolo). [Ml. gat, Malo gete, To. kato, Sa. 'ato, a basket.] A. ka'ṭat, a basket (for carrying dates).

Koto, s., a kind of crab: so called from nipping. See following word.

Koto-fi, v. t., kote-fi, kotu-fi, gote-fi, redup. kotokote-fi, gotokote-fi (intensive). to cut, to cut off, break off; eni gote-fi, to lie across it, bala tagoto, inclined across, across, ba gote-fi, go across it, soka gote-fi, leap across it; sai gote-fi, tuba gote-fi, pronounce judgement against him, condemn him to death, i gotokoto bat i, he made a beginning, first did it (broke ground in the doing of it), makoto, broken (a stick, or anything), ceases (as war), a makoto ki, I cease from (a thing, as a thing I have sold), have no further connection with, separate from, cease from (a thing or person), kuti nakoau, cut up the pudding (cooked), ġkuti (ġukuti), to make a stealthy invasion or inroad, i gai tagoto, or makotokoto, he screams abruptly. cries out in sharp, sudden, broken screams; kokoti, a net (cutting off the fish); bagote-fi, to buy it (make it separate from its former owner); i kote-flau isa, he breaks me off from it (a thing I possessed); bikutu, v. r., decide about (someone), bikutu ki nia, decide about him, sera makoto, to be startled, surprised, makot, a place. [Sa. 'oti, to cut (as the hair), 'o'oti, 'oti'oti, Fi. koti-va, to clip, or shear, ai koti, scissors or shears (originally a shell or shark's tooth). kata'a, cut, cut separate, cross (a river); cease; decide about (a thing); to snap (as a rope), break; to break off, cease from (a journey. &c. = makoto ki); to invade, or make an inroad, stealthily, &c.; makta, a place.

Ku, verb. pron., 2 sing., and pl., you.

Ku, dem., this, as, nai ku na, d. ġā kin, this (is) he, or it, nai ua naġa, nai ua, nai naġa, nai kis. [My. iku, that.] E. ku, id. See ko, ka, ki', dem.

Ku, d., kua, or ġua, v. i., to cry out, vociferate, cry or call out, low (an ox). H. ga'ah, S. g'o', cry out, vociferate, low (an ox).

Kua, ġua, preceding word.

Kua, ad., inter., and indef.: gua, q.v.

Kuba na, s., c. art. nakuba na, its or his day; d. for uba na, or ube na, q.v.

Kubeġa, s., d., a net (for catching fish), d. kubena, id. [Sa. upeġa, Tah. upea, Ma. kupeġa, id.] A. kiffat, a net, from kaffa, to wrap round, &c.

Kubu, s., inside, the belly, also kobu, and kabu, d. kama (in arekabu, q. v., ānekama), then, inside (a house), and with the prep. e, ekubu, ekobu, in the inside, inside: then, ekobu, in one d. denotes also a house. Mg. kibu, the belly, kubani, its centre or middle, kubuni, the inside, inner part, entrails. A. ga'fu, the belly, interior cavity of a thing, inside (of a house), from gāfa, to be hollow.

Kufagufa, d., v. i., to fly. to flap the wings, flutter. [To. kapakapa, to flap the wings, My. kapak, to fly, flapping the wings, not gliding.] A. harafaka, 1, 4, to fly, to flap with the wings.

Kui na, d., s., c. art. nakui na, d. kihi na (i. e. kisi na, in that d. h is for s), the back, rump, tail: kui na d. bui na, and kihi na (i.e. kisa na) d. bisi na, by the change of b and k.

Kuku, v. i. See ģuku.

Kuli na (d. uili na), s., the skin, bark. [Ha. ili, Ma. kiri, skin, bark, My. kulit, skin, hide, pelt, leather, bark, rind, husk, shell, Mg. hudiṭa, skin, bark.] A. gilid, id.

Kulu, v. i., to wrap oneself up, to cover oneself up (as in bed);

Kulu-ti, v. t., same as kalu-ti;

Kulu, s., c. art. nakulu, cloth, covering, that which covers; Kulekule, or kulukulu, d., id.: kalu, q.v.

Kuma na, s., or ġuma na, c. art. na kumana, inner bark, pellicle, or cover, as of an egg, orange, &c.: d. for kamu na.

Kum i, v. t. (see ġum i), to absorb, redup. kukumi.

Kumu, d., pers. pron., 2 pl., you, dd. akam and akamus, kami, nikam, nimu, nēm, or nēĕm, ēgū. [My. kamu, Tag. kamo, Ml. P. hamdi, Epi kamiu, Ta. ituma, id.]

Kunuti na, s., c. art. nakunuti na, food, fruits, as the almond; also new yams. See kan i. A. 'ukilat, whatever is eaten, as fruits, &c.

Kūra, s., c. art. nakūra, a plant; so called from its bitterness. Of a stingy man who withholds food from a visitor it is said, nalo anena i bi nakūra. See under gura i.

Kuraf, d. for karafi, q.v.

Kuri, or kurīa, s., same as kori, korīa, dog.

Kūru, or kūra, a., shrivelled, dried, nāli kuru, shrivelled dried leaves (as banana leaves when withered and dry are). See kara, or ġara.

Kuru ki, v. t., to gather together; and Kuru-maki, v. t., to gather together; and

Kuruk; and

Kukuruk (ġkuruk), v. i., or mid., to gather itself, or to be gathered together: see ġuru ki; belonging to this stem are also takāra, crowd (of men), and makara, to be gathered together, d. (transposed) maraka, or meraka. See ġuru.

Kuruku na, s., kuruku natua na, the ankle: kuruk. The ankle is so called because the leg gathers itself, as it were, into the knob of the joint.

Kurumase na, s., d. (transposed) for borakese na, q.v. Kuruni, s., a woman. See Ch. II. 17. e. And Kurui, s., a., id.

Kus, d., v. i., to be hidden; d. gusu (i.e. kusu), q.v., to stoop. As to connection of these two meanings, see belu: a man stoops to avoid being seen, or to be hidden.

Kus i, or kusi, v. t., to go in the track of, follow, usually usi, q.v. (the k being elided), rafe kus i, to go through following it (as a pig going through a hole in the fence of a garden following another pig(, hence the proverb, uago iskai i bora bua nakoro, uago laba i rafe kus i, one pig bursts open the fence, many pigs go through the opening following (or after) it: in takus i, rukus i (nrukus i) the k also is not elided. See usi.

Kusu na, d., s., dd. kui na, kihi na, bui na, q.v.

Kusu, v. i., and

Kusue na, s. See kosu-mi.

Kusue, or kusuüe (pronounced kusuwe), d. kusu, s., rat (or mouse). [Ta. yasuk, Ml. dd. khasup, akasu, Pa. asua, Santo dd. karibi, keriu, Ma. kiore, Sa. iore, My. tikus, Mysol kelof, Gilolo luf, lupu, id.] A. kuṭrub', rat.

Kut i, v. t., to cut, and Kukut i (gkut i), redup.: i gkuti ban, he goes to make an inroad stealthily (as in time of war); also sī kut i (sī, to shoot) to shoot not killing, but only cutting or wounding; and Kutu ki, bikutu ki, to decide about (someone). See koto-fi. Kutu, s., louse. [Sa. 'utu, louse, an insect which eats the skin of the hands and feet, My. kutu, louse, To., Fut., kutu, Ta. kigct, An. get, Ml. P. gut, Malo utu, louse.] A. kurdu', &c., id.

Note.—There is no other word for flea in Ef., but to distinguish a flea from a louse the former is called kutu n koria, the kutu of the dog, so Fut. kutu kuli, My. kutu anjig (anjig, dog), TaSa. utu vuriu, but Malo utu (simply). The Efatese say there were no fleas in the island before Europeans brought them. In Sa. flea is 'utufiti, and in Fi. kutu ni manumanu.

La, d. le, ad., indeed, certainly, surely, particle of emphasis, as uisi la, yes indeed, i la masikina, he indeed is one, or one only, i le sa, he is indeed bad, i ga fano la, let him go indeed. [Sa. la, My. lah, id.] A. la, certainly, surely, indeed.

La i, or lai, v. t., to put out, or eject from, the mouth, as food, froth, the tongue (see lē): lua.

Lāba, v. i., to be much, many; laba or leba, labalaba or lebaleba, to be or become big, grow up, d. lafulafu, to be or become (grow) big. lalaba, or leleba, big, great, leba, elder; tea laba or leba, plenty, enough (no more), it is enough, milāba, last. nameliģu milāba i en lu ua, my last footprint is in this place, i.e. I will come no more here, tea milāba, the last (person or thing), i libi milābā sa, he looked upon it for the last time, d. leb. indeed, very; barab (barau, &c.) long. Sa. lava, to be enough, indeed, very, loa, long (and leva, long, of time), Mg. lava, long, tall, continuing long (=Ef. barab, baraf), My. luwas, luas, wide, extensive, large, ample, Fi. levu, great, or large; in great numbers, all, as, era sa lako levu, they are all, or many, gone (= Ef. ru laba bano), vakalevu-taka, to increase; cause to be great or many, balavu, long. H. rabab, to become much or many. to be increased, to be much or many, inf. rob, a being much or many, abundance, multitude; poetically multitude is almost used for 'all' (so in Fi. and Ef. levu, lāba), a being great (of might), being long (of a way), rab, much, many; enough (it is) enough (no more, cease, leave off, so Ef.); big (great, large, vast), applied to a wide space. to a long way, and to things generally in the sense great. big; elder. The cognate and supplementary verb is rabah, to be multiplied, increased, often to be many; to become great, to grow up, to be great. See Index.

Labalaba, or lebaleba, v. i., and a., redup. of laba, or leba, v. i., and a., to be great, big, as, natasi leba, the great sea. See lāba.

Labo, s. See leba: leba boa.

Laf i, or laft, v. t., to take, take up, carry (a thing), take up (a song). [Ha. lawe (ps. lawea) to take, carry. rafa'a, to take up, carry.

Lāfi na, s., c. art., the cover, sheath, or envelope of the flowers or buds of the cocoanut palm; the hard substance (of same shape) of the cuttle-fish (d. namaġi rofarofa = little canoe of the cuttle-fish). A. "ilāf", cover, sheath, or envelope, H. 'alaf, to cover, to wrap up, A. "alafa, to enclose in a sheath or vessel.

Lafuis, dd. rĭfālu, libuis, lifāru, q.v.

Lafulafu, d., v. i., and a., to grow up, big: lāba.

Lāġa, v. t., to seek, search for, lāgā sa, seek it, bilāģā sa, id., and redup.,

Làġălāġā sa, v. t., id. (frequentative). A. rāma, to seek, search for, n. a. marām'.

Laga-ti, v. t., to raise, lift up (as a thing from the ground). and Lāġa, s., that which raises: lāġa laġa-ti (the planks of a boat):

Laġa i, or laġai, v. t., to raise, lift up (as the wind raises thatch from a roof); then to raise (a thing, so as to make it conspicuous), as, i mirama laģa-ti, it (the moon, &c.) shines raising it (into view, making it conspicuous); hence

Laga (without object) to shine

(to raise into view, make conspicuous), bisa laga-ti, speak raising it (into view), laġa-ti, to speak with a loud voice, laga, v. i., to sing, and Lagalaga, v., redup. (in all these senses): nalagalaga na, s., a thing raised from or off something (as a scale from the eyes, husk from grain, &c.): malaġa, malaġalaġa, to be raised (so as to be conspicuous, as a ship on the sea); balaġa-ti, v. c., to make raised (a thing), balagasaki nia, v. c., balaga na (see under these words), tabalaġa, v. r., to raise itself, be raised (from above, or off, anything);

Laġi, s., with prep. elaġi, ad. (used also as a prep.) and s., the sky, heaven, above. Sa. laġa, to rise up, to raise up, redup. laģalaģa, s., a stick for raising up flat coral, v., to raise up (as a heavy weight). lagalagaola, to raise the finger nails from the flesh, lagi, the sky, heaven, v., to call out with a loud voice, to sing. Ha. lana. to float (on water), float (i. e. be lifted up, raised) in the air, lani, sky, heaven, luna, the upper side of any thing, the upper, the above, a., upper, higher, above, and, with a prep., ad., or prep., above, Sa. iluġa, id., My. lagit, sky, firmament, lalagit, the palate, an awning, canopy, Mg. lanita, sky, heaven. H.

rum, ram, v. to be high, to raise (anything, voice, &c.), lift up (take up, away), rim, ramut, marom (barou), ramah, E. rama (for ramat), the third heaven, aryam, heaven, aryamat, the heavens, Mod.S. mirem, &c., to raise up.

Lagaraf, v. i., or mid., to mourn (as for the dead): laga-ti, to raise, and terafi, to scratch, from raising the hands and tearing or scratching the cheeks in mourning (see bora I., bora na, the temples).

Laġāfaru na, v. and s. compounded, to raise its wings (a bird): laġa-ti, and afaru na.

Laġafasu ki, v., make a sign to: laġa-ti, and fasu na.

Lagilagi, v. i., to be proud, uplifted. [Ha. lanilani, to be high-minded, proud, show haughtiness.] See laga-ti.

Laġa ki, v. t., to have, to possess. See laka.

Laġi, s., c. art. nalaġi, the wind: other forms of this word are īn, and redup. àġieġi, with article nīn, naġieġi, the air, the breeze. [Ml. nien. Paama laġ, Am. liġ, yiġ, Fi. t'aġi, My. aġin, Mg. anina, Bu. löma, the wind, Sa. mataġi, to blow, be windy, ps. mataġia, s., the wind, Ma. mataġi, the wind, koteġiteġi, gentle wind, koheġi, or koheġiheġi, wind.] A. nasama, to blow gently (the wind), nasam', a light wind, na'sam, and nasim', a light wind, breeze, air.

Laġo, s., fly; laġo fū, buzzing fly, blow-fly. [Sa. laġo, a fly, My. laġau, a large fly, a bluebottle.] A. lakka'u, a fly, from laka'a, prehendit extremo rostro rem.

Lāgo, v., to prop, s., the wooden pins whose sharpened ends are driven into the sama (outrigger), and whose upper ends (crossed) hold and bear up the nakiat, of a canoe. [Sa. laġo, Santo lako, props of a canoe.] A. rakaḥa, to prop, see laka.

Lagor, or lagora, or lagoro, ad., d. lakor, q.v.

Lai. See la i: redup.,

Lailai, v. t., frequentative or intensive.

Lai, or lei, contracted to le, li, s., woman, as, le kiki, little woman (in addressing a female child or girl), le, or li meroan, women, ladies (in addressing an assembly of women): this word is used before names of females, as ma, q.v., is before names of males, as, lei, le, or li, māko, madam, mistress, miss, or lady, mako. [Fi. adi, contracted di, id.. Bali luh, Mota iro, ro, id.] H. 'is's'ah, Ch. 'ita, S. 'atto', A. 'untha, woman, Ch. emph. 'itta', 'intta', id. But see Ch. II. 17. f, e.

Lai, s., c. art. nalai, or inlai, or nilai, sail (of a canoe or ship). [Sa. la, Ma. ra, Mg. lai, My. layar, N. Guinea rer, id.; My. layar, to sail, to navigate, also bârlayar, and malayar.] See tiri, riri, to fly, &c. Lai is what makes the canoe fly, its wings. Ma. rei-a (from rere, to fly), to be sailed over. Cf. lea, infra.

Lailai, v. i., to be delighted, rejoice. [Mg. laulau, play, playthings, milaulau, to play.]
A. laha', n. a. lahw', to play; to be delighted.

Lai, or lei, or la i, v. t., to pluck, to gather (fruit), lai nua nakasu, to pluck or gather the fruits of trees. See bila i, or bilai. [My. lâli, to pluck, to gather.] E. 'araya, H. 'arah, to pluck, to gather (as fruits).

Lai, or lei, v. t., to tie up, as lei namanuk, to tie up a wound. A. 'ara', to tie up;

fasten.

Lak, d. for lako, q.v.

Laka, s., laka leo, foundation or cause of a matter or affair; and

Laka, or lake, c. art. nalake na, its foundation, then, its cause, as, nalake na tafa, the foundation of the hill or mountain, Atua i bi nalakegita, God is our foundation, i.e. our upholder, te uane i bi nalake nafakal, that is the cause of the war, then nalakena, because, lit. its cause; and

Lake, or laki, v. i., to marry (of a woman): lake ki nanoi, marry a husband, lit. betake herself to a husband; and lake kiena, betake herself to his house, and then generally of anyone, i lake, he betakes himself (to dwell somewhere), i lake en lu ua, he has betaken himself to dwell here; laġa ki, v. t., to have, to possess, d. lakea ki, telakie na, its possessor, or telake na, atelakie na, atelakea na, or atelake na, id., Atua i bi atelakea gita, God is our possessor, possesses us. [Ma. taketake, a., well founded. take, s., root, stump, post of a pa, cause, putake, s., base. root, reason, cause. rakaha, to lean upon (something); to betake oneself (to someone); to place upon, found, as to found (his house upon a rock). 4, to support (prop up), 5, to abide (in some place; to use free power (in a matter); rukah, the firm side of a mountain, by which it is upheld, 'arkaḥ', a foundation.

Note.—The expression tulake, is composed of tu, to give (or tua), and lake, and means to give in trust to (to give relying upon or trusting in)—i tulake is, he gave in trust it, i tulak irà sa, he gave in trust to them it (as a present or money to be taken charge of and conveyed by them to the person for whom it is intended).

Lakau, v. t., d. (transposed) for galau i, q.v., to cross over. [Sa. la'a, to step, to pass over, ps. la'asia, redup. lala'a, la'ala'a; la'ai, to pass over, break over (as a wave over a canoe from one side over to the other), la'aja, la'asaja, a step, a stepping over.] Hence Lakau, s., a crossing place in a fence; a stile.

Lako, s., d. lak, a small enclosure (like a hole, for putting or confining a pig in).

See following word.

Lako, v. i., dd. laku, loku, loko, roko, nrok, to stoop, be curved, then stoop or crouch, concealing herself (as mother-in-law from her son-in-law), to be concealed (as one stoops in order to be concealed, see belu, kusu), redup. lakolako, c. prep. ki, lakolako ki, to be crouching and stooping and concealed from (someone), toko loku, to abide concealed or in concealment, luku, id., lukutaki nia, or loko-taki nia, to place him in concealment (as a wounded warrior for surgical treatment), ba lakosaki nia, to creep upon it stealthily (as a hunter upon a bird), hence ba lako, to hunt (birds), lit. to go concealed, luku, or luk, a hole or pit, luku noai, a well, lako, or lak (see preceding word), baluku (i. e. ba luku), a curved ba (concavity). [Fi. roko, a bowing form or posture, a., bent like a bow, ad., sa lako roko, goes stooping or bowing, ai roko, bowstring, roko-ta, bend a bow, roko-va, bow to, pay respect to, rokoroko, reverence, respect, vakaroko, bow down with weakness, or go stooping, Sa. lolo'u, to bend, bend down, bend round. raka'a, n. a. roko', or ruku', to stoop, to be curved or bent, to bow or be bent down (as in praver), rak'at, bowing, stooping (as in prayer), ruk'at, a hole, pit.

Lakolako ki, redup. of preceding word; and Lako-saki, the same.

Lakor, ad., i.e. la-kor, indeed lakor is sometimes practically syn. with la as, i fe la mai matol, or i fe lakor mai matol, he may indeed come to-morrow, or the latter may be rendered, he may indeed now come tomorrow. This is the lit. translation, but it might be expressed, he may perhaps, or possibly, come to-morrow, hence, i lakor sa ko mākĭ, it indeed now is bad, or don'tknow, and simply, i lakor sa, expresses that the thing very probably is bad in the speaker's opinion, who, however, does not state, as a positive, ascertained fact that it is so: la, ad, and the dem. particles ko and r' (ra, ri, ro, ru).

Lākore, s., a kind of flute. A. nākor, cornu, tuba, Nm. naqour, clarion, A. nakara,

3, to make hollow, hollow out (as wood), A. nakur'.

Lala, s., an idiot, one demented, a fool. [Fi. lialia, s., an idiot, a., foolish, out of one's mind, Mg. adala, s., an idiot, one destitute of reason, a lunatic, a fool, a., foolish, infatuated.] See alialia.

Lālā ġor i, v. t., to conceal, deny: ġor i, and lālā, for laulau, redup. of lau.

Lalo na, or lalu na, s., c. art. inlalo na, the belly, then the front (see elalo), and the under side (as of cloth): alo na, q.v.

Lam i, d., v. t., to eat, hence Lamien, s., c. art. nalamien, act of eating, food. H. laham, to eat.

Lao. See lau.

Larua, num. 7, la, for lima, 5, and rua, 2.

Lāsa, or lās, s., a bowl (as a kava bowl), a dish, a cup. [Ml. P. ras, Malo lasa, Santo las, id.] A. ṭās', vasculum, Ct. tāss, a bowl, Nm. saucer, flat cup.

Laso na, s., c. art. inlaso na, the testicles. [Pa. àsi, Am. luho, Ml. dd. lisi, erasi, Fut. raso, id., Sa. laso, scrotum.] A. ḥ'iṣy', and ḥ'uṣy', and ḥ'uṣyat, ḥ'uṣa', the testicles.

Lasoa, v. i., or a., to have swollen testicles: preceding word and a. ending a.

Las, or lasi, v. i., or a., big, large, great, sufficient; and redup.,

Lasilasi, id.; and

Las i, or lasi, v. t., to meet, i.e. to suffice, be sufficient for, as nafinaga i lasigita, the food is sufficient for (meets) us and you, tilasi, id., also to meet, come upon, come across (a person) i tilasinami nabua, he met us—them on the way, bakatilasi, to suffice, redup. tilatilasi, id. A. 'araṣ'a, to meet, 'aruṣ'a, to be wide, large, 5, ta'arraṣ'a, for which is used also ta'arraṣ'a, to meet, 2, to make wide, large.

Latesa, num. 6, la, for lima, 5, and tesa, 1.

Latolu, num. 8, la, for lima, 5, and tolu, 3.

Lau, s., the sea; usually with the prep. e, elau, or a, alau, q.v.

Lau, s., c. art. nilau, dd. kalau, kolau, q.v. [Bisaya lawa, a spider's web, Fi. lawa, a net; an ambush; to lie in ambush.]

Lau i, v. t., to plant (a yam or other plant); to plant anything upright, as a post or stake; to plant (a spear in anyone); laulau i, to plant, (words in anyone), putting him out, or exposing him in his true colours; lau suru e, to plant (words, in anyone) tempting him; and

Lau, v. i., to stand upright (to be planted), lau tu, lit. to stand planted, i.e. to stand upright; to fall down (planting itself), as rain, &c.; and

Lau ġor i, v. t., to plant, surrounding or concealing him or it; redup. lālā ġor i (for laulau ġor i), id., intensive; and

Lau fai i, v. t., d. lau bua i, to plant (as a spear, in anyone) piercing him. See fai, bua. [Sa. to, to plant, to build, to fall (as rain), &c., To. tau, to implant, to plant, to drop, to fall, &c.] H. naṭaʻ, fut. iṭaʻ, inf. ntoaʻ, to set (anything) upright, to plant (any plant); to plant (anything, as a people); to fix, fasten in; set up (as a tent, an image), n. a. ṭaʻat.

Launa, s., c. art. nalauna, redup. nalalauna, a community, as the people of a village or district. Lit., the people planted, born in the country: see preceding word.

Lausa. See lousa.

Lausu na, s., the nose, d. for naġusu na; la, art. (usually na), and usu, for ġusu, q.v., nose.

Le, s. See lai, woman.

Lē, v. t., for lai, or la i: i lē mina, he puts out the tongue: lua.

Le, ad., d. for la.

Le, also leo, and lo, v., to see, as lo nasān, see evil, lo nafanua, see the land, to look, lěbi, or lǐbi, look upon, libi-si (d. lim-si), look upon him, libi nata, look upon, see a person, d. leba nata, look upon a person, leba i, look upon him, see him, d.

lekă nata, look at a person, lekā, look at him, see him; Lele is, redup., to look for it, d. leoleō sa, rai, q.v., aspect, look, forehead, rairai, to be in countenance, unabashed, unashamed, leo, or lo, to watch, i.e., to look, ba lo, behold. [Sa. leo, to watch. redup. leleo; leoleoga, a watching, leoleosa'i, to watch, My. liat, to see, to look, liati, liatkan, &c., Mg. hirata, sight, seeing, Fi. rai, a., seeing, rai, rairai, to look, rai-t'a, to look at, rairai, a prophet (a seer), vakarai-taka, to show. H. ra'ah, to see, ra'ah bĕ, look upon, see, ra'ah 'et', look at, Hi. to show, ro'eh, a prophet, seer, A. ra'a', to see, 4, show, E. re'ya, to see. See also borea, naborea.

Le, leo, lu (in lu rik, d.), lo, s., c. art. nale na, naleo na, nalo na, his voice, speech, word, roģi nalo na, hear his voice, i.e. obey him, or roģi berakati nalona, or naloona, d. nalen: without the nom. suf. and with or without the art. it signifies a thing, something, as, nalo sikai, one thing, nalo lāba, many things; nalo nagiena, on account of, for the sake of, his name, lit. the thing of his name; lo-soko, true, lit. true thing, lē-soko, lo balo, empty, worthless thing, lo sa, bad thing, lo uia, good thing, d. lo amau, true, lit. true thing, hence the expressions sera-loamau, or seralēsoko, to believe, seralobalo, to deem worthless, despise. [Sa. leo, the voice, a sound, leoleoā, a., loud talking, To. lea, speech, voice, language.] A. la"a", to speak, n. a. la"w", sound, voice, lo"at, word, language, dialect (see misleo, infra).

Lea ki, v. t., to toss away, throw down (anything), to sweep, drive away (as the wind trees), and redup.,

Leleaki, v. t., intensive. [Sa. lele, to fly, lelea, to be driven by the wind (as if made to fly), To. id. and le, to drive.] See tiri, riri.

Leana, v. i., or a., d. lēna, d. lēģ, to be straight (not crooked), then to be right, upright, righteous, bisa lēna, speak straight, i.e. right, natamole lēna, a straight, i.e. upright or righteous man; tu lena, to stand straight. stand up. [Fi. donu, straight, then righteous, vakadodonutaka, to make straight. Sa. tonu, a., right, straight, correct, To. tonu, straight, direct, clear, faka-tonu, to make evident, manifest, tonuia, righteous, tu tonu, (stand) upright.] H. takan, to be or become straight, Pi. to make straight, to dispose rightly (proverbs).

Lēba i, leba i, or lebe i, d., v. t., d. syn. lēka, to look upon it: le, to look, see. Leba, redup. leleba, lebaleba (intensive), v. i., or a., to be or become big, great: nale-balebān, greatness, the being great: laba.

Leba, s., c. art. naleba, s., a species of earth, clay, mud. dirt, lebalebara, a., dirty, soiled (a. ending ra), d. lebalebā, a., id. (a. ending a), d. labo (i.e. leba bo, or boa) stinking leba, slush, mud. [Ha. lepo, to be dirty, defiled, soiled, s., dirt, ground, clay, lepolepo, dirty (intensive).] A. ṭabi'a, to be dirty, ṭabe', ṭaba', dirt, mud, ṭaba'a, to impress or seal, (4) to make a watervessel from clay, ṭub'an, clay.

Lebaleba, v. i., or a. See leba, laba.

Lebalebā, a. See leba, s.

Lebalebara, a. See leba, s.

Lebule, v., i.e. le (lele), to go round, and bule, q.v., to complete, to go completely round (of a canoe, as round a point or headland): lele, iliefiki.

Lēġ, v. i., or a., d. for lēna, leana.

Lei. See lai, s., woman.

Lēka, v. t., lēkā, look at him, lēkă nata, look at, see a person: d. leba. See leo.

Lele, or lili (lie, or le, lli, or ili, l'), to wind, to go round, turn, curve, as, raru i sefa, soko, or bā lele ki nafanua, the ship runs, moves swiftly, or goes curving round the land (island), nafisan i soka lele nafanua, the word moves swiftly round (i.e. all through) the land, le-bule, q.v., le, or li-taku na, or lele taku na, to turn behind his back, lele takunà sa, to turn behind one's back with it (i.e. to do, say something, concealing it from someone), ili-fiki, or lili-fiki nagusu, to round the point or cape (a canoe), ilisela, or lili-sela, as, i surata ilisela, he walked all the way, lit. round the way (see sela), i talele (or talle or tale), he turned aside, i talele ki, he turned or turns aside from (a person or thing), malele, to be bent or curved (as a branch of a tree heavy with fruit), bilele, v. r., to turn hither and thither, lūsi, or lŭlūsi (i.e. lele usi), lit. to go round following or tracking it, as, lulusi noai sera, he follows the stream, walking in the water, lusi nakasu, along a stick, lili maroa, lit. to go round turning itself. Fi. lele-t'a, to bend. lawa (آوی), to wind, bend, turn, &c., E. Awn (cg.) for $n \omega n \omega$, H. 515.

Note.—See the cognate liu, liliu.

Lele, s., tortoiseshell, the cover of the turtle; a tortoiseshell bracelet. The shell of the turtle is called lele from its round or curved form. See preceding word. [Mg.

rere, the largest kind of tortoise.

Lēmina: lē, v. t., to put out, and mina, s., the tongue, to put out the tongue, syn. lua mina. See lē, lua, v. t.

Lēna, d. leana, q.v.

Leo, to look, see le; le or leo goro gita, to watch, look for, expect, look after us.

Leo, s., c. art. naleo, thing, affair; hence

Leöuān, s., c. art. naleöuān (i.e. naleo uān, that thing, or affair), a feast (in heathenism), or heathen gathering, in which offerings or sacrifices are made to the natemate, and presents given to the guests.

Lēr, v. i., d. for liliu, q.v., to return, go or come back, also, i mer lēr briģi, he did it again, lit. 'he mer (q.v.) returned did it.'

Les, s., c. art. nales, a plant with thick dark leaf; and Lès, a., dark or dusky, as in fal'lès (fale les), dark or dusky cave (name of a big cave at the entrance of Havannah Harbour); ra lès, Dark-rā or Dusky-rā, a name of Hades. See rā. A. la'isa, n. a. la'as', to become dark, or blackish, 'al'asu, of a dark colour, dusky; multus et densus, de planta.

Lēs, s., coral rock, or stone. Cf. A. radat, a rock in water; radat, rocky, stony, a place like a rugged hill.

Lesilesi, for lasilasi.

Let, v. i., or a., to be stiff, rigid; redup.,

Lelet, id., intensive; and Lēt, s., spasm, rigidity, as in tetanus. See leti, alati.

Let i, for alat i;

Leti bati ore, same as alaterabati;

Leti lua i, v. t., to grasp, or seize, taking it away, leti lua i kiana, grasp it away from him;

Letileti, a.: natamole letileti, a grasping man: alati.

Letilet, or

Letilot, v. i., to crackle, as the bubbles of boiling water; and Letilot, s., c. art. naletilot, d. naltelta, froth, i. e. lit., bursting bubbles. See lita.

Li, s., place: for alia.

Li, s. See lai, woman.

Lī, v., d. See lulu.

Lia, s. Same as li, or alia, a place.

Līḥa, s., an arrow with a broad point (about the size of a shilling) for shooting birds, or the arrow head of such an arrow; and Liba i, v. t., to shoot birds with the liba (which does not pierce them, but kills them by a violent blow or shock). A. lagafa, to strike violently; lagīf', an arrow with a broad head.

Libi-si, d. leba i, or leba i, v. t., look upon him, see him: see leo.

Note.—In two other dd.

this word occurs (the b changed to m) as lim-si or limi-si, and lumi, see him.

Libo, v. i., hide, to vanish, disappear, be hidden, talibo, id.; hence lībo, s., a vanishing demon, a demon that assumes the aspect of someone to deceive, and appears to one in the forest, and then vanishes after the evil deed is committed, leaving the victim to return home to die; liboki, c. art. naliboki, a name of Hades (the invisible world, or hidden refuge or home of the dead);

Libo, s., an evil demon. See libo, v. i.,

Liboki, s., c. art. nalibòki, the invisible world, or hiding place where departed souls dwell, Hades. [Sa. lafi, to hide oneself, lalafi (of many), lafita'i, to conceal, lafitaga, a hiding place, Mg. levina, buried, interred.] A. ş'aba', n. a. ş'ab'a and ş'ubu', to hide (in the earth), 8, to hide, be hidden (hide oneself), cf. ş'āba, to lie hid in wait for the enemy, maṣ'ba', hiding place.

Libu, v. i., to be covered or dirty with ashes, ash-coloured;

Libu, s., an oven stone, the stones that are heated red hot for cooking in the oven (so called because covered with ashes, or ash coloured); hence

Lilibu ki, v., to put the libu on the oven fire to be heated. See abuabu.

Libu, or lebu, s., d., the middle of the lower part of the body at the upper part of the back of the pelvis. [Ml. Ur. livu, TaSa. libuka, the middle.] H. leb, the middle, heart, lubbu, cor et medulla rei, &c.

Libuis, d. lifāru, q.v.

Lifa i, v. t., to bend, and redup.,

Lifalifai, id., intensive; malibai, to be bent, see also lofa, malofa, and lufa. Sa. lavalava, wrapper round loins, lavasi, to tie round and round, entwine (as a serpent), lavelave, lave, to entangle, be intertwined, intricate, My. lipat (lampis, lapis, lâmpit, lâpit), Ja. lâpit, to fold, lap, lay in plaits, Mg. lefița, folded, bent, plaited. laffa, to be intricate, involved, intertwined; to wrap up, wrap round, to fold: Nm. wrap up, roll up, loffa, coil of turban, winding of road, lifafa, wrapper, envelope, bandage, 8, to be wrapt, &c.

Lifalifa, v. i., to blaze, nakabu i sor lifalifa, the fire burns blazing, or putting forth flames. [Ha. lalafa, lafalafa, to blaze (of a fire), Mg. lelufa, My. malapu.] A. lahiba, n. a. lahb', to blaze, put forth flames.

Lifaru, s., and a., dd. libuis, răfālu, rifālu, a part, some, as natamole lifāru, some men, lifaru ru bano, lifaru ru toko, some went, some remained. [Fut. efaru, some, many, Niue (Savage Island) falu, some.] A. ba'ṣ'u, a part, some, and pl. dem. li (ri, ra). See Ch. V. 1.

Li-fiki, for ili-fiki, q.v.

Lifu, s., d. for rifu, q.v. Lifu, v. i., and redup.,

Lifulifu, v. i. (intensive), to be covered, dirty, with ashes, as in mourning, d. for libu, id.

Liġa, s., d. taliġa, ear, the ears: taliga, q.v.

Liġa, v. i., to sing, and redup., Liġaliġa, id. (of many), and Liġana, s., c. art. naliġana, a song, d. nalaġ: laġa, q.v.

Lìġĭ-si, v. t., to pour out, maliġi, or maliġsi, to spill, be poured down. [Sa. liġi, liliġi, liġiliġi, to pour, maliġi, to spill, to be poured down, maliġi, s., a pouring (of rain), Ma. riġi, ririġi, to pour out, An. aijaġjiġ, to pour out.] A. raķa (mid. y) 1, 4, to pour out.

Liġliġ, v. i., to be proud: laġilaġi, q.v.

Likau, for lakau, v. t.

Liko-ti, v. t., to tie, fasten (with a rope, as a boat to a ship, an animal to a stake, &c.), and

Liko, v. i., to be fastened to, affixed to, adhere to: i likò sa, it is fastened to, as a leech to the body, &c.;

Liko, s., c. art. naliko, a rope for fastening or suspending; Likoliko, redup. of liko-ti (used of fastening or suspending the yams to a horizontal pole). [My. lâkat, to adhere, lâkatkan, to fasten, Ja. rakât, to adhere, Mg. raikiṭa, stuck, adhered to, miraikiṭa, to adhere, rekiṭa, id., mandrekiṭa, to fasten.] A. 'alika, to adhere, be affixed, be fastened to, 2, to suspend, 4, make to adhere, fasten, 'alako, a rope.

Lilia, d. for liliu, q.v.

Lili-maroa, v. i., to go round turning itself: lele, or lili, and maroa.

Liliu, v. i., to return, go or come back: liu.

Līma, num., five; d. c. art. nalima na, his hand; baka-līma, q.v. [Sa. lima, five, the hand, My. lima, Mg. dimi, five, Epi jimo (and limo), five, juma, hand; d. lima, yima, or sima, hand; d. lima, five, ma, hand; An. nijman, or nikman (= Ef. nalimana) his hand, five.] A. ḥ'amsat, ḥ'ams', five, alḥ'ams, digiti: Mahri khomo, Sokotra khemah, five.

Lim-si, d. for libi-si, q.v.

Līna, s., the light. [Mota dina, My. dina, Er. dan, day.] As, i en līna, it is in the light (not concealed), d. i en ali: aliati, ali.

Lira, redup. liralira, dd. nrirnrir (i.e. tirtir), litalita, litalita, v. i., or a., to be bright, shining, gleaming, brilliant. A. naş'ara (2), and (b), nas/ira, 4, to be bright, shining, gleaming, brilliant. Lirea, v. i., or a., for litea, q.v.

Lisi, v. t., to lay down, put down, and Lisaki, v. t., to throw down, throw away, E. rasaya, to lay down.

Lisoa, v. i., dd. tiso, toto: toto.

Lita, v. i., and liti, to crackle, to burst, explode, as wood, or a stone in the fire, see letelot, also lot, to crackle (as a fire), explode (as a gun), to sound (as a crack or explosion), and melita, to crack or crackle (as wood in the fire, &c.), and then nagiena i melita, his name resounds, he is famous; and

Lità i, or litai, or litai i, v. t., līta i lita i, a spark, or fragment of something, bursting or crackling or exploding in the fire, leaps or explodes on to him; also, a wasp stings him;

Līta, s., a spark, fully līta nakabu (see preceding word); also a red wasp (because it is red like a spark, or because its sting burns like fire): d. (transposed) tīla. [Fi. lidi: lidilidi, to burst, or explode, s., report of an explosion, as of thunder, or a stone in a heated oven, lidi-ka, to strike in flying off, lidi ni buka, a spark, lidi-ka, to crack between the finger and thumb nails, as a louse, My.

lâtok, to crackle, to decrepitate, lâtup, and lâtub, id., lâtum, to boom, or give out a booming noise.] See lot.

Lita-kuruma na, v., to have the breast (kuruma, see ruma), thrust forward or out (bulging or swollen out), in a spasm (the opisthotonic) of tetanus, then, to be bulging or swollen stiffly out (of the face of a log or board that should be level): see lēt, spasm, or rigidity, as in tetanus; let, lelet, to be stiff, rigid (of anything, as of a dead body, &c.).

Litea, a., or v. i., dirty, to be dirty, d. lirea: used of anything, as cloth, &c. Also, as in English we speak of a 'dirty-looking' sky or night, so, tokalau meta lirea, dirty-looking tokalau (tokalau is an easterly wind). [My. lâtah, Ja. latup, turbid, foul, muddy, Mg. lutu, dirtiness, filth, dirty, soiled, malutu, dirty, filthy, foul.] A. lataḥ'a, n. a.

lath', to be dirty.

Liu sa, v. t., to pass by (lit. to put him behind, make him go back, by passing him), to surpass, d. tōli a, d. toliu

Liu-uaki (waki), or liu-àki (see also lu-aki), v. t., to turn, as to turn a stick end for end, d. lia ki, and lilia ki;

Liliu, d. lilia, d. lēr, v. i., redup., to turn back, return, go or come back: biliu, q.v. [Sa. liu, to turn, to turn over, to turn into, to change, redup. liliu, liuliu, faaliliu to turn round, maliuliu to be able to turn, To. liliu, to return, Ma. ririu, to pass by.] رَقَى, to return, turn back, i. q. وَلَى, to يُولِي, tawalli=Ef. tōli.

Lo, s., d. li, alia, as, lo koi, or koia, d. li ke, this place, here.

Lo, s., thing, and c. art. nalo: le.

Loamau (lo, thing, and amau, true), s., a true thing, truth, a., true, d. syn. losoko, or lesoko (lo, or le, thing, and soko, true), d. lo-ua (uwa).

Lo, v. i. and t., to look, to see: leo, le, id.

Loa, s., c. art. naloa, dirt (on anything);

Loa, redup., loaloa, a., and v. i., to be black, to be blackish. See also malolo, or milo, milolo. [Fi. loa, a black cloud, black paint for the face, loaloa, a., black, loanimata, the black part of the eye which surrounds the pupil, Ml. P. roro, dirty.] A. lo'wat, lawla', blackness.

Loa i, v. t., to rub, smear; and

Lo-fi, v. t., same as alo-fi, q.v., to rub on, to smear; also

Loa-si, d. loa-ri, v. t., and redup.,

Loloa-si, d. loloa-ri, v. t., to rub, also to flatter; hence

Lolo, s., paint (for the face). [My. lulut, and lulur, to cleanse the skin by friction and cosmetics, to rub the skin with cosmetics. smear.] H. hala', to rub, strip, A. hala, to rub and to smear the eyes with collyrium, ḥalō', oil or paint (used by women for their faces), H. hala' (A. hala', see èlo, lolo, sweet, pleasant), Piel, to stroke, to soothe anyone, from the primary idea of the roots hala', halah, i.e. that of rubbing, hence to stroke anyone's face, i.e. to soothe, flatter.

Lobu, s., bamboo (the plant); also, bamboo water vessel and bamboo knife. [Santo lumuo, Ml. nambu, New Guinea dd. bau, ifa, inba, kem, Sa. 'ofe, To. kofe, bamboo, Ha. ohe, bamboo, a reed generally, bamboo knife, a kind of flute.] H. 'ebeh, a reed, A. 'aba'at', a reed, and 'abau.

Lofa na, s., c. art. nalofa na, his track (so called because his track is marked by bent grass, &c.): lofa, lifa i.

Lofa i, v. t., to bend; same as lifa i. [Sa. lofa, to cower down, crouch, Fi. love-t'a, to bend, kalove, bent.]

Lōfa, s., hunger or famine (because it bends one); a sword (because it is flexible): lōfa lofa i, hunger or famine bends him: lofa i.

Lo-fi, redup. lolo-fi. See loa i, loa-si.

Loga, s., an enclosure, garden, the inside of an enclosure; given as d. for elol (in the sense of enclosure, that is, the inside of an enclosure). See elol.

Lokoloko ki, same as lakolako ki; lako, v. i.

Loko-taki, v. t., same as lukutaki: lako, v. i.

Loku, a., concealed, i toko loku, he remains concealed: lako, v. i.

Lokuloku ki, same as lokoloko ki.

Lolo, s., voc., uncle, redup. of alo ana, q.v.

Lolo, s., c. art. nalolo, thread: the native thread was made by rubbing the fibre between the hand and the thigh: loloa-si.

Lolo, a., or v. i., redup. of èlo, q.v., sweet, pleasant.

Lolo-fi, redup. of lo-fi, and Loloa-si, or Loloa-ri, redup. of loa-ri, q.v.

Lolofa, a., or v. i., d. lulum, lumu, to be wet, moistened: see tiu, d. luma. [Fi. luvu, to sink in the water, luma, to kill by putting the head under water, Ma. rumaki, to dip in water, Mg. rubuka, plunged, dipped, soaked.] Ch. seba', to dip into (H., A., id.), Ithpael 'iṣṭaba', to be wet, moistened.

Lolo-mina, a., lolo, sweet, pleasant, and mina, q.v., sweet and pleasant.

Lor, s., d. roro, the oily milk expressed from the grated kernel of the cocoanut for See ror, roro i. puddings. os, or loso, redup. lolos, or loloso, v. i., or mid., to bathe, to wash (oneself). TaSa. lalos, Ml. roso, Malo loloso, id., Ml. roso-vi, to wash (clothes, &c.). A. raḥaṣ'a, n. a. rahs', to wash (clothes, the body), H. rahas, to wash (the body), to wash oneself, E. rahsa, to be wet.

Losia, v. i. See lusia.

Lot, v. i., to crackle, as a fire; explode, as a gun, &c.;

Lotelot, v. i., redup., to crackle frequently and rapidly, as the bubbles in a boiling pot;

Lotelot, s., c. art. nalotelot, same as naletilot, froth; also,

Lot, s., c. art. nalot, froth (i. e. a mass of bursting or crackling bubbles). A. la ata, n. a. la t, li at, to crackle. &c. (as water boiling, &c.).

Lousa, redup. lolousa, v. i., to be wet, or losa, lolosa. See lūsa.

Louua, d. for loamau (lo, a thing, and uua, i.e. uwa, for amau, true).

Lu, s., d. for lo, a thing, in lurik, a thing, lit., little thing.

Lu, s., a place, for li, alia, as lu ua, this place, here, lu uān, that place, there.

Lu, v. i., to rise up, as, intano i lu, the ground rises up (as when the swelling yams below heave it up), redup. lulu, nabiau i lulu, the waves rise up; lulu, to be uplifted, proud, bau lulu, a proud person (lit. high head), also lulu, d. lī, to vie with, contend for superiority, bilulu, v. r., to vie or contend with each other for superiority, bilulu ki, vie or contend with each other for superiority about (something); ulua, to grow up, ulĭ, ālĭ, and ula, a leaf, and lulu, the hair (of the head, face, or other part of the body), redup. uluulua, q.v., to be growing up, putting forth leaves, also to be hairy, to be woolly (as a sheep), to be covered with down (a plant). [Ha. ulu, uluulu, to grow up, lift up, &c.] A. 'alu, H. 'alah, A. 'ala', n. a. 'uluw', to ascend, go up, be above it, over it, overlay it, become supernatant upon it; overcome, become superior; exalt (himself); recoil (from), remove, or go away (from), 2, to take up or off, 3, to vie, contend, or compete for superiority, 4, take up, take out, &c. H. alah, to go up: inanimate things are also said to go up, as smoke, a rising ground, a plant which sprouts forth and grows, whence the participle 'oleh (a plant) sprouting forth (Ef. ulua, ulu), and 'aleh, a leaf (Ef. ulĭ, alĭ); used also of things which are taken up, carried away, Hi. (causative) to take out or up (as out of a pit), to take up, or away, to put up (the cud, from the stomach into the mouth, of ruminating animals), generally, to make to go up (out or away), E. redup. la'ala, 'al'ala, to make to go up, lift up, take up, le'lena, height, highness, &c.

217

Lua, v. t., lua i, lua ki, to vomit, to put out (as the tongue, anything), to flow out, lu ē a, flow out on or into it, lua ki, to put out (anything, as words, to utter), hence luaki, an utterance, proverb; also le, and lai. This verb is much used after other verbs, as, sela lua i, bear or carry (taking) out, or away, bā lua i, &c.; miroa lua i, think (taking or putting) out or up (discover it by thought), &c. [Fi, lua, luara, lua-raka, to vomit, Sa. luai, to spit out, Ha. luai, to vomit, lualuai, to ruminate, chew the cud, to raise the food again from the stomach to the mouth, as ruminating animals, Ma. ruaki, Tah. ruai, to vomit, My. luwat, or luat, to vomit, luwar, or luar, out, away, luwari, and luwarkan, to put out, expel, Mg. lua, s., vomit, mandua, to vomit, luața, ad., over and above, luața, taken up, put out, manduata, to take out or up, luarana, being taken up.]

and ta'a, n. a. ta'at, vomit, and ta'a, n. a. tai'at, and t'a'a, n. a. t'a'at, to vomit, &c.

Lualua, v. t., redup. of preceding. See lua.

Lua, s., c. art. nalua, a landslip: lua.

Luàki, s., an allegorical utterance, a proverb or parable;

Luaki, v. t., i luaki nafisan, he utters speech, i tili luaki lau erā sa, he says a proverb (parable, or allegory) planting it on them (lit. planting, piercing, or fixing them with it). See lua ki.

Lualua, s., c. art. nalualua, an old plantation (out of which the yams have been taken); the hair or grasslike growth on rocks under the sea: lua.

Luba ki, v. t., to pour out (as water, grain, &c.), luba, mid., to pour (itself) as rain; also used of pouring out anything (as men) from a ship, luba ki ra, pour them out, or land them, hence bilubaki, v. r., to pour each other out, to land (men); malubaki, to be spilt, poured out (water or fluid), talubaki, to be spilt or poured out (as water or fluid). [My. tumpah, to spill, shed, pour out, mânumpah, id., Fi. livi-a, to pour gently, or in a small stream, talivi, to be poured out, spilt.] A. sabba, to pour out (of all things, and of things dry); to pour, be poured out, 5, 7, 8, to be poured out, and sāba, n. a. sa'b', to pour out.

Lūfa, s., loin wrapper, girdle round the loins. See lifa i.

Luġ i, v. t., to bend, make curved, and redup.,

Luġluġ i, id., d. nuġnuġ i;

Luġ, s., c. art. naluġ, d., the native pudding (see nakoau, kabu), so called because wrapped in leaves which are bent or curved round it. [My. leġ'ok, bent, crooked.] A. lāga, n. a. la'g', 2, to make curved, to bend.

Luk, or luku, s., a hole or pit, a well: luku noai, well (pit or hole) of water: lako.

Luku, a., same as loku.

Luku-taki, v. t., same as loko-taki. See lako, v. i.

Luko, v. i., same as liko, v. i.

Luku-ti, v. t., same as liko-ti.

Luko, s., c. art. naluko, same as liko, s.; takes the nom. suf. nalukona, or nalikona, its rope, i.e. the rope for tying or fastening it.

Lukuluku, same as likoliko. Lukoluko, and Lukuluku ki, same as lokoloko ki: lako.

Lulia, and

Luluia, v. i., for ululia: alialia, q.v.

Lulu, v. i., redup.; and

Lulu, v. t., Plu, d. 1ī, vie, contend with for superiority, dispute with: lu, and see bau lulu, and bilulu.

Lulu, s., c. art. nalulu, as nalulu nabau na, the hair of his head, nalulu na, his hair: lu, and see uluulua.

Lulu, v. i., to roll: i lulu ban, it rolls away;

Lulu ki, v. t., to roll up (as cloth into a bale); hence

Lulu, s., c. art. nalulu, a roll, a bale; and talulu, and talu, or tal'lu, s., a roll (of cloth), a crowd (of men), a herd (of pigs), a heap (of stones): see also malilu, to roll. See lele.

Lulu, v. i., to sink, d. tutu, q.v.

Luluk, s., a thing rolled up (as cloth). See lulu ki (lulu-ki).

Luma, or lum, v. i., and redup.,

Lumlum, to be wet. See lolofa, d.;

Lūma, s., the wet, as luma iga luma, the wet is about to wet, or will wet ('it will rain', or 'is going to rain');

Lume a, v. t., lume nafanua, to wash (immerse) or cleanse the land by a religious service or ceremony performed by the natamole tabu, or priest: so if a man has been poisoned, natamole tabu i lume a ki, the poison, cleanses or washes him from the poison by a religious service or ceremony. When the land is suffering from drought, natamole tabu i lume, or lumi a, and the hard-baked and therefore barren earth becomes soft and moist (lum, lulum), clothed with verdure, and fruitful, yielding abundance of food; redup.,

Lulume a, id. The radical meaning of the word is to dip, to immerse (see under lolofa). [Fi. lomo-t'a, to dip, to dye, luvu, to sink in water, to be flooded (as the land).] H. ṣaba', A. ṣab'a, to dip into, to immerse, then to dye, to tinge, S. ṣba', to tinge, ṣaba', to wash, E. ṭam'a, to tinge, to immerse (in water). See also riu, tiu, tutu, tuma.

Lumě-si, v. t., to turn, d. lume, to wrap up, buluma, or bulima, to be turned, to be changed (in form or appearance). [Tah. rumi, to wring, turn over, upset, Ha. limu, to turn, to change, to have various appearances, limulimu, twisting, turning.] E. ṭawim, to roll up, fold up.

Lumi, v. i., to swell up, d. lugi. A. wārama, to swell (cg. H. 'aram, rum).

Lumi a, to look upon it, see it: d. for libi-si, d. lim-si, d. leba i. See le, leo, lo.

Lūsa, v. i., to be wet, also lousa, lolousa. E. reḥsa, to be wet.

Lusi, redup. lulusi. See lele (and usi).

Lusia, v. i., to be dirty, faded, i bi namau lusia (of a lazy, languid husband). [My. lâsu, languid, feeble, Mg. lazu, fading, withering, faded.] A. lāt'a, to dirty, to be slow, 5, to be dirty, lūt'at, languor, laziness, 'alwat'u, languid, faded, withered. See milesu.

M' (ma, mĭ, mĕ), a formative prefix or preformative particle: the m' is sometimes changed to b, and f, as toko, or to, mato, bato, or fato; in the causative prefix it is b', or f', being the initial consonant of baka, or faka, rarely ba, or fa; in the reflexive prefix it is b', or f', being the initial consonant of bi, or fi. In bi, or fi, q.v., the i is a fragment of the ancient reflexive prefix, as the a in ba, or fa, q.v., is the ancient causative prefix. many cases ma- (often mi-) is found prefixed to verbs having a passive sense, the same verbs being without the ma-, active: in these cases we may regard the word as representing the ancient ps. part., or the ancient n. a. (active, or passive). The preformative m (originally ma) in H. and Arm. me, or m', A. mo, or mu, E. ma, Amh. ma, was attached to infinitives and participles (active and passive). Sometimes main Ef., or m' (b', f') is to be regarded as originally prefixed to the simplest form of the verb. See borau (A. markab, an infinitive), &c. M, ad., contraction of mo,

q.v.

Ma, s., day; in mās, maisa, mes, masus (nanum, nanu, nanofa, nanoasa, nāsa, uāsa, āsa) to-day, lit. this day. yom, A. ya'm', S. yom, Ch. emphatic yoma', and dem.

Ma, prep., for, contraction of magi, or of mane (d. mini), as i manai (or maginai) bat i, d. i manena bat i, d. i māsa bat i. See magi. [Ma., Fut., &c., ma, id.

Ma, s., contraction for maga, in names of places. [Ma. ma, id. Maga, q.v.

Ma, d. me, prep., with (of accompaniment), and. [Ha. me, Ma. me, with, and, Mg. amana, with, and, Mota ma, me. H. 'im, A. ma', with, together with: may, like me, sometimes be translated by 'and'.

Mā, v. i., for mānĭ: anĭ, v., q.v., c. preformative m'.

Māni, v. t., to rub, grind, or grate (as yams);

Mā, s., c. art. nimā, a fern tree; the rough bark of it (used as a grater): nimā, that which mā, i. e. grates. Ma. wani, scrape, rub. A. mahana, n. a. mahn', to rub. scrape.

Mā, s., a man, a male, opp. to lai (lei, le, li), a female, a woman; used also before names of men, as lai, before names of women; as ma tuele, Mr. tuele; mā-riki, lit. old man, senior, sir, often used also before names men, like mā: mā is a contraction of mare, q.v. [Ysabel (Gao) mae, male, and used also before masculine names.

Note.—This ma (contraction of mare) occurs also in d. ma'anı, manı (sometimes pronounced mwaně, or moan), and denotes male, thus nata-mani, or ta-mani, a male, male, lit. a male human being, and in another d. the initial m is elided, and for mani, we have anoi, q.v., a male, male. Ch. II. 17.

Ma'ani, or maani, or mani (or mwani, or moan), a., male, d. ānoi, s. and a., male: see preceding word. [Malo muera, Oba amera, Celebes burani (husband, Wallace), Ambrym milig, Bali muwani, Epi d. man, and Ef. ta-, or ata-mane, Epi dd. sumano, atamani (sumano, ata-mani), Ta. yeruman, TaSa. la-mani, Fi. tagane, To. ta-ane, Fut. and Sa. tane (ta-ane), id. Ch. II. 17.

Mabe, s., c. art. namabe, the chestnut tree and its fruit. Tah. mape, id.; also the kidneys of any animal; An. mop(o), the chestnut, also the inside (i.e. belly) of a box, inside (i.e. belly) of an animal, the pluck, the heart, liver, and lungs, Malo mabue, chestnut. See under amo, amoamo.

Mabelu, mabelubelu, v. i., d.; refl. of belu; to be bent, doubled, folded: belu.

Mabor, d. mäuora, q.v.

Mabulu, v. i., or a., d. mafulu, fat: bulia.

Mabulu, s., a large kind of pigeon.

Mabulu, v. i., or a., sticky; waxy, as a yam when cooked: bubulu, bulu-ti. See mofa. Mafa, a., swollen, in las mafa, d. las mäu, swollen testicles (mäu for mafu). H. bua', ba'ah, A. ba''a', to swell. See fuata, bua III.

Màfa, v. i., as, i maf ban, he goes hiddenly or unobserved

= i bi bei ban;

Màfa na, s., his being hid or unseen (in going): see bei, and afa.

Māfa, d., v. i., or a., to be broken, cracked, d. mafua, q.v. [To. mafā, crack, rent, split.]

Mafa i, or mafai, v. t., to cover: see s., bei.

Mafaifai, v. i., or a., to be smashed to pieces: fai. See bua, to divide, cleave.

Mafaku, v. i., to be plucked up, or out: baku sa.

Mafasu, v. i., to be broken off, snapt off. [To. mafachi, id.] Base.

Mafirifiri, v. i., to be loosed, to be made void: bir i, v. t.

Mafis, s., a knife, d. for makus, q.v.

Mafisi, s., a child, one begotten or born, and

Mafisi, v. i., or a., to be begotten, born, brought forth;

Mafisien, s., c. art. namafisien, the being born or brought forth: bis i, v. t., to beget.

Mafisi, v. t., to beat: fisi.

Mafu, s., c. art. namafu (d. namam), a mist; ceremonial uncleanness: abu, abuabu.

Mafua, v. i., to be split, cracked: bua, to divide, cleave. [Sa. marae, to be split, cracked.]

Mafukafuka, v. i., to be swollen out, puffed up: buka 1.

Mafule, v. i., to be stripped of leaves: bule.

Mafunai, or mafunei, v. i., to be consumed, annihilated, as wood in the fire; and Mafunufunu, v. i., to be brought to an end, to be ended, finished: annihilated: bunu e.

Mafusai, v. i., to be smashed to pieces, as a yam: busa i. Mafuti, v. i., to be plucked: but i.

Maġa, v. i., to gape (see maka, ġaġa, fuġaġa), open out, then to wonder, then to gape or open the mouth (to speak), to speak, maġa asi, is to speak about it, lit. to open the jaws, part asunder the jaws (asi), maġa lua i, speak it up or out, lit. gape outing it, maġa lo saki, d. maka lo saki, to gape looking up; hence

Maga, s., a small canoe: namaġa; and

Maġa, s., c. art. namaġa, d. nabaġa, the banyan; and Māġān, s., c. art. namāġān, the act of gaping, wonder: and Magamaga, v. i., redup., to gape often and rapidly, to pant; and

Maga-fai, s., a division, a part

(see fai, bua); and

Maga, s., the first part in names of places, as gorges or valleys, and especially of places in the depths of the abyss of Hades; sometimes, but rarely, contracted to mā, as maġa-tika, or ma-tika, the lowest abyss in Hades. [Ma. maġa, brook, watercourse, ditch, and contracted $m\bar{a}$, in names of streams, Sa. faamaja, to open the mouth, to gape (To. fakamaja); ma- $\dot{g}a$, a branch (as of a tree, road, or stream, or anything having a branch, or forked), Tah. maa, cloven, divided, My. jaja, to gape, maju, wonder, amazement, maġah, to pant, palpitate, $m\hat{a}\hat{g}a$, open. E. nakaca, to gape, to yawn, to be rent, parted or sundered, and of water gushing forth (see fuġaġa), A. manķa, a place where water remains (i.e. a hollow, fissure in the earth, or valley), naka'a, to rend asunder, E. nka'at, an opening, gap, fissure;

Maga, s., see above, in names of the following places in

Hades, signifies chasm, yawning chasm, gulf, or abyss, of which there are several, some say six, one below the other, viz.—

Maġa-boaboa, evil-smelling abyss—see boa;

Maga-bua, profound abyss—see bua;

Maġaliu, s., name of a place in Efate, lit. the turning gap. See liu.

Maġàli, v. i., to be turned round: eloi maġàli, the sun is turned round (it is late in the afternoon). See kelu.

Maga-lulululu, sinking sinking abyss: lulu;

Maga-nabonabo, evil-smelling abyss: nabo;

Maga-seasea, abyss of oblivion: seasea;

Maġāsi, v. i., to speak about, lit. to open or part the jaws: maġa, asi.

Maġa-tika, or ma-tika, abyss of annihilation (this is the lowest abyss): tika:

Maga-tiro, sinking abyss. See tiro.

Note.—Magatiro in one dialect is magalulululu in another: and magaboaboa and maganabonabo, denote the same. Thus there are five abysses yawning one below the other in succession. All these are below bokas, which is the uppermost, and the first to which departed souls go, and also the general name of Hades.

Màga, prep. and pron. of 3 person, denoting, with-them, thus—(1) kihe māġa? who they? d. se màni? d. se mai? d. fei mānaġ? (2) John māġa, d. John mānaġ, d. John mera uan (or meroan), John and his companions; (3) natamole māġa, d. mānaġ, d. mera uan, a man with them (i.e. a man with those beside him), some men, indefinite plural. The literal meaning of māġa in (1), (2), (3), is with-themthere: kihe māġa? who he with-them there (beside him), or together with them there (beside him); John māġa, John together with them there beside him; natamole māġa, the man together with them there (beside him). is probable that māġa is a contraction of which manag is the fuller form; and the -ġa (for naġa) is the dem. 'there' (see ga, dem.) This $m\bar{a}na\dot{g} = with them there:$ in addressing a number the speaker says tāgu māġa, or mānaġ, or mera uan, my friends, lit. my friend with them there (beside you); so, tai mānaġ, &c., brother with them there (beside you), brothers. The expression mera uan is me, with, together with, ra, them or those, and uan, dem. (that) there, and mānaġ and māġa differ in having the r elided (as it is in ëu, u, for eru, ru, they, verb, pron) and the suffixed dem. naġ or naġa, q.v., instead of uan, q.v. Mani (and mai) are not used as in (2) and (3), but only as in (1) in the above example. [Ma. ma, Ha. ma, Fut. ma, Ta. min, d. mi (mèh) pl., mī, dual.]

Maġasaġa, v. t., to make a saġa (crotch, fork): maġa, and saġa.

Maġau, pr. n., c. art. namaġau, for nabaġau. See baġau.

Magi (d. syn. mini), comp. prep., for, contracted ma, q.v.: maģi is ģi, q.v., and ma, on account of, in, to, and thus aginai = his, maginai, on his (account), in (interest), i.e. for him; in one d. the genitive prep. nig, q.v., of, denotes also 'for', nigā=his, and also= for him. Both magi and $ni\dot{g}$, when = for, are placed between the verbal pronoun and its verb, thus, i maginai, or, i nigā mate, he for him died. [Mota mun, for, An. imi, to, for, Ma. ma, for, &c. See Ch. V. 11. (8).

Magie na, prep. and s., for his name, i magiena bat i, he for his name did it, tuga magiegita bat i, let us for our names (i.e. for each of us) do it, &c.: ma, i.e. magi, for, and gie, name.

Maġiri, v. t., to scratch, scrape: ġiri, see ġura.

Maġo na, s., c. art. namaġo na: baġo na, q.v. for meaning and origin, is the same word.

Maġoaġo (m' prep.), d., ad., dawn, early morning, lit. at dawn. [Cf. Arag. vaigogo, to-morrow.] E. goḥa, to dawn, goḥ, dawn.

Màgoro, s. See muagoro.

Magura ki, v., to withhold from, d. makur ki: gura i.

Magura, v. i., or a., to be lean, d. makur: gura i.

Màgura, s., c. art. namàgora, contraction of muagoro.

Maġuku, v. i., to be bent, &c.: ġuku. [An. megug, old, wrinkled, makaka, bent, crooked.]

Maġusi, v. i., to be crooked, contorted, cross-grained, as wood; also, nabona i maġusi, his heart is crooked. See ġusĭ.

Mai, ad., here, as bano-mai, to come here, lo mai, look here, &c., and v. i., to come here. See bai, bē, bā, to come.

Mai, s., c. art. namai, a rope, a string. See d. mē.

Mai, or ma i, v. t., to chew (softening food for an infant). [Sa. mama, to chew, ps. maia.] A. macmaca, to chew (meat), but not wholly. Mai, d. for mani, as sei?

Mai, d. for màni, as sei? who (is) he? se mai? who (are) they? See māġa.

Maia, s., a species of banana. Mai, distance, only in emai, ad., q.v. Maieta, or maita, d., and Maieto, or maito, d., v. i., or a., to be black, black. [My. itam, Mg. mainti, Bisaya maitum, Tagala itim, black.] A. 'adhamo' (aḥtamo, 'atḥamo, &c., id.) black, 'idhamma, and 'itḥamma (i.e. dahama, taḥama, 9), to be black.

Maieto, maito, v. i., to be angry, maitō sa, to be angry on account or because of it, maito ki nia, to be angry at him, maito ki nià sa, to be angry at him on account of it. A. ma'it'a, to be angry, ma'it'o, and mā'it'o, angry.

Maietoa, and

Maietoan, s., c. art. namaietoa, anger, namaietoan, the being angry, anger.

Mailoa (ma-, prep.), s., ad., d., dawn, early morning, lit. at dawn. [An. imraig, tomorrow, Mg. maraina, morning.] See aliati.

Mailua. See malua.

Mailum, mailumlum. See malum.

Maimai, v. i., to be in a tumult (of haste or passion), namarite na i maimai, his inside (heart, feelings) is in a tumult. [Mg. maika, and maimai, a., hasty, in a hurry.] A. ma'ma'a, to do a thing hastily, to be in a tumult, ma'ma'at, crackling (of burning reeds or such like).

Mairi, v. i., to live: dd. mauri, moli.

mauri, moii.

Maisa, ad., to-day, dd. mās, mēs, masusa. See ma, day, and s, dem.

Mak, v. i., d., to fall, become mild, gentle, die away, as the wind: cg. mäo. S. mak, to be cast down, prostrated, humble, mild.

Maka. See mako.

Maka, v. i., or maġa, q.v., to gape, to wonder, to be amazed, i makā sa, or maġā sa, he is amazed or gapes at (because of) it; and maka lo saki, or maġa lo saki, he gapes looking upwards. See maġa.

Makaka, v. i., or a., to be ragged or fissured, as cloth. See aka.

Makāl, s., an ant (so called from its smallness, or quick and light movements): kala, and bakal i II.

Makāl, s., shame, pudenda. See under bakal i 11.

Makal, v. i., or a., and redup., Makalkal, to be sharp: bakal i ii. [To. machila, sharp.] Makalakala, v. i., or a., to be itchy: connected with makal, ant, thus, makal i makamakala ki nau, an ant moves about on (is creeping or running on) me, and therefore, a makalakala, I am itchy: bakal i ii.

Makamakala ki, v., to move about or creep on (one), of an ant (makāl), hence makalakala, itchy.

Makara, v. i., to be assembled, to be a crowd or many together, dd. maraka (transposed), and merā, or marā (k elided): kuru, ģuru.

Makarakara, v. i., or a., to be burning, as the throat from eating curry with too much pepper: kara.

Makas i, v. t., to pluck out or off, as a scab or anything from the skin, loose bark from a tree, husk from a cocoanut. A. nakas'a, (3), to pluck out. See bakasa ki. Māki, v. t., to be ignorant of,

not to know; redup.,
Makimaki, as, i makimaki

Makimaki, as, i makimaki isa, he is ignorant of, does not know, it;

Māki, don't know (in answer to a question);

Māki, pr. n. of a demon or spirit, one of the officers of Saritau at the gate or entrance of Hades. When the spirit of a deceased person presents himself after death for admission to Hades, Faus (another spirit) asks 'Who is it?' If Māki says, 'Māki' (i.e. don't know), a dreadful punishment is inflicted by Saritau; if he says 'He is one of our people' admission without punishment is given. My. mukir, Ja. mağkir (muğ- \overline{kir}), to deny, disavow. A. nakira, 1, 4, 6, 10, to be ignorant of, not to know, 4, to deny, to disayow, Munkar', name of the angel who together with Nakir is said to have the office of examining deceased persons in the grave: see Koran.

Mākinikini, v. i., to be itchy: kan i. [Sa. ma'ini, ma'ini'ini, to tingle, to smart.]

Makit i, v. t., to seize or take with the uatàki (native tongs) the hot oven stones, ru sela uataki makiti fatu isa, or maki fatu isa. H. ḥatah, to take, take hold of, seize. It is once applied to a man, elsewhere always to fire or burning coals.

Makita, redup. makitakita, v. i., or a., to be bent, curved, only in the expression lo makita, to look bent, i. e. to look round or back, lo makitakita, id., d. bakita, bakitakita. A. ka'at'a, to bend, to curve, mak'ut', bent, curved.

Mako, and maka, s., offspring; in pr. names, as, maka folu, lai, or li mako, &c.: aka (ako). [TaSa. maka pi, grandchild (offspring. or offshoot, of grandfather, pi), Fi. makubu, or mokubu, grandchild.]

Makota, or makoto, v. i., to be broken, and redup.,

Makotakota, to be much broken; and Makota ki, to be broken from, i. e. to cease from (some person or thing); and Makota, s., a part (of a plantation), a place, makot i milate, the place is cold. i.e. there is no one about the place (on calling at a house and finding no one at home), makota ua, this place, lit. this part: koto-fi.

Makus, s., a wooden knife

(used for cutting up puddings), d. mafis.

Makuskus, or

Makusukusu, v. i., to be soft (ripe): kosu-mi.

I. Mala bulu, v. i., to faint, falling down (of men), to become soft and falling down (of breadfruit)—see bulu; and

Māla, s., faint, as, mate ki māla, to faint, lit. to die in a faint; a species of hawk (of a faded colour);

Malamala, v. i., to be foolish (My. bâbal. silly, doltish), c. art. namalamala, a fool, one foolish; and

Mala, s., c. art. namala, a fool, one stupid, foolish, senseless; and Mala nono, v. i., to abide senseless, deprived of sense or motion (as by terror): no, to abide. H. nabal, to be or become faded (used of leaves and flowers falling off from being faded), to fall down, to faint, to lose one's strength (of men); and to be foolish (the mind faded), flaccid, devoid of vigour, stupid, nabal, foolish, senseless.

II. Malamala, v. i., or a., to be naked, naked; and

Mala, s., or malala (intensive), the cleared place at each village, in the midst of which the nabeas are set up, and in which are performed the sacrifices, singing, and dancing of the intamate; often in the names of places (because cleared or bare, because having a mala, or cleared place). [Ma. marae, enclosed space in front of a house, yard, Tah. marae, a., cleared, as a garden, or a place of worship, s., the sacred place formerly used for worship, where stones were piled up, altars erected, sacrifices offered, prayers made, and sometimes the dead deposited, Sa. malae, the open space where public meetings are held.] And also

Mala, s. (also malo), a place or part (as of a garden), a part of time, and Malmal, s., a small place, or part. See under ali, or alia. III. Mala, v. i., or a., d. malala, to be loose, and redup. malamala, id. A. halla, to loosen, mahlul', loosened, loose, Ct. mahlūl, loose.

Malamala i, or malamalai, d., redup. of (malai) milai, or mĭlei, q.v. Malāfiāfi, v

Malāfiāfi, v. i., or a., to be thin. [Ha. lahi, lahilahi, thin, My. rampiġ, thin.] A. raffa, n. a. rafaf, to be thin.

Malāri, d. for milāti, q.v. Malasilus, redup. of milesu,

q.v.

Malat, s. See melat.

Malatiġa, d. malandiġi, ad., and prep., near, malatiġa ki, near to: mala, place, and tiġa, tiġi.

Malau, v. i., to be bad tasted (as stale food), to be corrupt, loathsome (as bilge water).

[Tah. murau, old, worn out, fading, My. lumu, loathsome, fat, corpulent.] A. ṭahhama, to loathe, fat, corpulent.

Malei, or male i, v. t., to divorce. [Sa. alei, to divorce.]

A. hala a, to divorce.

Malebuto, ad. and s., middle part; inside, heart: mal (mala), place, part, e, prep., and buto, the middle.

Malele, v. i., or a., to be bent, curved: lele.

Maleoleo, d. malolo, v. i., to become tame, gentle (i. e. intelligent), as an animal does when domesticated. A. ra'a', 4, 'ar'ā', n. a. 'irā', to become prudent, intelligent.

Maler, d. maleru, or maleru, v. i., to be transparent, shining (as smooth water or glass reflecting the light): lira.

Malēra, v. i., to be thin, running, of a fluid, as paint. See lor, roro, ro i, roro i.

Maletiletĭ, v. i., to be stiff (as the back, in some disease): let, lēt.

Mali, and redup. malimali, v. i., to be drooping, as the countenance in shame; and Malí, s., c. art. namalí, a plant (which when eaten is said to make one so); and

Malièri, i.e. mali-eri, v. i., to be ashamed, lit. to be drooping or abashed in the face or countenance: see rai, face, forehead. [My. malu, to be ashamed, abashed, malumalu, bashfully, Mg. malu, malumalu, bashfulness, mimalu, mimalumalu, bashful, meekeyed, shamefaced. H. 'amal, 'amel, to languish, to droop, prop. to hang down the head. Maliblib, v. i., weak, limber, d. maliflif: lifa i. A. laflafa, weak.

Malibu, s., widow (also widower), i.e. one mourning, lit. covered with ashes: libu. Maliflif, d. maliblib, q.v.

Malifus, dd. malus, mäus, v. i., or a., bent: lifa i.

Maligo, v. i., to be dark; and redup.,

Maligoligo, id., intensive;

Maligo, s., c. art. namaligo, darkness, d. malik, q.v.

Malik, v. i., redup. malikoliko; namalik, s., to be dark, darkness, d. maligo. [Epi mikoleko, Vanua Lava maleġleġ, meliġliġ, black.] A. ḥalika, to be very black (ḥolakliko, very black), part. maḥluk.

Malilu, v. i., to roll away, to roll, malilu ki, v. t., to make to roll, to roll (a thing) away: lele.

Malilua, v. i. See malua.

Malio ki, v. t., to forget (a thing): lailai. [My. lalai, Ja. lali, to forget.] A. laha, n. a. lohiyy', being diverted to forget (a thing).

Malis, d. for malūs: malifus. Malitiģa, dd. maririģi, multiģ: malatiģa.

Malo, s., a place, part; a part of time; mal, or malo tageli, a crooked part (either a place difficult of access, or crooked conduct): c. art. na malo na, the trunk (of a tree or the body): mala. See ali, alia.

Malo, s., a kind of rock in the sea. [Santo malo, a rock.] Cf. A. marw', very hard stones.

Malo, v. i., to be weary, unwilling, averse; malo ki, v. t., to dislike (a thing). [My. malâs, averse, &c.] A. malla, to dislike, to be tired, weary; mallo, disgusted, wearied.

Maloĭ, s., a mask. [To. bulo, to mask, to veil, buloa, and bulobulo, a mask; veil for the head. Ha. pulou, to cover the head, veil the eyes, s., a veil.] A. barķa'a, to cover the face, to veil, 2, to be covered with a veil, veiled, burķa'o, a veil, burķū', id.

Malöĭlöĭ, v. i., to be feeble, tottering from weakness. [Ha. locloc, malocloc, feeble.] A. la'la'a, 2, to be twisted and moved (from hunger), to be infirm and weak from disease or languor.

Malolo. See maleoleo.

Malosu, d. milesu, q.v.

Mal-tageli. See malo, s., and tageli.

Malu, v. i., or a., to be bare, cleared; redup.,

Malumalu, id. See ali, alia, mala.

Malua, and mailua, v. i., to do anything gently and quietly, not to be in a hurry, to do after a time, by-and-by, d. mailua, malilua, d. ma-lulu. [Fi. malua, go gently, not to hurry, by-and-by, vakamalua, gently.] See malum. Malubaki, v. i., to be spilt: luba ki.

Malum, and mailum, v. i., to be weak, faint, soft; to do anything weakly, i.e.

gently, not in a hurry.

Malumlum, redup., also mailum, mailumlum. Fi. malumu, malumulumu, weak, faint, sick, My. lâmah, Ja. lâmas, soft, flexible, weak, feeble, faint, Mg. lemi, softness, meekness, gentleness, malemi, soft, meek, gentle, TaSa. nalum, Ml. malum, id. A. haluma, halīm', to be gentle, weak, &c. See Index. Malüs, d. for malifus.

Mam, v. i., or a., to be soft (as ripe fruit), ripe. A. ma'w', ripe or ripening dates, mā'a, to have such dates (a palm), mā, soft, mild (of food).

Mam, s., c. art. namam, d. for mafu, q.v.

Māma, s., voc., father, dd. āb, abāb.

Mamau, redup. of mau, q.v. Manamana, s., c. art. namanamana, a pudding mixed with pig's fat wrapped up (munu-ti) in leaves to be cooked in the oven; a captive taken in war (because such were cooked in the oven and eaten). See munu-ti, bunuti, &c.

Mānaģ, d. māģa, q.v.: mānag, i.e. mā, with them or those, naġ (dem.), there.

Manàki, v. i., to stay for the night, to rest, as a guest; Manaki, s., c. art. namanàki, one who does so, a guest. [My. mânâġ, to rest.] Mod. S. maneh, to rest, Mafel, i.e. the causative with the preformative m; H. nuah, to rest, A. nah'a, to kneel down, as a camel, monah, a place where camels lie down (to rest or sleep).

Māni, v. i., or mān, contracted mā, to abide, to be: anĭ.

Mandu, d. for matu.

Maneinei, v. i., to be weak. A. na'na'a, to be weak.

Màni, as, sei, who (is) he? se mànĭ, who (are) they? kihe māġa? See māgā.

Mani, d. mini, prep., for. See magi, and Ch. V. 11. (9). Manifenife, v. i., or a., to be thin. [Sa. manifi, manifinifi, My. mimpis, mipis, nipis, tipis, Mg. manifi, thin, hanifisina, being made thin.] A. nahifa and nahufa, n. a. nahafat, nahif', manhuf', thin, slender. Ct. nahif, thin, nahafat, thinness.

Manru, d. for matu.

Mānu, s., a multitude; d. a thousand (d. bon, a thousand), mānumānu (d. bonbon), a very great number, or multitude; see bon, bonoti, bunu-ti, munu-ti. [Sa. mano, a great number, manomano, innumerable.]

Manu, s., a bird, birds. [Ja. manuk, Ta. manug, Er. menok, Vanua Lava mon, My. buruģ,

Mg. vuruna, Sa. manu, id.] H. paraḥ, S. păraḥ, to fly, paroḥto, bird (gen. name), A. farḥu, H. efroaḥ, young of birds;

Manumanu, s., a streamer or flag of a native canoe sail: preceding word. [Fi. manumanu, id., also a bird.]

Manu na, s., the palate and upper part of the throat. A. hanaku, the palate and lower part of the mouth answering to it (cg. nanoa na, q.v.), A. hanaka, to rub food with the palate, 2, to rub the palate.

Manua, v. i., to be finished, ended; and Manunu, id., d. manubu. See

Manubu, v. i., to be finished, ended; and Manubunubu, id., redup.: nubu, num, nu.

Manubunubu, d. matumutumu, to be soft, sleek, as the skin of a newly born pig, or of an infant. See nubu, tumu, noba. [Ha. nopunopu, to spring or swell up, a., soft, spongy, thoroughly cooked, plump, fat, swelled out, nopue, plump, round, as a well fed, fat hog.]

Manugnug, d., v. i., to be bent: luġluġ i.

Manuka, s., c. art. namanuk, wound. [Sa. manu'a, to be wounded, s., a wound, manu'-aja, party wounded, Mota maniga, wound, manigata, wounded.] A. naka', to wound, H. nakah, E. nakaya.

Mao, and redup.,

Maomao, v. i., to be gentle, mild. A. mahiha, to be mild, cg. mak.

Mäole, or mäuolě, s., c. art. namäole, a bed; hence

Mäolě ki, v., to make a bed with (something): d. uol, see bilis i (bolis i, and uolis i).

Maon, s., d., c. art. namaon, sweat: der. uncertain. Cf. s. bani.

Mao na, s., d. faa, thigh. [My. päah, id., also the limbs or quarters of a slaughtered animal, Mg. fe, the thigh: Santo wado, id.] A. faḥdo, or faḥd', id.

Maoni, v. i., d. māni: ani, v. i.

Mäora, v. i., to be rent, redup. maoraora (intensive): bora i.

Mäosa, d. taos, v. i., to be fatigued, tired. [Fi. ot'a, weary, tired.] A. fat'a', 4, to be fatigued, weary, 'aft'a', fatigued, worn out.

Mäota, or mäuota (mawota), v. i., to be parted asunder; redup.,

Mäotäota, id., and

Mäota na, s., c. art. namäota, interval: bota i.

Mara uoka, a., having the hands chapped with hard work, as with digging with the kāli, or with using an axe, naruna i bi mara uoka: maras, and boka-ti (or uoka-ti).

Mara, v. i., to rest, stop, mara tu, stand still;

Mara bakarogo, v. i., or a., to be quiet, rest quiet, peaceable: mara, i.e. maro, q.v., and bakarogo.

Marafi, v. i., to hasten, be quick; redupl.,

Marafirafi, id. See sarafi. S. rhab, whence sarhab, Pael, to hasten, měsarhiba, sudden, měsarhibat, hastily, quickly. Uhlemann (Syr. Gr., § 25, A, b) gives sarheb (Saphel, similar to Aphel), to permit to hasten, and to hasten = arheb (H. rahab, to urge on, press, &c.).

Marag ki, v. t., d., to spit out, to loathe. See burei.

Maraka, v. i., or a., to be willing, desirous;

Marakaraka, id., redup. See raka.

Maraka, or meraka, v. i., d. for makara, q.v.

Marase, v. i., to be softened or excoriated (as the hands with work), to be peeled off, excoriated, tamaras, peeled off (of the skin of a body softened or macerated in water). A. maras'a, marat'a, to macerate in water, rub, scratch with the nails; and Marasĕrasĕ, redup., to be peeled or excoriated here and there, as the skin. Compare maratĕ.

Marasa, or murasa, d. burasa, v. i., used as an ad., gently, slowly, by-and-by, as, ba marasa mer ia, do it gently, not in a hurry, slowly, or by-and-by. A. rat'a, to delay, to be slow, 2, soften; be fatigued, murayyat', slow.

Marate, v. i., or mareti, to be excoriated, peeled, as the hand with hard work. See marase. H. marat, to make smooth; to polish; to make bald, pluck out the hair; marut, to be peeled (as the shoulder with carrying burdens). Ch. to pluck (wings), to be plucked, A. marata, to pluck from the body (hairs), 3, pluck out hair and wound with the nails.

Marate, or marete, a., in fatu marete, oven stones (hard, smooth or bare stones, worn smooth by the sea): preceding word.

Mare, v. i., to be turned, lo mare, to look turned (round). look back. See roa, rea.

Mare, s., a man (male, not female), as pr. n., mare uota, man of Uota: see ma, maani, or mani, and mariki. [Tah. maroa, a boy, a male (tamaroa, boy, tamahine, girl), Motu mero, a boy (not a girl), Malo muera, i.e. mera, Oba amera, a male, vir. Ch. mare', lord, S. mar'; A. mar' (also homo, see, infra, mera), mor', mir', vir., mara'a, (2) to be virile. masculine, and brave, as becomes a man.

Mareserisu, v. i., to shift, subside (as a swelling). See risu.

Mārikǐ, s., lit. senior, sir, old man, Mr., opposite to fite rikĭ, matron, old woman, Mrs.: mā, for mare, and riki. See fiteriki.

Marita na, or marite na, s., the belly, bowels, also a rope or string; hence Maritausa, v. i., to be angry, or marita sa, or marita na i sa: and marita uia, to be well or kindly disposed. See sa, uia. A. muryita, the belly. See the verb under marate.

Maritau, v. i., to wither, be withered. A. ṣāḥa, 2, v. t., to wither or dry plants (as the sun, wind), 5, taṣawwaḥa, to be withered.

Maro, v. i., to breathe, to rest, be quiet, to be glad, restful, contented, satisfied; maro ki, v. t., to perceive the odour of (to breathe or inhale the odour of), to smell; redup.,

Maromaro, v. i., to breathe; to rest; hence

Maromaroan, s., c. art., the act of breathing or resting, rest; and Maro na, s., c. art., breath. A. rāḥa, n. p. maroḥ, to rest (i.e. respire); to be glad; to perceive the odour of; to blow (wind), 2, to be quiet, to rest, 4, to breathe, H. ruaḥ, to breathe, blow, Hi. to smell; to be pleased, glad (smell with pleasure).

Maroa, v. i., to turn round: roa.

Marobaroba, v. i., to fall down, be level, as the smoke of a fire signal. [Mg. ravuna, level.] See roa (rowa).

Marou, and marourou, s., d. (transposed) for rūma, q.v.

Māru, v. i., or a., d. mēru, to be limpid, clear, pure (of water). A. namiru, namīru, id.

Maru, d. for matu, q.v.

Maru sa, v. t., to rub; masturbate; to joke. A. marah'a, n. a. marh'u, to joke, to anoint, to soften (the body with oil), H. marah, to rub; Maruen, s., c. art. namaruen, joking, &c.

Mārua, v. i., to cease, leave off, marua ki, to cease from; and Maruāna, s., c. art., cessation: baro, v. i., bārua, q.v.

Mas, s. See maso.

Mās, ad., d. for maisa, mēsa, masusa.

Mas, and sam, ad., alone, only: ma for mau (as in sikei mau), and 's, sa, one.

Masa, d., v. i., to go, to walk. A. mas'a, id;

Masāna, s., c. art. namasāna, the going, walking.

Masa i, v. t., to rub, rub off, masa ia nāfo, rub it on the nāfo (to rub the rust off it);
Masamasa ki, redup., rub (as the rust off a needle, on a stone); and Masamasoa ki, v. t., end. 'a, to stroke, smooth, flatter; and Masa, v. i., at ease (as wild animals in their lair, as if smoothed into gentleness);

Masaki. See misaki.

Masamasa(n)ta, d., v. i., or a., end. ta, smooth, as a board: dd. musi ki, mus i, to stroke, smooth, rub. H. mas'aḥ, to stroke, anoint, A. masaḥa, to stroke, to flatter, wipe off, ma'aṣa, to rub strongly, ma'aṣa, to rub gently, masīḥ', smooth, S. ms'aḥ, to anoint; to measure; A. masaḥa, to measure (land), H. mis'ḥah, mas'ḥah, a part, a portion (Ef. mas, maso, mis, id.).

Mas, s., also maso, mase, and mis, a part, a portion, a place (part of the land), as, baumaso na, q.v., masleo, a portion of speech or words, as of a song, masleo naligana, a portion of human speech, dialect (see leo), maso ua, this part, or place. See preceding word.

Mas', or masu, v. i., d., to come; hence

Masuen, s., c. art. namasuen, the act of coming. E. maṣ'a, to come (H. maṣa', means to come to, i.e. to attain to, to arrive at, anything).

Mas i, v. t., to shave, as masi nasina, to shave the chin or part of the face covered with the beard: masi noai, shave off the surface of water, bail, or bale, out: hence, redup., Masimasi, v., to bail out (a canoe, or boat), and

Māsi, s., a knife, and Masimasi, s., id., d. mismis. A. māsa, to shave, mūsa, mawasi, a knife.

Masei, s. See masoi.

Masere, s., c. art. See miseri.
Masere, v. i., to be treated kindly; sere, bakasere; te masere, one treated kindly, as a beloved child.

Masere, v. i., to be torn: sere. [Fi. kasere, broken, loosed.] Masiba, v. i., to be broken, done into fragments; and redup., Masibasiba, id., intensive: siba i.

Masi-balo, s., wilderness, lit. empty part (of land). See mas, maso, and balo.

Masīka, v., in sera masīkā sa, to desire, covet (a person or thing). A. s'aķa, 5, to be desirous of.

Masiki na, d. mihi (for misi), v. i., taking the nom. suf. agreeing in number and person with its subject as, a masikigu, I alone, ku masikima, thou alone, i masikina, or masikinia, he alone: siki, and pref. ma.

Masila, or masili, v. i., to be thin; and Masilasila, d., redup.; and Masila na, s., e. art. namasila na, chip, shaving. See sila i. Masila, in buru-masila, q.v.

See sila.

Masirsir, d., v. i., to sob (as after crying). A. zaḥara, to utter the voice, to give forth a sound, to pant or gasp with vehemence and groaning.

Mas-leo, s. See mas, s., part or portion, and leo, voice, speech.

Maso, s. See mas, s., a part, portion, place.

Māso, v. i., or a., to be cooked, done, d. mahi. [My. masak, Mg. masaka, Ma. maoa, and maoka, and maoja, cooked, also ripe, Bugis motasok, ripe, Tah. muoa, cooked, ripe, Fut. moa, Santo, d., mäa, cooked, To. momoho, ripe. A. nas'iga, 1, 2, 4, to be ripe. cooked.

Masoi, masoei, or masei, s., star, stars, d. mohoi, c. art. namohoi. [Epi d. mohoei. Fila masoi, Fut. fatu, Sa. fetū, Santo dd. vitu, mașoi, vitui. vitiu, My. bintag, wintag, and lintay, Mg. kintana and vasiana, Tag. bitoin, Sumbawa bintoig, Sulu bitohon, Menado bituy, Sanguir bituin, id. 7 See Ch. II. 13. a.. and c (at end).

Masoi, or masei, star, is used in pr. n., as Masei, Mare Masei, &c.

Masok, v. i., to be violently agitated or enraged, as, namaritana i masok, lit. his belly or his bowels leaped up:

soka, to leap.

Masoko, a., true, exact, to the point, as nafisan masoko, a word or speech true, exact. or to the point; as an adverb, bisa masoko, to speak truly. exactly, or to the point, bā masoko, to go exactly, ba masokō sa, go exactly upon it, &c.: soko.

Masol, v. i., to turn aside, decline. A. zāla, n. a. zuwul', to decline (as the sun); cease to be in place, remove; start on a journey and change one's mind.

Masu, s., c. art. namasu, the time of harvest, or of plenty of food, opposite to sukei, q.v., lit. the coming, namasu nafinaga, the coming of food, as yams, taro, bread-fruit, &c.: mas' (or masu), v. i., to come.

Masua na, s., c. art. namasua na, the top, crown, or summit (of anything): sua, su.

Masua, v. i., or a., to be bald. A. nazica, to be bald about the temples, manzu.

Note.—Sa. tula, My. sulah, Mg. sula, bald, A. șali'a, to be bald on the forepart of the head, sul'at, place baldness.

Masukuta ki. See musukuta ki.

Masula ki, v. t., to scorch (as the skin of a pig in order to its being scraped and prepared for cooking): sulu.

Masusa, ad., for mas, maisa, to-day.

Māt', v. i., to ebb; to be low water; hence

Māt', s., c. art., namāt, the ebb; low water; the shore left bare at low water. [Sa. musa, to be low tide; to be sour; to have an offensive smell; To. maha, namaha, to ebb, Fi. māti, to ebb, and s., namati, the ebb. A. māt'a, to macerate and dissolve (a thing in water), H. masas, eg., to melt, flow down, to waste away.

Māta (or mwāta), a snake. [Sa., Fut., Fi. jata, id., Malo moata, Santo dd. mata, maura, My. ular, id. (Ma. jata, snail, slug, leech).] A. it'at', 'at'ā', a snake: 'at't'a, v., tinea erosit lanam, serpens momordit, 'ut'at, tinea, &c. See ula, My. ulat, worm, maggot.

Mata, s., the eyes, usually pronounced mita, or meta, q.v.

Mataisau, s., a carpenter. [Sa. mataisau, id.];

Matakseu, d., id. Mataisau is lit. the eye (or director or master) of cutting. See (mata), meta, and sau.

Mataku. See mitaku.

Mataloa, s., a pig with crooked tusks, one on each side, that is, a mature, full-grown pig. A. sala"a, and sala"a, to have or acquire a tooth or tusk on each side.

Matātā, s., a phosphorescent worm (which gleams brilliantly), phosphorescence of the sea. [Fi. matata, to clear up, as the weather, the sky.] A. ṣ'ā'a, to shine; Nm. moṣ'ui, phosphorescent.

Matau, s., d. na mitau, an anchor: tau.

Matautau, v. i., to utter sounds as one in sickness or pain, to groan, moan. A. hatafa, to moan, &c.

Matě, v. i., to die; and redup., Matěmatě, v. i., to be quiet, soft, gentle; and Matian, s., c. art. namatian, act of dying, death:

Matigo na, s., c. art., the grave, d. emate n; tamate, v. i., to become calm (wind, wave), s., peace, a calm; also a series of feasts or festivals

s., peace, a calm; also a series of feasts or festivals held every fifth day (see d. syn. belaki). [Sa. mate, My. mati, to die, Mg. mati, a., dead, matimati, lukewarm.] A. māta, to die; to become calm (the wind), 4, to soften by cooking. This word occurs in all the Semitic languages.

Matiratira, v. i., or a., to be shining, bright (as any polished surface). See tare.
Matiu, d., v. i., to sink. See tiu sa. Mato, and

Matoko, v. i., to remain, abide, to sit: to, toko. [Mg. mituaṭa, mitueṭa, mituiṭa, mitu-mueṭa, to reside, dwell, abide, sit, rest.] See toko.

Matōl, ad., to-morrow: tola. Matoltol. See matultul.

Matu, v. i., to abide, to abide standing: tu.

Matu, s., c. art. namatu, d., woman. See Ch. II. 17. c. [Ja. wedo, Sula nifata. Tidore foya, id.]

Matu ki, v. t., to strengthen or support with posts (a fence), matu ki nakoro; and Matu na, s., c. art. namatu na, post or stake (of a fence); the backbone, vertebral column, the back. A. matuna, H. matan, to be strong, firm, A. matěnu, back, vertebral column.

Matu, v. i., to be thirsty, to thirst, dd. manru, mandu, maru. [Ml. P. meruh, Epi mereu, TaSa. maroku, Malo madoge, Bugis madoka, Santo (Pelia) marara, Marshall Islands maru, New Caledonia malu, to thirst.] S. sho, to thirst, sanyo, thirst, H.

şiyah.

Matua, v. i., or a., to be old, mature, elder, then (full-grown) large, great; also wise, opposite to busa, as, meta matua, wise, lit. old or mature, i.e. experienced eye, bo matua, wise, lit. old, mature, i.e. experienced heart; te matua, the aged, or the ancients; meta matua ki, to withhold from (a person, something);

Matuatua, redup. of preceding word, very old;

Matua, s., or ad., the right hand, or side: tuai, q.v. [Sa. matua, aged, elder, mature (matuatua, dim.), a parent, Fi. matua, mature, My. mântuwah, a father or mother-in-law, Mg. matua, eldest son or daughter, matuatua, a ghost, apparition, Malo matua, right hand.]

Matūki, a. used as s., one trusted in, confident, brave, as a warrior: tuki. [Mg. matuki, confident, brave, trusting.]

Matulu, v. i., or a., to be swollen, thick; and redup., Matultul, id.: telatela, telatelana.

Matumutumu, d. manubunubu, q.v.

Matuna, s., and ad., c. art. namatuna, d. fatuna, something, anything, somewhere, anywhere, somehow; also a ghost or apparition, lit. something: ma, or fa (the interpron. used indefinitely), q.v., and tuna, dem., to (or tu) with the dem. na added to it. See safa, or sefa. H. mah, anything, something, whatever, Ch. mah di, whatever, what that, that which, A. ma', that which, whatever. See Ch. V. 4. d.

Maturu, d. matur, v. i., to sleep, bakamaturu ki, to put or make to sleep. [My. tidor, Ja. turu, to sleep, Mg. turi, s., sleep, mituri, to sleep, Bugis matinro, to sleep, Ml. P. metur, Malo maturu, TaSa. tsuruve, Santo dd. chinaru (tshinaru), chinaro, chiranu, noro, rontui, An. umjeg, Fi. mot'e, Sa. moe, ps. moea, to sleep.] H. yas'en, A. wasina, to sleep, sinat', H. s'enat', and s'enah, sleep.

Mau, v. i., to recover from sickness, be well: abu.

Mau, v. i., a., and maui, and ad., to be whole, all together (as a number of men), to be whole (of a thing), redup. mamau, id.; nai mau, it wholly, or only (of a substance), nara mau, they wholly or only (of a number of persons). [Epi momou, the whole, Ha. pau, a., all, ad., wholly, Mg. abi, all, every one, the whole. A. wafa, to be whole, &c., n. a. وُفِيًّ . Mau, maui, is of Form 25, see Ch. III, as مَـوْفِي, maufi, maui, or mauwi.

Mau na, s., c. art. namau na, d. nabai na, covering of it (a bird), i.e. its feathers; na mau, the bunch of feathers worn as an ornament on the top of the head; na mau nasuma (d. na bau nasuma), nakasu, the top of the house, of a tree; mau naliati (d. bau naliati), midday; see bau.

Mau, or amau, a., true, loamau, or lo-mau, a true thing, d. mauri, or mori. [Tah. mau, true, Fut. mari, To. mooni, Ma. pono, Sa. moni, true]; and

Mau, a., used as s., one firm, intrepid, brave, i.e. warrior of such a character, also, in Mautukituki, pr. n. of a mythological hero. [Sa. mau, to be firm, to be decided, unwavering]; and Mau sa, v. t., to come upon, obtain, find, bamau-ri, reach to. See bamau. [Sa. mana, to obtain, reach to, Tah. man, to seize, take hold of];

Mau āsa, d. mau is, v. t. (to trust in), to desire, tea maumauan, a thing trusted in, or desired, to namauana, id. [Ma. popono, to covet]; and Sera lo-amau āsa, v. t., to believe on or in (him or it). Ma. whakapono, Fi. vakabau]; and

Mau, ad., very, indeed, continually, as, bisa mau, to speak continually, toko mau, abide continually, constantly, &c. [Ha. man, continually]; elaģi mau, above indeed, in the highest place, toga mau, very far away, malitiga mau, very near, etaku mau, or maumau (intensive), behind indeed, the last (as the last day), malě mau ua naga, this very time, d. mal fā nin (fā for mau), bīsa mau, few indeed, very few, d. bisiba (ba for mau), sikei mau, one only. [Fi. dua bau, Sa. tasi pe, one only]; mas (for mau sa, only one), and sam (for sa mau, one only), are like sikei mau; ti bano mau, did not go indeed [Aniwa, Fut., sĭ fano ma, sĭ fano mana, id.]; this man after a verb preceded by the negative is very commonly used, but may be omitted, and ti bano, ti bano mau, are both used, though the latter is the more common. H. 'aman, to prop, stay, sustain, support; to carry (sustain) a child; 'amen, to be firm, unshaken, faithful, A. 'amuna, to be faithful, 'amana, to confide in, trust, 'amina, to trust, be secure; H. Niphal, to bear in the arms, to be firm, to be of long continuance, continual; to be sure, certain; Hi. to lean upon, trust, confide in, believe ; stand firm, still, A. 'amana, generally the same; S. 'eman, to persevere, be constant, and, contrarily, to cease, Aph. to believe, 'amen, &c., verily, truly, certainly, E. 'aman, id., also truly, and 'amanawi, id., 'amana, to believe; both the m and the n of this word are sometimes elided in the ancient languages, as H. ĕmet', Amh. See Ef. amau, una, amori, uua, in louua; and Mau-ti, v. t., to save, to protect: mū-ti. Hence nauota maumau, or mūmū, a chief saving, orprotecting, saviour.

Maua ki, v. t., to give food to (people, as to those who have been doing something for one); and Maua, s., c. art. namaua, food, or provisions. A. māna, to give food, mawunat, provisions.

Mäu, d. for mafa, swollen.

Maüaüa (mawawa), v. i., to be separated. See mafa, bua.

Maüori (mauori), v. i., to be broken, and redup.,

Maŭoriŭori, intensive: bori. Mäuosa (mawosa), v. i., compressed: bosa.

Mauri, s., as mauri nalagi, the place where the wind ends at, to leeward; the left hand or side, opposite to matua. [Sa. muli matagi, To. mui matagi, the place where the wind ends at, Ma. maui, Malo marao, Ta. maul, Epi dd. mali, mau, left, on the left hand.] See muri. Mahri manghūra, behind.

Mauri, v. i., to live, dd. mairi, mole; bakamauri, make to live;

Maurian, s., c. art. namaurian, life. [Fi. bula, Sa. ola, Fut. mauri, My. idup, Ja. urip, Ta. murif, Mg. veluna, to live, Epi d. meouli, mauli.] A. 'ās'a, n. a. 'ais', ma's', ma'is'at, to live, 4, make to live.

Mauri, a., true, tili mauri, speak true;

Mauri, s., c. art. namauri, a prayer or incantation, lit. what is true: mau, true.

Mäus (mawus), d. for malus (malifus).

Mauta, d. mautu, s., a rising ground; one's native land: so called because (i tu mautu) it remains firm or continuing. See mau. [Sa. mauja, a hill; a residing at a place (from mau).]

Mbā, v. i., for bā, or mā, v. i.: a mere euphonic change.

Mbàt, s., d. nāḥe, a club. [To. mata, a kind of club.] Nm.

nabboud, a club; also nabbout, a staff, club.

Me, prep., d. ma, q.v.

Mē, or mēa, v. i., to make water; also, redup.,

Memē, id., and

Mē, s., urine, me-rikĭ, dysuria, lit. small or scanty me; and

Mē, or mēa, v. i., to flow, wet, us i mea, the rain pours out, i me nakoau, it (a fluid, as water) flows upon or moistens the pudding; nai me, a flood or freshet, lit. flowing water, d. naum, a stream, lit. flowing water; na bisi me, semen genitale. [Mg. mamani, to urine, amani, urine, Ha. mi, mia, mimi, to make water. A. māha, to have water (a well), leak (a ship), 2, to pour water; to wet with water; emit water (the ground), mā, juice (of anything), semen genitale (H. me), H. me (of the feet), euphemism for urine. See Ges., Dict., s.v. ma', who gives a root mo', to flow. Hence

Mē, s., c. art. namē, d. namai, a rope, or string. [Sa. maea, To. maia, id.] And

Mē, and

Mēamēa, long; as, tali me tuturu (see tuturu), a rope long, hanging down, i barau meamea, it is long, like a long streak of water running down a tree, or the face of a cliff. See mē, mēa, to flow.

Memi, d., v. i., to be gentle, tame: mäo, maomäo.

Mela, melamela, for mala, malamala, fool, foolish.

Melat, s., c. art. namelat, or malat, flower (of a plant), then flower (of anything), that is, crown or most excellent part, as, namelat natamole, the flower of men, the most excellent of men. A. warada, 2, to flower, ward, a flower. Mele na, s., c. art. namele na, the hollow; as, namelēru na, the hollow (palm) of the hand, d. nal'nāru na (see alo, aru, belly, hand), namele natuo na, the hollow (sole) of the foot or feet, namele gere na, the hollow of the tail of a fish. [Mg. faladia, i.e. fala dia, sole of the feet. A form of the word bele na, belly, hollow.

Melesia, d. melesira. See milesia.

Meliboi, or melibai, v. i., to be bent, as grass by the wind, &c.: lifa i.

Mēliki, d., v. i., for mēlu, q.v., to be dilatory, slow.

Melita, v. i., to crackle, resound (as one's name): (lot) lita.

Mēlu, v. i., d. meliki. A. mahala, n. a., mahlu, to do anything gently and quietly, not in a hurry.

Mēlu, s., shade, raġ mēlu, time of shade, evening, melu na, its shade, or his shade (protection);

Melu, v. i., to be shady (as the day), and redup.,

Melumelu, id. [Sa. malu, to be shaded, to be protected, malumalu, to be overcast, cloudy, Mg. malumaluka, shady, cool, gloomy. H. 'afel, obscure, dark (of the day), 'afal, to be obscure, dark: cg. 'amal, or 'amel. See mali.

Mēlu, s., that which, or what milu, departs or removes (from), separates (from): milu.

Men, a. See mina, a.

Mena na, s., the tongue (of animal); of fire (flame); of knife (blade or edge); of breaker (edge of the wave); to be the namena, or tongue, of any one is to be his spokesman; hence

Mena i, or

Menamena i, v. t., to lick it with the tongue, tongue it. [Epi mena, TaSa. me, Santo (P.) meme, Guebe mamalo, the tongue, Mg. menumenuna, or menimenina, loquacity.] A. manmul, the tongue, from namala, to be a detractor.

Mer, ad., d. mero, q.v.

Mera (for mara), s., c. art. namera, man in general, people, as, namera ni Efate, the people of Efate: mera is contracted to fa in fa-fīne, q.v. A. mar', mir', a male, or, in general, man, Ct. mir'a, man in general.

Merai, a., used as s., pertaining to a male, the male organs of generation, virilia: merai ġara (ġara, bare), addressed to young boys not yet wearing a waist cloth, or naked; a man is sometimes jocularly or disrespectfully spoken of as merai tamana, the merai of his father: mare, q.v., with the a. end. i. A. mar'ayy', virilis, pertaining to a male.

Mera, s., d. mara, a rippling (of water): meromero.

Mera, conj., lit. with them, or with those: me, with, and ra, them or those, as John mera Peter, John and Peter; this can also be expressed John me Peter, and John nara Peter (John they Peter); with dem. uan, Mera uan, dd. syn. manaġ, māġa, as John mera uan, John and his companions, lit. John with those there (beside him); mera uan, can also be used of inanimate things, as, fatu mera uan, a stone with those (stones) there (beside it), stones.

Merā, d. contraction for meraka, maraka, for makara, q.v.

Merā, ad., again, d. for mero, q.v.

Merafālu, some, as, korīa merafālu, some dogs: me, with, and rafālu, see lifāru.

Merafālu, s., c. art. namerafalu, contraction of namera rafālu, some people.

Merà gi, d. for

Merà ki, v. t., to go before, leading, to lead;

Merakian, s., c. art. namerakian, act of leading, also meramera, redup., leading, and namerameran, s., act of leading or ruling, kingdom, that led or ruled, natamole meraki, or meramera, leading or ruling men. E. marha, to lead; to go before.

Merakolau, s., web-like fat on the intestines (of a pig): mera, fat (see merei), and kolau, q.v., a web (spider's). In An. this is called nilvanilva (redup. of nilva, spider's web).

Meràroa, v. i., to turn round: roa i.

Merei, s., marrow; eel; caterpillar; medulla of banana fruit. H. merī, fat.

Mer i, v. t., to do, to make to work, act, namerian, s., act of doing, what is done, conduct; fimeri, v. r., to be doing something to each other, fighting;

Merimeri, v., to keep on doing. A. 'amila, to work, Nm. to work, act, be active, practise, 4, cause to work.

Mero, ad., again, dd. merā, mer, moro, mrō, ro, and mo, m, contraction of mero, as, i mero bano, he again went, lit. he turned went, d. i mer lēr ban, he again went, lit. he turned returned went: roa i. See Ch. V. 9.

Mēromēro, v. i., hoarse, gruff, as, i bisa meromero, he speaks hoarse, gruff; and cf. barabara, supra, to cluck. LMg. barabara, hoarse, having a rough voice, bara-feo, a coarse, gruff voice, farina, hoarse. A. "ar"ara, 1, 2, to make rough sounds in the throat (whether with the voice, or liquor, or the breath), "ar"arat, hoarse sound; sound of boiling water.

Emeromina, ad., and s., in the world, the world, lit. in the light, opposite to abokas, in the under-world, Hades (which is dark and gloomy): e, prep., and meromina, s., formed from mirama, or merama, to shine.

Mēru, v. i., d. for māru, q.v. Mēs, ad., d. for maisa, to-day. Mēsa, ad., perhaps, expletive used at the beginning of a clause. E. 'emsa, but if, quodsi.

Mesau na, v. t., to desire, and redup. (dd. mūri, mōri),

Mesausau, desire much, be lustful;

Mesauan, s., c. art., desire, will, what one wills: sau.

Meta, v. i., or a., to be raw, then, unripe, crude, green. [Sa. mata, raw, unripe, Mg. manta, raw, unripe, crude, green, My. mantah, raw, unripe.] A. 'anut'a, to be raw.

Meta, s., the eye, the eyes: mita.

Metita, v. i., or a., to be rotten, to be falling to pieces from rottenness. A. t'a'iṭa, to be rotten; to be falling to pieces from rottenness.

Mi, v., to be, d. for bi, q.v.

Mi, redup. mimi: for gumi, q.v.

Miel, v. i., or a., to be red,

and redup.,

Mimiel, id. [Sa. melomelo, memelo, red, Mg. mena, red, My. merah, red; the ruby; bay colour in a horse.] A. ma'ir', reddish, 'am'aru, of the colour of red clay.

Mihi, d., masiki, q.v.

Mikit i, v. t., d. for makit i,

q.v.

Mila, v. i., or a., to be shy, skittish, to be wild, opposite to malolo. [My. liyar, wild, untamed, shy.] A. hali'a, to be uneasy, timid, impatient, shy. Hence

Mīla, s., a wild animal; a warrior sleeping out in the bush and watching to cut off stragglers.

Milāba. See laba.

Mĭlaġ, s., a part, or half, c. art. namĭlaġ. Ch. pelag, a half, A. filag', a part, a half.

Milago, v. i., d., to be sick, to be ill, have a disease. A. s'aniya, (2), n. a. s'ana', to be ill, to be sick with a latent disease, Nm. mos'na', faint, languid, moribund;

Milagoan, s., c. art., the being ill, disease.

Milàkesa, or milàkisa, v. i., or a., to be darkish green: milo, kisa.

M'lame, d., s., c. art. nam'lame, dew: mala, clear (rainless), and mēa.

Mĭlātĕ, dd. malārĕ, mĭlānr,

v. i., or a., to be cold, cold. [Sa. maalili, Tah. māriri, Ma. makariri, Fut. makiliği, id.] A. makrur', cold, from karra, to be cold.

Milāte, s., c. art. namilātě, cold, the being cold, also namilatea; and redup.,

Milamilati, v., to be coldish: milāte. [New Hebrides, TaSa. makariri, Ml. U. milas, Malo magariri, Ml. P. mercus, Epi meneni, cold.]

Milau, for malau, q.v.

Mile na, s., place, its place, d. for alia na, q.v., and see malo, a place.

Mile ki, mile-raki, v. t., to seek for (as for a pig in the bush), milemile ki, id., also mole ki, mole-raki, mole-mole ki. A. 'āla, (2), to go through a place, 4, to seek for; to desire eagerly.

Mile, or milei, v. i., or a., to be good, good, as, noa milei, tell good (well) it, bati milei a, make good (well) it, syn. noa uia ki, bati uia ki (uia, good), dd. mitā ki, butā ki, as, noa mitā ki nia, bati butā ki nia, id. [Raratonga meitaki, Tah. maitai, Niue mitaki, Fila, Meli, Ma. marie, Ha. maikai, to be handsome, good.] A. malīḥ', beautiful, good, Nm. melieh, elegant, good.

Milès, v. i., or a., to be faded, drooping, withered: lusia. [Mg. malazu, withered.]

Miles, s., c. art. namiles, the forest, the jungle, the bush. [My. alas, a forest, alasan, a forest country; a foundation, alas-kaki, footstool, Mg. ala, a forest, a wood, Bugis alok, id., Fi. ra, below.] A. 'araṣ'a, and 'aruṣ'a, to abound in grasses and herbs (of the land); 'arṣ', the earth, soil, region, whatever is below, H. 'ereṣ, the earth, land, country, region, soil, Ch. 'ăra', earth; below.

Miles, s., a plant with dark leaves: les.

Milèsia, v. i., or a., d., and Milèsira, id., to be faded, dirty, mouldy: endings a and ra; and Mīlo, v. i., a., to be unclean, unclean. [Ml. Maskelynes bīgal, id.] H. pigul, E. faḥala, id.

Milo, or miloa, redup. milolo, or miloaloa, d. malolo, v. i., or a., to be dirty, to be darkish, of a dark, dirty colour: loa.

Milu, or milua, v. i., to depart, go away (from), remove, namiluan, s., the removing, departure. See lua.

Mim, or mam, q.v.

Mīmi, s., voc., aunt (paternal). See simam. [Fut. moma, id.]

Mimita, s., a sign, a showing of something. See mita, mimita, v.

Mina, a., pleasant, nice. [Tah. mona, monamona, momona.]
A. 'anik', pleasant, nice.

Mina, tongue. See mena.

Mini-ģi, d. minu-ģi, munuģi, d. munuma (munu-ma), v. t., to drink, also minu, munu; hence namunuan and namunugian, s., drinking, drink. [Fi. junuva, unuma, Ml. min, Malo inu, Epi muni, Sa. inu, ps. inumia, s., inumaga, Santo o'o-mia, ulu-mia, My. minum, Mg. minuna. See Ch. II. 13. b., 14. e., and 15, for the phonology of this word. Ch. s't'a', 'is't'o', S. s't'o, H. s'at'a, E. sataya; and with the t' changed to k, H. s'akah, A. saka, E. sakaya, to drink.

Minranin, d., ad., now; mi nra nin, mi, time, nra nin, this here; as to mi compare ma, day. E. yom, to-day, now, this time.

Mirà-ġi, d. for mera-ki.

Mirama, v. i., to be light, to shine; namirama, s., light; emeromina, in the light, the world;

Mirama-ni a, to shine upon or on it, or him. [Sa. malama, to be light, malamalama, v., to be light, s., light, malama, s., the moon, a lamp, torch, Ha. lama, a torch.] A. lama'a, to shine, &c.

Mirārā, v. i., or a., to be light (not heavy), slender, small. A. raķķa, to be thin, slender, slight, raķaraķa, to pour out not much (water or other thing). Mirati, redup. miratirati, d. minrat, minratinrat, v. i., or a., to be loosed, untied: rat i, q.v. [Ma. matara, Sa. matala, matalatala, Tah. matara, mataratara, to be untied.]

Misa, or misa, v. i., to be stinking, rotten, decayed, wasted away; and redup.,

Misimisi, v. i., to be wasted away (of a very old man). Ch. mesa, S. msa, to be decayed, putrefy.

Misafe, misafesafe, v. i., to be separated (as a cocoanut from its branch): safe.

Misaki, d. masaki, v. i., to be sick, to have fever, to be ill.

[My. sakit, Sa. ma'i, Fut. maki, Ml. P. mesek, Epi dd. msaki, miei, id.] And Misaki, or misakia, s., c. art., sickness. [Fut. makiga, sickness.] A. s'aka', (2), to afflict (some one, a disease), s'akat, disease, mas'kuww', afflicted with a disease.

Misal, v. i., or a., to be removed, separate (from others). A. 'azala, to remove (one), 5, 6, 7, 8, to be removed, 8, separate (from others), manzul', separated, removed.

Misal, misalsal, or misali, misalisali, v. i., or a., to be light (not heavy). See sali.

Misaru, v. i., to hang down, prostrated: saru.

Misei, or misai, miseisei, v. i., or a., to be open, cracked: sai.

Misera, v. i., or a., to be parted, disjoined (as joints), separated: sera.

Misèri, s., c. art., part of a woman's dress, consisting of a little mat, terminating in a bulky fringe, attached to the waist cincture and hanging down like an apron. See seri. A. 'azzara, to cover the body with the covering or garment called 'izār', mizar', a garment, covering, Nm. an apron.

Miseroà sa, v. t., to desire, covet: soroà sa.

Miseroana, s., c. art., coveting, covetousness.

Misimis, s., d. masimasi. Misimis, v., d. masimasi.

Mīt, s., c. art. namīt, a mat; so called because plaited—see bātu, Ml. vij, Epi mbie, to plait (a mat). [Ml. devij,

Epi yembi, a mat.]

Mita, v. t. (also meta), to look at, watch, observe, view, as, mita natai-inlagi, he watches or observes the cloud (to see if it will rain), mitā sa, or mimitā sa, look at, watch it (anything); and mita ģita, or bakamita ģita = leo ġoro ġita (see leo), watch, look for, look out for (expecting) us: bakamita, v. t., same as mita. Sa. mata, to look at, matamata, to look, to view, mamata, id. (of many), Ha. makai, makaikai, to look at closely, inspect, search out, spy, act the part of a spy, to look on, look at, to examine secretly for evil purposes, To.

mamata, to look, look at, behold, discern. A. āna, 1, to emanate (water), to be a spy, 2, to flourish, produce flowers (a plant), to show, make conspicuous, 3, to see, look at or on, 5, to look at malevolently, to look at well, accurately, to be manifest, conspicuous, 8, to look at malevolently, to become a spy, to view or watch, to look out for.

Note.—For the phonology of this word, see Ch. II. 11. c, and 13. b.

Mita na, s., c. art. namita na, the eye, that which sees, looks at, watches, or observes; mita noai, a fountain; mita, the beginning; mita, bud, shoot, 'eye' (as of a potato), bud, germ, offshoot (of men); mita nalagi, eye of the wind; mita bagona, eye of its end, point of its end, end; mita, a window, door, or other opening, as the eye (of a needle); i bi mita na, to be the eye (i.e. guide) of some one; namita nalo, the eye (price) of something; mita kita, a spy (in war), see kita; mita ni elo, (d. al), the sun (eye of light, or of day, or fountain or source of light). [My. mata, Mg. masu, Sa. mata, the eye, &c., Fi. mata, eye, source, opening, point.] See mita, v.

Mitā, v. i., to bleed, mitā nia, bleeds on it, as i tumana mitā nia, redup. mitāmitā nia, he bleeds on himself (covers himself with blood), used also of rust—it rusts (covers itself with rust): ṭā, blood. [My. bârdarah, Bu. madara, to bleed.]

Mita-bago na, s., end, lit. point of its end: mita, s.

Mita-busa, s., orphan child: mita, s. (bud, shoot), and busa, q.v.

Mitaġa, and mitaġataġa, v. i., to be heavy: d. miten, q.v.

Mitailau (mita-i-lau), s., d. syn. bilē-mita, q.v., lit. germ or source of the tribe or community. See launa.

Mitāki, v. i., to be inclined to one side: taki, tä.

Mitaki, i.e. mita ki, d. milei,

Mitakisa, s., blind, the eyes receding into the head: mita, eye, and kisa.

Mitakitïk, d. matakitakï, a., last or first of a row (as of men); from closing up, or, as it were, binding together the series: taki.

Mitaku, or mataku, v. i., to fear, be afraid; mitaku, or mataku ki, usually contr. to mitau ki, or matau ki, v. t., to be afraid of, to fear; bakamataku ki, to frighten (one); hence

Mitakua, s., c. art. fear; and Mitakuan, s., c. art., act of fearing, fear. [Sa. mata'u, ps. mata'utia, My. takut, Mg. takuta, s., fear, matahuta. v. i., to be afraid, to fear.] A. taka', v. t., to fear (derived from waka', 8), takiyyat, fear, caution, taking heed, takwa, fear of God, takiyy', fearing God. See infra, mitataku.

Mitamai, or matamai, or mitimai, ad., to-morrow. [Mota matava, morning, Sa. tafa, to dawn. A. sabaha, 4, to be morning, to be early, to dawn, E. sabha, to become light, or day, to dawn, A. sabāh, morning, masbah', and musbah, morning, dawn.

Mitanielo, s., the sun, lit. eye of day: mita ni elo. [My. mata-ari, Mg. masuandru.]

Mitäo, d., v. i., d. mitefe, q.v.: tao, roa.

Mitarau, s., c. art. tribe, lit. the bud, or germ, spreading out into many branches: mita, s., and rau.

Mitariki, s., the seven stars, Pleiades: mita, s., and riki. Sa. matalii, Ma. matariki, id.

Mitariki, s., as, lo mitariki, to look with little (i. e. contracted) eyes. Same word as preceding.

Mitaru, v. i., to sink down:

tiro.

Mitasabo, s., a stranger, lit. eye not knowing: mita, sabo.

Mitataku, v. t., as, i tumana mitataku na, he heedfully watches himself, he being afraid watches himself: mita, v. t., and see mitaku.

Mitau, or matau, v. i., to abide, continue: tau.

Mitau ki, v. t., to fear: contraction for mitaku ki.

Mitaukian, a., dreadful, to be feared.

Mitausi a, v. t., to look after: mita, v. t., and usi, v. t.

Mitefe, d., v. i., to fall down, as a portion of a precipice. See röua, roa.

Mitefe-risu, v. i., to fall down (see preceding word), rushing or slipping to a distance: risu.

Miteftef, v. i., and Mitefutefu, id., to twitter, chirp, peep (of a bird or fowl), to make a whispering noise (of men). H. sifsaf, to twitter, peep, chirp (of birds), to make a whispering, peeping sound (of the voice of a wizard).

Mitei, or muței, s., c. art., breadfruit cheese (salt and sour), that is, breadfruit fermented and preserved. [Sa. masi, id., My. masin, salt (as water), Mg. masimasina, saltish, ranu-masina, the sea (salt water). A. māṣi, salt (of water).

Mitela, v. i., or a., to be broken (as crockery, or pottery). A. t'ala'a, to break (the head), mut'alla, broken. And Mitela, s., c. art. namitela, a fragment, lit. that which is broken, the broken.

Mitèn, v. i., d. mitàga, to be heavy, to be burdened: tien, or tiana, q.v., as also tago, tagie. [Mg. entana, s., burden, vua entana, lifted up, mientana, to set out, taigina, placed upon (a horse), tugua, placed upon, My. tuġ"aġ, to ride, be conveyed by any vehicle, taj''uj, to bear, carry. S. tan, to carry, Aph. to burden, load, ta'no', a burden, H. ta'an, Ch. te'en, to be laden, A. ta'ana, S, to sit on a camel, H. sa'an, to move tents, go forward (as a nomadic tribe), A. ta'ana, id., E. sa'na, sa'ana, to put on a horse, &c., and consequently of other things where one sits, is placed, upon another, seun, burden.

Miti, v. i., to move rapidly, to strive, quarrel, to jump backwards and forwards excitedly in a quarrel or a rage, to land or remove from a canoe; miti goto, depart or go rapidly across (as an arm of the sea); and redup.,

Mitimiti, v. i., to throb, flutter (as the pulse). A. mata, and mata, to move quickly.

Mitiri, v. t., to write, to carve, cut or make figures;
Mitimitiri, a., figured, as cloth

('print');

Mitiri, d. mansiri, s., c. art.,

writing, figures; and

Mitirian, s., c. art., act of writing, what is written. [Santo d. turi, Epi siri, My. tulis, to draw, delineate, paint, picture, figure, write, Mg. surața, colour, writing, written, misurața, to be spotted, printed, of different colours, and surița, misurița, to mark, engrave.] (E. sacala, to paint, figure), A. ṣāra, 2, to figure, paint, 5, to be formed, muṣawwir, sculptor, painter, Nm. 2, to form, draw, trace, paint. The radical idea is that of cutting.

Mitiri, s., a kind of locust or grasshopper (so called from its mode of moving);

Mitiri, v. i., to leap flying (as a grasshopper): tiri.

Mitoa, v., to think, mitoa ki, v. t., to think of or about, dd. miroa, mitoa, mintoa, minroa; redup.,

Mititoa, d. minintoa, v. i., to be thoughtful, sensible; Mitoān, s., c. art., act of thinking, thought: ro, roro, toto, rara, or tara. [Mg. erita, eritarita, cogitation, mierita, mieriterita, Fut. mentua, To. manatu (Sa. manatu), to think.] S. 'etra'i, to think, Ethpa. of r'o', Ch. rĕ'ah, to think, H. ra'ah, (3), to delight in, rea', a friend, lover, one loved, thought, will, Ch.

ra'yon, thought.
Mīto (mwīto), v. i. or a., to be short, redup.,

Mitemīto, id., d. būru, burufūru. [Tah. mure, muremure, Ma. poto.] A. ma'don, short, or mawdon (n. p. of wadana).

Miu, v. i., to be wet: cg. mea. A. mai', fluid, ma'a, to flow gently on the surface, 4, to be dissolved in liquid.

Miura, s., c. art., dew: miu, and ura, q.v.

Mo, ad., contraction of mero. Mo, d. bo, dd. fo, uo, o. See bo.

Mō na, s., father or motherin-law, son-in-law: hence, Mo-naki, v. t., to be related to (one) in this relationship. E. ham, father-in-law, sonin-law, A. ḥam', ḥamō, ham'o, &c., father-in-law or kinsman of the husband or the wife, Nm. hamou, fatherin-law, hamaya, mother-inlaw, H. ham, Assy. emu, father-in-law, Samaritan, son-in-law, also, one espoused. 'The proper signification of the word lies in the idea of affinity.'

Note.—E. Mai ma = Ef. mo, Fila ma, brother-in-law, vuġōna (nearly pronounced like vumona)=(in meaning) Ef. buruma: in Tah. momoa is to espouse, to contract marriage.

Moa, d., verbal pron., 1 dual, excl., pl. bu, mu.

Moàs, d. for mafàsu.

Mobu, d. m'bua, v. i., to sink: bua II.

Mofa, s., or mafa, when the blood of men or animals has been shed, and forms a pool on the ground, one feeling the smell of it, or of any similar thing, says i nabo mofa, it smells mofa; taumofa (tau mafa), to make a sacrifice or offering to the See taumafa. natemate. A. ma'habat, a small pool, wahaba, to give, make an offering.

Mok, s., water flowing from the eye;

Mokemok, v. i., to flow from the eye (of water), to water (of the eye): cg. miu, mou. H. mug, to flow, flow down, dissolve.

Mokot, d., s., tongs: mikit i. Mola, v. i., to yawn. Ma. kowhera, to open, gape. H. pa'ar, to open the mouth with a wide gape, S. far, A. fa"ara.

Mole, d. for balo, v. i., q.v. Mole, or mole ki, molemole ki, d. mile, mile ki, q.v.

Moli na, s., d. for batoko na, q.v.

Moli, v. i., d., mauri, to live; Molian, s., c. art., d. maurian, life.

Momoà, or momo, d., v. i., to yawn. Tah. mama, to open the mouth, Sa. mavava, Fut. mava, to yawn, Mg. vava, the mouth, vava, opened, mivava, v. i., mavava, v. t., to open.] H. peh, mouth, A. fah', mouth, faha, to speak, fawiha, to have a wide mouth.

Momoa, v. i., d. for amoamo, amo'mo.

Monam, d. monau, s., c. art., grass (of any kind). A. nama', to grow, namāya, vegetation, manma, place of (a tree's) growth. The word grass' is connected with 'grow'.

Monamona, v. i., or a., to be yellow. [Ma. puġapuġa, yellow colour, Mg. runi, s., yellow, Amboyna poko, d. apoo, Ceram poko, yellow, id.] A. faka'a, n. a. fuku', to be yellow.

Mono-ti. See munu-ti.

Mori, d., a., true, tili mori, speak true: mori, true, used like loamau, lesoko, also amori: mauri, mau, true.

Mōri a, d., for mesau na, for which also is d. mūri n.

Morese na, s., d. borakese na, q.v.

Moro, ad., d. mero, q.v.

Moru, v. i., to sink, or be covered with water, as a canoe in the waves;

Moru-aki, v. t., to sink, overwhelm (a canoe), as, nabeau i sera moru-aki rarua, the waves rush, sinking, or covering, or overwhelming the canoe;

Morua, s., c. art., the deep,

i.e. the deep sea;

Mōru, s., any deep place, as a hole, pit, grave; hence imrum (d. imrau), inside of a house, i.e. moru nasuma, or moru uma, the hole, i.e. the inside, of a house. A. "amara, to cover (a thing with water), "amar', much water, deep (of the sea), Nm. to overwhelm, drown, "amra, deep water, abyss.

Mos i, for amos i, q.v.

Mōso, s., the entrance to a harbour; a space or tract of country, as that between two mountains; pr. n. of the village and district on the northern end of Deception Island, at the boat entrance to Havannah Harbour, and in Ro-Moso, name of an inland village and district. H. mahōz, a seaport, coast, Ch. id., also a region, A. ha'z', border, side, region, hence also a port.

Mot, s. See mut, s.

Mot, or motă, s., c. art. namot, as, nataku namot, back of the land, or island; lit. what is broken off, hence a district or place. motu, islet, district, motu, to be broken off, ps. motusia, v. t. motusi, s. motusaja, v. i. motumotu, s. motumotuġa, My. putus, to break, Mg. maitu, broken asunder, snapped, maituitu, broken in pieces, utusana, being cut, broken, snapped. A. makta, a place. See the verb under koto-fi.

Mota, s., c. art., and redup., Motamota, id., rubbish, refuse, as leaves of trees fallen on the ground, &c. [Sa. ota, rubbish, Ma., Tah. ota, Ha. oka.] And Mota, v. i., or a., to be covered with rubbish, dirty. [Sa. otaotā, full of rubbish: a. ending a.] A. "otā", rubbish, refuse, husks, leaves, and scum mixed together, "ata", to have rubbish mixed with scum (as a river).

Mot i. See mut i.

Mou, moumou. Same as miu, q.v.

Mu, verbal suf. pron., 2 pl., you, d. kama.

Mu, v. i., to coo (as a dove), to hum—see fu. [Tah. mu, a buzz, mumu, to make a confused noise, as of a multitude of persons talking together, Ha. mumu, id., Sa. muimui, to murmur, Fut. mu, to buzz, Mg. muimui, hum, murmur.] H. hamah, coo, hum (as a multitude), A. hamhamah, to murmur, &c., Nm. to whoop, drone, sing lullaby.

Mū-ni, v. t., to take out (a thing, as out of a basket). [Mg. vuaka, mivuaka, to go out, mamuaka, to drive out, take out.] See under bua III. Mua, v. i., to flow out, flow (of the tide); hence

Muāna, s., c. art., the flood tide, as opposite to the ebb; and Mua-ġoro, s., c. art., dd. fuaġoro, màġoro, a spring of fresh water on the shore that is covered (ġoro) by the sea at high water: bua III.

Mubu. See mobu.

Muku-ti, v. t., to cover or enclose in leaves (as bananas, to ripen them); to rub, wipe off; and Mukumukuen, s., c. art., the doing so. [Fi. moko-ta, to embrace, to clasp round with the arms, Ma. mukumuku, muku, and uku, to wipe, rub.] A. ḥaḥa (mid.), n. a. ḥuḥ', to sweep, cleanse by sweeping; to rub; to surround, embrace, enclose.

Muli (mwuli), v. t., to work into a round mass, as dough or clay; to gather rubbish into a heap; to clasp a pig (or man) round with thearms; and Mulimul, v. i., or a., round. [TaSa. molmol, Ml. P. moromor, My. bulat, Mg. buriburi, round.] H. fol, E. falfal, round, roll.

Mulusi, v. t., to strip off the skin, and

Mulu, v. i., and tamulu, to cast the skin (as a snake, a crab, a scab, men in myths), redup. mulumulu; and

Mulu na, s., c. art., the skin which is cast; then, the lower rank which a chief casts off on his being promoted to a higher. [Fi. kuli, skin, kulut'aka, to strip off the skin, Mg. hudita, skin, manudita, to strip off the skin, hudirana, being flayed, skinned, Ef. kuli, d. uili (wili) and uli, skin, mulusi, to skin, mulu, also tamulu, to cast the skin, i.e. to be skinned, or to skin oneself or itself.] A. gild', skin, galada, 1, 2, to skin, to strip off the skin. مَجْلُود, mulu, mulusi ; and Muluan, s., c. art., act of casting the skin; namulusian, s., the act of stripping off the skin.

Mulua, s., a grove or clump of trees: ulua.

Mūmū, a., saving, protecting, preserving: mū-ti, ormau-ti. Munu-ģi. See minu-ģi.

Munu-ma, d. munu-ģi.

Munu-ti, v. t., to close up (as a wound, a hole in cloth, &c.); hence

Munuai, or munue, s., a sacred man (natamole tab) who by his natabuan, or magical power, closes up, or heals, wounds received by men in battle: bunu-ti.

Murasa, d. marasa.

Mūrin, v. t., d. for mesau na; Mūrian, s., c. art., d. for mesauan.

Muri, v. t. (d. busi), to return (as a thing borrowed), to repay, recompense, requite (for work done), to return (an injury), repay (a person, for an injury), redup. murimuri; hence

Murian, s., c. art., the act of returning, repaying, pay, requital, recompense, retribution. And

Muri na, s., c. art., the after part of a thing (as of a stream, that is, the place to which it flows and where it ends), opposite to namita na, the forepart of a thing (eye), beginning, source. [Fi. muri-a, to follow, also to imitate. Ma. muri, rear, hinder part, Sa. muli, end, back, or hinder part, rump, mulimuli, to follow after, To. muli, mui, Ja. buri, the back, rear, behind, after, My. burit, the fundament, Mg. vudi, the posteriors, stern (of a ship), vuhu, the back, fudi, returned, sent back, mamudi, to return the thing bought, verina, turned, sent back, mamerina, to return, send back. also mauri, busi, bisi na, bui na, kui na, kusu na, kihi na, fua na, bua na, gere na, urĭ na. A. 'ah'h'ara, to be behind, after, Nm. mo'weḥ'h'ar, placed at the end, mouh'ir, stern, hinder part, 'eḥ'ir, end, 'uḥ'ur', behind, after part, H. 'ahar, to be after, behind, 'ahar, after, behind, hinder part, extremity, 'aḥōr, hinder part, rear, meahor, from behind, behind; also in Arm. and E. Muru, v. i., to laugh, muru ki, to laugh at (one). [Ta. maliali, My. ilai, Mota marae, to laugh.] A. harharat, laughter (harhara), karkara, laugh repeatedly (karra).

Murubua, s., a bat: moru, bua; from its dwelling in deep holes.

Musa-ġi, v. t., to take on board a canoe or ship (men or things); redup.,

Musamusa; and

Musagian, s., c. art., and Musamusoan, s., c. art., the act of doing so; and

Musī a, v. t., to put or drag immersed in the water (a thing, as a log); and Musu, v. i., to dive (as a man), to set (the sun); elo i musu, the sun sets, or has set. A. "amasa, dip, submerge, to set (as a star), and kamasa, dip, plunge, dive, and makasa, immerse in water.

Musi a, v. t., to remove a child (from the breast), wean it; and Mus (ki susu), v. i., to be removed (from the breast). H. mus', remove, take away.

Mus i, v. t., rub, smooth, flatter;

Musamus i, id., redup.: mos i. Musuku-taki, v. t., to abhor: siki-naki.

Mut, v. i., to slip or fall out, as a rope out of a block. A. ma'ata, to take a sword out (of its sheath), 8, 'amma'ta, id., also, to fall out (as hairs). Mū-ti, v. t., d. for mau-ti, to save, keep, preserve, protect. A. 'amana, 4, render secure, protect, give security to (some one). Hence

Mūtian, s., c. art., act of saving, salvation.

Mut i, and mot i, v. t., to bind; and Mut, s., c. art., a bond, rope. A. makata, (6), bind, mukt', bond, rope.

Mutui, v. i., to sneeze. [Sa. mafatua, to sneeze.] A. nafaṭa (cf. 'afaṭa, 2), to sneeze.

Na, ad. of assent, and interj...d. syn. ko: dem. na. H. na, indeed, &c.

Na, d., dem., this, as, mal na, this time: in.

Na, sometimes a, also in, ni, n, la (in lausu), the article. [Mg. ni, Epi na, Fi. na, a, Sa. lc, the article.] A. al, hal, H. ha, A. a (the I being assimilated to certain letters).

In Mod. A. al is pronounced al or el, and l'. In South Arabia am was (and even still is) used for al. A. al (and H. ha) is sometimes used as a relative pronoun; so in Efate: see nig, agi.

N', a particle expressive of past time, in nanum, nāsa, nanoasa. [Mg. n', Sa. na, sign of past tense.] See Ch. V. 10. c.

Na, d. n, and na, or nia (sikina, or sikinia), nom. suf. pron., 3 sing., his, her, its. [Sam. na, sing., Mg. ni, pl. and sing., My. nia or ña, pl. and sing.] See nai, note.

Na, d. n, verbal suf., pron., 3 sing., him, her, it. See nia, and nai, note.

Nabati na, s., is bati, q.v., c. art., tooth, teeth; seed, also the shoots from the roots of a banana, and the shoots or roots of taro. [Ml. ribo, Epi livo, Sa. nifo (whence nifoa), Fut. nifo, Mg. nifi, teeth. This is another word for tooth, teeth. A. nāb', pl. nubūb', &c., tooth, teeth, nāba, 2, 4, to put forth roots (a plant).]

Nabe, s., d. mbat, club. Nm. nabboud and nabbout, id.

Nābe, or nābea (nakbe, or nakbea), d. nakima, s., a hollowed log, set up in the middle of the malala or mala, used as a drum or musical instrument in the dances of the intamate, and on which the face of Uota, and symbols of the natemate (the deceased) are carved. [Sa. nafa, To.

naffa, Fut. kafa, a drum, Ml. U. nambwi, id.] H. nekeb, a hollowed thing, that which is hollowed, used as a musical instrument (Ezekiel xxviii. 13), English Version, 'pipes': 'thy tabrets and thy pipes'; from nakab, to hollow out.

Nabis, s., end, the last, d. nakis: bisi na.

Napo, or napoa, d. tamo, v. i., to smell; and Nabo n, s., its smell. [Sa. namu, to have a bad smell, To. namu, odour, either good or bad, Fut. namu.] See boa. A. fāḥa, 6, to emit odour.

Nabua, s., a road, path. A. nabiyy' and nabiy', id.

Nafete (d. syn. sefete), d. nefeha, d. (te)uase (wase), inter. pron., what? which? M.S. mudi, A. mada, Nm. made, what? Nafete is na, art., and fete, and sefete, sefa, q.v., and te.

Nāfo, s., dd. āfo, foġa, whetstone, pumice stone. A.

nasfa-t, id.

Naġa, or naġ, dem., this, that: na, dem., and ka, dem., changed to ġa.

Nàg, or nàga, s., dd. lāg, rāg, nrāk, rān, time. A. 'ān, time.

Naġasa, inter. ad., when? i. e. naġa sa? lit. what time? also indefinitely, when, whatever time. Ml. U. seve-liġ = Ef. d. sefe-naġ = what time? naġa-sa?

Nago, pers. pron., 2 sing., you,

dd. ago, ag, niġo, keiġa, keina, nēġo.

Nagore na, s., nostrils, nose. See gore na.

Nai n, d. for nani n, child. See nei n and ani.

Nai, pers. pron., 3 sing., he, she, dd. ĕnĕa, or ĭnĭa, ġā, niġa, kinini. [My. inya, or iña (Ef. inĭa, or iña, sing.), pl. and sing., they, he, she.] See Ch. V. 2.

Nai, s., water, d. for noai, nifai.

Nai, s., side board of a canoe to keep the waves out, a protector or defence of a place (a warrior who keeps out the enemy); d. a fence. [Sa. āi, a fence, a railing, āi, to fence in, To. a fence.] A. nawa', naa', to guard, protect.

Naita natuo, s., d. for uanate-natuo, the calf of the leg, hence nalake naita natuo n, the ankle, lit. the base of the calf of the leg.

Nakate, s., d. syn. nete, q.v., lit. the that that.

Nakima, s., d. nabea.

Nakis, s., d. nabis: kusu na, kihi (or kisi) na.

Nakis, or nakisa, or nakes, s., green or blue paint: kesakesa.

Nako na, s., the face. See ko, s.; n, art., and ako; hence Nakonakoa ki, v. (formed by ending a, from preceding word) to assume the face, or appearance of (ki) some one;

Nakonako ki, v., to face (some one), i.e. front (him). A.

wagaha, 5, id., to front or face each other.

Nālu, or nālua, an arrow. A. nabl', arrow.

Namu, s., d., mosquito, d. na mamamami (d. batirik = small tooth). [Sa. mamu, Tah. namu, ramu, Fut. namo, My. ñamok, Bu. namok, Mg. muka, Ml. U. num, TaSa. moke, Malo mohe, Ta. kumug, An. inyum, Motu namo, id.] A. namus, mosquito.

Nanoa na, s., the neck, i. e. n', art., and anoa, neck, cg. manu na, q.v. [Santo d. alo, d. ralo, Bu. olog.] A. 'unk',

'unuk', 'anīk', neck.

Nanofa, ad., d., yesterday, and Nanoasa, ad., d. nāsa, the day before yesterday, and Nanu, ad., d. nanofa, and Nanum, ad., d. nanu, yesterday. [Fi. e na noa, Santo nonovi (pwanovi, to-morrow), Epi niobo (bani=maisa=today).] Nan-ofa, nan-u, nanum, consist of ofa, u, um, day (see ma, s., day), and (Fi. e na noa, e, in or on, na, the; noa, past day = nu, num, nofa), nan', i.e. na, the art., and n', q.v., particle expressive of past time, as in nāsa, infra. Nanōasa (for nanofasa) has sa (for rua, sometimes ra, 2): hence na nofa, lit. the past day, and na noasa, the second past day. Nanoasa, nāsa. [Epi nua, d. niaha, Ta. d. neis, id.

Nānua, s., necklace, beads, i.e. n', art., and anua. H. 'anak, necklace.

Näo, s., d. noa, q.v.

Naob, s., lime, d. noba, q.v.

Nāra, pers. pron., 3 pl., they (for nai 'ra), d. ġara, or niġara (ġa 'ra), d. inira (inia, and 'ra). See ra, and nai.

Naro, d. for nalo. See lo, a thing.

Naroa, s., na, art., a current (of water, especially in the sea): so called because i roa, turns (itself). See roa.

Nāsa, ad., the day before yesterday, d. nanoasa: nāsa is without the article and for noasa (in nanoasa).

Nasafa, inter. pron., also nasefa, and nesefa; na, art., and safa, or sefa, q.v.

Nasaġa, s., na, art., a stretch of sea between two places. See saġa.

Nasu na, na, art., s., juice, what flows out, or exudes. [Sa. su, to be wet, sua, juice.] A. nazza, to exude, nizu, flow, water.

Nāta, a person. See ata. Nāta na, or nāte na, soul, spirit; Natamole, a living person, Natamate, or natemate, a dead person, a ghost, a demon, an object of worship. See ata, moli, mate, atamole, atamate.

Natara, s., n, art., and atara, a., a virgin, young woman; naguruni atara, a young woman. [My. dara, Ja. rara, a maid, virgin.] A. 'adara, to be a virgin ('adera', a virgin).

Nātě, or nāṣĕ, s., the banana, or plantain, plant and fruit: n, art., and ātĕ, or āṣĕ. [Ml. P. nevij, Ml. U. navits, Ēro. nobos, Epi vihi, Am. nohos, Ml. dd. navis, abus, Paama ahisi, Fi. vudi, Ulawa huti, Fut. vuji, Fila butsh', Aniwa hutsh', Niue futi, My. pisaġ, Ceram fudi, phitim, Sanguir busa, Mg. unṣi, d. huṣi, id.] A. muz', Amh. muz, id.

Nātě-kuru, s., dried, withered banana leaves. See kuru, a. Natemate, for natamate. See atamate.

Natoara, s., n, art., a kind of grass (sword grass). H. haṣir, grass, A. h'aṣ'ira, to be green.

Naturiai, s. See turiai, a., young man.

Näu, s., reeds; Pan's pipes; for nausu: na, art., and usu, q.v.

Nau, v. i., usually nu, q.v.

Nau i, v. t., to rub, wipe off. See nu e.

Nāüa (nāwa), na, art., and üa (wa), q.v.

Nē, for noi, v., to dwell, or be beside (some one): the verb no is intransitive, and i is the t. prep. [Fi. no, to lie (of things, not persons), Sa. nofo, to sit, dwell, remain, Ma., Tah., Ha. noho.] H. navah, and naah, to sit down, to rest, to dwell. Ne, dem., here, there, this, that, uane, kine, netu. See in, na. [Sa. nei, this.]

Nego, pers. pron., d. for nago, q.v.

Nei n, or nai n, s., his child, d. for nani n. The n of ani, q.v., is elided: nai for nani.

Neinei, v., as boka neinei a, beat it soft, beat making it soft (or weak). See maneinei.

Nēko (for naiko), s., n, art., and eko, the wooden mallet for beating native cloth (in making it). [Sa. ie, To. iki, id., Ha. ku, kuku, to beat native cloth.] A. waka'a, to beat, (7), to sharpen, make thin a knife, (8), make slender, &c., waki', sharp, thin, slender. (For To. iki meaning 'small', see Ef. iki, kiki, id.). kie also belongs here, the leaf being rubbed and split into slender threads.

Nēru, nāru, and nieru, war, lit. arms: art., and aru, q.v. Nēt, d. for binēt, banotu, q. v. Neta ki, v. t., to throw, net i, to throw upon, hit with a thing thrown. A. nada', to throw, H. nadah, Pi., to cast out.

Nete, s., a thing, anything, something, d. syn. nakate: art., and te, dem., lit. the that. Nete ra, their thing, also āra te, id., āgu te, my thing, āma te, thy thing.

Netu, dem., this, that: ne, dem., and tu, v., lit. this or that standing out or up.

Netua, d. nerua, s., twins, art. and tua, or rua, 2, lit. the two. [Fi. drua, id.; also double, a., as a double canoe, a double fruit.]

Ni, prep., of (genitive), to, belonging to, also i, in, on, at (with art. ani, q.v.), t. prep. after verbs, as mesau ni au, desire me (also mesau au, d.), i, as, soka-ri, join on to, no i, &c. [Fi. ni, i, or e, of, in, and t. prep., Ma. i, of, belonging to, &c., and t. prep., Battak ni, Bu. ri, Holontalo li, Tag. ni, Mg. ni, n, ani, of, belonging to, My. i, t. prep.] A. li, H., Arm. lĕ, E. la, T. fnĕ, id. See Ch. V. 11. 1.

Nĭ, art., also na, in, n. [Mg. ni, id.]

Ni, same as na, ad., and interj.;

Ni, verb. suf., 3 sing., d. nia, q.v.

Nia, verb. suf., 3 sing., same as na, q.v., once (in sikinia, and sikina, his one, he alone) nom. suf. (which usually is na). See nai, inia.

Niba ki, v. t., to throw away, make to go away. A. nafa', drive away, expel, hurl away (as a torrent, rubbish, the wind, dust).

Nifai, s., water, dd. nai, noai: ni, art., and fai, water.

Nife ni, a., v. t., to fan, t. prep. ni, lit. to wave, or brandish, on or to;

Nifenife, v. i., to fan, to wave, or brandish, as the branches of a tree in the wind;

Nife, s., a fan. H. nuf, to wave up and down, Hi. henif, to wave, to shake.

Niġ, d., prep., of (gen.) for (dative), ni, art., and ġ (for ġi, i.e. ki, q.v.), dd. naġ, naġi, naġki, and, art. without its n, aġi, d. aġki (ġk for ġ).

Niġa, d., pers. pron., 3 sing.: ni, n', dem., and ġa, or iġa. Niġara, d., pers. pron., 3 pl.:

niġa, and ra, pl. dem. Niġita, pers. pron., 1 pl., incl.:

ninita.

Nikenika, v. i., to be silent, quiet, or noiseless, or stealthy; also to move quickly along a sharp ridge (of a mountain), or along a log across a stream. [Ha. nihi, to walk very softly and quietly, as on tiptoe, to do a thing quietly or secretly, nihinihi, standing up on edge, narrow ridged, or edged, Ma. ninihi, to move stealthily. A. naga, to hasten; communicate a secret, 3, act, or speak, secretly (with some one), naga, branch of a tree, higher part of land, nagwat, higher part of land, a secret. Niko na, s., the spine (ridge) of a cocoanut leaf. See preceding word.

Nin, dem., d., this: n, art., and in, dem. [My. nun, that.]

Ninita, or nininta, d., obsolete, see nigita, niginta, pers. pron., 1 pl., incl., we (and) thou, dd. keigita, igira, akit, nikit: ninita, nini, we, and ta, thou. [An. inta, verb. pron., id., Santo d. niti, and inti, separate pron., id., Ml. d. ante, id., My. kita, Mg. isika, Sa. 'o i ta (tou), id.]

Nis, dem.; also, nistu, this; art. ni, and se, dem. [S. Cris. nasi, that.]

Niti, or nit i, v. t., to plane, shave (wood). A. naḥata, n. a. naḥt', id.

Niu, s., c. art. naniu, the cocoanut palm. [Fi. niu, Er. noki, An. neaig, My. nior, Ceram niula, Ml. kula, Mg. nihu, Sa. niu, id.; niu piu, fan palm (therefore niu is a general name for a palm); niui, to sprinkle with the juice of the cocoanut, Ha. niu, to whirl about.] A. naḥ'lu, palm (gen. name), naḥ'ala, to sift, to pour out or sprinkle (snow, as the clouds), Nm., 7, to drizzle.

No i, or noi, d. nē, noi, d. ne: hence redup. noinoi, and v. r., binoinoi, d. binofinoi. See nē, for noi;

Nono, v. i., no (in no i), redup., to abide, as, mala nono, abide senseless. See also binoinoi, to abide with each other, and binofinoi, or bunofunoi.

Noa, s. (for na ua), d. näo, a swell, or wave. See ua'a.

Noa ki, v. t., tell, lit. say to, dd. ni ki, ti ki, nofa i, q.v.; noa i, v. t., say or tell it;

binoa, to speak about each other, v. r.

Noai, s., d. nifai, water; for na uai.

Noba, s., c. art. nanoba, d. naob, lime (ashes of coral); and Nobanoba, v. i., or a., to be dusty, become dust, fly in the air (dust). [Sa. navu, lime.] and

Noba-ni, v. t., to wrap in leaves with hot stones and cook, to cook, d. tuma-ni; and Nobanoba, v. i., to be cooked, soft. See also manubunubu, and d. tomo or tumu, tumutumua, matumutumu. [Ha. nopu, thoroughly cooked, soft, plump, fat, swelled out, and nopunopu, spring or swell up (in the mind), swell, be large, round, spring up.] A. tabaḥa, n. a. ṭabḥ', to cook, roast, to ripen, 2, to grow up, 7, 8, to be cooked, ṭubbaḥ', tābiḥ', fatness, ṭabīḥ', cooked.

Nōbu, s., flood, d. tōbu. A. tāf, to flood (Ct.), ṭawwafu, a flood.

Nof, d. for num, v. i., q.v.

Nofa i, v. t., d. noa i, q.v., to tell. A. nabā', (6), 2, show, declare, announce, tell.

Nono. See ante, no, nono.

Notinoti, v. i., or a., to be spotted (as an animal). H. nakod, spotted (as an animal), Nm. nokta, a spot, monakkat, spotted, H. nakad,

A. nakata, to mark with points.

Notu, d., see under banotu, Note 2.

Nu, v. i., d. num, q.v., hence manua, manunu.

Nu ē a, v. t., to wipe, rub off; redup.,

Nunu ēa, id., and

Nūnu, s., a wiper, rubber, and Nunu-tafe, s., the wrist, lit. snot-wiper. [Sa. nunu, to grate down, nuaja, a grating down.] A. t'amma, (4), to sweep (a house, or place), (5), to rub, wipe off. (Cf. A. tamma, Ef. num, nu, for t to n.) Nua na, s., n, art., and ua, q.v., fruit.

Nuanua, v. i., to wave about, or to and fro (as the branches of a tree); nuanua ki, v. t., to wave, make to wave, or shake (anything). H. nua, to move to and fro, wave to and fro, Hi. move to and fro, shake.

Nub, s., d. rub, q.v.

Nubu na, d. tumu na, s., c. art., the soft swelling protuberance of anything (as of a yam) growing. See nobanoba.

Nubu, v. i., d. num, and Nuf, v. i., d. num, q.v.

Nuġnuġ, v. i., to be careless, heedless, maturu nuġnuġ, to sleep and be devoid of all care or thought, be utterly heedless. A. nūmat, heedless, careless, nāma, to sleep, doze, be quiet, tranquil, 2, deaden (as pain).

Nugnug i, v. t., d. luglug i, q.v.: hence manugnug, q.v. Num, v. i., to be finished, completed, dd. nu, nau, nubu, nuf, nof; ru nau, nu, num, nuf ban, they all have gone, a bat ia i nu, I have done it, it is finished. See bunu, manunu, binunu, manubu, manubunubu. A. tamma, n. a. tum', &c., to be all, whole, finished, completed, at an end, and, transitive, to complete, &c.

Numnum ia, v. t., d. for nuġnuġ i.

Nūra, s., syn. miura, q.v., is for ne ūra: ura.

O, sign of vocative, interj., as, temanami o, O our father. [Ml., Santo, Malo o, id.] E. o, id.

O, dem., io, äo, ore, or iore, q.v. [Fi. o, in oqo, Tah. o, Mare o, Motu o, dem.] The Semitic pers. pron. 3 sing. used as a dem., and as a verb substantive.

O, verbal suf., 1 sing., me, d. for au.

O, v. i., contr. for oni, q.v.; also in bao.

Ob, s., d., c. art. naob, d. nanōba, lime (ashes of coral): noba.

Ōf, s., dd. um, ubu, ūa, cooking oven. A. mifa, oven.

Ofa, in taliofa, dd. taliaba, talieba. See tali. Ofa, to whirl round. [Tah. ohu (also = kofu, q.v., supra), to whirl round, Ma. koumuumu, My.

ubâġ, mubâġ.] E. kabab, to whirl round.

Ofa, i.q. afa, to swim, be above, float on; and Ofa i, i. q. afa i, q.v.

Ofa ki, v. t., i. q. afa ki; nalia ofakian, a place of burial, to be buried in, naofakian, act of burying, burial.

Ofa, a., high, tall, as a tree. [Mg. avu, high, lofty, eminent, proud.] H. gabah, to be high, as a tree, gobah, height (as of trees), pride, gaboah, high, lofty, proud.

Ōf i, or ōfi, v. t., to be near to, alongside of, d. āfi;

Offioff, v., a., near to. [To. ofi, near to, at hand.] A. wahafa, n. a. wahf, to draw near to, approach near.

Ola, s., a spear. [Ulawa ilula, New Ireland lelu, Maklay Küste (N.G.) iur, id.] A. 'allat', pl. 'alal', 'el...l', id.

Oli, d. uli, q.v.

On, s., sand, d. aran, q.v.

Oni, contr. o, d. ani, q.v., to abide, be.

Or, d., s., c. art. naor, or na uor. See uora.

Ora na, s., sprout, shoot, or vine (as of a yam);

Oraora na, id.: bora, uora. Oran, and orain, d. oraone, s., sand: aran.

Oraora, s., dazzling (variegated) rays of the (morning) sun, oraora ni elo; and Oraorana, a., na, a. ending, variegated. [Tah. purepure, spotted, chequered, of diverse colours.] E. hubur, varie-gated, of various colours, Ch. habarbar, spotted.

Ore, i. q. aure, q.v.

Ōrĕ, d. ōr, ad., yes, that's it: o, dem., and re, or ri, dem., cf. iore.

Ori a, v. t., to rub, grate, ori, v. i., to make a creaking, grating noise (as the branches of trees rubbing against each other);

Ōri, s., the rubbing stick in producing fire by the friction of two sticks. [Tah. oro, Sa. olo, to rub, olo, a plane, My. urut, to rub, Mg. uta, rubbed, urina, being rubbed.] A. 'arata, 'arat'a, to rub.

Oro, v. i., to grunt (a pig), to growl, snarl (a dog), and with transitive prep. ki, oro-maki, to bark at (a person or thing), bioro, v. r., to make a confused murmuring noise (as a crowd of men all speaking at once); and Orooro, id., redup., cf. uru, uruuru. [Ma. juru, to sigh, grunt, rumble, jejere, to growl, jeri, to chant (in launching a canoe, &c.), jejeri, to grunt, My. kurkur, to grunt (a pig), Mg. eruṭa, to snore, eruna, mieruna, to growl, snarl, roar.] A. naḥ'ara, Nm. to grunt, ḥ'ara, to low, ḥ'arḥ'ara, snort, snore, harra, to growl, snarl (a dog), to creak, harharat, murmur or sound of copiously flowing water.

Oro, d., v.i., or a., to be barren: d. for bara, q.v.

Oroa, v. i., or a. Same as oraorana, to be coloured, variegated: a. ending a, d. contr. oro; hence Oroa, d. oro, s., a species of grasshopper, so called from its colours.

Otaki, d. uataki, s., native tongs: taki.

Oti, i. q. uti, q.v.

Ra, d. nra, dem., this, that. See arai.

Rā, s., a depressed place, damp or watery: ruku.

Rā, verbal pron., 3 dual, they two; pl. ru, they. See Ch. V. 2.

Rā na, s., branch. [Sa. la, Ma. ra, My. daan, Mg. rahana, rahaka.] A. s'agnat, s'agan', id.

Rā, or ṭā, dd. tā, nrā, s., blood, mitā, to bleed. [Er. de, TaSa. rai, Malo dai, Motu rara, Sa. toto (redup.), Ja. ra, My. darah, Mg. ra, blood.] H., E. dam, S. dem, A. dam', blood; damiya, to bleed.

Ra, v. i., vociferate, in rasoso, rafioso. [My. ruwah, id.] H. ru'a, Hi. vociferate.

Ra, verb. and nom. suf., 3 pl.: nara, they.

Ra, num., two: rua.

Ra tan i, rara tan i, tara tan i, tara tan i, tara tan i, v. t., to forget, lit. to think burying or covering it. See mitoa and tun i.

Rabà na, s., side (of a river or valley). A. s'affat', id.

Rabaraba, v. i., to flap the wings. A. rafrafa, id.

Rabaraba kaf (or kai), v. i., to be bent with hunger or famine; and Rāba, s., hunger or famine, in li rāba, goddess, or she demon of hunger (a 'sacred stone'). H. ra'eb, E. rĕḥaba, to hunger, H. ra'ab, hunger, famine.

Rabaġ, see tabaġ.

Rafālu, d. lifāru, q.v.

Raf i, v. t., to scratch, dig, scrape. A. saḥafa, saḥf', id. Rafē, v. t., to weave a reed fence; hence

Rafēna, s., a reed (woven) fence, d. rofe; and Rafean, s., c. art., the act of weaving a reed fence. H. 'arab, to weave, intertwine, A. 'araba, a knot, H. 'arubaḥ, interwoven work, or network.

Raf, s., d. rau, binding crosssticks in framing a roof. Preceding word.

Rafe, v. t., to go through (as through a hole in a fence, the eye of a needle); and Rafe-aki, v. t., to make to go through, as, rafeaki nausu, make a reed to go through among the others in weaving, a rafena. See rafe.

Rafioso, v. i., to call out as when in terror or danger: ra, v. i., and bioso.

Rafite na, s., wall or side of a house. E. arafete, partition, wall.

Raġa-ēlo, d., v. i., to warm or dry oneself in the sun (ēlo): raġa is transposed for ġara, as baraġai for baġarai, q.v.

Rāġ, s., time, c. nom. suf. raġi na, its time: d. rān, rāni na, dd. laġ, naġ. A. 'ān', time.

Rago, s., c. art., thicket, roughness. See fakarago;

Ragoa, and ragorogoa, v. i., or a., to be full of rago, as a reef full of jagged, sharp rocks. [Mg. rukuruku, roughness, rough.] H. raga', (2) to be corrugated, rough.

Rāģo, s., rollers on which a canoe or boat is hauled up. [Ma. rajo, id.] See lāģo.

Rai, d. re, s., forehead, aspect, face. [To. lae, My. dai, Ja. rai, id.] E. rey, sight, aspect;

Rairai, d. tairai, v. i., to be in good countenance. See bakarairai, and lo, leo.

Raite na, or reite na, d., s., mother. See under ani na.
Raka, v. i. to be willing and Raka, v. i., to be willing, and maraka; also, redup.,

Rakaraka, id., and marakaraka, id.; also,

Rakana, s., the willingness, readiness, tuga fat ia rakana sikaimau, let us do it, the readiness or willingness for it one only, i.e. with one mind or will. S. regag, to desire, to will, Ethpael id., rega, desire, will.

Rakaf i, and rakof i, v. t., to cleave to. and Rarako, d. tarako, as, toa i rarako, sits on, cleaves close to (her eggs). S. nkaf, etnakaf, to cleave to, cg. E. lakaf.

Raka i, v. t., to lift, raise up,

Raka-ti, id. A. raķiya, 2, raise up, make to go up.

Rakei, v. t., to adorn, dress; tumana rakei, adorn or dress himself. [Sa. la'ei];

Rakei, d. rakī, s., c. art., dress, adornment. E. lahaya, to adorn, dress.

Raku sa, v. t., redup. raraku sa, and taraku sa, and d. taku-ti, to bind up, to remove anyone's things, as in a flitting; i raraku, he is doing so, or is removing to another district, or flitting, to remove, carry away (anything). [Sa. la'u, Ma. raku, Marq. naku, scratch, carry away, Mg. rajuta, to scratch.] A. raka (final j), to dig, to bind up.

Rakua, and, dd.,

Rakum, rakoma, s., a crab. [Epi lakum, Fi. qumuqumu.] A. h'umh'um', a crab.

Rāles, a place in Hades, lit. dark pit, swamp, or depressed place: ra, and les.

Rāna, dem. and num., those two: ra, 2, and na, dem.

Rāna, and redup. rarāna, v. i., or a., to branch out: rā, and a. ending na.

Rān, rāni na. See rāġ, raġi na.

Ran, d., s., water. [Fi. drano,

Sa. lanu, My. danu, J. ranu, Carolina ralo, Mg. ranu. A. rahalu, water (of a kind).

Rarua, d. raru, s., a canoe, boat, or ship: v. Note. [My. prahu, Ml. ndrav, Segaar rai, Ta. laou (laau), An. elgau, Er. lo.] A. markab. See borau, supra.

Note.—The Ef. raru corresponds to the rahu in My. prahu, both the r and the hof the final syllables ru, hu being for the original k, and raru, through ratu, Ta. d. tata, for raku, My. (p)rahu, Motu laka(-toi), Mg. lakana, An. elgau (for elegau), Ta. d. laou (laau), Er. lo: in the two latter the original k is dropped as in My. (p)rau, Segaar rai, Er. d. lai. In all of these the final radical b (or v) is elided, Ef. raru is for raraw (for raraf). In Meli, and Fila, Fut. vaka (Santo aka), the v, like the My. p (in prahu) is for the original servile m (in markab), and the first radical r as well as the final (as in raru, &c.) The m was proelided. nounced v, then w, then only the vowel was retained, elgau, aka, then the vowel dropped, laou, lo, tata, raru, Mg. d. laka.

Rās, d. nras, dem. and num., these two: ra, 2, and s, dem.

Ras i, v. t., d. tas i, to shave (the beard or chin), shave (or strip) off (as fruit from a tree, shave or strip the tree). E. las'aya, to shave.

Ras, or res, d. tas, redup. reres, or teres, v. i., to rustle, crash (as the foliage of plants, or waves of the sea, moved by the wind, or men in a tumult). H. ra'as', the primary notion lies in noise and crashing: used of the rustling of grain moved by the wind, ra'as', noise, tumult.

Rasoso, v. i., see rafioso; rasoso, to vociferate, calling (for help): ra, and soso.

Rat i, v. t., d. tat i, d. nrat, to loose, untie. See mirati. [Sa. tala, tatala, Tah., Ma. tara.] H. nat'ar, Hi. hitīr, to loose.

Rau', and ndau', v. i., d., to go. Ct. rawāh, to go.

Rau, redup. rarau, v., to grope for with the hand, seize, snatch out or away. [Ma. harau, grope for with the hand, Ha. lalau, extend out as the hand, Ma. rau, catch, lay hold of, gather. Ha. lau, seize, take out of a place, To. lau, nip, pinch, An. rap, grope for, and raprap, My. raba, to feel for, grope.] A. lamaa, to feel for, grope, take away.

Rau, s., leaves (for food to be cooked, and for putting food on, as on a plate, when cooked). [Mg. ravina, My. dawun, Sa., Ma. lau, rau, Fi. drau]; and

Rau, s., as. rau nasuma, eaves of a house, rau mita, lashes of the eyes, eyelashes; a tribe, group, bi rau, in parties, rau, a fruit that grows in clusters; and

Rau, in bakarau, to divide, distribute; and

Raua, rauraua, a., hairy, as a rope, nakasu rauraua, a tree full of branches. [Mg. raviravi, hanging over, suspended]; and

Rau, in bārau, i.e. bā, to go, and rau, speak violently and reproachfully, to 'carp'. [Sa. lau, speak, abuse indecently.] A. hadiba, hadaba, to pluck, to have long eyelashes, to have long branches, hadab', branches, leaves, see rifu, birife.

Rēa, s., d. for rēko, bisa ki rea ki nau, speak as a pauper to me: reko.

Reaki, v. t., to strain, and, s., a vessel for straining, a strainer, colander. [Lakon reak, id.] A. rāķa, 2, rawwaķa, to strain, and rāwaķ' (and rawuķ'), a vessel for straining, a strainer, colander. Rei a, roi a, rei, rerei, or terei, d. roroi, to moisten the pudding (nakoau) with lor (the rich oily juice of grated cocoanut). A. rā'a, 2, to moisten bread with fat, rā'a, 2, id., 1, to bend, turn, 3, wrestle, 5, roll itself (an animal), 6, wrestle.

Rei, s., c. art. nerei, a band of men; a clump of trees. A. rā'a, to grow, luxuriate, 2, be congregated, rī'at', a band, a crowd.

Rei, d. rea, d. reko, q.v.

Rei, d. tei, v., rei natano, burrow, or cover itself with earth, as the white ant (futei, furei) does. A. damma, (2), to cover its hole with earth, dimmat, ant.

Rēko (see rei, rea, farea), s., a pauper, poor. H. rēķ, empty, vain, impoverished, poor.

Reluko (or raluko). See taluko.

Rere, rerea, v. i., to break rushing upon the sand or shore (of waves), also tarere. Ch. rĕ'a', to break in pieces, H. ra'a', id. S. etra're', id. Res, reres, teres. See ras. Ri, d., verb. pron., 3 pl., dd. ru, eu, u.

Rī. See tī.

Ri, or re, dem., eri, &c.: arai. Ria, d., verb. pron., 3 dual, d. rā.

Ribu, riribu, to sound (with a trumpet), ribu-aki baigo, sound a trumpet, taribu, to sound trumpets alternately (of two men). See rubua.

Rifālu, d. lifāru, q.v.

Rifu, d. rife, d. lifu mita, d. rau mita, s., eyelashes, and see birife or birifu, to snatch, pluck away, plunder. [My. rambiya, rambu, rambut, Mg. rumbu, rumbuta, rumbita. rumbaka, My. rampas, rabat.] See rau.

Riģi, ririģi, or tiriģi, v. i., to make a tremulous groaning noise in suffering pain, birigirigi. A. ranna, vociferate, utter the voice with weeping, make a noise, twang, tinkle. Riki, a., small, kari-riki, uarik, batik;

Riki, s., c. art. neriki, child, little one. [Ha. lii, Tah. rii, Ma. riki.] E. dawik, to be small.

Riki, old, see under the word fiteriki.

Riki, s., tiki, nriki (d.), pud. mul. A. rika, id.

Rikit, v. i., to be small: riki. Rikitelaģ, d. for koroatelaģi: koro, atelaģi.

Riri, in buariri (Hades), for tiro, to sink.

Riri, v. i., to fly, d. for tiri. Riri, s., a spark: tiri.

Riri-mita, s., tears; turu, tuturu. [To. tulu he mata.]

Risu, v. i., to move, shift: rosa.

Riu sa, d. tuma i, to point out. See tiu.

Riu sa, riuriu sa, also tiu, or tū sa, q.v.

Ro, d., v. i., to fall, c. prep. ro bei a, fall upon it: roa.

Ro, ad., again, d. mero; Roa i, v. t., to turn. See mero, ro, meraroa; and

Roa-leo, and roaroa-leo, s., echo; roa, rowa, d. doa, dowa (see also maroa, mare, biroaroa, taroaroa). H. s'ub, Arm. tub (A. t'aba), to turn, S. t'ub, again: for the Ef. expression for 'again', see Ch. V. 9.

Roa, or roua (rowa), or toua,

v. i., to fall, dd. ro, röuo, töuo, tibe (ndibe), täo, mitäo, mitefe, lubu. [An. erop, My. rubuh, mārubuh, rābah, mārābah, ribah, māribah.] H. rafah, S. rĕfo', etrafi, to cast down, to sink, or fall down.

Roba, s., affluence; and Roba-leba, s., great affluence, a rich man. A. rafo, affluence.

Roba-ģi. See toba-ģi.

Roba, roroba, or toroba, d. nrob, v. i., or a.. to be insane, senseless. A. rāba, (2), to be insane, stupefied.

Ro-bei, d. oro-bei, v. t.. to snarl, snap, bark at: ro, for oro, and t. prep., bei.

Rōfa, s., a red or purple dye or colour. A. sohbat, a red or reddish colour.

Rofarofa, or tofarofa, and tofe, v. mid., to cover oneself with cloth, clothe oneself, be clothed, tofe, cloth, clothing. H. 'aṭaf, to cover, be covered, be clothed. S. 'ṭaf, id.

Rofe, s., d. for rafena.

Roġo, roġ i, v. t., d. toġi (doġi), d. nroġ, also toġ i, to hear, obey, to feel, know (as grief or pleasure), roġo nabon, to perceive or feel or smell the odour (of anything), roroġo, or toroġo, v. i., to be still, s., a species of divination (in order to know what is to be done) by a certain movement in the muscles of the arms or legs, roġoroġo ki, to make heard, report, rogoan, rogorogoan, s., c. art., report, tāki roģo-saki, bend or incline oneself hearing (a person); bakarogo, q.v.; marogo, or matogo, or manrog, v. i., to be idle, amuse oneself, marogo ki, to amuse oneself at the expense of (someone). logo, My. dâgâr, Mg. reni, and rea. A. 'adina, to hear, to know, to feel the smell of, 2, cause to hear, make known, proclaim, H.'azan, Hi. he'zin, to hear, listen, to obey.

Rogo, togo, in sera-togo, s., anything: rogo is A. hano, a thing. [Santo sonu, TaSa. kinao, Ml. nanu, a thing, Florida hanu, Oba heno, Ja. ano, Mg. anu.] A. hanu, a thing.

Roko, v. i., d. lako, q.v., d. nrok, to stoop.

Romi, roromi, v. t., to compassionate, to love. See rumi. Rō na, roro na, s., thought, mind, also toto na, and d. nro n; v. mitoa; and Roro, or toto, v., to think, rara, &c. (tan i), d. totu.

Ror, s., oil, also same as lor, q.v., the oily or fatty expressed juice of grated cocoanut used to moisten or fatten puddings: roi, roroi, rei. Roro na. See ro na.

Roro i. See ro i, rei.

Roroa, v. i. See toroa.

Roro-fi. See toro-fi.

Rosa-ġi, v. t., to drag, haul, make to move, shift; and

Rosa, v. i., to move, shift, tosa, dd. nros, nrus, tosa, also rusa, risu; and

Ros, s., c. art., a breaker or wave that sweeps up upon the sand of the shore. [Sa. toso, tosotoso, to drag.] A. ra'asa, to move, shake, drag, 4, id.

Rot i, or tot i, v. i., to embrace clasping to the breast, to embrace or encircle, bind round. Hence

Rot, s., anything going round another as a band or girdle (as an ulcer round one's leg. &c.): and Rot i, as, ta rot i, ta rotirot i, or rutirut i, cut a band or girdle round (as in barking a tree). A. rabaṭa, rabṭ', to bind.

Röuo (rowo), i.q. rau', to go. Ru, verb. pron., 3 pl., they: d. ri.

Rū sa. See riu sa, tū sa, tiu sa.

Rua, num., two. See also tua, ra (and sa, in uasa), d. nru. [Sa. lua, My. dua, Ja. roro, Mg. rua.] H. s'ne, &c., Mahri tharo, Soc. tarawah, M.S. tirā, Assy. sina.

Rub, s., d. roba, d. nub, d. raba, s., q. v.

Ruba, s., additional wife taken by a man already married. [TaSa. narau, a wife, Mg. rafi, one of two or more wives of the same husband; adversary, opponent; rafita, joining together, contention, strife. A. rafā', to join, sew together, make peace, 2, to utter a formula of blessing or prayer to a new spouse, rafa', 2, id. ('Mayest thou live with concord and with children').

Rubaki, s., a big flat nakoau. A. ra"if', round thin cake baked on the hearth.

Rubua, d. rufua, s., clamour; noise, tumult (as of mourners in wailing). S. rhab, make a noise, uproar, tumult, utter lamentations (Mark v. 38, 39), cg. H. ra'am, v., to make a noise, thunder, s., uproar, clamour, tumult.

Ruku, s., a hole, cf. rā; edible clay found in holes, syn. tano rā; a bribe secretly given, or given underhand to procure the death of one hated, nafakaruku, hollow or hole under anything, as a cellar under a house, sī ruku, to go under (through the hole or hollow under) anything; and Rukua, d., s., a hole, pit, a hole or hollow with water in it, cf. rā. A. raka', to dig (the ground); to revile (someone). rakiyyat, a pit. rika', pud.

mul.

Ruma na, s., c. art. nàruma na; n, art., and ruma, or aruma, and kuruma (in litakuruma, q.v., the breast, bosom.) [Sa., Ha. uma, Motu geme, id.] A. ḥa'zūm', the breast, bosom.

Ruma, dd. bara, oro, v. i., or a., to be barren. H. 'arab, E. (tr.) 'abara. Rūma, and tūma, s., a pool of water, d. transposed marou. A. 'arīm', a hole, trench, or hollow in which water is collected.

Rumi, rurumi, v. t., same as romi, to compassionate, love. A. raḥuma, ruḥm', id.;

Rumian, s., c. art., and rurumian, compassion, love.

Rūmo, d. rūma, pool.

Rūrū, redup. of rū, riu sa. See tiu, tū sa.

Ruru, v. i., to tremble;

Ruru, s., c. art. an earthquake. [Tah. ruru, to tremble.] S. r'el, to tremble.

Ruru, s., a cluster. [Tah. ruru, to congregate.] See rei.

Rusa, see rosa; rusa-ģi, see rosa-ģi;

Rusarusa-ģi, redup., d. nrus, nrusa-ģi.

Rutirut i. See rot i.

Sā, interrogative pron., contr. of safa, sefa.

Să, or se, or s, dem., this, here. H. zeh, E. zĕ.

Sa, d. for ta, neg. ad., only in prohibitive clauses.

Sa, sī, s. num., one, in ģis (or ģisa), sam, mas.

Sa, s', verbal suf., 3 sing., d. a, as, ti ki nià sa, say to him it, d. ti ki nià a, id.

Sa, s., d. ta, d. sëàt, q.v.

Sa, caus. pref. See sarafi, saġaluġalu, siġiri. [My. sa, Tah. ta.] H. s'a, Arm. sa (Shaphel, Saphel).

Sā, v. i., or a.. to be bad, evil, sāsā, intensive. [Fut. sa, My. jahat, Fi. t'a, Malo sat, Ta. ra, Mg. rași. A. sā', to be bad, evil, sawat. Hence

Sān, s., c. art., the being evil; also the being ill, sickness, misfortune, misery; and Sāsānă, v. i., or a., to be ill, have a disease: redup.

Sābě, inter. ad., where? sa, and be, q.v.

Sabe-li, v. t., to bind, tie, d. tami-si. [My. simpul, v., and s., knot. H. samam, cg. A. zamma, &c., to bind.

Sabe-li, v. t., to beat, slap. My. tampar, Ja. tampel, Fi. saba-laka. A. safa'a, to beat, slap.

Saberi ki, v. t., to scatter, break asunder or to pieces, scattering, d. sabura ki.

Saberik, v. i., to be broken to pieces, fallen or parted asunder. My. sibarkan, sâbar. See tasabsabu. H. s'abar, Ch. tebar, A. tabara, break in pieces.

Sabo, v. i., or a., ignorant, to be ignorant, sasabo, to be ignorant, to not know (his way), sabo-naki, v. t., to be ignorant of or about, dd. subněki, sbu-ni; see also tasabo; nàsabo (for nata sabo), a stranger (not knowing the place), meta-sabo, id. A. safoha, to be ignorant, 6, id. Săfa, sefa, or sofa, v. i., to pant, redup. sofasofa, hasten, to run;

Sofa, s., consumption, hard breathing. [Mg. sefusefu, sevusevu, sevuka, in haste, bustling, to hasten.] H. s'a'af, to breathe hard, pant; to hasten.

Safa, sefa, sefe, inter. pron., what? c. art. insefa, nasafa, what? Without the art. it is used adjectively as sefe nakasu, what tree or wood? With the art. it is used substantively, as, i tili nasafa, what does he say? See Ch. V. 4. c., cc.

Safaki, pr. n. Ma safaki, name given to a man who had buried a relative; a sea animal, so called from burying itself in the sand: afa ki. Safana, c. art. nasafana, what that, what (is) there? safa, and na, dem.: contr. sāna. [My. apa, Epi ava-kai, Malo sava, savana.]

Saf i, or safi, v. t., to pluck or gather fruit; to scrape, safisafi natano (with a hoe), safisafi-raki, scrape, pluck off the husk from (reeds), saft nauot, to excel the chief; safisafi, big, so bisab; bisif, excelling; misafe, to be separated (as fruit from a tree). See also sifa, sifi. Fi. sivi-a, uasivi, excel. H. 'asaf, gather (as fruits), assemble, draw back, take, take away (as breath); radical meaning, to scrape, yasaf, to add, to increase, to surpass, excel.

Saga, or sega, s., a crotch, fork (as made by two branches). [Fi. saġa]; and see nasaġa; Saga-fi, v. t., to take hold of with a crotch or forked stick. [Fi. saja-va, take hold of with tongs.] See sega. A. s'akka, 2, 5, to be sundered, split (wood), s'ikkat, half of a thing, part, distance.

Sāġ, ad., d., there. [My. sana.]

Sa, and g, dem.

Saģaluģalu, d. syn. ģaluģalua: sa-, c. prefix.

Saġarà sa, v. t., to rub, grate, ground on, as a canoe or ship on a reef. [Ha. ili.] Gar i, and sa-.

Sago, s., a trumpet (conch). H. t'aka', E. ṭakwa, to blow a trumpet.

Sai, v. i., to come forth, go forth into the open (as men), saisai, to assemble, sai, to shoot forth (of a plant), buka sai (of a blossom expanding into a flower), sesai, shoot forth (as a serpent), misai, to be opened, cracked;

Sai ki, v. t., make to go forth or out (as the tongue, hand,

anything);

Sai a, v. t., to cleave, split, open it (as a secret. &c.), tili sai a, tell it out, &c.;

Saisai, v. i., assemble (come forth of many); also to be associated together, or have in common, ru saisai isa; saisai ki, make to assemble; so or soă [Sa. soa, Ma. hoa], a follower, companion, associate; sī, to blow (with the breath), to shoot (with a gun), sī, to blow (the wind); d. sui, or sī, to rest, or spell (one), to help; esei, in the open.

an open space; bisai ki, to put forth, to show;

Sai, s., c. art. nesai, a scented, white-leaved plant. A. s'ā'a (y), to become open, be divulged; c. prep. bi, to make open, divulge; to leave undivided; to follow, 2, to roast; to blow (with the breath), 3, follow each other; to aid, 4, make open, s'ai', associate, follower, s'aya', common (to many, see saisai), s'āi', common (to many), not distributed; made open, open; s'ī'at, a band, assembly, s'ayu', a firestick.

Saka-fe, s., first ripe fruits or vams. See taka-fe, d.

Sakau, s., a reef; d. a branch. See kasau. [Fi. t'akau, Sa. aau.]

Saki, v. i., to ascend, go up, bisaki, v. c., to put up, to appoint (raise up) a chief; sakesake, to be up, to sit upon, tasaki, id., sakei ki, to shout a person's name, attributing something (to him). [Sa. a'i, Ha. ae, My. daki, To. hake. Ma. eke, whakaeke.] H. nasak, Arm. nsak, imp., sak, id.

Sala, s. See sela.

sali, v. i., to move lightly, easily, to dance, to float, drift; sali-aki, v. t., to send afloat (a canoe, or anything), to send adrift, misal, misalsal, d. salsal, light (not heavy), moving easily, lightly. H. 'azal, to go quickly (spin along), A. 'azala.

Sali a, v. t., to weave. [My. sâriġ.] H. 'azal, S. 'zal, A. 'azala, to spin, weave.

Sali, v. t., to deceive; and redup.,

Salisali, to deceive. H. s'alah, Hi. to deceive.

Salube, d. saluke, v. i., to be ignorant, not to know. A. sarafa, (3), to be ignorant, not to know.

Sam, a., or ad.. one alone, only: sa, 1, and m for mau.

Sama i, v. t., to rasp, scranch (sugar-cane, in sucking its juice). [Ml. U. tsumwi, Ml. P. jimue, Malo samai]; hence Sama na, s., chips, dregs, shreds (as of sugar-cane with shreds (as of sugar-cane with the juice extracted), sawdust, &c.; hence

Samā, v. i., or a., dreggy, shreddy: -a ending. A. safana, to rub, or shave off the skin, or bark, adze, chip, safin, safinat, H. sefinah, a ship. See seme, or sama, infra; and see sema, sesema. Samben, d., ad., there: sān (sāġ), and bēn, v. i.

Samit i, also samat i, d. sumat i, v. t., to beat, chastise. [Fi. samu-ta, My. chamiti, chamati, a whip or scourge.] H. s'amas, to thrust, to hasten (see infra, sumati), s'amat, to smite, strike, A. s'amasa, to impel, thrust, s'amisa, to hasten, speak hastily, s'amat, Nm., to whip.

Samura, s., a thing or word of no consequence, that falls to pieces, as it were, for sabura: saberi-ki.

Sān, ad., there, here, esān, also esanien. [My. sana.] Esanien is esan, there or here, and i en, it is. See ani, v. i.

Sante, s., d. sëàte na, q.v.

Sào-fi, v. t., to look upon, see, d. sā-fi, sao kiana, look about (in) his place or plantation. H. s'a'ah, and s'a'ah, to look, to look about.

Sar i, or sari, v. t., to saw, also seri, to cut with a sawing motion, sāra, a saw. [Malo sarosaro, to saw, isaro, a saw, Fut. seria, to saw.] H. nas'ar, Arm. nsar, to saw, A. nas'ara, was'ara', as'ara, E. was'ar, wasar, H. sur, to saw, rub, sweep, &c. Hence Sara ġote-fi, to saw asunder.

Sarafi, used as ad.; bat sarafi a, did it hastily, i. e. badly, confusedly, incompletely. See marafi, and cf. tere-ti, sumati. Sarafi is Safal form.

Saria, v. i., to look around; saria kiana, look about, or go about, (in) his plantation. [Fi. sarasara, v. i., to survey, sara-va, v. t.] H. s'ur, (2), to look around or about, (1). to go about.

Saru, v. i., to hang down prostrated (as the broken branch of a tree, or a broken arm), misaru, id. A. ṣara'a, to prostrate, sarī', prostrated.

Saru, v. i., to be loud, noisy, speak aloud, saru ġoro, speak aloud or be noisy, drowning the voice (of someone); and Saruru, v. i., to roar, resound (as the sea, or a waterfall). [My. dâru, Ja. sâru, sru.] A. ṣarra, ṣarīr', to make a noise; to sound, to cry out vehemently, make a great clamour. Sās, esās, ad., here: sa, dem. Sasāna. See sa.

Sati na, s., the shrivelled and worthless seed yam when the new yam has sucked all the substance out of it: sa.

Sau-fi, v. t., to scoop, or shave, the surface off water; to cut or shave off the surface of wood, sau-baba, an adze, lit. plank shaver or cutter—see mataisau, a master cutter, carpenter; to strip off, peel off (as clothes), sau lua i. [Mg. sauka, saufina, to scoop out (water), to draw water, Ef. sau noai.] H. s'a'ab, to draw water. The primary idea lies in taking off the surface, cg. sahaf, to sweep, scrape off, hasaf, to strip off, A. sahafa, to scrape, peel, or rub off, to shave.

Sau, v. i., to blow (wind);

Sau, s., c. art. insau, gentle breeze, cold air, as in the morning and evening. H. nas'af, to blow, nes'ef, the evening twilight, when a colder gale blows; the morning twilight.

Sau, s., dew. [Ma., Tah., Ha. hau, Sa. sau, Mg. andu, dew.]
A. nada', for nadau, dew.

Sau, v., to desire, mesau na, v. t., desire, insau, a gift, sautoġa, id., a free gift, hence, as ad., 'for nothing'; sau uia [Fi. sau vinaka], liberal in giving, sau sa [Fi. sau t'a], stingy; sau mitaki, d., syn. sau uia; sau sera, greedy (desiring everything). A. s'aha', to desire, 2, to say 'I will give what you desire', 3, to be like (someone), 4, to give to one what he desires, 5, 8, to desire (a thing).

SAU-TAKI

Saua i, v. t., to fix (as upon a shelf, in a fork of a tree, &c.). See soa ki (for saua ki);

Sāuā ia, v. t., to shoot with an arrow called saua;

Sāua (sawa), s., a pronged arrow (which adheres tenaciously). A. nas'aba, to stick, inhere, be fixed tenaciously, 2, make a thing be so, 4, id., nos's'ābat, an arrow, Nm. nas'ab, 2, to shoot, squirt, fie, into.

Sau ki, v. t., as, i tumana sau ki nia, he admires himself, sau roa i, to mock such a one by pretending to join with him in such admiring, to mock. A. s'aa (mid. 3), to admire.

Sauro-aki, v. t., to place (their voices) with accuracy together, as giving a shout altogether: for saruru-aki, see saruru, supra.

Sau-taki, v. t., to place upon, as food upon food already in the oven, or as a speech upon a speech by another previously spoken, lit. to make like to: sau, A. 3.

Sautoga, s. See preceding word.

Se, who? some, any; it takes the nominal suf., as seġamu, who of you? seġara, and seara, who of them? or some, any of them, one or more of them. Se (Ch. V. 4. d.), and nom. suf. Segamu (se-ġamu), interrogatively, is, Who (or which) of you? indefinitely, some, or any of you;

Sei, d. fei, inter. pron., sing., who? pl. se mai, d. se mani, d. kihe (for kise) māġa. [Sa. 'o ai, Tah. o vai, Ma. a vai (pl. a vai ma), To. ko hai, a hai, Epi sie, Malo isei, Mg. iza.] See Ch. V. 4. a., and aa. Sĕ, or s, dem., this, here. See sa. Sĕ is the common form. Sē, inter. ad., where? See sā, safa.

Sē. See so i.

Sea, sesea, or seasea (redup.), v., to forget, be forgetful, sesea ġor i, forget him. See maġaseasea. A. saha, to forget, be forgetful.

Seara, d., some, a few. See under segara.

Sëàtě, s., a firestick (by which the fire can be rekindled), dd. santě, tā, sa. See sai.

Sefa, sefe, or sifi. See safa, what? This inter. is sometimes used indefinitely in the sense of whatever, however, as, a belake namanuka sifi naġa, I have received, or I carry, a wound however now (or here), fatu sefa, a stone however, or whatsoever. A. ma, qualiscunque. Seġa, s., or saġa, q.v., a crotch, fork.

Sēka, v. i., to sit; sēka ki, to sit about, or on (someone, or thing, consult about it or him); biseka, v. r., to sit with someone, or with each other. H. s'akan (A. sakana, H. sakan), s'aken, to set oneself down, to lie down, to rest, to abide, dwell.

Sĕkē, skē, v. t., to raise up, set upright: saki.

Sěke-mau, v. i., to swear, sěke, and mau, true: a man who swore, as in denying a charge, often tore off his loin cloth, and imprecated all kinds of calamities upon himself if he were not speaking the truth. A. saḥaga, to peel, scratch, comb the hair, saḥug', frequently and rapidly swearing.

Sekof i, v. t., to catch rapidly with the hand (a thing thrown). A. zakafa, to take rapidly, snatch, 8, to take with the hand, snatch quickly.

Sela-ti, v. t., to bear, carry; d. sola-ti; selasela (of many); sela, bear (a child), bisela, v. r., to bear, bring forth, nafiselan, child-bearing, childbirth, d. bisol. [Fi. t'ola-ta.] E. sawar, to bear, carry.

Sela gisa na, v. t., to call his name (so and so); selà ki, v. t., attribute to (one, something); sela, go, as, sela tera ki, go after (one), sela butuaki, go between two points, be of two minds;

Sela, s., road, path; landingplace of canoe; a portion of time (cf. mal, place, time). [My. salekan, to call, saleh, proceed, saleh, a road.] A. s'ala', to proceed, 4, to call.

Sel i, v. t., to bind. [Fi. soli-a.] H. 'asar, to bind, S. 'sar.

Sel sa, to be unable, selu bia, be able, sele atai nabo na, be able to know his mind, d. for sili atai nabo na, lit. to know (how) to enter his mind, i.e. to understand his secret views: sili, q.v.

Seloa, s., a flat wooden dish. [Mg. suliaka, flat, as a dish.] H. şelaḥa, pans, such as were flat and broad, not deep, A. zuluḥ', large pans, E. ṣaḥl, platter.

Sema, sesema, v. i., to be bare, sticking out (as one's bones), or as the point of an auger or piercing instrument: sama i.

Semasema, v. i., to rejoice. H. samah, to rejoice.

Semam, s., paternal aunt, ana semam, his aunt: susu, mam.

Sema-ni, v. t., to praise, glorify. S. s'abaḥ, Pa., to praise, glorify;

Semanian, s., c. art., praise, glory, also act of praising.

Semani, s., the rudder, or steering oar of a canoe, d.

uose-mān. [Paama seman, TaSa. lamani.] Se, in semani, is contr. for uose, q.v., oar, and mani is manu, a bird, a figure of which (a bird) was carved on the stern of the canoe where the steering oar is held firmly in steering: hence the rudder was called uose-man, the oar of the bird.

Semasemana, or samasamana, v. i., or a., disgusting:
-na, a. ending. A. s'aḥama, to be corrupt (as food).

Seme, or sama, s., the outrigger of a canoe, or, more accurately, the part of the outrigger, shaped exactly like a canoe, which floats in the An. jmaig, i.e. jiwater. maig, Ta. timen, TaSa. sama, Fi. t'ama, t'ama kau, a canoe whose outrigger is only a stick (kau), in distinction from a double canoe: To. hama, the smaller canoe of a double canoe, My. sampan, a small boat, Mg. sambu, a ship.] A. safīnat, safīn', H., S. sefīna, ship, vessel.

Note.—The Tongan hama suggests that the seme, or sama, was originally not a mere log fashioned into the shape of a canoe, but a real canoe, and that the outrigger canoe of Oceania is a degenerate form of the 'double canoe'.

Sera i, v. t., to bind, fasten on, as the handle of a basket on a hook, serā ki, id., seragorobau, a hat, lit. fasten upon the head. H. s'arar, to twist, be firm; S. s'rar, to be firm, s'arar, to make firm, stable, Aph. 'as'ar, to firmly believe. Hence

Sera loamau, seralesoko, believe true;

Sera lobalo, sera teamole, believe worthless, despise; Sera tea sa, sera tea uia, believe bad, believe good ; Sera masīka, make firm desire ;

Sera sog, make firm sog, q.v.;

Sera gor i, make firm upon, or covering.

Sera, v. i., to run, flow (water, stream). A. sāla, id.

Sera i, v. t., to sweep (as a house), tea sesera, a sweeper, broom [Mg. suruka, sweep];

Sera guru-maki, v. t., sweep, gathering together; and

Sera kuruk, v. mid., id.;

Sera taua ki, v. t., sweep into heaps; and Sera lo tua, v. t., sweep things giving (them) to (someone), used of men telling an evil doer of his misconduct and its consequences. Hence

Seralotu, v. mid., to repent; and

Sera tua, v. t., to sweep (together things) giving (them) to (someone), as a peace offering; and

Sera biri ki, syn. ġura biri ki, to startle; and Sera makoto ki, id. A. safara, safr', to sweep (as a house).

Sera ģisa na, d. for sela ģisa na;

Sera usi, v. t., to call (pronounce) after (one, as in learning to read): sela, and usi.

Sera i, v. t., to rend asunder, as the two branches of a forked stick; misera, rent asunder. A. ṣāra, (3), wrench asunder.

Sera, or sere i, or serei, v. t., to importune, entreat. A. nazara, to ask importunately, to entreat pressingly.

Sera lua, v. t., to remove (clothing, &c., from one; also ceremonial uncleanness, sera lua namam), make to go out, or away. A. sāra, 2, remove, make to go; sār', and sāir', the whole, every, part, some, any. Hence Sera, any, some; sera-rogo, sera nalo, something, anything; every, sera natamole, every man; the whole, all (with nom. suf.) sera ra, serasera ra, the whole, all, of them, every of them, sera bakauti era, every of them all; every (kind), sau-sera, greedy, bā sera, going every (where), a vagabond; also, d., i nuf sera, it is finished all [Fi. sara, ad.]; bisera, biserasera, of every kind (i bisera, i.e. i bi sera, it is (in) every (kind, or sort).

Serab, v. i., to flow out (as of a vessel, run over). A. sariba, to flow (of water), sarab', flowing out.

Sera mimi, d., syn. sera bakauti; and Serume (sera 'me): sera, and me, or mimi, contr. of mau, mamau.

Sere, as, nakasu i tuba sere nakalu, the stick thrust tearing the cloth, masere, torn, rent. A. nasara, to tear, to rend.

Sere ra, v. t., dwell among, near them, bisere, to be among, near, bakasere, and masere, q.v. A. 'aṣara, 3, to be near, 6, to be near to each other, 'iṣr', love, &c.

Sereserea, or seriseria, v. i., or a., to be hairy, hirsute; a. ending a. A. s'a'ira, to be hairy.

hairy.

Seri, v., to be unable to do a thing (from old age and infirmity); seri nalo, forsake, leave, abandon a thing. bakaseri, to loose (a prohibition, or tabu). [Fi. sere-ka, untie, unloose.] H. s'arah, Ch. sera, to loose, Pi. s'ereh, to loose, to desert, leave.

Seri, v. t., to speak of. decide, consult about; make a sign, show. A. s'āra, 2, 3, &c., make a sign, show, consult.

Seri, v. t., to strain; sāri is, strain with it, nakalu sāri, straining cloth. S. slal (sal), to strain.

Seri, v. t., to hollow out (as a canoe). H. sur, to hollow out.

Seri, v., as, seri taku-ra, to cover their back, seri namaseri, or namiseri, put on the miseri, q.v.

Seri, seri goto, to cut;

Seritau, s., the cutter-up of a human body for the oven, Seritau, or Saritau, or Sāra, pr. n. of a demon who is lord over the entrance to Hades, and whose helpers are Maseasi, Faus, and Māki. A. ṣara, (5), to cut; and tau, q.v., to cook.

Seru e, v. t., rub. wash (clothes, &c.). seseru, rub (as oil on the head). Same as sesere, sesera. So also,

Sēru, s., a comb. [Fi. seru, Sa. selu, My. sisir, syn. garu.] Sès, d., to be small: sos.

Sesere, d., rub, grate. Same as sesera, sera, to sweep.

Si, v. See su, sua, finished off.

Si, d. soi, v. t., scrape, cut (si nabora na, scrape the cheeks with a shell removing the skin); sisi, redup. A. saḥa', n. a. sahy', scrape off, with the notion of cutting. Nm. also to harrow (the ground).

Sī, sīsī, to blow (wind, breath); sī, v. t., to blow (a thing, as the fire), to shoot (with a gun); sī-ruku: sai, q.v.

Sī, d. sui, to help: sai, q.v. Siba i, d. suba i, v. t., to break (as a yam), redup. sisiba, and sibasiba i; masiba, masibasiba, to be broken, na masiba, a fragment. [Fi. sove, kasove, Mg. sumba, simba.] Ch. s'ibeb, to break in pieces, s'iba, a fragment.

Sibu na, s., feathers (short) on a bird's back. A. ziffu, small feathers (of a bird).

Sieg, v. i., to hang on the waist cloth (of a woman); and Sieg, s., c. art. nasieg, a woman's waist cloth. A. was's'aḥa, v., id., wus'aḥ', s., id.

Siel, a., red. [My. serah.]
A. s'ahila, to be of a dark reddish (&c.) colour.

Sifa, v. i., to depart, withdraw, namaron i sif, his breath departs, i.e. he dies; sifa ki, v. t., make to depart, toss, throw away, sifesife, redup.; sifa, v. i., to assemble. See saft.

Sīfanua, s., a cannon, lit. shoot the land: sī fanua.

Sifili, and sifili ki, d., transposed for sili-fi, sili-fiki, q.v. Sifiri, s., parrot. A. şafara, to sibilate.

Sigi, v., redup. sigsig, v., to be hostile, disobedient; sigsigleo (leo, thing, or voice), to be disobedient, to sin, sigsigleo ki, to be disobedient to (one), nasigsigleoan, disobedience, sin, bisig, q.v., v. r., to stink, to be disobedient, opposed to someone or to each other. A. zahuma, zahm', zahuma, to stink, to be alienated from, hostile to, someone, and therefore disobedient.

Sigsigi, v. t., to kindle. H nasaķ, hisīķ, Ch. asiķ, id.

Sigir i, v. t., or c., to strengthen: gara, and caus. pref. si. [Cf. syn. My. mag-kras kan, My. mampaheri.]

Sikara, v. i., or a., prickly, spiny, and of hair standing on end: ending -ra. A. s'āka, 2, to be spiny, hirsute, s'ākat', spiny.

Sikai, or sikei, num., one, d. sikitika (redup.): tesa (in la-tesa, q.v., d. la-teha), also in masiki, d. mihi, also in gisa, mas, sam; and

Siki, with nom. suf. (translated in this case as nominative, as in H. and A.), as sikīna (his one), he alone, sikīra (their one), they alone, &c. In i sikīna uia (and similar expressions) the meaning is, he alone is good, i.e. he is incomparably good; and Sikiskei, one (by) one; sikiski gisa, one by one together, and see bakasikei. H. 'aḥad, Mod. S. hda, &c.

Note.—[Mg. isa, irai, also isaka, iraika, My. asa, sa, Sa. tasi.] See Ch. II, on this and the other numerals.

Sik ē, v. t., d. siko e, to avenge: soka-ri.

Sikē, or seke, to raise: saki; hence

Sike-rau, d. sī-rau ki, or sīĕrau ki, to raise or lift up a leaf (rau), presenting cooked food to one to be eaten. Sīke, to be swearing, and Sike-mau (see sĕke-mau), to swear true; and Sike, v. t., to comb (the hair): sěke-mau.

Sike-ti, v. t., redup. sikesike, to grasp with tongs, or with a forked stick; hence

Esike, s., tongs, syn. uataki, H. hazak, to hold fast, stick fast (A. hazaka), Hi. to take hold of, seize.

Siki-naki, v. t., to abhor, loathe, abominate, d. masuku-taki, or musuku-taki. A. zahak, Nm., to take disgust for. loathe.

Sikitau, s., only child: sikai, sikei, totau.

Siko e, v. t., to avenge, d. sikē: soka-ri.

Siko sa, v. t., to gaze at: siko mau isa, to gaze continually (see mau) at, redup. siko-siko: hence

Siko, s., kingfisher, lit. gazer (because it sits gazing into the water for fish). H. sakah, Ch. seka', to look at, to contemplate.

Siko-ti, or siku-ti, v. t., to adhere to (someone). continue or dwell with. A. 'as'ika, to adhere to (someone).

Sila i, v. t., as ta sila i, chop, peeling or shaving off, chop or cut a thin shaving off; hence Masilă na, s., a shaving, chip; and masila, masilasila, to be thin. [Mg. silaka, and silaţa, to peel, bark, skin, chip off.]

A. saḥala, to peel, bark, shave, or scale off, mashul', small.

Sila, v., to crack, as thunder, boro silai, buru masila, id., silasila, redup., ta silasila, id. [Sa. faitilitili, Ma. whatiri, Ha. hekili.] A. ṣalla, ṣalṣala, to sound, to crack (thunder), muṣalṣil, braying (an ass).

Sila i, v. t., to help, aid, support, strengthen, tasila (dd. tasiga, ahika) helper, supporter, sīl, wall plate (supporter of roof), tua-sīl, givers of support (to a chief, as giving food or other aid when he is making a feast, &c.). A. 'azara, 2, to aid, help, strengthen, support, make firm, H. 'azar, to help, aid. Hence Sīl, s., wall plate (supporter) of a house, help (tua sīl, give aid or help).

Sila i, or sela i, d. sol i, silasila i, v. t., to rub, as to rub (oneself with oil, &c.) [Fi. sola-ta, rub, Sa. soloi, wipe, Ma. horoi, wash, Ha. holoi, wash, wipe, brush.] A. "asala, "usul', to wash.

Sili, v. t., to enter, sili isa, enter it (a house), enter him, that is enter under his protection; sili-fl a, enter into him (as a spirit or demon into a man); sili-faki, or sili-flki, make to enter into, also thrust or throw into (anything into anything). [Sa. sulu, thrust into, take refuge, sulu-fa'i, and sulu-ma'i, My. julok, thrust into, Mg. juluka, enter, Fi. t'uru, t'urut'uru, t'uru-ma, t'uru-maka, enter, push, or thrust into.] A. daḥala, n.

a. duḥ'ul', to enter (a house); take refuge with, 2, make to enter, 4, make to enter, thrust, &c., in. This word is used much to denote among other things the entering into a man of a spirit or demon. See alialia.

Sili ki, or sila ki, v. t., make to shake (anything; if water, to sprinkle), silisili ki, id., to pour out, shake out, throw away, throw down, ru sili ki fisera, they flee in different directions (those overcome in battle), lit. they throw (themselves, shake out, or scatter themselves) in different (or every, or all) directions. H. zalal, to shake, make tremble, pour out, shake out, A. zalzala, to shake, make to ${f tremble}.$

Simbolo, s., d., a basket. A. zibbil', zimbil', id.

Simi-ki-leo, or sima-leo, d. suma-ki-leo, s., echo, lit. sound of the voice. A. zā-mat, vehement sound, and leo. Sina, or sinĕ, v. i., to shine, be clear, us i sine, the rain clears up, Fi. ut'a sa siġa. [Fi. siġa, sun, day, My. siyaġ, day, clear.] A. ṣaḥa', E. saḥawa, H. ṣaḥaḥ, to shine, be clear; sun, day, in derivatives. See Ch. II. 17 g.

Sīnu, sisīnu, v. i., to be hot, burn (of the grass on the hills, yearly). to be inflamed (of one's face) nako na i sīnu, his face is inflamed (with passion); hence

Sīnu, s., c. art., the burning of the grass on the hills; a place on which the grass has been burned: see also tunu, bitunu, d. biṣīn. [Sa. sunu.] A. saḥ'ana, n. a. ṣuḥ'un', to be hot, saḥ'una, and sah'ina, to be hot, 2, to heat, suḥ'n', and ṣuḥ'n', hot, H. s'aḥan, S. s'ḥen, to be hot, inflamed (sore), heat oneself at the fire.

Siora, s., a pipe for drawing off water from one place and pouring it out at another; said to be for sie rau (for sike rau, lit. lift up, distribute).

Sīrak, a., used as s., for sītaki, i. e., sī tāki, blow, heeling over (a canoe), a squall or high wind: sī, to blow, and tāki, to incline over.

Si-rau, or sīerau, contr. of sikerau.

Siri ki, v.t., to scatter, sprinkle, of seeds, water, siri kīa ki, i. e., siri ki uia ki, scatter or sow well (seeds); and

Sirisir i a, v. t., to scatter (or sprinkle) on him (as water or blood spurting on one);

Siri, v. i., to sprout, shoot (of a plant); and Siria, d., v. i. (-a, ending), to sprout, shoot; and Siri na, s., c. art., a shoot, sprout; and used of men, offspring; hence in proper names of children and men, siri, (seed, offspring) as, siri fakal, &c. H. zara, scatter, disperse, especially to scatter seed, sow, bear seed (of a plant), zere, seed, offspring, A. zara, scatter seed, to produce plants.

Sisi, si, redup.; hence

Sīs, s., a shell used for scraping. Sīsī, v. i., redup. of sī, to blow; hence Sīsī, s., a gun; sī fanua, a cannon.

Sito, v. i., cacavit, A. s'aḥaṭa, (8), cacavit.

Siu, s., a pricker, or awl (a sharpened bone). [To. hui, needle or pin (of bone).] A. s'i'a', a prick, spike. See sui. Siua (siwa), v. i., to hunt for fish, or shellfish (on the reef), siuē (siua i) v. t., hunt (fish, or shellfish, on the reef). A. sāfa to examine or explore the ground by the smell, hence to hunt.

Siua, or sua, d. siuo (siwo), (suwa), v. i.. to descend. [Sa. ifo, To. hifo, An. asuol (asuwol.)] A. safala, suful', sifl', to be low, to descend.

Siuer (siwer). dd. suara, suuara, surata, v. i., to walk, proceed, go away, sisiuer, redup., walk about. [Sa. savali, savaliyali, savalija.] A. safara, 3, n. a. sifar, &c., to make a journey, go away. See Ch. III. h, and pp. 70-1.

Soa, s., c. art. asoa na, companion, follower, or neso (art. ne), especially of the opposite sex, hence, tauso, q. v.: sai. [Fi. sa.]

So e, d. sē (for so i), v. t., to call (one);

Soso, v. t., redup., to call, sos i

(for soso i) call (him): also in bioso, rasoso, rasloso. E. saw'a to call, H. s'ua', Pi.

Soa ki, soüa ki. See sāua ki. Soà-ni, or soè-ni, v. t., to mock. A. haza, to mock.

Soàr i, or souar i, v. t., to abrade, scrape, scratch, as raģo i souari rarua, the roller scrapes, scratches, or tears by scraping, or abrades (the bottom of) the canoe, souasouar i, redup., and soàra, or souara, v. i., to split open (as a ripe seed, pod, or banana), i. e., to be abraded, or uncover or abrade itself. S. safar to shave, to abrade, H. safar (to scratch, polish), to write. A. safara, to sweep, uncover the face (a woman), to shine (the dawn), H. s'afar (scratch, polish), be bright, beautiful, Ch. s'ĕfarpara, S. s'afra, the dawn.

Soata, v. i., to slip. A. dahas'a, to slip. E. děhas'a.

Sobē na, s., c. art., the nape, or back of the neck. E. zaban, id., A. zabbunat, neck. Sobu, v. i., d. syn., bēa, to precede, be first. A. sabaka, sabku, to precede, be first.

Sofa, sofasofa, v. i., sōfa, s. See sefa.

Soga, s., c. art., d. nasok, dust, rubbish, a lot of things (belonging to one);

Sogasoga, id.; hence

Soga-leba, s., a rich man, lit. big lot of things; and, d.,

Sogoa, v. i., or a. (ending. a), rich;

Sok, d. soġa, s.; Soksok, d. soġasoġa, s.; Sok-leb, d., soġa-leba; also Sok, s., d., c. art., a cloud. H. s'aḥak, dust, a cloud, A. saḥ'k'; the verb signifies to rub, hence dust (from being rubbed small).

Note.—Sogoa, lit. signifies full of dust, dusty, dust being taken in the sense which is given it in the vulgar English phrase 'to come down with the dust'.

Soġ i, or soġi, v. t., d. suġ i. Soġo-ni, v. t., to press upon, compress (one, as by crowding upon him), to straiten. soġosoġo-ni, redup.;

Sōġ, or sōġĭ, s., what straitens, compulsion, force, constraint, &c., as, i meri sogi au, makes or uses constraint or force upon me (to compel me to do something), i tili sõģ soko i, he declares force or compulsion upon him make him pay a fine, or to suffer death, as the case may My. såsak, straitened, sâsakkan, to straiten. suk, Hi. (A. s'aka, 2), to straiten, compress, press, urge upon, force, compel, H. sōk, distress.

Soi, d., v. t. See sī, to scrape. [Fi. so-ya, soi.] Hence Soi, or soia, s., the hole scraped out for the yam to be planted in.

Sōk, s., c. art., what stops or blocks, as a dam: suk i, q.v. Soka, v. i., to leap, jump, go swiftly; to be violently excited, inflamed with anger (of the belly); soka i, v. t., to spear; inivit mulierem; soka-ba, v. i., to go swiftly away, hence, s., what goes swiftly away, a worthless or lost thing or person; soka-baki, v. t., throw away, make to be soka-ba; soka ki, v. t., make to soka, throw. A. zaḥ'ḥ'a, (4), leap, (2), inivit mulierem, (5), go with vehemence, (6), to be angry, burn with rage.

Soka-ri, v. t., to join on to (one thing on to another), then to repay (one thing by another, the one thing being regarded as joining on to, or touching, the other), to avenge (one slain, by slaying another, also sikē, d. siko); soka-soka-ri, redup.;

Sokarian, s., c. art., a joining, as a splice; repayment, retribution, vengeance;

Soka-taki, v. t., to join on to, to meet, tumara soka-taki ra, meet together. H. nas'ak (A. nasaka), to join, 2), kiss (join mouth to mouth), join on to each other, meet (of two things), Hi. to join on to (one thing on to another).

Soko, v. i., or a., to be true, true, as naleona i sokō sa his voice (prediction) is true as to or about it (thing predicted, as is known when it takes place as foretold), leor losoko, a true thing, truth, tili lesoko, to speak truth, d.

syn. tili mori, speak true, d. tili loamau, speak truth. See also masoko. [Sa. sa'o, straight, correct, right, My. suġ''uh, true.] A. ṣadaķa, n. a. ṣadķ', to be true, H. ṣadaķ, to be straight, right, just.

Soli, v. t., rub. See sila i, id. Soli, sosoli, v. i., to creep (i. e., to rub or scrape along the ground, cf. karafi);

Asolat, s., a worm: a, art. [Sa. totolo, ps. tolofia, Fut. toro, Ha. kolo, TaSa. tari, Malo nsalansala, to creep, sulati, a worm.] H. zahal, to creep, crawl.

Sore, v. i., to lie, be untruthful, d. bisuru;

Soresore, id. H. zur, to turn aside, A. zāra, tell lies.

Sor i, or sori, v. t., to give (a thing). [Fi. soli-a, give, My. sârah, and srah, to submit, sârah kan, to give. A. ş'ara'a, 1, to submit, 4, to give. Soro, v. i., to burn, flame, soro-fi, v. t., send a flame on to, also to treat with violence, to rush violently and with savage rage upon (as a wild pig charging a man), bakasorosoro-fi, v. c., make the fire to burn up. [Mg. doro, Sa. tolo, matoro. A. sa'ara, to kindle (a fire, war), 2, to rage (of a camel), 3, to treat with cruelty and rage. so'r', blaze of fire, rage, insanity, sa'ir' flame of fire, fire bursting into flame.

Soroà sa, v. t., to covet, desire;

Sōro, a. used as s., a covetous person, and see miseroa. A. s'ariha, to covet.

Soroa, d., v. i., to be sick, syn. sasāna. A. s'arro, fever, and a ending, from s'arra, to be bad, as sasāna, from sa.

Soroa, s., c. art., d. tiroa.

Sore, v. t., to saw (one, of the breakers sawing one on the reef); and Soro-aki, v. t., to make a man's body saw on the reef (of the waves or breakers): sar i.

Sos, v. i., to be small (syn. mito), d. sēs, small, little. E. heṣoṣ, id.

Su, sua, v. i., to rise up (tobu i tubu sua, swells up) as ground in which the growing yams are swelling (cf. lua); another form of this word is tu, to stand up;

Su raka-ti, v. t. (to take up, lift up), to startle;

Sua i, v. t., to take up, lift up. then to take, receive, obtain, acquire, as, i su naleo, he obtained something; and to bear, as, i su nafolofolon sa anena, he bore his sin, i.e., he received its punishment; and to meet, as, i sua nata, he met a person, bisua, v. r.; su-naki, to carry on the head (of women), su-ni, to put on (clothes), hence susu, clothed (having clothes upon or carried or borne by one); to meet or take up the (odour of a thing) su rogi nabon.

The notion of meeting is in that of lifting oneself or rising up against (one); and a swelling in the skin is said to sua, i. e., raise itself up, it rises up; su (nasuma), s., the upper part (ridge-pole) of a house, and masua, s., the highest part or top of anything. Su or sua is also used in proper names of children, as Sua ragoa, &c. H. nasa', to take up, lift up, E. nasa, take, receive, A. nas'a', be exalted, grow, to bear, carry, to bear one's sin, that is, to receive its punishment. H. si', se'et', height, a raising or lifting up, a rising up in the skin, A. nas'a', to grow up, to be raised, high, 4, to produce, 10, perceive or feel the odour (of a thing), nasā, sprout or shoot (of a plant)—sua (in pr. names), young people.

Su, sua, d. si, v., finished off, as, i nu su, it is ended or completed, finished off, i bati su ē a, he has finished off doing it; i bano su, he has gone, he has finished off going, completed going. The word thus forms with any other verb a completed tense denoting that what is expressed by the first verb is finished off. A. sawa, 2, 8, to finish, be finished.

Su na, s., c. art., highest part (as ridge of a house, or top of the head), cf. masua na, top (of anything): su, or sua.

Sū na, s., c. art. nasū na, q.v., juice.

Sua, for suua (suwa), siua, siuo.

Sua, s., brother. See tai. Suasua, v. i., to be willing;

Sua ki, v. t., to impel, order, send. See bisuaki, A. s'ayiya, 1, to be willing, to will, 2, to impel.

Suara, or suuara (suwara), susuara, d. siuer, q.v.

Suāra, v. t., to meet (as a head wind, any obstruction in one's way): sua, and ara, v. t.

Suer, v. i., d. suerai.

Suerai, v. i., to put out rai, i. e. tai, q.v., dung, cacavit: sui, see sai, v. t., and tai.

Suër i, v. t., to vituperate, d. sur. S. se'ar, to vituperate. Suba i. See siba i.

Sube, v. t., to place, determine, appoint, constitute, syn. tōnaki, as, i sube biri a, he appoints it over again (and differently), syn. tōnaki biri a, as to appoint a day of meeting, &c., and afterwards to alter the day, appointing another; i sube roa au, he appoints me, changing, changes or alters (roa, to turn round, to alter) the appointment he made with me, as having first appointed me a certain day, he afterwards changes the appointment to another day; hence

Sube, s., what is placed, fixed, redup. susube, as upright stones firmly planted in the ground, nafera susube, row of such stones, sube, such a stone, a statue, an idol or sacred stone; a thing fixed firmly, as a plank firmly nailed, a stone firmly fixed, a wind continuing firmly in one quarter, nalagi i bi sube the wind is firmly fixed (in some quarter); also, custom, as a thing fixed, sube nafanua, custom of the country. sube na, its or his custom. also the fixed nature, custom. or disposition, sube nig Atua i lēģ, the nature, custom, or disposition, or fixed acter of God is righteous: sube i tonaki nafanua, the fixer, or constitutor, or establisher—fixed, established, or constituted the country. this last sense it is a general term used to denote either the first or early or ancient inhabitants of a place (the original settlers of a district), or, which is the same thing in another form, the persons who figure in Efatese myths, or the spirits of such, now being natemate; or the deity who constituted the world. In the same active sense sube in Epi denotes chief, or headman, dd. tumbo, sumba, Malo sube, id. H. nissab, officer, director. In the Shepherd Islands it is now used for Atua, q.v. [Ma.

tupu, firmly fixed, Sa. tupua, a stone supposed to have been a man petrified, image, Fi. tovo, habit, nature, practice.] H. naṣab, i. q. yaşab, to set, put, place, Hi. hissib, to make to stand, place, erect, set up (as a column), fix, establish bounds), Ho. to be fixed, planted, yaşşib, firm; nasaba, to place, fix, set up, declare, appoint, constitute; nasb', a thing set up, a statue, what is worshipped besides God, i.e. an idol; naṣīb, erecting, setting up; nașibat, stones placed or fixed round a waterhole.

Sub-neki. See sabo-naki. Subu. See sobu, v. i., and d., s., child, offspring.

Su-bua, v. t., to lift up, or ascend, bursting or breaking through (the ground, hence subua (natano), a demon or demons who do so), syn. subora i, and sua-sai: su or sua, to rise, or lift up, and bua.

Sug i, v. t., to kiss, d. sum i. Sug i, v. t., to block up, d. suk i, q. v.

Sui, v. t., d. sī, q.v., to help; to blow upon; also (see sai), to make holes in (as a moth in cloth); also to burn with heat, as elo i sui a, the sun burns him; and redup., elo i tera suisui, the sun shines burning (hot); and Sui, s., heat; sui ni elo, heat of the sun. See sai.

Suk i, v. t., d. suġ i, to block up, obstruct. A. s'akka, (2), (3), block up, obstruct;

Suk i, v. t., to cause to stoop, suki lifa ia (a burden) makes him stoop, bending him; to still, as suki namaritana, still the commotion (of passion) within him, suki namaieto, stills the anger; and

Suki, v. i., to be patient, firm, quiet, still, sink (subside). H. s'akak, to stoop (A. s'akka), subside, be appeased, Hi. to still;

Suki, v. t., make fast, firm, seli suki a, bisa, tili (&c.) suki a, tie firm, speak making it firm and sure, meri sukisuki, make firm, turi suki, nail firm. A. s'akka, (3). adhere, cohere firmly;

Suki, v. t., to stick, stab. A. s'akka, (7), transfix (with a spear).

Suka, v. i., to draw back, recede, sukasuk, redup.;

hence

Sukei, or sukai, s., c. art., the receding (of food). the annual time of scarcity of food. opp. to namasu. [Fi. suka, ef. t'uqa.] H. nasag, sug, to draw back, retreat.

Suku-ti. See siko-ti.

Suku-ti. See sike-ti.

Sula, v. i., to rise up (as a rising ground);

Súla, s., a rising ground. H. salal, to lift up, cast up a bank.

Suli na, s., shoot (as of a banana), offspring (of man); hence

Sulia, v. i., to have shoots (as a banana). [Sa. suli, a young banana, son of a chief.] H. neṣer, a sprout, shoot; off-spring.

Su-lua i, v. t., to bring up (a child): su, or sua, and lua.

Sulu ē, v. t., to scorch with flame, illuminate with a torch (ne sulu), and see masula ki; hence

Sulu, s., c. art. nasulu, a torch. [Sa. sulu, v. and s., Ja. suluh.] A. s'a'ala, 1, 2, 4, to kindle (a fire), 8, be kindled, 10, light or kindle (a torch), s'u'ulu, flame of fire, mas'al', a torch.

Suma, s., c. art. nasuma, house, d. uma, d. hima, see also katema, imrum: [My. rumah, Ja. umah, Ml. im, TaSa. ima, Motu ruma.] A. h'a'mat, h'im' &c., house.

Sumat i, v. t., to beat, d. samit i; d. sumanr i, to beat, also used as an ad., hastily, confusedly, ineffectively, as, lo sumanr i, brig sumanr i, &c., see, do hastily, confusedly, ineffectively (cf. sarafi, tere-ti). See samit i.

Sum i, v. t., to kiss, dd. suġ i, soġ i. [An. aijumnyi, to kiss, Sa. soġi, rub noses, salute, soġisoġi, to smell, My. chyum, to smell, to kiss.] A. s'amma, to smell. There is no trace of this meaning in sum i. In E. sa'ama is to kiss.

Sum i, v. t., to suck, as fat. [My. isap, An. at'moi, to kiss, lick, suck, as fat.] A. saḥab, Nm., suck in (liquid or air).

Sume-li, v. t., to make a sucking noise to (to attract one's attention). See preceding word.

Sumi-li, v. t., d. sumo-li, to shut, close (as a door), to patch up, repair (as a hole in a mat); hence Sumili, s., a thing like indiarubber in a clam shell which, when touched, causes the shell to close; an ornament (shell) which stops up a hole pierced in the septum of the nose. A. samma, (4), to stop (as a bottle), (6), to patch up, repair (a thing).

Sur, v. i., to go (of a departed spirit going to Hades); siuer.

See Ch. III. h.

Sur i, v. t., d. suer i, q.v.

Sura i, v. t., to root up, extirpate (as the things growing in one's plantation). E. sarawa, to root up, extirpate.

Surata, sursurata, v. i., d. for suara, to walk, go on a journey. See Ch. III. h.

Suru ki, v. t., make to suru, i. e. to be covered, as by inserting an arrow head into the (reed) shaft; and

Suru-faki, v. t., make to be covered, as by thrusting a thing into the dust or earth; and Suru ģoi, v. t., to cover.

drain out (as the milk of a cocoanut) by covering the aperture of the nut with the mouth and draining out the contents. For ġoi see go i. Tasuru ki, to conceal, suruoli, dd. suruili, suruauli (see uli, auli), to take the place, or assume the form of, hiddenly or stealthily, and, s., a demon, or demons, who do this to destroy men. My. suruk, to conceal, Mg. saruna, to cover. E. sawara, to cover, tasawara, to be hidden, secret, to hide.

Su-rua, s., upper of the two ridge-poles of a house: su na, and rua, two.

Suru ē, v. t., to allure, tempt (deceiving), lit. to deceive;

Surusuru ē, id., redup. See sore, bisuru.

Suruk, i.e. su-ruk, also si-ruk, and sai-ruk (see sai, and ruku), to go into the ruku (of anything).

Surut i, v. t., to scarify, make fissures on the surface of anything. A. s'arata, to scarify.

Susu, s., the breast or breasts; a calabash (round like a breast): susu na, d. his mother, lit. his breast, or mamma; hence

Susu, v., to suck the breast, bakasusu, to suckle. [Sa. susu. the breast, to suck the breast, Fi. sut'u, the breasts, to suck the breast, My. susu, Mg. nunu, the breasts.] H.

s'od, A. t'idy', pl. t'udiyy', breast, breasts.

Ta, passive or reflexive passive prefix to many verbs. [Fi., Sa., My., Ja., Mg., id.] A., E., ta, reflexive or reflexive passive prefix to verbs.

Ta, and ta, nom. and verb. suf., 3 pl. (very common), for ra.

Ta, s., for ata, man, person.

Ta, neg. ad., not. dd. ti, tu, and see sa. [Sa. le, My. ta,
Mg. si.] H. lo, le, li, Ch.
la, A. la.

Ta i, v. t., to chop, cut, also to speak or utter (as it were making a chopping noise), redup. tata. [Fi. ta-ya, My. tatah, Sa. ta, Mg. tatana.]

A. haḍḍa, to cut quickly; utter speech quickly.

T', conj., that (because), ta, that I, te, that he, te ku, that you: tě.

Ta, ad., now, dd. syn. uo, ko, i, as, i ta toko, i uo toko, i ko toko, he yet (now) remains: ta, dem.

Ta, verb. pron., 1 dual incl. [An. intau, Sa. ta, taua.] The ta of nigita, or ninita, and -a. See Ch. V. 2.

Țā, or rā, d. nrā, q.v., blood. Originally tā, as in mitā, to bleed.

Ta, s., d. sa, d. sëàtĕ, q.v. Tā na, s., friend, companion. [Cf. Fi. tau, to, Ma. ta.] A. ṣāḥi, contraction of ṣaḥib', friend, companion, ya ṣaḥi, (cf. Ma. e ta!) O friend, comrade! ṣaḥaba, to be a friend or companion, to take with one as a companion, 3, to accompany (someone), 8, to be companions to each other. Hence bitā, and bitā-naki, q.v.

Ta-atuta, v. and s.: ta, cut, speak, utter, and atuta, s., a fixed or appointed time; ta-atuta ki, appoint a time and place (of meeting) to (someone). H. 'adad, A. 'adda, to number, especially days, time, hence S. 'ad'da, same as H. mo'ad, a set time, appointed time, cg. H. ya'ad, A. wa'ada, 3, to appoint a time and place (of meeting).

Ta-bau, s., syn. taġoto-bau, a cap, or hat, lit. cut-head.

Ta, v., to bend, bow. incline, extend, as, ta bau, bend the head, bow, ta tuba, strike. turning aside, deflecting (a spear, &c.). ta ġor i, extend over it (of time, so many days), ta ġor i, extend over (or cover) it (the day in the past named). H. naṭah, fut. yiṭṭeh, to extend, to incline, to bow, to turn.

Tab, d. tiba, dd. tama, tam, neg. ad., not: ta, not, and ba, for ma, as in Assy. aama, not. i.e. H. mah, A. ma, used indefinitely.

Taba na, d. tauba na, s., side, or shore (as a side). [Ma. tapa.] A. ṭaff', side, shore.

Taba i, d. tama i, q. v.

Taba, v. t., to be like, tabale, to be like that thing (taba le), so, also tabalai, tabalān, tabalas, tabalo uai (taba lo, or l' (thing), and uai, n, s, i, dem.) to be like that or this thing, tabalo uanaġa, id.; also tabale sā? tabale safa? to be like what thing? to be how? [My. damakiyan so, Mg. mituvi.] H. damah, to be like.

Tāba, s., property given away in payment of a fine for misconduct: tā, to cut, and ba (away) as in soka-ba.

Taba, v. i., to turn, bend, taba lo sua, or lo saki, bend looking down, or up, taba kai, bend contracting the stomach (as to avoid a spear), bitelo tababa, to be bent with hunger, also tama, as tamà-lu, d. tumalu, to bend rising (in setting forth or out), taba soka, to bend, leaping (as in climbing a tree), d. tama, or tuma soka, also, to leap aside. A. dafa'. 6, to turn hither and thither, dafa', bending, 'adfa', bent. curved (of men).

Tabaraba, for rabaraba.

Tabag, v. t., to slap. [My. tapuk, Ja. tabuk.] E. tafaha, to clap with the hand, Ch. tepah, the palm of the hand, My. tapak, id.

Tabalaga, v. r. (see balaga-ti), to raise itself off, as a scab, &c. Reflexive causative.

Tabalās, or tabalāsoa, v. i., tabale, and aso, to burn, to peel itself off after a burn (of the skin): tabal, is the reflexive of bale-si, or balasi; and

Tabales, v. i., reflexive of bale-si, to peel itself off, as the skin of one's lips; and Tabales, s., husk (as of cocoanut, chestnut), finger nails.

Tabara, v. i., to be burned.

Tabara ki, v. t., to burn: bara.

Tabare, tabarebare, v. i., reflexive of bora i, to be split, split open, to be open.

Tabàre, s., a male animal. Compare E. tabā't, mas, a male.

Tabaro, tabarobaro, v. i., to be heedless, careless, disobedient: reflexive of baro; and Tabaro, d., s., senselessness, sin.

Tabasuli, v. i., to be detached, broken off: reflexive of basuli.

Tabau sa, v. t., to cover, to be over (surpass, be above another): tabau-ġoro, lid, cover: bau.

Tābelu, v. i., reflexive of belu, q.v.

Tab e, v. t., to take. [Fi. tube-a, Mg. taba.] S. nsab, to take.

Tabe, s., c. art. natabe, a freshet; see tafe.

Tabe, v., to lean or incline, tabe to osa, lean abiding on it, tabe ki, lean upon, trust in (a thing); Tabitab, s., a thing leaned upon, or trusted in. [Fi. ravi, My. arapi.] A. s'āfa, 4, to make to lean or incline (a thing towards a thing), 1, be the guest of someone.

Tabei, v. t., to desire or purpose setting the mind on. A.

bayya, 5. id.

Tabera ki, v. t., to make to be tabera, scattered, taberafera, or taferafera, to be scattered, taberafera ki, make to be so: bera, berafera.

Tabes, s., axe: ta, to cut, and þēs.

Tabeti, v. i., to adorn oneself. S. sabet, to adorn, Ethpa. adorn oneself.

Tabilakiġon, d. tabilaġon, v. i., to stumble, d. tabila kon, id. lit. to strike, or knock (the foot) by mistake (hastily) fast (that is, the foot caught fast): ta, bila, or bile, ġon, or kon.

Tabisa, v. i., to speak;

Tafisafisa, v. i., to pray: bisa. Tābora i, v. t., to cut, splitting

(a thing);

Tāborai na, s., c. art.. the body where it forks off or is divided into the two legs: ta, bora i.

Tabos, v. i., compressed, narrow: bosa.

Tow . posa.

Tabotai, v. t., to divide; ta, cut, and bota.

Tābu, s., naked people, people of other islands of the New Hebrides, so called by the Efatese: ta, men, and bua r. Tabu, tab, v. i., or a., to be forbidden, prohibited; to be sacred;

Tabua, s., c. art., sacredness; and Tabuan, s., id. A. dabba, n. a. dabbu, to prohibit.

Tabua, v. i., to be split open. cracked, also mafua: ta, and bua.

Tāfa, s., c. art. natāfa, a hill, lit. that which goes up or is high; and Tāfa (d.), ad., high, above. [Fi. t'abe.] T. dayaba, to go up.

E. diba, above.

Tafagka, tafakăka. See baku. Tāfakarua ki, i. e., tā, utter, and bakarua; to repeat a thing, as a slanderer's words to the person slandered.

Tafar. See taiār.

Tafasi, v. See fasu, eyebrows. Tafe, v. i., to flow out, go out. [Sa. tafe, Fi. dave, id.];

Tafe, s., c. art., d. tabe, freshet. [Sa. tafiġa, id.] H. zub, Arm. dub, to flow out.

Tafea, d. for tofe, q.v.

Tafera, s., c. art., breaker, breakers; and Taferafera, v. i., to break, as waves. See bera.

Tafi, v. t., to be near. A. ṭaffa, to be near.

Tafi na, s., and c. art. a, atafi, follower, successor of a chief (next in rank), that is, his present helper and right hand man, and who is his recognized successor. A. tabic, follower, helper.

Tafifi, v. i., to be involved, entwisted: fifi, fisi.

Tafilo, tafolo, taifolo, and Tafulus. See bulo ki, bulusi. Tafiloga. See bulo ki, and bologa.

Tafirofiro, to be twisted

(crooked): biri.

Taġa, s., basket, d. toġa, q.v.; d. stomach. [Sa. taġa, taġa 'ai.]

Tagal, s., a hook for hanging things on: tageli.

Taġaraġara, v. i., or a., strong : ġara, ġaraġara.

Taġaru, v. t., to grasp: kar i. Taġataġ, s., a mist, or mass of clouds: taġotaġo.

Tagau, s., a hook, so called from seizing;

Taġau, taġauġau, v., to grasp, seize;

Tagau lua, select, lit. grasp or seize, lifting up or out: gau, kau.

Taġelĭ, taġelĭġelĭ. See takel.
Taġi, v. i., to wail, cry, ring, sing, clank, hum, &c. (as a drum, &c.); taġi-si, v. t., to bewail, taġitaġi, redup., nataġian, wailing, sounding (in various ways). [Sa. taġi, My. taġis, Mg. tani, a cry, tumani, mitumani, to cry.] A. ṭanna, to tinkle, &c., Nm. to clank, ring, hum. tanien, din, tantun, to tinkle, jingle.

Tàgia, v., d. tine (ndine), to hoist the sail on a canoe, tagi-aki rarua. See under miten, and tago.

Note.—The idea is that of making the sail mount on the canoe as a horseman mounts a horse, or a burden mounts, or is placed upon, the back.

Tàġièġi, v. i., to be slow, dilatory. A. āka, 5, to be averse, to delay.

Tagotago, v., to be placed one thing above or upon another, as the stories of a house, banks of clouds (see tagatag), generations of men; and Tago na, s., such a thing, or things, as the story of a house, a generation of men, leaves of a book (which lie one upon the other). See under miten (and cf. tiana, tagi-aki, mitaga).

Taġo-fi, v. t., to beg, ask (a person for a thing), tataġo sa, beg, ask for (a thing); bitaġo, v. r., to be asking, begging, earnestly (from others). [My. taña, tañai, id.] See bitali.

Tagoto, s., tomahawk, axe: ta, goto; and Tagote-fi, v. t., to cut with an axe.

Tagura, s., a heap (of stones): guru, kuru.

Tai or tae, v. t., d. for ata i, or atai, to know. H. yada, to know.

Tai, s., excrement, filth. [Sa. tae, My. tai, Mg. tai.] H. seah, excrement, filth, from yaşa', to go out.

Tai na, s., d. ke sua, brother's brother, or sister's sister. [Fi. tat'i, Malo tasi, Ml. tesi, Bauro asi, Epi tahi, Motu tadi, My. ad·ik, Bu. anri, Mg. zandri.] A. raṣī, brother, properly collactaneous, from rasica, to suck.

Taiār, a., d. tafar; fatu taiar, or tafar, crumbling stone: bera, taferafera.

Taifolo, d. tafolo.

Tairai, d. rairai.

Taka, a.. such as. like, such like: S. da'k, id. ('ak, and d'). talis;

Takani (takan uan, takana uai, &c., putting any dem. after it) like this, that, &c.; so, in this way, in that way, thus, &c.; also, interrogatively, how? S. da'k hana (for da'k, see preceding word), such as this, like this. This S. word is composed of d' (dem. or relative pron.), a', or ai (inter.), k', as, like (ad.), and hana, or 'na, this; without the d', S. 'akana, how?

Taka, is also used thus, bi taka sikei, are as one, alike, sera tāka, every what-like, or kind, taka leba, first-born of children, taka-fē, d. saka-fē, first ripe (yams), taka riki, youngest of children.

Taka-ni, v. t., to thrust on, or into (a thing), to thrust (a thing), taka sila ki, thrust making to shake or fall. H. daḥah, A. daḥa, &c., to thrust.

Takal i, or tikal i, d., v. t., to carry. S. s'kal to carry.

Tak'amo, or takaamo, to carry on a stick across the shoulder: taki, and amo.

Takāra, s., the crowd, lit. men

(ta) gathered together (kāra): ta, kuru, ġuru.

Takara, s., c. art. natakara, that which seizes, or grasps, or lays hold (of one), as the consequence of some act, &c. See kar i, tagaru.

Takāri, v. i., to hasten, go swiftly, sail swiftly (as a canoe): kāri.

Takel, takelkel, v. i., or a., to be crooked, then unrighteous, d. taġelĭ, taġelĭġelĭ. H. 'akal, 'akalkal, A. 'akila, 5, &c., id.

Takes, d. for nakes, or nakisa: kisa.

Tak i, or taki, v. t., to fasten (as thatch on a roof, a rope on a log, anything on anything), and see mitakitaki; to fasten the tongs on an oven stone (to lift it), bitaki, uataki, otaki; and matuki, trusted in, confident, brave. [My. taguh.] A. wat'ika, to trust in, be firm, steadfast, confident, resolute. 4, to fasten, to bind.

Tāki, v. t., to incline, to pour out (anything by inclining a vessel); taki, to incline (one-self), taki mita, incline watch, taki toroġo-saki, incline, hearken to, lo tāki, look inclined, look round or back, mitaki, to be inclined, lean over (as if ready to fall); see sī-rāk, i. e. sī-taki, a squall, lit. blow, incline (a canoe, or cause it to heel over on its side). H. ṣa'ah (A. ṣa'a'), to incline (as a vessel which is to be emptied); to be inclined, bent, stoop.

Taku, v. i., to be after, behind, d. nruk; or itaku, inruk; Taku na, s., the back; etaku, or itaku, at the back, behind (d. inruk), also outside (the village), also the (time) behind, or after (as opposite to the time before, the past), as te naliati etaku, some day after, as he died, sela itaku ru afa ki nia, some time after they buried him, generally tau itaku, naliati itaku, the years, or days after (i.e., hereafter), naliati itaku mau, the last day, day of judgment. Sa. tua, Malo tura, Epi taka, Motu dolu, the back.] A. t'ahr', the back, E. dahr, posterior part, dahari, the last, dëhara, after, behind, dahara, to be after, behind. Takutaku, v. i., to speak [Sa. ta'u, tell, Ma. taku, Fi. tuku-na. A. nataka, to speak.

brothers-in-law, Taku, s., sisters-in-law, syn. tauīen. Mg. zauta, zau, My. tiri, family relations. A. t'ahara, t'ahr', and sihr', to aid, befriend, socius, tribe, family, &c.

Takuer, or takuwer, s., a big man, a strong man: ta, man, and kuwer. A. kabura, to be great, of big body.

Takus i, or takusi, v. t., to be like, similar to, also, with k elided, tausi, id., and to follow, also rausi (t to r), v. t., to follow, from usi, v. t., to follow, and also (in rafe-kusi) kusi, id. See usi and bausi, A. kassa, to follow; to narrate, and 5, 8, to follow; 1, to be near, 10, to ask.

Taku-ti, d. raku sa, q.v.

Talakolako, v. i., to whisper, i. e., to conceal what is being said (from someone): ta, utter speech, and lakolako.

Tàle is, v. t., d. tèle is, to search for. [Mg. tadi.] A. dāra, 2, Nm., to rummage (vulgar), lit. to turn over (things, in search of something);

Tale, s., c. art., a belt, also a rope, string; and

Tale ki, v. t., to make to go round (as a yam vine round a stake), tale is, to coil round something (as a snake), tale ki māro (see roa), to whirl round (as the eyes in dizziness), tali ki, to twist round one (crooked dealing, to injure), tālo, round, around, Mg. taltāl, round. mitadi, to twist, tadi, a rope, My. tali, a rope, string, bandage, &c.] A. dāra, to go round, whirl, turn; be dizzy, 2, make round, 4, turn round, da'ro, orb, around, dairo, round; circuit, &c.

Tale, s., c. art., the taro (so called because round). [Sa. talo, My. talâs, id.] See preceding word.

Taleàba, and taltaleàba, v. i., to whirl round (as a wheel), taleaba ki, v. t., to make to whirl round, to turn round (as a grindstone): tale, and àba.

Talebaġa, s., d. syn. kalebaġa, bow-string: tale, and baġa, s. (the tree from which the string is made).

Talefa, s., a side region, circuit: and Talefan, s., the circuit of the horizon: tale.

Tale-firi, a., all round (as round an island, &c.): tale, and firi or biri.

Talekabu na, d. arekabu, q.v.

Talemāt, s., plantation, enclosed and cultivated field. Cf. H. s'ĕdemōt', and s'ĕremōt', id.

Talëuor, s., a side, circuit: tale, and uor, or uora. See bora i.

Taliāli, v. i., to be slow, delay: aliāli. [Sa. tali, tatali.]

Talibo (see libo), to hide, be hid, hide oneself.

Tàliga na, s., c. art. nataliga na, d. liga na, and nàliga na, the ear or ears. [Ml. P. ririga, Epi dd. tiline, seligo. An. tikija, Motu taia, Sa. taliga, Fut. tariga, My. taliga, Mg. tadini.] H. 'ozen, du., used also as pl., 'azĕnaim, 'azĕne, S. 'adna, Ch. 'uden, 'udĕna, A. 'udn', pl. 'adān', and 'udun'. For the verb, see rogo, togo.

Tali-si, v. t., to prize up, wrench up (as the side of a flat stone). See tila i, or til ē.

Talle, or tal'le, v. i., to turn aside (as from a path); and Talele, id., talele ki, to turn aside or away from (a person or thing.) See lele.

Tālo, taloālo. See alo-fi.

Tālo, a., round, and ad., round about: tale.

Talokuloku ki. See taluko. Taltal, a., round: tale.

Taltalūra, s., a sea snake covered with round strips or Tàlu, or talŭlu, s., a crowd, herd: lulu.

Taluḥaki, v. i., to be spilt, poured out, to pour itself out: lubaki.

Taluko, or taluku, and talukoluko ki, v., to conceal oneself from; atu taluko baki nia, turn away from, or conceal oneself from: lako.

Talug i, d., and bands.

Talum i, d. See tulum i.

Tam i, v. t., to add to, dd. tàm i, täum i. [Mg. tuvana, and tuvuna.] A. ş'amma, to add.

Tama i, d. taba i, v. t., to cover (as fruit, &c., covering the ground, being abundant), to rub, and see atama, that which rubs, syn. ore. A. tamma, to cover with abundance (Nm. smother, overwhelm), (2), to scrape or shave.

Tama na. See tema na. Tama, dd. tab, (tiba), q.v.

Tama, for taba, q.v.

Tamaliām', v. i., to delay. A. mahala, 5, to delay, and H.

mahah, to delay, linger (prop. to refuse, turn back).

Tamàlu, v. i., to bend, rise (to set out), to go or come forth, set out: taḥa, lu, lua.

Tamaras, reflexive of maras, q.v.

Tamate, v. i., to fall calm, be calm (as the sea, the wind), hence

Tamate, s., c. art., peace (opposite to war), a calm, silence; also, the festivals in honour and worship of the dead, at which the people of different villages assembled: mate.

Tāmisal, or tāmusal, s., an unmarried person: ta, a person, and misal.

Tami-si, d. sabe-li, q.v., to tie. Tamo, v. i., d. nabo, to smell, see nabo.

Tamole, s., man: ta, man, and mole, to live, living. [Fi. tamata, Sa. taġata, My. oraġidup, Mg. ulumbeluna. id.]
Tamon, s., smell, d. nabon.

Tamtam, a., dusky; ragi tamtam (syn. rag melu), evening, lit. time dusky, or of dusk. A. 'atama, to be evening, dusky, 'atamat, dusk of evening.

Tamulu, v. i., syn. c. mulu, q.v.

Tanekabu, s., d. arekabu.

Tan i, v. t., to earth it, to cover with earth, then with anything (tun i);

Tanu-mi, v. t., to cover with earth, put into the ground; and Tanu-maki, id.; hence

Tano, s., d. tan, earth of any kind, soil, clay, ground. and etan, ad. and prep., on the ground, below. [Sa. tanu, ps. tanua, and tanumia, My. tanâm, tanamkan, tanuman, tani, Sa. tanuma'i, tanuġa, tanumaġa.] A. ṭāna, to cover with clay; to cover, ṭino, dialect ṭāno, earth, clay. Tanoabu, d. tanoafu, d. tanoau, s., ashes: tano, abu; Tanonōn, or tanoonōn, s., level ground, d. tēn: tano, and onĕ, reduplicated.

Tanotanoa, a., soiled with earth: tano, and ending a.

Tanu e, tanua, v., to spit, dd. tani, taniu; and Tanua, d. taniu, s., c. art., spittle. [Sa. anu, ps. anusia, Motu kanudi, ps. kanudia, Fi. kanusi: My. ludah, Ml. rut, Malo lito.] A. rawwala, n. a. tarwilu (taniu, Ef.), id. Täo, v. i., to fall, d. for roa (röuo, töuo).

Tao, s., d., v. t., to lay down, leave, permit, &c. [Mg. läu, mandäu.] A. wada'a, not used in perfect, fut. yada'o, imp. da', to lay down, leave, permit. So A. waṣ'a'a.

Tàos, v. i., d. maosa, q.v.
Taosi, d. tausi. See takusi.
Täoti na, s., bone, bones, weapons made of dead men's bones. [My. tulaġ, Mg. taulana.] A. 'aṭm', Mahri (m elided) 'aṭaiṭ (Von Maltzan), at'āt' (Carter), H. 'eṣem, pl.
'ăṣāmōt', id., often of bones of the dead.

Tara, taratara. See tera, to be quick.

Tārĕ, v. i., or a., to be pure, clean, white, tartare, whitish, matiratira, polished, bright, shining. A. tahara, to be clean, pure, H. taher, to shine, be bright, clean, pure. Tare, v. i., to cry, call out (of men); to call out, i.e. crow (cock). A. saraha and sarā, to cry, call out, sarīh', a crying or calling out, a cock.

Tarere, v. i., to break on the shore with noise (of breakers): rere.

Tari, or tar i, v. t., to drag, draw along. Mg. tarika, My. tarik, Ma. tari. A. natara, id.

Taroa, s., a pigeon. My. dara. A. tair', id.

Taru-si, or taro-si, v. t., to pray to (the natemate), tarotaro, redup. Sa. tatalo, talotalo, ps. talosia, Ha. kalokalo, Tah. tarotaro. A. sala, E. salaya, Ch. sela, to pray.

Taruba, v. i., to fall; taruba bei, to fall upon; taruba ki, v. t., throw down, make to fall, d. tarubik, v. i., and Taruba, s., c. art., sticks thrown on or laid across the rafters of a house. E. sadefa (A. sadafa, to decline), to fall.

Tas, tasi, s., c. art., the sea. My. tasik, To. tahi, Sa. tai. A. ta's', the sea.

Tas i, or tasi, v. t., to shave: ras i.

Tas, v. i., for ras, teres. Tasabo, v. i. See sabo. Tasabsabu, s., shattered to pieces: see sabe-riki.

Tasiga, s., d. for tasila.

Tasike, v. i., to lift, raise (the head): saki.

Tasila, s., helper, assistant: sila i.

Tasilasila, v. i., to make a clear startling sound (of men), to crack (of thunder): ta, chop, &c., and silasila. See sila.

Tasmen, s., salt: tas, the sea or salt, and men, or mina, q.v. pleasant (so called because it makes food pleasant tasted).

Tasuki, v. i., to bow: suki. Tasuru ki, v. t., to conceal: suru.

Tata, v., voc., maternal grandmother. [TaSa., Ml., tata, father, Ml. and Malo tata, paternal uncle. See under atena na.

Tata, redup. of ta, to chop, cut. Tatā-ġasi, v. t., tatā, same as tatau (in preceding word), redup. of tau, and gasi, to (wipe) stroke, smooth, flatter. Tatalai, talai, also tilai, titilai, v. i., to warm oneself (at the fire). [Fi. tatalai, Mg. mitulu (buhu). A. sala, salyy', &c., to warm (one, oneself, at the fire), be warmed at the fire.

Tatamares, tamares, with ta- doubled.

Tatau-fi, v. t., as, bisa tataufi, to speak, deceive: tau. Tati, d. rati, q.v. [Sa. tala, Tah. tara.

Tatok, or atatok (or natatok, s.), a., resident, native: ta, man, and toko.

Tatu, s. (see tui), a stake, post (of a fence), then tatu nafanua, lord or chief of the land. A. watada, to fix, stake, make firm, watadu, stake, post, H. yated, pin, nail, then 'prince'.

Tau, tautau, v. i., or a., to be pure, clean, white. [Ma. tea.] A. naṣaʿa, to be pure, white. Tau, v. i., also mitau, to abide, as, i tau suma, he abides (in) the house, i tau narā nakasu, it abides (on) the branch of the tree (as a bird or fruit), nabona i tau isa, his heart is fixed, abides on (the person or thing), i tau isa, it abides (as fruit) on it (the branch), i tau ki nuana, makes to tau, as a tree makes fruit to tau, yields (fruit), nakasu i tau, the tree yields (fruit), tau nata, take a person to one's house (as a guest), tau ē a; mamitau, matau, d., an anchor. A. t'awa', to abide, remain, (2), take for a guest, (4), make to stay, detain.

Tau asa, and toü-ġi, and toüni, v. t., to measure, to weigh; tau, also to, toto, s., a measure; and to-naki (for tau-naki), d. towa-naki, tawa-naki, to place, set, fix firmly, establish, appoint, determine, ordain, also to compare; tau, redup, tautau, to commission (one to do something), command, hence fitaua, c. art. nafitaua, one commissioned, a messenger, also a commission or message (syn. fakaua, q.v.). [Fi. tatau-naka, My. titah, to command, order, decree.] H. sawah, to set up, place (S. so'), to constitute, appoint, decree, charge, command, commission, cg. H. s'awah, to be like, resemble.

Tau, tatau-fi, tātā ġasi, tautau, v. t., to deceive, mislead. S. t'a', ṭa'uta; also in H. and A.; to err, deceive, mislead.

Tau, bitau, bitautau, v. i., and t., to invite (as to a feast); tau, in tau-mafa, to invoke, ask, pray; taumafa, is mafa, to give a gift, to sacrifice, to (a deity, or natemate). and tau, to invoke, pray, thus taumafa, to invoke or pray (while) sacrificing, or giving an offering. A. da'a, to call with a loud voice; to invite; to invoke, pray.

Tau, s., a season, time, year. [Mg. tauna, My. taun (tawun), Sa. tau.] A. zaman, S. ziban, Mod. S. zōna, id.

Taua, s., a heap, a crowd, a herd; taua ki, to heap, pile. [My. tâmbun, timbun, tumpuk, id., Mg. tauna.] H. şabar, A. ş'abara, id.

Tau, tautau, v. t., to commission. [Fi. tatau-naka, id., My. titah, to command, order, decree (to-naki, infra.)] See tau.

Tau-ġi, v. t., to grasp firmly with the hand, to pluck off with the hand (as fruit), tau isa, hold it firmly in the hand. [Sa., Ma. tau, to pluck fruit with the hand, Mg. sambuṭa, My. sambuṭ, to lay hold of, Fi. taura, take hold of.] H. sabaṭ, A. s'abaṭa, (1), (5), (7), to grasp, lay hold of firmly, pluck, also s'abat'a, (1), (8), hold (a thing) in the hand, seize, grasp.

Tau-ri, v. t., to bind, be bound firmly to, to marry (a woman), to tie firmly to (as a boat to a ship to be towed), taura ki, tau lua i, to be fixed or bound firmly (to one), bringing out one (as from bondage, or from her relations), to redeem; to marry; bitauri, v. r., to be bound, or tied, or attached, firmly to each other, to be married. [Sa. taula'i, hang on to, taula, an anchor.] A. şabara, şabr', to bind, be bound to, &c.

Tāü-ni, or tāö-ni, v. t., to cook, to bake (in the oven). [Sa. tao, ps. taoa, taoina; taona'i, to bake food the day before giving it; To., Ma., tao.] A. taha, n. a. tahw', to cook. Hence

Tāö, s., c. art., leaves for cooking which are put into the oven along with the food to be cooked. [To. tau, the cooking leaves, Tah. tao, leaves and stones put into the inside of a pig to be cooked.]

Taueru isa, v. t., to haul, drag, tau and eru, i.e. aru, the hand, lit. fix the hand on (to drag), as to drag a man to punishment.

Tauī, v. t., to twist, wring (as to wring clothes after washing them), to milk (as a goat), squeeze, or wring (the milk out). A. ṭawa, (E. ṭawiy, H. ṭawah), to wring, twist.

Tauien, or tawien, s., a sister's husband, a wife's brother. that is, brother-in-law; but, d.. a general name for reliable friend, brother, or sister, and in another d. the word is applied to father-in-law and son-in-law. [Fut. safe, Aniwa nosafe, Ta yafuni, d., c. art. nevun. A. safiyy, a friend of a pure and sincere mind. i.e. a real friend, safa, 3, to be of sincere and pure affection (towards someone), 4, to show sincere love, 6, to live in mutual sincerity of friendship.

Taubora, s., an ornament that abides on the side of the head: tau, bora.

Taulalo, v. or s., to hang, or be fixed or what hangs or abides in front of the belly. nasieġ i taulalo: tau, lalo.

Taumafa, d. taumofa, v. i.. to invoke giving an offering (to the natemate), taumafà sa, give an offering of or with it (something), taumafa ki nia, offer it (something), taumafa tua i, make an offering, giving to him (a natemate). [Ml. P. tomav, Ha. kaumaha, to offer in sacrifice, to offer a gift upon an altar, s., a sacrifice, Tah. taumaha, a portion of food offered to the gods or spirits of the dead. Tau (to pray, invoke), and mafa, or mofa (q.v.), giving or offering. A. ma'habat, a gift, H. habhabim (Hos. viii. 13), offerings (to God), A. wahaba, H. yahab, to give.

Taumako, s., the wild (edible) yam that grows or abides on the hills: tau, and mako, for which see aka, ako.

Taumi. See tami.

Taunako, s., a thing (like the peak of a cap) worn over the forehead. [Cf. syn. Sa. taumata]: tau, and nako.

Tauruuru, v. i., to grumble, murmur, mutter: ta, and uruuru.

Tausi, v. t. See takusi.

Tauso, or tausoa, v. i., to commit adultery or fornication (of either sex): tau, and so, or soa. [Fi. daut'a.]

Te, dem., rel. pron., conj., as agute, mine this, ana te, his this or that; te uia, what (is) good, that which is good, or he or she who is good, te sa, that which is bad, or he or she who is bad; in this sense d. tea, as tea uia, tea sa; te nata, what, or whatever person, any person, someone; te, redup. tete, may be used substantively, as, te ru ban, or tete ru ban, some went; te, dem., is found in fite (nafite, sefete, what this, that, or it? or simply, what?) also in matuna; with art., nete, s., the that, anything, something, and d. with dem. ka prefixed, nakate, id.; te is also found with ka. dem. prefixed in one d. as a tense particle (see kate, tense particle, supra); te, or t', is also used as a conj. and before the verbal pron. of the 1st person sing., a, and of the 3rd sing., i or e, loses its vowel, as ta ban, that I go, or be gone, te ban, that he has gone, or because he has gone. In one dialect for i kate, ku kate, a kate ban, he, you, I went, there is ka te ban, ku te ban, ki te ban, I went, you went, he went. A. da, dem., du, rel., S. d', Ch. di, rel. and conj., that, because.

Tea. See te.

Teba, or taba, v. i., to dry up (of liquid or moisture), to become dry; and mun teba ki, to drink, making it dry (liquid). E. nasefa, to become dry (as a river); to dry up (as a spring), nesuf, dry, dried up.

Teël, s., shellfish, &c., got on the reef, lit. to el', that which is pleasant, sweet, or tasty: te elo.

Tefa, tetefa, v. i., to draw up in order of battle; and Tefa ki, v. t., to put in a series, to range (troops, in order of battle); bitefa, range themselves in order of battle, face to face; tefa-gi, d. tefa-ni, v. t., to put things in a series, either one before or one above another. [Fi. tuva, v. i., tuvā, v. t., to place in regular order, to range in close compact, or place one upon another, tuvai nai valu, tuvai valu, to put in the attitude of war, put in battle array, tuva na lawa ni valu, arrange or put in ranks the lawa ni valu.] A. saffa, 1, 2, 6, 8, to set or place in order in a series; to arrange the line of battle, draw up in order of battle; Nm. arrange (troops), 2, id., to range themselves mutually face to face.

Tef i, or tefi, redup. tetefi, v. t., to cut; tefi, to circumcise. [Fi. teve, tava, Sa. tefe, To. $te\bar{fe}$, Sa., To. tafa, Mg. tapaka.] A. 'as'aba, to cut.

Tefarafara, v. i., to break (of the sea); and Tefara, s., c. art., breakers: tafera, taferafera.

Tefarere (i. e. tefarrere), v. i., to break rushing up on the shore (of the breakers): tefara, and rere.

Tei, s., c. art. intei, a reddish powder made from a plant, turmeric: bitei.

Tei. See rei.

Tei a, for toitoi.

Telake na, d. telakea na, s., lord, owner, possessor: lake. Telatela, v. i., or a., to be large, wide; and Telatelana, id., c. ending -na. and see matulu, matultul, matoltol, swollen, large. [Epi toru, large, Sa. tetele, telatela, latele, vatele, Ma. tetere, large, swollen.] H. 'adīr, large, great, 'adar, to be wide, A. 'adira, to have hernia (to swell out).

See tale is, to Tēle, v. t. search for.

Telei, or talai, s., the ancient axe, or adze-like axe (a shell). [Sa. talai, to adze, Ma., Tah. tarai, chop with an adze, Ha. kalai, to chop, hew, pare, carve.] A. s'araḥa, to cut, slice, carve, dissect.

Teluko. See taluko.

Tema na, or tama na, s., father: see Ch. II. 11. c. Sa. tamā, My. rama, id.]

Temabalu, s., brothers, lit. te (he who), ma (with), balu, (brother): balu; and Temabalu ta, for temabalu ra, who (or those who) with their brother, i. e. brothers. So tema in the following words is, lit., he or she who or those who, or that (person) or those (persons) with.

Temabau ra, s., d., uncle and nephew: bau.

Temațele ta, s., mother and child: bele na.

Temagore ta, s., brother and sister: ġore na; d. mera ġore na. See mera.

Temaloa ta, s., d. syn. temabau ra: alo ana.

Temamō ta, s., mother-in-law and son-in-law: mō na.

Temaratauīen, s., i. e. te māra tauīen, that with (his) tauīen, d. syn. temataku ta: tauien.

Temarauota, s., i. e. te māra uota, that with (her) uota (husband), wife and husband: uota, d. me nimariki.

Temasere, s.. a beloved one, especially a child much cared for; te, that, masere, loved, cared for. See also sere, bakasere.

Temațāfa, for temarāfa, s., father and child, lit. that (i. e. the child) with the father. See afa.

Temataku ta, s., a man and his brother-in-law (his wife's gore na): taku na.

Tematema ta, s., father and child: tema na.

Tematete ta, s., maternal grandmother, and her grand-child: atena na.

Těmatĭ, i. q., ma, with, and, only with numerals. H. לְעָמַה, see עָמָה.

Tematia ta, s., paternal grandfather (&c.) and his grandchild: atia na.

Tematobu ta, s. maternal grandfather and his grand-child: tobu na.

Tematua ta, s., paternal grandmother and her grandchild: tua na.

T'te na, s., juice: toto.

Tēn, d. for tanonon.

Tena na, s. See atena na; d. atia, or, tia na.

Ter, v. i., to be slow, tardy. A. 'aḥ'h'ara, 5, to be slow, tardy.

Terā sa, v. t., be ignorant of, forget, not to know (it), d. rere, d. tenr. A. s'alla, to not know, be ignorant of; forget.

Tera, v. i., to shine (of the sun), tera i, v. t., shine upon it (of the sun). [My. târaġ, târaġ kan, Fi. t'ila, Malo sarasara.] H. ṣahar (cf. zahar, &c.), to shine.

Tera i, tetera i, v. t., to go after, to do anything after (or in the track of) another, bakatera i, to answer (make one's word to go after another's), bā, and sela tera i, go after, gua tera i, shout after, bisa tera i, speak after; also to rehearse, recount, tera usi, to recount following, tera uti na, to go after close to. [My. turut, follow, go after.] 'at'ar', track, 'at'ara, 4, make something follow another, 5, 8, follow the track of someone, go after, 1, recount, rehearse.

Tera, v. i., to be quick, swift, tera ki māla, wheel, swoop, shoot, or glide swiftly like a hawk, tera ġulu-ti, swoop (upon one) clasping (him, as in war), tera tukituki, run rapidly beating the ground with one's feet, tera belbel, to be exceedingly swift or quick, tera mau, to be quick indeed or truly, to be instant, do instantly, tera bile, to be very quick, teratera, redup.; tera lo saki, to turn quickly, looking up, tera tabo (d.), to turn quickly bending the head down, torutoru, sweat. [Ma. tere, Sa. teletele.] A. darra, (10), to run vehemently, or swiftly, 4, to turn or whirl a spindle very swiftly, H. darar, (also) to fly in a circle, wheel in flight; and like A. darra, to spout, to pour out (as rain, &c.), to sweat, Ef. toru, torutoru. Hence

Ter e, v. t., to pour into; and Tera, s., c. art., a pouring out; natera ni us, a rain squall, an outpouring of rain.

Terā, a., having (lit. that has) branches, as tera rua, tolu, &c., having two, three, &c., branches (of a tree): te, and rā.

Terafi, v. t., for rerafi, to scratch (as the ground). See rafi.

Terági, v. t., in kabu teragi, to heat cooked food over again, terági is for reragi, as in bauragi, bau-terag i (see bau-si, baraga i, ragaelo).

Teratār, v. i.. to stagger, totter (as a man drunk). A. tartara, to stagger (as a man drunk).

Teratera, v. i., to be delirious, insane; A. hatara, 1, 4, to make, or to be delirious, insane; also torotoro.

Tere, teretere, v. t., to feast, toentertain (especially visitors at a festival), also to make a feast or banquet for a friend who visits one. The radical idea lies in that of gathering folks together for a festival, or enclosing them as it were in one's house and hospitality. H. 'asarah, an assembly of people for keeping a festival, 'aşar (primary idea is that of surrounding, enclosing), Ni., (3), to be gathered together, especially for a festival, A. a'aşīr, breakfast and dinner, or supper.

Tere, s., c. art., the mast (of a canoe or ship). calf (column) of the leg. A. sariyat, Nm. sari, the mast (of a ship), a column.

Tere, s., and teretere, s., the comb (of a cock); the eaves of a house. [Sa. tala, Tah., Ma. tara, H. kala.] Nm. torra, crest, comb of bird, A. torrat, extremity, side of anything, forelock, pointed, from tarra, to cut, to sharpen, to snatch, to shoot (as plants), to propel vehemently, irritate, stir up.

Terei, v. t., for rerei, for roroia: rei.

Terina, s., enclosure. H. tur, fence, enclosure.

Teres, for reres: res.

Tere-ti, v., used as ad., as, boka tere-ti, to smite or strike hastily (and therefore ineffectively, confusedly), syn. sarafi, and sumati, and bile, or bilebile: tera, to be quick.

Tete, s., voc., mother. See under ani na.

Tete, and tetea. See te.

Ti, and d. și, neg. ad., not: d. ta. [Sa. lē, Ma. te, Fut. si, My. ta, Mg. și.]

Ti, v. t., to say; ti ki nia, say to him, tell him, ti ki nià sa, tell him it: dd. ni, noa, nofa, q.v.

Tī, s., chief, as, ti Tongoa, chief of Tongoa: for tui, q.v. Tī, and rī, v. t., to push, thrust, propel, or drive. A. daya, to propel, thrust.

T'tie na, or t'tia na, s., saliva, water of the mouth, nat'tia na i serà sa, his mouth waters because of it, lit. the water (of his mouth) runs at it: titia.

Tiamia, v.i. or a., to be first, d. bea or tobea (for toko bea): tia, to abide or be, and mia, d. bea, q.v. [Oba tomua, Sa. mua, and tomua.]

Tia na, or tie na, s. See atia na.

Tiana, v. i., to be with child. See miten. S. t'yina, laden, gravid.

Tiba, neg. ad., not. See d. tab: ti, ad., and ba for ma, as in Assy. aama, not.

Tib ē, or tuba i, v. t., to shoot with an arrow:

Tiba, or tuba, s., c. art., an arrow, i.e. what is cast: tuba. [Mg. sipika.] E. nadafa, (2) to shoot with an arrow, (1) to strike, (3), to prick, H. nadaf, to drive away. The radical idea is thrusting, pushing.

Tība, s., the post in a house that supports the ridge-pole: Compare A. dī mat, column, pillar, from da - ama, v.

Tibi-li, v. t., to burn, to sear. A. s'ahaba, to roast, to broil.

Tibu (pronounced timbu), d., s., c. art. natimbu, the deep (sea): bua.

Tiele, v. i., to finish a laugh with shrill cries, in a whinnying manner (of women). H. sahal, to utter shrill cries; to neigh (of a horse), A. sahala, n. a. sahil', to whinny.

Tifai, s., thunder: ti, art., and fai. [Sa. fai-tilitili, Fila tefachiri, Aniwa tefachiri.] A. baḥḥ' (used of thunder), hoarse, cf. Sa. fā, hoarse.

Tikal i. See takal i.

Tigi na, or tiki na, s., side, edge;

Tigi elo, v., to bask in the sun, warm oneself in the sun. A. s'aha, to bask or warm oneself in the sun, s'ahiyat, side, outside or edge. Hence Tigi (side) in malitigi, mali-rigi, &c., place at the side, that is, beside, near: and

Tigitigi na, s., d., edge (outside or exposed edge or side of a thing), and Tiki na, and

Tikitiki na, id.; and

Tiki nrā nin, d., this point (of time), now.

Tīka, a strong negative, it is not, no, by no means;

Tiki (or tikă), neg. ad., not; i tiki ban, he did not go; and Tika, and tiki, the same, used, with the verb. pron., as a verb, to be not, to exist not, dd. sika, nika, rika, tika: neg. ad. ti, and ka. It is thus construed: i tikā sa, it is not in it or him, or he has it not, i tika ki nia, it is not to or in him, or he has it not, thus, namuruen i tika ki nia, there is no laughing in him, i tika ki namuruen, he has not laughing. For ti see ti, neg. ad., supra; ka is to be compared with the E. ko, in 'eko, not, ko being a contraction of kona (A. kana), to be; and tika with the Talmudic and Mandaite lika, not, is not (Nöldeke, Mand. Grammatik). [Fut. jikai, My. tak, Mg. sia, and diahue, To. ikai, Sa. i'ai, no, not, not so.

Tiki-amo, d. takāmo, q.v.

Tiki, v. i.. to be soft (of the skin), syn. busa, as, nauili na i tiki, or, i busa, his skin is soft (his skin is bad, or has an uncomfortable feeling, as on hearing some dreadful story, or witnessing some fearful thing). See busa. A. 'atika, (b), (3), to become soft and tender (of the skin).

Tiki na, and tiki na, s., for riki na.

Tiko, s., a staff, a walking stick, a pole by which a canoe is poled forward in shallow water. [Sa. to'o, a canoe pole, a stick in which is fixed the perch of a pigeon, to'ona'i, to lean on a staff, to lean on anything for support, tootoo, a staff, walking stick, toto'o, to lean upon a staff, To. toko. a post used to make fast canoes to, tokotoko, staff, My. tâkân, Mg. tehina, a staff, mitchina, to walk with a staff, to walk leaning on a person. A. toka'at, a staff, a support, he who leans much on his side, and props himself up. Hence, Nm., taka, 8, itteci, to lean upon. Hence Tiko ki, v. t., to pole (a canoe). This is done by leaning upon the tike, and so throwing one's weight upon it.

Tila i, d. til ē (and tali-si), v. t., to wrench, prize (with a lever), to struggle, wriggle, wrestle (as through a narrow place); tilā ki, v. t., to wrench, sprain, twist (as one's foot by stepping into a hole); tilatila, v. t., wrench up with a lever roots and rocks in making a hole in which to plant a warm; hence plant a yam; hence

Tīla, s., a lever, crowbar. [Mg. tuluna, mituluna, to struggle together, to wrestle.]

A. 'atala, to violently drag and wrench away, 3, to wrestle with, atalat, Nm.
'atela, crowbar, lever, hod.
Tila i, tīla, d. for lita i: līta.
Tilasi, and redup. tilatilasi:
lasi.

Tilai, titilai. See talai, tatalai.

Tili, v. t., to tell, relate (a thing). [Sa. tala, v. and s., tell, relate, tale, narration, tala'i, talatala'i, To. tala.] A. tala', to follow, to relate (a narrative), read, recite.

Tili-mar, v. i., d. for lele maroa, to revolve or roll turning round: lele, maroa. Tinom i, d. for tulum i.

Tirāgi (riraģi), v., to look at (as at a spectacle). A. rāna, to look at.

Tirā sa, d. rirā sa. See terā sa.

Tiri, v. i., to fly (of birds), d. riri; also to fly into a rage, to be transported with rage, flying and jumping about excitedly; i tiri, syn. i miti, as, i tiri bas i, or i miti bas i, he (transported with rage) flies snatching him (the object of his passion, as if to tear out his eyes). Hence rīri, a spark, and mitiri, a grasshopper (from leaping and flying), and taroa, a pigeon. [Sa. lele, Ma. rere.] A. ṭāra, to fly; to be swift, move quick.

Tiriģi, for ririģi, riģi.

Tirikit, v. i., to begin to drop or sputter (of rain). [Fi. tiri, to drop.] For tiri, see tuturu, and for kit, kita, small, little.

Tiro, v. i., to sink, roll down (as in the sea, or down a precipice, or into a pit); hence

Tiroa, s., c. art., a precipice, or deep, steep place. [Fi. tiro, siro, sisiro, My. turun, turunkan.] A. ḥadara, ḥudur', to descend, put down. See mitaru, toroaki; also

Tiro e, d., v. t., to swallow, send down, make to sink down (into the stomach); and Tiro-aki, v. t., make to sink down (as an anchor,) to anchor, d. toro-aki, tirotiro, redup.

Tiso, v. i., to exude, d. lisoa, tisē, exude on to (a thing): toto.

Titi, v., to tread, titia ki nakasu, tread on a log (as on a log thrown across a stream). [My. titi.] A. waṭiya, to tread.

Titia, v. i., to slaver, dribble (as an infant), to have saliva flowing, to have the mouth watering, nat'tia na, saliva, water of the mouth. [Mg. rura, saliva.] H. rir, saliva, A. rāla, to slaver, dribble (of an infant), riyal', saliva, cf. My. liyor, slaver, dribble.

Titiro, v. i., to gaze into the sea looking for fish or shell-fish; to look at one's image in water or a looking-glass.

[Fi. tiro, tiro-va, to look at oneself in the water, peep at, Sa. tilotilo, ps. tilofia, to peep, spy, Mg. taraṭa, tarafına, Ma. tiro, tirotiro, titiro, look, gaze, Ha. kilo, to look hard, earnestly, to star-gaze, prognosticate, act as a sorcerer.] A. na-t'ara, to gaze, look for, consider, spy, to prognosticate, divine.

Tiū sa, d., v. t., to sink, dip, matiu, v. i., to sink, d. redup. tutu, d. lulu, v. i., to sink, d. riū sa, v. t., to point out with the finger, d. tuma i, v. t., to point out with the finger, d. tiū sa, tū sa, d. tū-ni a, or riū sa, or rū sa, or redup. tiutiū sa, tūtū sa, riūriū sa, or rūrū sa, v. t., to smear, tinge, colour, or paint nafona (native cloth). See also lolofa, lum, luma, lulum. [Ma. totohu, to sink, tohu, mark, sign, toi, finger, also toe, Tah. tohu, to point at with the finger, make a sign, To. tuhu, v., to point with the finger, s., the forefinger, Sa. tusi, to mark (native cloth), to write, to point out, tusitusi, striped, Fi. luvu, to sink, Mg. tsubuka, soaked, drenched, dipped, My. tud ig, to point at with the finger, to indicate. See also under lolofa, luma. H. taba', to sink, cg. saba', A. saba'a, to dip into, immerse, E. tam'a, id., to be dipped, plunged, H. saba, to dip in, immerse, to dye, tinge, seba', something dyed, a versicoloured garment, Ch. (see lolofa) seba', A. saba'a, to point out or at with the finger, 'asbi', 'asbu', &c., the finger, H. 'asba', finger, also toe, A. saba''a, to dye or colour (cloth), to make a sign, indicate.

To, v. i., contr. for toko, or tok, dd. ti, te, to rest, sit down, dwell, remain, be. [Malo ate, Ml. d. at, Mg. tueṭa, tuaṭa, tuiṭa.] See toko.

Tō, redup. toto, d. touo, d. tau, s., a measure, equal. [Fi. rau.] And Tō-naki, v. t., to compare; to place, fix; to appoint, determine, establish. See tau.

Tō (and see tofi), v. t., to push, press upon. A. da"a, to push, propel.

Tōa (towa). or tō', s.. a (domestic) fowl, also a bird (= manu). [Fi. toa, My. ayam, Ceram dd. tofi, towim, Bouru dd. tehui, teput. teputi, Cocos Island ufa, bird, Tag. ibon.] H. 'ōf, bird (gen. name), A. 'a'f', gallus.

Note.—For Ef. toa, see Index under 7.

Toa i. See roa i.

Tōb, d., v. i., or a., to be large, great. [Epi sombi, Mg. dubc.] A. 'aṭ'oma, to be great.

Tob, s., c. art. natob, spittle. H. tof, E. tafe', to spit. Tobaġ i. See tabaġ i.

Tobaroba. See rabaraba.

Tobet, s., rubbish heap. Cf. H. tofet, spittle. See tob. Tobu, s., a tumour, swelling. See tubu.

Tobu na, s., grandfather, ancestor. [Malo tubu, Ta. tupu, Po. tupuna.] See tubu.

Tobu, s., d., a natemate, spirit, familiar spirit, demon, d. tobua. [Ma. taepo.] A. taifo, vulg. A. taif, id.

Tōbu, d. nōbu, q.v.

Tofe na, s., native cloth, clothing. [To. tapa, H. kapa];

Tofe, v. i., d., to put on the tofe, to dress. See under rofarofa.

Toff, v. t., to push. A. da'aba, to push.

Toga, d. rog, d. taga, s., a basket. H. tene, id.

Toga, s., far away, also, natoga, a distant place or country. H. raḥok, S. ruḥka, E. rĕḥuk, far off, away.

Toga, for toga, basket.

Togo i, d. toko i, v. t., to push, thrust, and see bakatoko i. H. daḥak, A. daḥaka, to push, thrust.

Togo, d. nrogo, for rogo, to hear.

Toitoi, v. t., also teitei (and tei), to hate. A. 'ada', (2), n. a. 'adw', (b), 'adiya, to hate.

Tokei, or tokai, s., c. art., a prop, or rafter (which reaches from the ground to the ridgepole in an Efatese house); then natokai nafanua, the prop, i.e. chief, of the land. [Mg. tuhana, prop, support.] See tiko. A. 'atka'ā, to prop up.

Toki, tokitoki, v. t., to gather up one's things, or pack up, preparatory to flitting. See raku, taku-ti. [Fi. toki-a.]
Toko, d. tok, v. i., to rest, sit down, dwell, remain, be, contr. to, q.v., sometimes pronounced tuk. [My. and Ja. duduk, dodok, Mg. tuața, (see to), Fi. tiko, toka.] H. takah, Pu. tukah (Deut. xxxiii. 3), A. waka'a, 8, xiv. 8), to remain. Hence Tokon, s., c. art., a village, remaining or dwelling place.

'ttaka'a, cf. 5, to sit (Luke

Tōki, s., an axe; and Tōk, s., violence, force. A. takka, to cut, H. tōk, violence.

Tokalau, s., easterly wind: tok, remain, alau, on the sea.

Toko i. See togo i.

Toko-naki, v. t., to strike on (as one's foot on a stone, the wind on a mountain). [Ma. tutuki, To. tukia.] See tuki.

Tokora, s., a place. [Mota togara, behaviour, togava, a station.] See toko.

Tokotoko na, s., a shark's fin: toko i.

Toko-ni, v. t., to kindle, set fire to, redup. tokotoko. A. daka', to kindle.

Tol, s., violence, force. See tila, to wrench.

Tola, v. i., to be early dawn, toa i tola, the cock crows, lit. crows at early dawn;

Tola, s., the dim early dawn; the dim distance in the sky; and Tolarola, id., redup.; and, d. tolau, id. Hence matol, d., to-morrow. H. s'aḥar, A. saḥara, to be far remote, saḥira, to do, or to set out at early dawn, 8, the cock crew at early dawn, H. mis'ḥar, the morning.

Tolĕ na, s., c. art., egg (of a bird), d. atol mita na, eyeball. [My. tâlor, Mg. atudi, and antudi, Oba toligi, Sulu iklug, Nias ajuloh, Poggi agoloh.] Mahri ḥali, Amh. 'an-k'ilal: the radical meaning is 'round'.

Toli a, v. t., to surpass, to go past, before, bitoli, v. r., d. bilele; to pass or go before each other, d. tōliu sa. See liu. Tōm, or tōm, s., turmeric, a reddish curry powder. [Fi. damudamu, red, Mg. tamutamu, turmeric, tumamutamu, yellow, of an orange, saffron colour.] A. 'adoma, to be red, H. 'adamdom, reddish.

Tomo na, s., tumu na.

Tomotomoa, v. i., tumutumua.

Tonako, for taunako.

Tontonō sa, v. i., to be perplexed, in pain or distress on account of (something): tunu.

Tore, or tere (natuona), s., the leg below the knee. See tere, mast (of ship), column.

Toro, v. i., to leak (as a canoe).

A. tara, to boil, emit water (as clouds), to leak (as a vein or vessel).

Toro, v. t., to lay down, abandon, let down, permit, tor ea, lay it down, &c.;

Torò sa, lit. lays down or abandons on account of it, i. e., gives up his old mind or opinion in consequence of the evil it has brought upon him, rues; tor ea, put into (as liquid into a vessel), totor ea, id., syn. tutua ki;

Toroa, v. i., to be rich, toro (lay down, store up, and ending a): matoro-toro, let down, slackened, slack (as a rope);

Toro-aki, for tiro-aki. See tiro.

Toro na, s., his impulse, onset, power, might. [Ma. tara, courage, mettle.] This same word occurs as tere na (comb of cock, &c.), where see the verb. A. tarra to propel vehemently, &c., Nm. tarr, free will, arbitrary power;

Torotoro na, id., redup.
Torotoro, for teratera.
Torotoro, v. i., to sweat.
Torutoru, id., and
Tōru, s., sweat. See tera.
Tōs, d., v. i., to creep, d. for

Tot i. See rot i.

rosa.

Totau, dd. tatau, titau, titu, s., a child, infant. [Mg. zaza.] E. ṣa'ṣ'āe, H. ṣe'-ĕṣa'em, offspring.

Toto, v., to think; and Toto na, s., thought, mind. See mitoa.

Toto, dd. tiso, lisoa, v. i., to exude (as gum, juice, from plants). [Fi. titi, titi-va, My. titik, Mg. mitete, mitate, tetevana.] A. naṣ'ṣ'a, n. a. naṣ'iṣ', to exude. Hence Toto, s., a plant abounding in a milky juice, and its juice.
Totofa, d., v. i., to swell: d.

tubu, q.v.

Toü-gi, d. toü-ni, v. t., to measure, to weigh. See tau, d. tau asa, to measure.

Touo, d. for roua. See roa. Tu, verb. pron., 1 pl. incl.; dual tā. See niģita, ninita. Tu, v. i., to stand, dd. su, ru, and see su; also to abide, dwell, be; tu lena, stand up straight, used also of rising up, to rise up; tu-ri also occurs, to stand, or abide to (or with) a person, and turaki, to stand or abide for (a person or thing). [Fi. tu, tu-ra, turaga, TaSa. turu, Ml. P. tu, tutu (= My. diri), Sa. tu, tutu, faatu, tula 'i, tulaģa. Ma. tu, tutu, turaġa, Ha. ku (1, rise up, 2, to stand), My. diri, Mg. juru.] H. nasa', so, s'et, imp. sa, cf. Hithp., E. nasa'a, A. nas'a'. See su, supra.

Note.—This word also occurs as matu, batu, fatu; and, like toko, matoko, and also ani, it is put after demonstratives, as uane tu, uane matu, nin batu, nistu, &c., lit. this or that standing or being (there or here).

Tua, v. t., to place, put down; also to give, tua i, give him; tua ki, place, put down; used also of liquids, tua ki nia las, put or place it in the vessel (cf. tor ea), make it to fall into the vessel, redup. tutua ki, bitua ki nia, or bitūa sa, to put down, also to give (a thing); with some verbs it is like 'from' as bā tua ki nia, go or come from, lit. go or come leaving, or putting it down, or placing it, hence bā bituaki, to halt between two opinions which the reflexive force of bitua, v. r., comes out), ba bituaki, lit. being, to leaving it over and over again. H. natan, ten, tet, těnak, matanah, Ch. matěna, H. matat, to give, a gift; also, to set, place.

Tua na, s., name of various relatives, as brother's wife, husband's mother, paternal grandmother, and her grandchildren, husband's sister. See under the following word. [Ml. U. tuan, elder brother, My. mântuwah, father-in-law or mother-in-law.]

Tuai, or tuei, a., old, ancient, and ad. long ago, also a long time hereafter. See bakatuai, to make long (of time), matua, old, mature, &c. [Sa. tuai, faatuai, matua, My. tuwah. Ja. tuwa, bârtuwah, bâtuwah, mântuwah, Bu. matua,

Mg. antița, anti (panahi), antu (andru), matua, matuta. A. 'adiyy', old, ancient (has the a. ending), and 'a'd', from 'ada, to confer a benefit on one, to favour, &c. (see preceding word), mo'id', powerful, experienced, accustomed. See matua. A. 'adiyy', 'adiyyat', old, ancient, Mg. antița, antu-andru (= Ef.aliati matua), tuai, My. tuwah, id. Then My. bartuwah, batuwah, mantuwah, Ef. Mg. Po. matua, Ef. matuatua, very old, Mg. matuatua, a ghost (spirit of the departed, ancestral spirit), seem to be from this (i. e. tuwah, tuai), as also Ef. tua, and probably the Po. atua (aitu), q.v. supra.

Tua, d. tue, s., c.art., twins: rua. Tua, v. i., to go, redup. tutua. Hence Tua na, or tuo na, s., legs. feet. [An. t'uo, Ta. su, legs.] H. s'uk, to run, whence s'ok, Ch. s'ak, A. sak', suk', the legs.

Tuasil, s., giver of help: tua, place, give, sila.

Tui, pronounced also tī, s., as tui Tongoa, chief of Tongoa. [Fi. tui.] A. waddu, for watadu. See tatu, supra.

Tuba i (see tiba i, tibè, which is the same word), to thrust, impel, hence tuba ki, to send, and natuba, s., an arrow, also a prick, sting, or thorn; tuba gote-fi (to thrust breaking) to condemn, or adjudge to die, tuba ģori (thrust over or in front of) to forbid, tuba gasi (thrust wiping), to wipe, and redup. tubatuba i, to impel, propel, send off: from the idea of thrusting comes that of reaching to, touching, hence bitub, bitubetuba, v. r., to be touching (thrusting, lit.) each other, i.e., throughout, wholly, continually, as, tale firi bitub, all round wholly, tafisafisa bitubetuba, pray continually (one prayer touching another as in a series), and, i mate tuba nasefa? he died on account of what? lit. touching what; ru tumara tuba ra, they touch each other (as of any two things, also of one thing done in retaliation for another). See tiba i.

Tubara. See tabara.

Tubatua, v. i., to kneel, lit. to stand on the knees: tu, batua.

Tubu, or tub, d. totofa, or totoba, v. i., to swell. FOba tutumbu, Ml. timb.] Arm. sěba, H. sabah, to swell, sabeh, a swelling. See tobu, supra. This word also means to will, as Arm. sĕba, to will, to wish, properly to be inclined, prone, so H. sabah; hence in Efatese (cf. S., John iii. 27, and 8) tuma, d. tumbu (ndumbu), with the nom. suf. denotes will, sua sponte, as, i tuma-na, he of his own will or accord, as 'Who told him to do this?' i tumana bat ia 'He of his own will or accord did it', Meli tubu, id.; Po. tupu, Mg. tumbu, My. tumbuh, see Ch. III. d, where also see A. saba'a, subu. &c.. to grow.

subu, &c., to grow. Tubut, d., s., rainbow: lit. stand in the middle (i.e. of the sky): tu, buto (middle). Tuġo-fi, d. for toko i, toġo i. Tuk i, or tuki, v. t., to strike, beat, pound, redup. tuki; and, uru tukituki, run quickly, lit. run beating (the ground with the feet). Fi. tuki-a, To. tuki, Ma. tuki, tukituki.] H. duk, dakak, A. dakka, dakka, &c., beat, pound, Nm. daqdaqa, sound of horses' feet beating (the ground).

Tuki, in matuki, s., q.v., and Mau-tukituki, or Mau-tikitiki, name of a mythical person, one of the first men. [Mg. tuki, matuki. See matūki, supra.] See under taki, supra, and see mau.

Tu-ki-roa ki, v. t., to give in commission: roa, as in boroa ki, and tua, or tu, to give.

Tuku, v. i., to go down, sink down, also v. t., tuku nalai, lower the sail (of a canoe), tuku bia kiki, put a child in a cloth basket to be carried on the back. [Ma. tuku, To. tuku, Sa. tuu, Ha. kuu, Fi. tuku-t'a.] H. s'uaḥ, A. saḥ'a, ṣaḥ'a (t'aḥ'a, taḥ'a), to sink down, H. s'uḥah, s'iḥah, a pit, s'aḥat, pit, cistern, the grave. Hence

Tuk, s., a hole, enclosure like a hole or pit; and Tukituki, s., the seven stars (because like an enclosure); and Tük, s., uora tük, place of the pit, i.e. Hades; and

Tukituki, or tukutuku, s., name of a place on the western side of Efate, where is the entrance to Hades; and Tuku, s., a fence, stake, or Tuku, s., a fence, stake, or post (because sunk in the ground and firm).

Tukunua, s., d., a story, tradition, d. syn. kakai. See takutaku.

Tula, s., wax of the ear. [Fi. tule, id., daliġatula. deaf, Sa. tuli, deaf, My. tuli, deaf.] A. şalaḥ, deafness.

Tu-lake, v. t., to give in commission: tua, give, and lake,

q.v.

Tuletule, v. i., to swing; and Tule-aki, v. t., to swing; and Tula, s., d. a swing, v. i., to swing. H. dalal, dalah, talal, A. daldala, and taltala, to swing.

Tuli for tili, to tell, relate.

Tuluku, for taluko.

Talūm i, or

Tulūm i, v. t., to swallow down, dd. tuluģ i, tinom i, tunuģ i, taluģ i. [An. atleg, My. tālān, cf. pārlān, tārlān, Mg. telina.] A. lahima, n. a., lahm, 5, 8, Nm., 5, telehhem, to swallow down.

Note.—Sa. and To. 'to swallow' is folo, A. bali'a, Tuma, d. tumbu (see under tubu). S. sĕbu, will.

Tuma, or tama sok, for taba soka: taba.

Tūma, d. rūma, q.v.

Tuma i, v. t., to point out with the finger, bituma, v. r.; d. riū sa. See tiū sa.

Tuma i, v. t., to knock (as a door), as a sign to open it.
And

Tumatuma i, id., redup. [Sa. tuma, cf. My. antam.] For tuba i.

Tumàlu, for tamàlu: taba, lua.

Tuma-ni, v. t., d., to cook (in a particular way), redup. tu-tuma; and

Tumu na, d. nubu na, q.v., also tomo na;

Tumutumua, v. i., or a., formed from tumu by a. ending a. See noba-ni, and nobanoba, and matumutumu, and manubunubu.

Tumana, s., a parcel: taum i, tam i.

Tumi, or tomi, v. t., to suck. [Motu toboa.] E. ṭabawa, to suck.

Tumi. See rumi.

Tu na, s., bones (of fish).

Tutu, a., bony. [Fi. sui, d. dua, bone, suisuia, lean, bare of flesh, bony, rough, sharp.] A. s'a'a, 4, to become spiky, to be rayed.

Tuni, v. t., to heat, tuni fatu, to heat red hot the oven stones. [Fi. tunu, tunutunu, vakatunu-na.] And

Tunu, v. t., to heat, to oppress or make to suffer (as heat does); bitunu, to be hot, painful, dd. bitin, bisin (see also sinu, sisinu, and tontono); tutun, to light up (torches, the evening cooking fires); and Tunu, s., heat (of fire, or of the sun). See sīnu.

Tuni. See tani.

Tunika, s., place where the watchers at a koro (fish-trap) noiselessly remain: tu, to stand, and see nikenika.

Turà sa, v. t., to lengthen (as by splicing); tutur ki, to delay for (as for a sick man unable to walk quickly), d. tutura ki, bakatura ki, id. A. ṭāla, 1, 2, 4, make long, lengthen, to delay.

Turausi. See tera usi.

Tu-ri, see tu, to stand up.

Tur i, d. turu sa, v. t., to sew; also to nail; to go through an opening (as a ship through the entrance of a harbour);

Turi, and turituri, s., needle. also nail. See turu ki.

Turiai, or turiei, s., offspring, youth, children. young man, young men. A. duriyyat' (vulg. A. pronounced doriya), children, offspring, progeny, from darra, v.

Turua (a. ending a), full of holes (as a rock of holes through which rain percolates);

Tuturu, v. i., to drip (as eaves), leak (roof);

Tuturu, s., a drop, dripping, e. art.; and Turu ki, drip or leak through. See also tiri-kit. [Sa. tulu'i, tulutulu, faatulutulu, To. tulu, tului, To. tulu he mata = riri mita (tears), Fi. tiri, turu. titiri, tuturu, tiri-va. turu-va.]

A. s'alla, (3), to sew. (2).

A. s'alla, (3), to sew, (2), shed tears, s'als'ala, to drip, fall in drops, was'ala, to drip, drop look out drop, leak out.

Turubi-si, or d. torobi-si to lay down, leave, permit (d. turuk, permit), E. tarafa, A. taraka. See Ch. II. 14. c. Turuk, d., v., to permit. A. taraka, id., E. tarafa.

Tū sa (see tiu sa), d. tū-ni, to tinge, mark, colour native cloth.

Tūsi, s., book, writing, Sa. word. See tiū sa, tū sa, for its origin.

Tutu, v. i., to sink: tiū sa.
Tutua ki, redup. of tua ki, to place.

Tutua, redup. of tua, to go. Tutuma, redup. of tuma-ni, to cook.

Tutun (redup. of tunu, q.v.. to heat), to light up (torches and cooking fires, as in the evening).

Tuuti, v. t., to tie: hence Tuut, s., a knot. [Tah. toti, My. tambat.] E. s'abaṭa, Arm. sĕbat and sĕwat, id.

U, verb. pron., 1 pl., excl. (contraction for au), d. bu, mu (dual moa). we (and) they. Mahri hem, or habu, they

(Ef. bu = habu = 'mi in kinami, nami).

U, s., in näu, d. for usu; also in bitëu, for bitesu.

U, verb. pron., 3 pl., they: d. for ru (for nu, mu).

U, v., d. for ba, q.v.; in umai, to come here.

Ua (wa), dd. ua (wa), ui (wi), interj., ad., yes: ua, dem.

Ua (u-a, and u-wa), s., oven, dd. um, ubu, of (ov).

Ua (wà), d. uè q.v., inter. ad. Uā, s.. c. art. naua (nawa), and aua, veins, or muscles. [Fi. ua, Sa. ua.] See aua.

Uā, v. i., d. for ba, and boua, to rain: ba.

Uā ki, v. t., d. böuā ki, to yield fruit; and Uā, s., c. art. näuā (nawā), or nuā na, its fruit. [Ta. v., auwa, s., nowa, Oba, v., mo ai, Sa., v. and s., fua, My., s., buwah, Ja. uwoh, woh, My., v., barbuwah, Mg., s., vua, v., mamua, Ef. d. ueti na (weti na), Malo vira, Ml. P. funa, Er. d. mil, fruit, Ml. P. mi uan, Malo mo vira, to bear fruit.] See under böua. Arm. fēra, fīra, &c., H. pĕri, fruit; para, to bear fruit, E. faraya, id.

Ua, yes, that's it: ua, dem.
Ua, dem., this: with other demonstratives suffixed, either this or that, uāna, uane, ua naġa, uai, uase, uai na, uai naġa, and with tu, uane tu, dd. uo uose, uintu. Connected with this word are ua, uua, ui, uisa, uiko, uila, uanà. H. po, fo, this. See Ch. V. 1.

Ua'a, s., a swelling, rise, i bi ua'a (of, e.g., an island seen from a distance swelling up or rising out of the sea). See fuata, and bua III.

Uābě, inter. ad., d. syn. sābě, where now? where then? See be, and ue (d. ua).

Uāġo, s., d. uàk, pig, swine. Ta. puka, Fi. vuaka, Sa. pua'a, Malo boi, Epi bue, Bouru babue, My. babi. Mysol boh. This name seems lit. to denote 'grunter', Ta. puka, to grunt, puka, s., a pig. Compare supra buka, to bark, to cough (also d. buku). A. fāķa, fuāk', or fuwak', to emit hoarse guttural sounds, fakfaka, to bark.

Uai, dem., this, that; and Uaia, id., also uai na, uai naga, uai ntu, id. Compare English, this here, this 'ere, for this.

Uaka na, s., d. for aka na: aka.

Uako, interj., a mere exclamation: ua and ko, dems.

Uālu, for balu, friend; and Uālubota, s., enemy. lit. alien friend.

Uan, inter. ad., d., where? See uē. [Santo veai and even, id. 7 See Ch. V. 4. b., bb. Uāna, dem., that: ua, dem., and na, dem. suffixed to it. Uànà, interj., an exclamation, see! look out! Dems. ua, and na.

Ua-nate natua na, s., d., calf of the leg, lit. fruit of the belly (liver) of the leg.

Uane, dem., this: ua, ne.

Uārīk, d. for bātīk, q.v.

Uāsa, ad., d. āsa, the day after to-morrow. [An. vit', Epi vėūa, Ml. vis, wisa, Am. bugirua, Santo pogirua, Lo weria, Mota arisa. The word uāsa is ua (for which see ma), day, and sa (for ra, or rua, 2), 2 or 2nd: in pogirua, pogi is another word for day, and, in arisa, ari is still another, Ef. ali.

Uase, interrog. See nafete, fete, d. feha.

Uase, dem., this: ua, se.

Uasi, v., d. for asi.

Uata, s., a portion: bota i.

Uataki, v., d. for bitaki; and Uataki, s., dd. otaki, itaki.

Uateaf, and d., Uateam, and d.,

Uateau, s., kidneys: ua, fruit, ate, liver (&c.), and amo, belly, lit. fruit of the liver (or inside) of the belly; and Uateau-laso, s., testicles. lit. kidneys of the scrotum.

Uati, v., d. ati.

Uatu, v.. d. for atu.

Uaua (waua), v. and s., for baua, q.v.

Uba na, or ube na, s., his day, d. kuba na. H. &c., yom, &c., id.

Uboġ, s., day. See boġ. Ubu, s., dd. um, ua, and of, q.v.

Uè, inter. ad., where? dd. ua, (uan, uabě), uai, bai, mbè. [Fi. vei, Sa. fea.] See Ch. V. 4. b., bb. Ef. uābe, is uābe, where then? See be.

Uei, interj., an exclamation: uai.

Uēlu, v., for bēlu, and

Uēlu, s., a heathen function in which the men pass days in the bush, hidden from the women, under the direction of the natamole tabu, in order to ascertain from the natamate, in dreams, what their future fortune is to be.

Uen, s., c. art., sand: aran.

Uēnr, d. for Uēre, d. for Uēte, d. for fāta, q.v.

Ufea, ad., afar, far away, at a distance: d. emai, q.v.

Ui, interj., and ad., yes (that's it): ua, or uai, dem.

Ui, uia, also bia (pwia), v. i., or a., good, well, beautiful, &c. [Mota wia, Am. wi, Ml. bu, Santo va, Ma. pai (whakapaipai, to adorn), Sula pia, Ceram fia, My. baik.] H. yapah, to be fair, beautiful, Pi. to adorn (cf. Ma. supra), yapeh, fair, beautiful, good, excellent.

Uiko, interj., exclamation: ui, interj., and ko, dem.

Uila, interj., exclamation: ui, interj., and la, ad.

Uili na, s., d. for kuli na, the skin.

Uiroa, s., a crooked kind of yam: biri, tafirofiro.

Uis, or uisa, interj., and ad. yes: ui, and sa, dem.

Uisi, v., for bisi, to take with the hand.

Uisi, uisiuisi (wisiwisi) d. bisiuisi, d. bisi, d. busiwusi, v., to make, to work, bisi ekobu, make a house, uisiuisi ki, work at, nauisian, work, or act of working. [Sa. osi, Ja. yasa, Mg. asa.] H. 'asah, n. a. ma'ăseh (work), to make, produce by labour.

Uisiki na, s., elbow, or anything, as a corner, like an elbow, uisiki aru na (or, naru na), rump of the arm, d. mago naru na, heel of the arm; uisi, for bisi, s., q.v., and prep. ki.

Ula, s., a maggot. [Sa. ilo, My. ulat, Mg. ulița.] E. 'eș'e, vermis, 'aș'ya, vermes producere (Ex. xvi. 23 (4), Acts xii. 23): A. 'ut'aț: see mata.

Uli, for uili, kuli, skin. Mahri gotl. See kuli na.

Uli, or ul i, v. t., dd. oli, auli, uili, to take the place of, to substitute for, to barter for, buy. See biauli, d. bioli, v. r., and bauli, faulu; also, c. art., naulu, s., barter, and redup.,

Uliul, id., and especially in the phrase uliul nako, substitute the appearance (or face) of some other person for his own to deceive (demons were supposed to do this). [Mg. vidi, mividi, to buy, Fi. voli-a, id., volivoli, to trade or barter,

Santo uliul, give for, buy; Ha. ouli. A. 'āṣ'a, to do or give something for another thing, 2, 3, id., 4, id., 5, accept one thing for another, 8, substitute one for another; 'awiṣ', one (person or thing) in place of another, in place of, ma'uṣ'at, what is given for another thing (i. e. one thing given for another thing, Ef. faulu, id.).

Uli na, s., leaf, leaves, also ulu; and

Ulua, v. i., or a., to put forth leaves, to grow up (of plants and hair), and redup.,

Uluulua, id., also to be full of leaves, to be hairy, hence lulu na (for uluulu na), hair. [Ha. ulu, uluulu.] See lu lulu, &c. A. 'ala, n. a. 'aluw', H. 'alah, to go up, whence A. 'ilawat, the head, H. 'aleh, leaf, leaves, 'ōleh, sprouting forth, growing up. Ululuia, ululia, and lulia.

Uluma, s., a pillow for the head. [Ha. uluna, To. uluga (ulu, the head), Tah. urua (uru, the head), Ma. uruga (uru, the head), id.] See Ch. II. 16. b, for this word for 'head', and Index under letter 7 for the Semitic forms of it, and of the word for 'pillow'.

See alialia.

Um, s., oven, dd. ubu, &c. See of.

Uma, v., to clear for a plantation, cut down the jungle for this purpose, d. syn. beru. [My. uma.] And Uma, s., a clearing for cultivation, in isuma, q.v. [My. uma.] A. h'amma, to cut; to sweep out, to clean, h'imm', a garden vacant of trees and fruits.

Umai, d. See banomai, bābē. [Sa. o mai.]

Umba i, v. t., to cast on it, umbaki, v. t., to cast a thing, d. bi. E. haypa, to cast.

Umkau, d. makau, or mukau, a cluster, gathering, hence d., many, all: kau.

Un, s., a fish scale. [Sa. una, id., Ma. unahi, Ha. unahi, to scale a fish, fish-scale. My. unus, to pull out.] H. ḥalaṣ, A. ḥ'alaʿa, to pull out, pull off.

Una, v., to cover or bury itself in the sand or mud (of a snake, and an eel-like fish which does so);

Una ki, v. t., to make to bury itself in the ground (a post or fence stake);

Una, s., an eel-like fish that burrows or buries itself in the sand:

Una, s., a post, or fence stake. H. 'omnah, column, post, stake (because supporting).

Unu, s., ghost. See anu. Uo, dem., d. for ua.

Uo, for bo, mo. See mo, bo. Uokati, v., for boka-ti; hence Uoka, chapped, sore (of the hands, as from striking or chopping with an axe. &c.).

Uoki, s., an axe. A. waķi, a sharp cutting instrument.
Uol, s., c. art., a bed; and Uolis i, v. See bolis i, mauol, &c.

Uol. See bol, bolo.

Uolau. See bolau, böuolau. Uolo, interj., exclamation. [Fi. uala.] See uoro.

Uon, dem., d. for uane.

Uon, v. for bon.

Uonda, s., d. uete.

Uontu, dem., uon, tu: d. for uanetu.

Uora, v., and

Uora na, redup. uorauora na, s., and

Uoratan, s. (uora, sprout, tano, of the ground), a plant that springs up of its own accord (without being planted or sown); fig. a person without friends or connexions to avenge him, i bi uoratan ba faku sa, he is a person without friends, pluck him up (i.e. uproot, or kill him). See bora 11.

Uora, or era, s. See bora i. Uorausi, d. for uru usi. Uori, uoriuori, mauori. See bori.

Uoro, and auoro, interj., exclamation(d. uolo): uo, dem., and ro, dem., and a, as in ako, ake, interj.

Uosa, uosauosa, uosagoro. See bosa, bosauosa, bosagoro.

Uose, or uos, d. uohe, s., oar, paddle. See balu-sa. [Ml. bos, Epi. Bi. voho, Fi. vot'e, Ta. veu, Fut. foi, Sa. foe, My.

dayuģ, Mg. fi-vui, Bisaya bugsai.] A. miķdaf, migdaf, miḥdaf, miķdaf, Amh. maķzaf, A. "aduf, oar.

Uose, dem., d. for uase.

Uota, or uot, s., c. art., nauota, or nauot, a chief, lord, husband; the chief idol of the Efatese. [Mg. vali, or vadi, husband or wife, one of a pair, Fi. wati, husband, or wife, Tah. fatu, Ha. haku, chief, lord, Ml. P. mar, Santo mul, chief, lord. A. ba'ala, to become a husband, or wife, ba'l', husband, or wife; in South Arabia, lord, also name of an idol; H. ba'al, lord, husband, Arm. ba'al, be'el, E. ba'alĕ; bel (Bel), chief idol or god of the Babylonians; Baal, c. art., lord, an idol of the Phoenicians, their chief deity, Baal also occurs in pr. nn. as מָתוּבַעַל, 'man of baal', cf. Ef. Mari uota which probably means 'man of uota'.

Note. Among the Efatese a face was cut or carved usually upon the arm near the shoulder-joint, but sometimes on the chest of many of the people, called uota, or narai nauota 'the face of uota', and the same was also carved upon the nabeas erected in every village in the public worship ground. Another form of this word in Efatese is fatu, thus Mare uota, pr. n.. is also in one village Mare fatu. The great conical rock (about which there is a myth) in the sea fourteen miles north of Efate is called Uota. It has the shape of the ancient Semitic Baal pillars, and the Efatese in passing it used to lower their heads or veil their faces. It is also called Uota-nmānu, or Fatu-n-mānu. Mānu, multitude, denotes also 'abundance', 'wealth,' and Uota-n-mānu seems to mean Uota of wealth, or plenty, i. e. who gives wealth, or plenty to his worshippers. Uota is said to have a wife: a natural cave on the coast of Efate opposite to the idol is called the wife of Uota.

Uota, uotauota: for bota, botauota.

Uoti, d. for uti, oti. See uti. Uotu, s., a mark; hence Uotuuotu, a., having marks.

A. nabat'u, mark.

Ura, v., in, masi ura ki, to scoop up water, sprinkling (someone); and Ura, s., c. art. niura, dew. or rain water on the foliage of plants (from its sprinkling and wetting people). H. yarah, sprinkle, to water, hence yoreh, rain, lit. sprinkling.

Ura, s., lobster, prawn. [Sa., Ha. ula, Ma. koura, My. udaj, Ja. uraj, Mg. urana (uranurana, eating greedily).] H. hawar, to be white, become pale, A. hara, to be bleached, &c., 4, to eat greedily, hawar, Nm. haur, red leather.

Note.—Ef. ura seems to be so called because of the red colour which the lobster assumes immediately on being put on the fire to be cooked: hence the proverb, i ti bi ura iga miel marafi, it is not the lobster to become red immediately (said of wickedness whose punishment does not follow at once, but will come, however slowly).

Uri na, s., the latter or after part, i.q. muri na, s.

Uru, v. i., to run. A. "āra H. 'ir), to run.

Uru, uruuru, v. i., to growl, grumble, mutter, murmur. See oro, orooro.

Us, d. for su, v. t., to take up. Usi (for kusi), v. t., follow in the track of, investigate, ask, question; and redup.

Usūsi, v. t., investigate, ask. See takusi. [My. usir, majusir, tarusir.]

Usĭ, v. i., to hasten, usŭ-naki, v. t., hasten about, or as to. H. ḥus' (and 'us'). A. ḥās'a, to hasten.

Usiraki, or usereki, i. e. usiraki (usi q. v. to follow), v., to follow through, hence, as ad., throughout.

Usu, s., c. art. nausu, d. iu, or u, a reed. [Ml. ui, Epi yi, Sa. u, Fut. jusau. To. kaho.] E. haṣĕ, H. heṣ, reed, arrow.

Uta, s., land, euta, e, prep. ashore, on land, by land. [Sa. uta, My. utan (hutan).] A. "uṭat', land planted with trees; and Uta i, or uta ki, v. t., to load (make sink, immerse) a canoe. [Ma. uta, Mg. undrana.] And Uta, s., c. art. nauta, a canoe load, cargo. [Sa. uta, Ma.

utaġa.] And

Utu, ut ī, v. t., to fill (by immersing) a water vessel. [Sa. utu, utu-fia, Ha. uku-ki.] A. "āṭa ("a'ṭu), 4, to immerse.

Uta na, v. t., and uta i, v. t., to pay for, repay, give in payment for (pay for work done, &c.), i utai a. [Ma. utu, s. payment, equivalent, whakautu, to pay for.] A. 'ada', 2, to pay for, repay.

Uti, v. t., to tie, bind; and prep., near, by, beside, as toko utina, stay by or beside him. H. 'anad, id., A. 'inda, rarely 'unda, prep., near, by, beside.

Uti na, s., membrum virile. [Motu use, Astrolabe Bay (N.G.) uti, Ma. ure, To. ule, id.] A. 'uss', id.

Uua, (ua, or uwa), d. for amau, 'true', lo-ua, for lo-amau, q.v.

Uui (uwi, and u-i), s., c. art. naui (nau-i, or nau-wi), the yam. See afa ki.

Uulu, v. i., also uilu (wulu, wilu), for bilu, q.v., to dance. [Ml. U. velu, Malo velu, Motu mavaru, Ha. mele.] H. mahol, and mholah, dance, dancing, from hul, or hil, to go round, also to dance (in a circle).

Uusike, and uisiki, q.v.,

elbow.

INDEX OF SEMITIC WORDS

PRELIMINARY NOTE

It is very possible that some words may have been omitted inadvertently from the following Index. And it is to be observed that it has not been attempted to give a word as a rule in more than one Semitic language, though it may occur in all. Nor are the Semitic verbal noun-forms given with the verb, except occasionally: for these the reader may consult Ch. III, and the Dictionaries under the words given. Also as a rule only the Efatese words are given: by looking up these in the Dictionary the words in other Oceanic dialects can be sufficiently found. The Semitic words, in the Index in their native dress, are given transliterated into the Roman character in the Dictionary.

In the Dictionary the servile ending t (for which see Chs. II, IV) is usually represented thus, liko-ti, luku-taki (the finals i and ki being the transitive particles as explained in Ch. IV): but in the Index the hyphen is omitted. The Dictionary would have been greatly enlarged had all the Efatese words derived from verbs and adjectives by the formative ending an (in one dialect pronounced en) been inserted, as a derivative is regularly formed from every verb and adjective in the language, as explained in Ch. IV.

אָּ, אָּ, פְּׁלֹּ, פּלֹּי; ko, ki-te. אָּ; O. פּֿלָּאָ, אָבְּאָ; ābŭ, āfa, tama, Mahri hab, haīb, ḥeib. אור, אָבַר; buele, bole; Mandaitic ן וֹּעִבּה ; וֹעבּה ; lobu. אָבָּרָה ,אָבָּר ; אָבָּרָה ,אַבָּר ; אָבָּרָה ,אַבָּר ; afaru, ofari. אָבְּרָה ,אַבָּר ; afaru, ofari. אָבְּע (v. מֹבְּעַל). בֹּב ; aru, faru (hand). رُدَى , أُدَى , أُدَى , أُدَى לֹה, אַרַמְּדָם; tom, tom.

אָרִיִּר ,אָדֵר , וֹּבַּּל; telatela, matulu.

ېلِה (v. عَوَى); ao, au, bakau, bakauě.

fonu. آوِنَةُ

بْيَالًا , بِمْيَلًا , بِهِيْلًا , بِهِيْلًا , بِهِيْلًا , هِيْلًا , عَزَلَ , هَالًا , sali a.

َ seri, miseri. مِثْزَرٌ ,أَزْرَ

إسرار المراز الم

גֿב (Vulg. for اُحَدُّ), (sikai=אחרא);

קר, אָרָב, אָרָה, אָרָח, Amh. ande, Tig. ade; iti, sa; Mg. My. isa, asa;

לובְעֹבֿי, אחה, Amh. andit; sike, tika, tesa, teha, sikai; Mg., Sumatra isaka, sara, sadah, &c. Cf. אחה (ד elided), for אחה, אהר, אהר, אהר.

וֹהֶלֹבֹל [בֹּבُל , אַחַזּ, Imp. בُבُי ; bisi, Mg. hazuna, and tazuna ; Arm. אָקָר, אַאָּר, אַאָר, אָאַרָּד (n. a.).

أَخْرَ, אָחַר (the 'quiescent in Aramaic); ġere, kusu, kihi, kisi, kui, bui, muri, busi, uri, mauri, nabis, nakis, tēr.

fei, ē, sē (and see safa); with nom. suf. pronoun, se-ġamu, se-ġara, or seara, interrogative, which or who of you, or of them? and indefinitely, some or any of you, or of them; and see كأي; and taka, بأن (i, and بنه).

إي ; ei (ei a, ei eri).

ነኝ, ኢ ; ī (ëi, ewo, īs).

איהוּ, אִי הוּא; io (io re), ia.

أَيْمَ, Mod. A. ama; safa, sefa.

َاكَلَ أَ, 1, 3, 4, اَكِلَ , kani, kana, baġani, faġani, baġa, faġa, finaġa, kainaġa, kaniana, kunuti.

اَلٌ (el, a, or l-), أَ, Phoen. a, article; na, a, la, in, ni, ra, ta. مَلَدَ, see مَلَدَ.

إِلَّا , أَلِي (yla, ila), &c., الَّلَّ , أَلِي (yla, ila), &c., الَّذِي , الْأَلْ , أَلَّى , أَلَّمَ , أَلَّمَ , أَلَّمَ , أَلَمَ , أَلَّمَ أَلَى أَلَى الْمُؤْتُ , أَلَّمَ أَلَى أَلَى الْمُؤْتُ , أَلَّمَ أَلَى الْمُؤْتُ , أَلَّمَ أَلَى إِلَى الْمُؤْتُ , أَلَّى إِلَى الْمُؤْتُ , أَلَّى أَلَى الْمُؤْتُ , أَلَّى أَلَى الْمُؤْتُ , أَلَّى أَلَى الْمُؤْتُلُ , أَلَّى أَلَى الْمُؤْتُلُ , أَلَّى أَلَى الْمُؤْتُلُ , أَلَّى أَلَى الْمُؤْتُلُ أَلَى الْمُؤْتُلُ أَلَى إِلَى الْمُؤْتُلُ , أَلَّى أَلَى الْمُؤْتُلُ أَلَى الْمُؤْتُلُ أَلَى إِلَى الْمُؤْتُلُ أَلَى الْمُؤْتُلُ أَلَى إِلَى إِلْمِ إِلَى إِلَل

ر (final و), 1, 5; aliali, taliali. أَلَا ; olā.

אָלֶל, אֶלֶל, Assy. alapu, Mahri of; Tag., Bis. libu, livu, Mg. arivu, My. ribu, Java ewu, Sa. afe, Rotuma ef, N. G. ribun, Santo rowuna, ruwun: 1000, thousand. Note the nunation.

۲۵۶, جاز ; alat, leti, lēt, lita, ala, alāla.

אָׁמֵל; malĭ, malĭmalĭ, malĭeri.

אָמֶת, אֹמֶת, &c.; amau, mau, amōri, mōri, mauri, uwa, una, maut i, mūt i, maumau, mūmū;

אֹמְנָה; ūna.

አመስ; mesa.

أَوَانَ , أَوَا ; rān, rāģ, lāģ, naģ, rak.

እነመ, መእነም; banu, binu, &c., My. anam.

Assy. annu, anni, anna; ini, in, na.

Assy. anaku, aku, Mahri ho, אָנְי, אָנֹכִי, אָנֹכִי, אָנֹכִי, אָנֹכִי, אָנֹכִי, k-inau, k-inu, ke-ino, anu, enu.

Plural: נֹבֶּטׁ, אֲנוּ , נַחְנוּ , אֲנַחְבוּ , יֹבֶּטׁ, vulgar נַבְּטֹּי, neḥne, neḥn, lanı, Egypt iḥna, Assy. anini, nini, or ninu, &c.; nini-ta, niģi-ta, niģa-mi, ina-mi, ana-m, aġa-m.

Nominal suffix (possessive) and verbal suffix (acc.) \(\); na, \(\) na, \(\) nu, Arm. \(\); na; Ef. na-mi, ni-ta; also verbal pronoun suffix (nominative), also verbal pronoun prefix (nominative), Mg. (suf. nom., acc., poss.) na-i, H. na, A. na, ne, ni, Assy., Arm. ni; Epini, Ml. na-mite, ne-ti, Ef. au (for na-mi).

Note.—In the Oceanic dd. this pl. pron. is found now only in combination with the 2nd and 3rd p. prons. q.v. for -mi and -ta.

Sing.: verbal pronoun suffix (nominative), Assy. and Eth. ku, Arb. tu, H. ti, Arm. t, Mandaitic and Talmud i; Mg. ku.

The nominal suf. (poss.) (verbal suf. acc. ni, for naku, Ef. au, nau) in Heb. &c., is i (for ku, ki), but in Mg., Ef., My., Sam., &c., remains unchanged, ku (Santo u). Verbal pronoun prefixed (nominative) Arb. &c., a (for ku), Ef. a (always before the verb but not written prefixed).

See Ch. V. 3, and places in Ch. II there cited.

أَنْضَ; meta, manta.

آذِتَى ; mina.

እንቍባል, Mahri ḥali; natole, atol (Poggi agoloh).

رُبِيْدَاتُّى , أَنُاسٌ , بِبَاتُى , إِيْسَانُ , إِنْسَانُ , إِنْسَانُ , بَانُسُ , بَانُسُ , مُبِنْتِهُ , nata, ata, ita, nata-mole, &c.

ፃቦች, ፃቦት; safe, sifa, misafe, bisif, bisab.

רַבְּאָ, גְּמֶׁל; sel i.

مِيفَى , אֶּבֶּה; ubu, of, um, ua (uwa).

ie, פֿא, פֿא, ua, uo, be.

יוֹפֹּטׁ, אָפֵּל, אָפֵּל, אָפֵּל, and cf. H. jab; melu, fanu.

أَصَرً, 3, 6; sere, bisere, bakasere, masere.

רְבָּה, הְאָרָה, rafe, rafe-aki, rafēna, rafeana, rofe, raf, d. rau, kalau, kolau (d. nalau), kalumi.

אָרֵג; taraġ, Maori raġa.

ּאָרָה, אֹּבְרָּ, אֹבְרָּ, lai a, bila i, bila.

آرَك , 5; firaka.

አረፍተ; rafite.

َرُضَ , أَرُضَ , أَرَضَ , أَرَضَ , أَرَضَ , أَرَضَ , أَرَضَ ; miles.

(אַשֶּׁה (אֵשֶּׁה Emph. אָּהָאָ, Emph. אָּהָאָ; lai, lei, le, li; Bali luh, Mota iro. See Ch. II, § 17.

يَّرِتَ , أَنْتُمْ , أَنْتُ وَ. aġo, akam, &c., ta, in niġi-ta; Mandaitic אנאת, naġo: pl. (m. elided) أَنْتُوا , d. kumu, Mod. S., أَنْتُوا , entu, enku, for an- or entun, enkum, d. eġū.

2 p. pron. sing.: nominal suffix (thy), and verbal suffix (thee): (d), ka, k; Ef. k, ko, go, ma, ma, 'thee'; ma, ma, 'thy,' Er. ka, ma, Ta. k, m, Aurora $\dot{g}a$, Pentecost $\dot{m}a$, Lakon \dot{g}^{1} : verbal pronoun suffix (nom.) as preceding, E., and Himy. ka, but in H., Arm., A., and Assy. ta,2 (as E., and Himy. kemu, pl.) My. kau, Mg. nau (the last two pl. for sing.); verbal pron. prefix (nom.), A., &c., ta, te, ti, tu,3 Ef. (not written prefixed) ku, ko, Epi ka, ko, ku, Ml. ke, Pa. ki.

Pl.: nominal suffix ('your'), and verbal suffix ('you', acc.), A. kumu, kum, E. kemu, H. kem, Assy. kunu, kun, Arm. kom, kun, kon; My. mu, Ef. mu (and v.s., in one d. kama, 'you,' acc., in another kem, poss. 'your'): verbal pron. suffix (nom.) 1, A. tumu, tum, tu, E. kemu, T. kum, Himy. kum; Santa Cruz gamu ('amu), Mg. (na-reu, pl.), nau (pl. used for sing.), My. mu (kau and kamu): verbal pron. prefix (nom.), A., &c., see sing., Ef. ku, Epi ku, ko, ke, Pa. mi, Ml. ke.

¹ ML., p. 125.

² C. G. S. L., p. 171.

The k form of this pron. prevails in Oc., but when combined with the 1st p. pron., as in Ef. ninita, nigita, and igita, it is usually t, but even here sometimes, as in Mg. isika, it is k—both the tand k forms are in all Semitic dd.

Ef. pl. verbal pron. of nigita is tu, apparently the pl. of ta(A. tu, for tum, pl.), and the dual is tā, so Sam. tā, A. tumā, dual of tum, or tumu.

See Ch. V, § 3, and places in Ch. II there cited.

أَثُكَأً; tokai, tokei.

أَثَرَ , 1, 4, 5, 8; tera, tetera, bakatera.

رَّبُعَةً, אَכَחُقُ, see بُرَاقً, אַרְבַעַת, אַרְבָעָה, see بُرَاقً, see بُرَاقً, see بُرَاقً, ti-fai (ti, article).

ع, ח; Amh. A, and U, A; ے; bai, bei, ba(ki), bi(ki), magi, mini, wa, wi, a, i.

بُجَرَةً ، بَجَرَ but, buto; Mg. fuita, My. pusat.

بَدَنِ; batako.

بَهُوْ; bo, bobo.

جهيّ; bua, ta-bu.

ָהָתְבָהֶלָה ,בָהֵל bile, belbel, bilieli, tabili, bilebile.

ብሂል; bile, bīlĕ, bilebile.

בְּהַן, בְּהַן, בְּהַן, 2, 4, 5, 10; bono, bonot, monot, mānu, fona, buta, bunuta, munuai.

بُهر ; bōlu.

بوی , بوا , دانه , دانه , دانه , دانه , دانه mai, bē, bie, bē (bie-n, bē·m), bi, mi, bā.

;بيٹ ,بابَة ,بَاب , (mid. و), بابَة ,باب baba, bib, bamu, d. bau.

رو (mid. و); beik, bik, beifeik, feikfeik.

בּוּעַה, בּוּעַ, mafa, d. mäu (for mafu), fuata.

بَوْقًى; baigo, or beigo.

¹ Id., pp. 173-4.

بَطَلُ) بَطَلَ), جَيْلًا) بَطَلَ) بَطَلَ) بَطَلَ) بَطَلَ mole.

, وَقِيا , جَمِّا , جَمِّا , بَطِّرَ, bele, mele, bela, bila, baloa, balua, belu, welu, tabelu, bil i, felak, bela ki, balebalea, belebelea, d. bolboloa, beluwelu, beluweluki, bitabelu, bitafitabelu, mabelu, mabelubelu, biliti.

تٿا, 5; tabei.

בינה, בִינָה; bunus, bunu, bu.

.id.; boka, d بَكَتَ .ef. بَكَعَ mbuh, mbuh, woka, bokat, uokat, bokauoka.

بَكْرَ, بَكْرُ, كَاتِي buïl-boġ, bulobog; My. pagi, pagi-ari. Mota bulo; bog bulo = bulo bog. בלה; bilàki.

جَلِعَ; Sa. folo. See tulum.

, بُلُوغٌ , بَلَغَ ; bule, bule, bulu fule, fulufulu.

קנויה , בגל , ביש , בנויה; fanua.

اَبْرُوْ , بَرِرَا , baro, baru, barus, fara, farofaro, barobaroa.

بَعْر; þā, bowa, ua (wa).

رَعُدَ, ٩٥٠٤; bota, botauota, bot, botota, uotauota, mauota, maota, maotaota.

بَغْنُ , بَغَا , بَغْنُ , بَغَا ; bai, or bei. | جَمِרָא , جَשָׂר; fisĭko.

בל , בִעל , בַעַל , זָשׁ, uota, uot, Uota (Wota), d. fatu.

בָּעַר; bara, tabara, bauria, or bouria, būria.

نَصَاقًى; bosabosa, fut.

بَفْعَةً ,بِفْعً , بَفَعَ , بَعَعَ , جِيْلا ; fasu.

بَعْضُ ; fāru, fālu, buis ; always with the pl. dem. li, &c., thus li-faru, li-buis, era-falu, rafalu, ri-falu.

حمًا; bake, baku.

بَرْبَرَ; buru.

בָּרָא, 4, בָּרָא; barua, barubaruta, barubarutena.

בָרָא, Piel; beru.

جَراً, 3; bura i, or bure i; d. bus i, busfus ki, bis i.

בְּרָה, to eat, בְּרָיָה, and בַּרָוֹת. food; feroa, id.

بَرَى, 4; borai, borairai.

(mod. barri, barrani); بَرَّيُّ faria, fari, Mg. velani.

تَرْقَ , بَرْقَ ; bila, fila, bul, bilafila.

بُرْقَعٌ , بَرْقَعٌ ; bulöi, malöi.

በረረ; bir i, bur i.

بَتّ (and بَتّ); bite, bītě.

١

וֹכַה ,נַכַה ,נַכַה , נַכַה , סוֹב

. قَذَفَ see حَذَفَ

يَّةً, جَدَّةً ; atia, tia, f. atona, tata.

عال , ناح ; koba.

جَوْتُ; kabu, kama, kobu, kubu, ekobu.

جَزِّ; kos i, kosum i, kusum i, ģusum i, kusu, kosu, ģusu, makusukusu, makus, mafis.

kīs. جِزعَة ,جَزَعَ

7ሐ, 7ሕ; maġoaġo.

ጉሕቀ, ጉሑቀ; ġuku, kuku, maģuku, ģukuta ki.

(עַבַל); kal i, ġal i, àl i.

غَيْلٌ; ġōle.

اَجْ; ġalu, kalu, kale, kulu, kulut, ģulut, ģalukalua, saģaluģalu.

, kuli, wili; مَجْلُود ,جْلَدَ , جَلَدَ uli, mulu, mulus i.

بَجْلِيٌّ جَلَّا, لِجْرَة; karo, ģiriģiri. جمع , جمع ; kau, măkau, um-kau, ko-, for kau-fakal. Sa. 'au (kau).

vulgar jaja; toa , دُجَاجُ , دَجْ , v. جَنُونَ , حِن , جِنَّ , لِإِلْ , جَنَّ عَنّ infra; inini, unu.

נעה; kua, ġua, ku.

ֶּלָרָ, אַלֵּן; kar i, ġar i, saġara, àr i, d. àt i, ġaru, karut, ģarut, taģaru, karo, kārī, kiri, ori, karakarati, karokaroa, kares, karaf, karak.

נְרָה, Hithp., Mahri ghorat; fakalo.

korīa, kori; ko-جَرَقٌ ,جُرَوْ rīya.

بركر ; ġura, ġures i, iģiri, maģir i, makur, maġura.

וֹרוֹן, 7.6%; karo, gato, kanro, gato.

جَسَّ, ۲۸۸, جُسِّ; kis i, ģis i, ģiskis.

L(Tigre), interrogative particle; ta.

ui, liáuji; taka, takana, taka, d. saka.

יְרָנָת ,דְנָה ,דְגָּה ; ika (with article, naika).

دَبٌ , دَبٌ ; tabu, tabua, tabuana.

َهُمَ , إِدَهَمَ , دَهَمَ ; maieta, maieto (My. itam).

(towa), Gilolo toko, An. jäa.

רוּף, וְרַכְּל, כَבّْ ; tuk i, tukituki.

ደዊቅ; riki, rik, tik (in batik), kiki, iki, uarik, rikit. رَّدُورُ, 1, 2, وَرُرْ, tale, talo, talēfa, tàle, tèle, talefan.

កក្ស; taka, takan i.

نَخُولٌ, دَخُولٌ; sili, silif, transposed sifil.

، دَحَضَ , 4, بَرَحَضَ , soata.

دَحَقَ, كِبَاعَ; toko, toġo, tuġof.

بَطُهُرُ , taku, itaku.

LIN, LN; tāfa.

اَدْدُرُ, اَدْدُرُ, أَحْدُا, 'male'; My. laki, Mg. laki.

دَمْ , دَمْ

לְלַל, &c.; tula, tuletule, tulea ki.

بَدْمَ , دَمْ ; ṭei, rei, fuṭei, mitei.

ּדְּמָה; taba, taba le, &c.

دُّعْ; to.

تَعَبّ; tof i.

نَّهُ وَهُ بَدْعَاءٌ , دَعْوَةٌ , دَعْقِ ; bitau, tau (mafa) ; Tah. tau.

بَوْمَة , دَعَم ; tība.

קָּלָּה, הָּכָּוֹ, &c.; taḥa, taḥaḥa, tama, tuma, tama (lu), tuma (lu), taḥa, or tama sok.

ָרָרָ, כֿק, tera, teratera, teret, torutoru, tōru.

ذ

رُوْ, وَوْ, وَوْ, وَوْ, وَوْ, وَوْ, وَوْ, وَوْ, وَوْ, وَرَا, وَرَا, وَرَاءَ إِنْ فَارِيْ وَالْمَاءِ وَرَاءَ إِنْ فَالْمَاءِ وَرَاءَ وَالْمَاءِ وَرَاءَ وَالْحَاءَ وَالْحَاءَ وَرَاءَ وَالْحَاءَ وَالْحَاءُ وَالْحَاءَ وَالْحَاءَ وَالْحَاءَ وَالْحَاءَ وَالْحَاءَ وَالْحَاءَ وَالْحَاءَ وَالْحَاءَ وَلَاءَ وَالْحَاءَ وَلَاءَ وَالْحَاءَ وَالْحَاءُ وَلَاءُ وَالْحَاءُ وَالْحَالَاءُ وَالْحَاءُ وَالْحَاءُ

; tī, rī.

(5; tokotoko, tokon i.

خُلَّاءُ, 'sun': see هُمُ دُ

ئُرِّيَّةً; turiai, turiei.

Π

(호, vulgar a, 자구; a.

هُبُرُّ , هَبَا abu, afu, au, abuabu, afuafu, mafu, d. mam, libu, malibu, lifu.

مَّذٌ; ta, tata, ta(-goto), &c.

رَمَهُ, رَمَدُبُّ, هَدْبُ , هَدِبَ , هَدَبَ ; rifu, rau, birifi.

พรกกุ, ๑๑ (au); äu, äo.

אָה, אָרָ, &c.; o, u, in äu, äo, io, ore, iore; i, e.

هَزَا ; soan i.

قيت; īta.

₩å, v. [1].

هَلِعَ; mila, mīla.

U.C.A., YA; umba, or uba, d. bi.

(see Ch. V, § 3, and the places in Ch. II there cited), bu (mu), u, -mi (in kina-mi), u (in au).

3 p. pron. pl. (used also now in Oceanic as often in Mod. S. and Amh. for sing. as well as pl.), A. humu, hum, (himu, himi), human, H. hem, hemah, Arm. himo, himon, inun (for in-hun), henun, enun (for enhun), Mod. S. ani (an-i, for ha-en-i), Talm. in-ho, Mahri hem, habu; Ta. in, Ef. ĭnĭa, or ĕnĕa, n-ĭġā, na-i (for na-ia), Epi naiu, My. iña, and īya, Sa. ia, and na, Er. iyi, Mg. izi: Ef. d. k-inini, Epi n-igana, Mare n-ubone, bone 1, Ef. k-ina-mi, Santo ana-m, Mg. ana-i.

Nom. suffix (poss.), A. as above, H. hem, am, and amo, Arm. (hom), hon, hum, E. homu, omu, Mod. S. i; Ef. ana, n, na, and nĭa, ña (the vowel before the n merges in the final vowel of the noun), Sa. na, My. ña, Mg. ni, Mota n, na, Ysabel ña, and a, Dayak of South Borneo e², Epi no, and na.

Verbal suffix (acc.), A., &c., as above; Ef. n, na (and sometimes nia, i.e. ña), a (for na), ia (for ina), s, sa (for n, na), My. ña, Mg. ni, zi, Ysabel ña, za, Santo na, nia, a, ia (see Ef.).

Verbal pron. suffix (nom.): it is disputed as to whether the A.-una (3 p. pl. preterite) is the plural ending of nouns in this pronoun suffix, C.G.S.L., pp. 168-70; in Mg. ni, My. ña, it is the pronoun.

Verbal pron. prefixed (nom.): C. G. S. L., pp. 181-4, ya, yĕ, yi, i, nĕ (Syriac), of which different explanations are given: Ef. ĭ, or ĕ (not written prefixed but always before and with the verb), Ta.³ r-, d. t-(written prefixed and both for n), Ml. ni, and ti, Am. ĭ, Pa. ĕ; these are short forms of the 3 p. pron., as Ef. ru (pl.), ra (dual), for nu, na.

To indicate when this pron. is used in the plural sense, either a different phonetic form of it is used, or there is combined with it the plural demonstrative for which see [].

¹ See M. L., pp. 112-16, for the pers. prons. in a long list of Oceanic dialects.

² See M. L., p. 125, for this suffix pron. in a long list of Oceanic languages.

³ S. S. S., pp. 140, and fol.

קּמְה, הְּמָּה; mu, fu, mamamami.

َهُمَزَ ; bosa, uosa, tabosa, bosa (-lot).

َ هَنْ; sera-roġo, roġo, or ṭoġo. קַּפַּרָ קַפַּרָח, הְפַּרְפַּרָּ baġobaġo, baġobaġōa, baġobaġōra (Po. piko, foʻi, hoki), v. Ch. V, § 9.

هُـرٌ, &c.; oro, bioro, oroma ki.

to laugh); muru, قَرْقَرَ) هَرْهَرَةً, to murunuru; Ta. maliali.

َهُتًا); atu, atuģ i, atuma ki.

هَتَفَ; matautau.

بَمْتَر; teratera, torotoro.

. ו ו או על , דורי

1

وَبَلَ; barat i.

, busa زَوبشَ

رَجَدَ ; kita, ģita.

وَجُهَّ , 5, 6, أَجُهَّ ; nako, nakonakoa ki.

زَوَضَعَ and cf. يَدَعُ fut. وَدَعَ täo.

. وَتَدَ see وَدُ

יָהַבּ, בֹּהָבִים); mofa, mafa (Sa. mafat), in taumafa, taumafatia.

َ of i, āf i. وَهَفَ

ز وطِي ; titi, titia ki.

biri, biribiri. وَطُّ , وَطُّوطً

رَبَكَا اللَّهُ , وَكَا اللَّهُ , وَكَا

وَكُنَّ, أَبَّ iki(na); Mg. akani.

بَرْاِد , وَلَدْ , وَلَدْ , وَلَدْ , وَلَدْ , وَلَدْ , وَلَدْ إلى وَالِدَةُ وَالِدَةُ وَالِدَةُ وَالِدَ وَالِدَ in this word (a) the first radical is dropped, e.g. in גַרָה; (b) the third in לָבֶת, for בֶּלֶת, and wat, for walt (cf. the similar elision of d in the numeral word for 'one'). Both elisions (a) and (b) are exemplified in Mg. rai, was, 'father'; Ef. raita, Celebes leyto, Mg. reni (for raini?), An. and Ml. risi, Pa. lati, Fila leta, wolff, 'mother': nati, nani, natu (N.G. dialects, Kiriwina latu, Sariba natu), reita, ere; kan, kanäu, kanoka, kunuti, kiliti: anatu, My. anak, kanak; Mg.

رَفَى , وَلَى , فِعَالِي , فَعَالِي , فَعَلَي , فَعَلَيْ , فَعَلِي , فَعَلَيْ , فَعَلِيْ , فَعَلِيْ , فَعَلَيْ , فَعَلَيْ , فَعَلَيْ , فَعَلِيْ أَمْ مُؤْمِنِ أَنْ مُعْلِي , فَعَلِيْ أَمْ مُنْ أَمِي أَمْ مُؤْمِنِ أَنْ مُعْلِي أَمْ مُؤْمِنْ أَمْ مُنْ أَمْ مُؤْمِلًا أَمْ مُؤْمِنْ أَمْ مُنْ أَمْ مُؤْمِنْ أَلِمْ أَمْ مُؤْمِنْ أَمْ مُؤْمِنْ أَمْ مُؤْمِنْ أَمْ مُؤْمِنْ أَمْ أَمْ مُؤْمِنْ أَمْ مُؤْمِنْ أَمْ مُؤْمِنْ أَمْ مُؤْمِنْ أَمْ أَمْ أَمْ مُؤْمِنْ أَمْ أَمْ أَمْ مُؤْمِنْ أَمْ مُؤْمِنْ أَمْ أَمْ anaka, zanaka.

وَمَسَ ; amos i, mos i, mus i. وَمَدَّ ; bani, banus.

وَفَلَ; bales i, balasa ki, tabala, tabales.

.asèli ; وَمِيلٌ , وَصَلَ

atāta. وَضَعَ

رَضَى , 2; boroa ki (cf. رَضَى , roa (in tu-ki-roa).

.āso ; وَقُدُّ , وَقَدَ

وَقِبعٌ , 6, 7, 8, وَقِبعٌ , eko, uoki (woki), kie.

وَفَى ; maui, mau.

فَتْتُ , وَقَتْ , kot, kota, gota.

; malat. وَرُدُّ , 2, وَرَدَ

שני, Mahri waret, worit, erit, haret, wurit; ola, wula, bulan, &c. See Ch. II, § 14 f.

زرم ; lumi, luģi.

ወረቀ, መራቅ; maraġ, bure i.

, أِشَاحُ , أُوشِهَة , وَشَائِيعُ

. sieġ ; وُشَاخُ , وَشَّحَ

رَدَّةَ ,وَيَدُ ,وَدَّدَ, تِكَةً ,وَيَدُ ,وَتَكَ tui, ti.

رَيْقَ, 1, 4; taki, uataki (wataki), otaki, itaki, bitaki, matuki, matakitaki; (Mau, or Maui) tikitiki, or tukituki, taki-amo, takamo (to fasten and carry on shoulder).

َ فَنَ , see كَإِنْ My. tanun.

(in West Mahri the فَهُو , وَضُو , وَضَا the ف in this word is pronounced 1, v. von Maltzam). See مَاصَ

ì

ዝ, ቫኒ; să, sĕ, si; and in sān, sāo, sāġ, sam(ben), &c.

زَاْمَةٌ , زَاْمَةٌ ; simi, sama, or suma (ki leo).

אָד ; tàfĕ.

ዘባን; sobē(na).

: masol ; زُوُولٌ , زَالَ

زُهَقَ; siki-naki, musukutaki.

ַּחַל; sõlĕ, sosõle, asolat.

زَحَرَ; masirsir.

زَّخْ; soka.

إِنْزَلَ , إِلْأِزَ , إِلْأُزَلَ , إِلْأُزَلَ , إِلْمُرْ

زَمَان; tau; Mg. tauna, My. taun, tawun.

زِنبِیل زِبیل ; simbolo.

(الإاله , سَنِيغَ , زَنِيغَ), إلااً ; رَوْمُمَ , إلااً) siģi, bisiģ, siģisiģ-leo.

: sibu; sibu

زَقْ) زَقْ); 'to skin'); sok; My.

; šekof i.

יָרֶע, יָרֶע; siri, siria, sirisiri.

رَمَ (eg. إِضَمَّ , طَمَّ , بِצְמֵם); sabe-l i, tami-s i, 'to tie, bind.'

زَبَر; to write; build stone upon stone; written, villosa vestis; زبرج), and زبرخ; variegated ornamented cloth, splendour; thin cloud in which red colour: asōara.

П

مند, منحن ; kabu ; My., Mg. afi, afu.

קְּבָּא , בֹּהִשׁ , בֹּהָּט , לָּהָשׁ ; bei, bof i, boboi, mafa, mafai.

تَجْبَكُة , خَبِكَة ; bau, baus i, baumaso ; Mg. fehi, fehiz-ina.

غَجَر; kori, ġori, koro, ġoro, ġorokoro, ġore, kore, kokoro.

, imp. of أَخَذَ , q.v.

רַר, גֹב, 'one': v. אַרָּאָ.

ሐደፊ; uolau, bowolau, böolau, መሕደፎ.

کُدُور , حَدَر ; turu, toro, toroa ki, tiro, batira, tiroa, mitaru, matorotoro, torofa ki.

َ مُكُدُثُ ; bäu, fäu, d. fäum ; My. baharu, Mg. vau, vauz-ina.

: mōso زَجُوزٌ , ظِ٦١١

آخَوُلَ , حَالَ , مَالَ , عَوْلَ , حَالَ , عَالَ , عَالَ , عَالَ , عَالَ , bialo, alof i, tālo, taloalo, lalo, lalu.

לחוּל, חִיל, מְחוֹלְה ; uilu, uulu, bilu.

: muku, mu ; مَحُوقٌ , حَوْقٌ , حَاقَ kut i.

γήπ; kat (-ema), kate.

آر , 6; flère.

Plū, Hiph.; sike, siki-ti.

خَيزُومٌ; kuruma, aruma, ruma.

🏡, Mod. A. hucēya; kakei.

ارِبُرُه بِحَلَى بِحَلَّا , حَلَى بِحَلَّا , حَلَى بِحَلَّا , الله) alof i, loas i, loar i, aloara.

مَّكُاوِلٌ , حَلَّ ; malala, mala, malanala.

.èlo, lolo ; خَلْقِ ,حَلَا

MY; aurē, ore.

حَلِكَ, malik, maliģo, malikoliko, maliģoliģo.

קֿמַל) בּלְיֵהְ, (בֿתֹּה, אַבֿה, בּלֹהְ, (בֿתַה, אַבֿה, אַבֿה, אַבֿה, אַבֿה, אַבֿה, אַבֿה, אַבֿה, malum, malum, malua, malua, malulu, d. mairērē.

ንሰፌ; kolau, kalau, ġalau, (transposed) lakau.

יكلّ , سالم; una.

مَّة, 1, 4; ġoġo.

בּלֹי, Assy. emu; mō, mona ki. Hence ተሐውው, ታሕማ, Ef. buruma, i. e. buruma (bu- for mu-; and r for t, see Ch. II, § 13 b, T, r).

[Compare (?) A. L., defend, look after, guard, protect, 5, be prohibited, refrain, 6, fear, reverence, avoid, keep away from, all, inaccessus, vetitus.]

ُخُةُ ; kona, kokona, konai(na).

جَمَى ; kabe, kafini, kime, (حَمَامٌ).

اعنق manu (cognate حَنَاكُ).

عَفِيدٌ خَفْد خَفْد); bia, īa (d.), biau; Mg. afi, zafi, My. piyu, piat, piyud, piyat.

ሰጸጸ, ሐጸ, ሕጺጵ; sos, sēsĭ.

ירק, קֿצִיר; Mahri hadauer, hadauwer; atoara, natoara.

آبَارَ, ۱۹۹۹ (هَ مَ عَنَّ); ko i, ke i, koka i, koko, keikei, ġoko, koi, koika.

קר ; kara, ġara, baġara i, makarakara.

קְּרֶב, 'a cutting instrument, axe,' &c.; karab, karam, karaf, karau, id.

; on, wen, oraone (reduplicated) orain, ārān; Po. one, oneone.

نت ; ara, ara i.

חְחָה; makit i, mikit, mokot.

خ

گَذَ, خُدُ ; àsi, asi(na).

آل (mid. و), خَالَ ; alo, lolo.

خُوصَ , 1, 4, خُوصَ ; kisa, ģisa, kisakisa, ģisakisa, nakisa, takis, mila-kisa.

لَّهُ , خَاطَ , خَاطَ , خَاطَ , خَاطَ

آلُهُ (mid. '), اَخَالُ ; (see s.v. aloara, aloaloara); Sa. ilu.

خَيْمٌ, خَيْمٌ, خَيْمٌ; d. hima, suma; ema, and um (in katema, imrum).

خَلَعَ; malei (مَخْلِعٌ); Sa. alei.

تُمْثُعُ; ra-kum, ra-koma, rakua.

أَخْسَةُ, خُسُّنُ; Mahri homo, Soc. hema; lima, Epi sima, yima, Ceram hima.

خَفَقَ; kufagufa.

أَدْمَى ; laso, lasoa.

نَّرَطَ , שَرِّلَ , ġorot i.

خَتَارَةً , خَتَارَةً ; katak, My. kantal.

ط, ن

mno; tumi, tomi.

ز طَبَخ , طَبَخ ; tomo, tumu, tuman i, matumutumu, noba (d. ob), nubu, nobanoba, noban i, manubunubu, tutuma, tumutumua.

بَطَبَعَ , طَبَعَ ; leba, lebalebā, lebalebara, طُبْعَانُ .

نَاهُوْ, طَهَا ; tāö, tāön i, tāün i. مَاهُوْ , طَهَا ; malau, My. lamu.

יָּלְשְׁרָ ; tāre, taretare, matiratira.

رَفَهُر , طَهُر , طَهُر , طَهُر , طَهُر , طَهُر , طَهُر , طَهَر , طَوَى , ៣ው٠٤; taui.

طَالَ (mid. ۱), 1, 4, 5; tura, tutura, bakatura.

ጠዊመ; lume, lumes i, buluma, bulima.

طُوْاتُ ; tōbu, d. nōbu ; vulgar

أَوْر (mid. '), مَايْر (طَايِر digi, مَايْر flying, عَيَّارَة navigii genus; tiri, riri, rīri, lai (N.G., Motu lara, Galoma lola, Sinaugoro laia), mitiri, taroa, teroa, lea ki, lelea ki.

Note on the word lai, sail, Mg. lai, N.G. rer, lara, laia, Po. la, ra, My. layar. My.

layar is both v. and s., a sail, and to sail, Mg. milai, to sail. Ma. rere, to fly, reia, or reregia, to be sailed over: reia, i.e. re-i-a, and reregia, i.e. rere- \dot{g} -i-a. So My. $laya\dot{g}$, to fly, is laya-q, and layar is laya-r, the original radical r having become y (as in the word $tiya\dot{q}$, Ef. tere, mast), and the original servile -t, -ġ (as in Ma. $rere-\dot{q}$), and -r: see Chs. II and IV for this, and for the Ma. -ia. In Ef. and Mg. lai, Ma. reia, the radical r, in My. y, has disappeared, as also in To. le, Ef. lea, q.v. in Dict.

اَسُ (mid. '), طَاسٌ ; lāsa.

لَانٌ, طَانَ (mid. '); tan i, tano, tanu, tun i, tanotanoa, tanum i, tanuma ki.

طَانَت (mid. '), عَانَت ; tobu, Ma. taepo, vulgar A. taif, an apparition, a spectre.

نَّيْس ; tas, tasi.

طَّن ; taġi, taġis i.

طُّمّ; tama i, taba i, atama.

לאבי, וְטְעֵּן, טְעֵּן, נּאַבּׁ, 1, 8, אוֹּ, אָנּן, נּאַבּׁ, 1, 8, אוֹּ, אוֹן; taġi, tine, tiena, taġo, mitaġa, taġataġa, mitaġataġa, taġia ki, miten.

طَفّ ; taba, tauba, tafi.

ጣይኮ, ጥፍሐ; tabaġ i; My., J. tapuk, tabuk.

عَلَيَ ; bitelo, bitolo.

پاپې; taġa, toġa, roġ, ṭoġa, babaṭeġa: وَضَنَ ; My. tanun, 'to weave.'

לאל, אלמן, אלים לל, הְּעָה; tau, tautau, tatauf i, tātā (ġasi).

طُرَّةً, طَرَّةً, digar A. torra; toro, torotoro, tere.

ظ

See above, ظعن , ظعن .

يَبِسَ, 1, 4, يَبِسَ; būsa, busa, bēs, bēsu.

٦٢, غَذَ, غَأَّة; aru, faru.

יֵרֶע; ata i, ta i, tae.

tei, bitei. يَدْعَ ,أَيْدَعُ

בَי, נְיוֹם, נְיּמָּה, אִינְיּה, יוֹם, יְיּמָּה, יוֹם, ma-s, ma-isa, ma-susa, uḥoġ, uḥa, kuba, mi-nra nin, uāsa (wasa), ā-sa.

יְפָּה, יְפָּה; bia, uia (wia, wi). אַנְרָ, see גַּוֹרָ.

יָצָא, אָדָא, תָאת, Assy. aşu ; atu, Fi. yani, nēt, nōtu, Guadalcanar atu, tatu = net, notu (n for t).

קְּהָ, חְּסְבָּה , אָסַרְ, saf i, &c., bisab, bisif.

יוֹרֶה, יוֹרֶה; ura, miura.

יִשְׁנָחְ , יְשֵׁלָּ , תְּשֵׁלֵּ ; maturu, My. tidor, Mg. turi, maturi, Santo s'inaru.

יַרָת, רְיֵרָ, v.s. שׁנֵץ.

ב

هٰ, ڳ ('as'); kĭ, ka.

h (Amh.) 'and'; ġo, ġa.

לה, לה, לה, לה, לה, לה, ku; and in naga, nago, kin, kis, kuna, koi, kei.

עֿק כָּאָה; ki.

קּאֶּחָד; kisa, kis, ģisa, ģis.

h (Amharic), > (Himyaritic), preposition, cf. E. kia; ki, ka, ġi.

رُكِّنَ , كَبْكَبَ , كُبْكَ , hnn; kofu, kofukofua, ġofu, kafut i, ġafut i, kabu, koau, kafu, kamu, òba, àba.

and kabed, hn.e.; קבר אָבְׁר, hn.e. (cf. H., S.); (verb) kaüota, kōte, ēt; noun ('liver'). גֿעָר, Amh. hōdĕ; ātĕ, dd. are, ale, ane, Sariba (N.G.) kate.

کَبُرَ, کُبُرَ, کُبُرَ, کُبُرَ, کُبُرَ, کُبُرَ buer, kabuera, abura, abuera, takuwer.

كَذَا; kita, kite.

كَهَرَ; bakāru, fakāru.

קוָה, וּבַּי; kaua, kaukaua.

رَوْكَبُ, كَوْكَبُ, Mahri kabkob, &c.; masöi or masöi, &c. See Ch. II, § 14 (a), and (c) (at end). N.G., Galavi gwamegwame, Dobu kuadima.

門; kona, ġona.

رُو (mid. و), 1, 8; kārĭ, takārĭ. (mid. و), 2, كَارَ kuru, ģuru, ģurua, kuruma ki, makara, ta-kāra, taġura.

ئىس ; ġaiġai.

گن, بې; ka, ġa, k-, (T. k-).

5, interrogative particle; ka, ko.

' (ex פּ ל פּ ל פּ שׁ), quot l tot, how many l so many, literally ' as what l' (בְּחָב, Ta. keva, kuva); Guadalcanar ģisa, Mahaga ģiha, Rotuma his, An. ehet', Po. hia, fia, Ef. bisa, fisa, bia, Mg. firi, Java pira.

that what? for what purpose? for what? why? kua

(kuwa), ġua? d. syn. kasafa, kasā? ka, and sefa, or safa, what?

hoo[,], اَيَّ, kama, kumu, kamu, mu, kem.

كَنَعَ; kana, kano.

קפַף, אָבַי; kaf, kai.

كَفَّ, 1, 2, kafa i, kafa-raģo, d. transposed faka-raģo.

اَعْمْ, اَعَ; kabě.

كَفَا, transposed كَفَا; kaba, kabāsi, kobās i, transposed bakāsi.

نَّرَةَ; karei, ġarei.

קרַע, A. (transposed) פּרָע, q.v.; kola, kolo.

لَّفَحَ; kafis i.

رُوْ, كُرًا, ħClt; kili, ģili, kāli; Fi. kali-a, kali-va ka.

رَكُرٌ, cf. كُلُّ, 7; ġalakala. קבור ; bōlo.

گُرُکُرَ, الْکَرُکُرَ, الْکَرُکُرَ, الْکَرُکُرَ, الْکَرُکُرَ, الْکَرْکُرَ, الْکَرْکُرَ, الْکَرْکُرَ, الْکَرْکُر kelet, kelekelet, &c.; Mg. hudina (herina), My. ģuliģ, &c. 5

J; la, la-kor, la-goră.

J, Λ, β, Τ. 7, Gurague 8, prep.; ni, i, e.

אלא, אלי, לא, אלי, אָן; ta, ti, si, sa, tu, to, ri, Sa. le.

لِيْد , لُبُّ; libu, lebu.

الْجَةْ, أَجْ; lau, elau, My. laut.

لَجَفَ ; lība, liba i.

لَهْبٌ ; lifalifa, لَهِبَ: Ha. lalafa, My. malapu.

لَهُوْ , لَهَا ; lailai, bakalailai, malio.

أَهُمَ, 5, vulgar A. telehhem; talūm, tulūm, tulūġ, tinōm, tunūġ, talūġ: Sa. folo, بَلِعَ, q.v.

ልህቀ, ልሂቅ, ሲቅ; riki, rik, in mā-riki, fite-riki.

َ الْوَجُ , لَاجَ ; luġ, luġ i, nuġnuġ i, numnum i, manuġnuġ.

رَوَى, חשת (contraction for مُرَى, חשת (the contraction for المراة); le, li, lili, lele, malele, talele, lulu, talu, malilu.

َرُثُ ; lūsia, milesu, milesia, milesira, malosu, malasilus.

ሰሐየ; rakai, rakei, Sa. la'ei, Ma. rakai. ۇكى , لولى, 5 ; liliu, lilia, d. lēr ;

تَولِّ ; tōliu, tōli.

رِجْوْرٌ (see אָלֵיץ); lēt.

ן לְחַם; lam i.

مُمُكُمُ, and لَحَى bilikit i, Sa. mile'i, Fi. loqata.

لَطْنَحُ , لَطَنَحُ ; litēa, lirēa.

ליכא, lika (Talm. and Mand.); tika, rika, șia, șika, nika.

ĹĴ; rau.

لَّغَ; mirama, miraman i, meromina, Sa. lama.

لَغُمَّ , لَغُلَّ , لَغُلَّ , لَغُلَّ ; lē, leo, lo, d. lu.

َ الْوَلَعُ , لَعُوَّة ; loa, loaloa, milo, malolo, mila-kisa.

تَعْلَعَ; maloĭloĭ.

לְעָמַת, and לְעָמַת; tĕmatĕ, d. atmat.

لَغُطَّ , لَغُطَّ ; lot, letilet, melĭta.

لَفْتُ , لِفْ , لَفْ , لَفْ , لَفْ , لَفْ , لَفْ , لَفْ ; lifa, lofa, lufa, malofa, malibai, malīfus, (malūs, malis, mäūs).

َ لَفْلَفَ; lifalifa, maliflif, maliblib.

NOS; rasi, tasi.

لَكُع , لَكُع ; laġo, My. laġau.

أَلْسَنَةً , أَلْسُنَ , لِسُنَّ , pl. رَسُنَّ , أَلْسُنَ , أَلْسُنَ , أَلْسُنَّ , أَلْسُنَ , أَلْسَلَ , أَلْسَلَ لا الله بالله , أَلْسَلَ , Mahri lesa; Mg. lela, My. lidah, Fut. rero, Sa. alelo. For Ef. mena, v. نَمَلَ .

3

לָה, הֹש, Himyaritic ba, va, neut. interrog. pron.; ba, fa, ma.

prefixed to verbal nouns; b-, f-, m- (bo, mo, fo, uo, o); and in all Oceanic dialects, in like manner.

ركاذًا, vulgar A. made; fite, feha, uase (wase).

גוב, בול, אום, ים; mē, mēa.

رمائة, Catafogo ma'at (مائة), Pht, Amh. mato; Tambora mari, N. Brit., and D. of Y. mara, Santo vel, Bouru bot, utun, Amboyna hutun, Malekula ġut, Savu natun, My. ratus, Ja. atus, Mg. zatu, Carolines puku, fok = 100, hundred.

Note the nunation, and see Ch. II, § 13.

בَבֹה, זֹבֹה; bute (lua i). גֹּבְּה, הֹבְּהָ , מֹבֹה; mäomäo. גַּבָּה, הַבְּּהָ ; mēlu, meliki. מְנְּבָּר, mok, mokemok. مُوْدُون (وَدَنَ); mito, d. būru. مُوزُ, هه सं ; ātě, aṣĕ.

.maua ; مَوُّونة , مَانَ

مَوْصَةً , مَوْصَ , مَاصَ ; (My. basuh, Mg. uza), fafano, banol i, balos i, &c.

. þala ; مَوْرٌ , مَارَ

بَمُوسَى , مَاسَ , pl. مُوسَى , مَاسَ ; mas i, māsi.

שיש; mus i, mus ki.

تَاتَ (۵۵۵); māt.

màtě, tamàtě.

שה, מִים, מִים; fai, ai, wai.

مِيفَى; of, ubu, um, ua.

مُدو; mak.

مَالَ, مَالَ ; bāla, fāla, bole, balafala.

مَاعَ ; miu, mou, مَاعَ ; miu-ura.

بَمَّل , مَل malo.

َهُمْنَ , مَحْنَ ; mān i, mā.

آمَطاً , 1, 2, 8; see s. امّعاً

אָלָא, אָב; bura, burafura, biri, berat i, bakafura.

مَالِيُّ ; mile i, mala i, mitā ki, butā ki.

بَعَضَ (٧. نَعَضَ); þakas.

بروم ; misa.

יָסְסֵם (מְסָם; māt'.

پر, see کې; ma, me.

, مَعَى , مَعًا mam, mim.

ې مَيْنَ , pl. اُمَعْاءُ ; amo, maþě.

أَمْعَطَ ; mut.

مَاعِضٌ , مَعِضٌ ; maito, maieto, maietoa.

مَعْجَعَ ; maimai.

مَعْمَعٌ ; mai a (Sa. mama).

عَمْق 5; timbu: see عَمْق.

.miël ; مَعِيـر ,مَغَرَ

لَّهُمَّةً , mut, mot.

መርሰ; merak i, meraġ, meramera.

לבל, and מל, אבל, mare, vir, mā, vir, mera, homo, mane, 'male,' ano(w)ai, ano(w)i, for (m)ano(w)a(n)i, Ceram manowai, Ml. banman (redupl.), 'male, husband,' Oba mera, Malo mera, Santo, &c. man(i);

أَمْرَاةٌ , مَرَةٌ ; màtu, bite, fafīne ; but, fid, baine, &c., kuruni, yale-wa, yare-vin, &c.: see Ch. II, § 17.

אָרִיא; mera (kolau).

مَرْمِیْ ; merai.

, mitei ; مَاصِعٌ

መጽአ; mas, masu.

, marita; مريطاءً

קָבָה, הֹנָשׁ; maru.

טְרֵט; maratĕ, marètĕrètĕ.

مَرْكَبْ, مِه ChA; borau, rarua.

קבָר, חַמְעַרָכ, חַמְעַרָכ, מַעַרְכּן, מַעַרָכ, (עָבַף); fara, farafara, bifara ki.

መራቅ; maraġ, bure i.

קבק; burē.

مَرَشَ ; marasa, maresĕresĕ.

תְּשִׁחָה , مَسَح , מְשִׁחָה , מְשֹׁבּה); masa, masamasoa ki, masamasanta, mas, maso, masi.

مَثَى ; masa.

וֹתָהָ, מֶלֶה, bito, bitos i.

مَنًا , and (final و), 1, 2, 8; miti, mitimiti.

אָמָן; matu ki;

תְּבְּיֵן, מְּהְרַנֵּין, 'the back'; na matu na: matu ki, den. v. as in ūna ki (fr. אִׁמְנָה).

ن , ۲, ۱

אָץ; na, nĭ.

לְנְהָ, לָּאָה; no, nono, binoĭnoĭ, binofinoĭ; Sa. nofo.

تَأَنَّ ; neinei, maneinei.

نَاتَ , فَاسَ , see s. وَاسَانَ , أَيْسَانَ أَيْسَانَ , أَيْسَانَ , أَيْسَانَ أَيْسَانَ , أَيْسَانَ , أَيْسَانَ , أَيْسَانَ أَيْسَانَ , أَيْسَانَ أ

نبد ; vulgar A. nabbud, nabbut, v. نَبَتَ ; naþe, mbat.

نَبِيّ ; nabua.

نَبَزَ ; base, bakabase.

﴿نَبَحَ ; buka, buka i.

نَبَطَ ; buta, butafuta, futfut.

יָבֶל , יָבֶל ; mala, māla.

نَبَعَ (cgg. נְבַע , בְּעָא ; bua, mua, mūn i, fua.

نَبَصَ , نَبَسَ ; basa, bisa, tabisa, bisura ki.

نَبَشَ ; bis i.

نَبَرَ; buria.

نَبَتَ , نَبَتَ ; flto, botu, buto, buti, biti, muto, bitia, fltia.

niko, nikenika. زَجُوةً , نَجَا

نَدَوُ , for نَدَوُ ; sau ; Mg. andu.

ነደፈ, ጓ፲); tiba, tiba i, tibē a, tuba, tuba i, tuma, bituba.

נְרָה ,נֹגוֹ, Piel; neta ki, net i.

نَاتَ, see under the word nabati.

תוט, خَانَ, אَיוֹשׁלּ, M.S. manih; manàkĭ, na-manàkĭ.

nai. (زَأَى) , ذَوَاة , ذَوَى

nugnug. زُومَةً , نَامَ

נוּעֵ ; nua, nuanua.

يْزْ, نَزْ; nasu na.

קוּיִף, קּינִיּה,; nifenife, nifen i, nīfe.

مَنْزُوعٌ, نَزِعٍ ; masua: Sa. tula, My. sulah, Mg. sula, صَلِعَ.

زَزَ; sera i, sere i.

نَعَفَةً , مَنْعُونَ , نَعِفَ ; manifenife: Sa. manifi, My. nipis, tipis, mipis, Mg. manifi, tifi, hanifis-ina.

رَبِّهُ, مِسَّةً, كَشَّرَ, بَيْخَرَ, كَشَّرَ, بَنْخَرَ, كَشَرَ, كَشَرَ, كَشَرَ, يَخَرَ, goro;

رְּחִירֵיִם ; (na)ġore, dd. (la)usu, (na)ġusu.

َنْعُتْ , نَعْتَ ; nit i.

וְטְיִן; ta.

צָּטֵיָ; lau i, lau, to plant; plant a people, (hence) launa.

نَطَقَ ; takutaku, d. tukunua.

نَظَرَ , 122; titiro.

زككي; manuka.

غَكَسَ ; ġusu.

زَكِرَ, 1, 4, 6, 10; māki, makimaki, Māki.

لمَّه, (اَيَّتِ); kat i, fikat.

نتى ; monam, monau, نتى

مَنْمُولِ , نَمَلَ ; mena, měnamena i, Motu (N. G.) mala.

نَمَقَن ; but i, mafuti.

نَمِيرُ , نَمِرَ ; mēru, māru.

، نَفَى بَنَفَا ; niba.

عضّٰے; tabe.

PDֲן, PDַוְ ; sakĭ, bisaki, tasakĭ, sakĭsakĭ.

نَفَخُ ; buka, būka, buk, mafukafuka, buko, bukutu, bukubukura.

רַבָּי, רַוֹּפַּהָ ; kafika (kafyka).

نَفَطَ ; mutuĭ.

ָלָפַל; mala; Fi. bale.

نَفَتَ ; busa, busi.

زيد , پر , پر , پر , پر , &c. ; sube, susube, d. tumb.

יָּכֶּן, אָס; suka, sukasuk, sukai.

َ نَفِجَ ; māso, d. mahi : My., Mg. masak, masaka.

نَصَعَ ; tau.

182, 784; teba, taba.

ֶלֶצֶר; suli, sulia.

نَضِرَ, 1, 4; nrirnrir (tirtir), lira, lita, malĭru.

نَقيقٌ , زَقَي ; ģi, ģiki, ģki, ģia.

ጋይያ; nakĭma, naḥea (nakbe).

ነቀ0, نَقَعَ ; ġaġa, maġa, maka, fuġaġa.

عف (الله); rakaf i, rakof i, rarako.

र्किं, ढ़ेंबें; kai, kei, ġai, ġaiġai.

زَقَيِصٌ , زَقُصَ ; kasĭ, katĭ, karĭ, ġati, kakati.

نَقَرَ ; ġole, naġole.

:lakōrĕ ; نَاقُورٌ

نَقَسَ ; kus, ġusu.

نَقَشَ ; bakas i, makas i, bakasa, transposed bisak i.

نُقْطَ , نُقْطَ , أَنْقُطَ , أَنْقُطَ , نُقْطَ , أَنْقُطَ , أَنْقُطَ , أَنْقُطَ , أَنْقُطَ , أَنْقُطَ

رُشِكُ , رُشِكُ , اللهُ ; su, sua, su, tu, masua, sun i, suna ki, turi, tura ki.

نَسْفَةٌ; nāfå, d. foġa, d. āfo.

קשָׁטְ; sau.

نَشَبَ, 1, 3, 4, نَشَبَ; saua, soua (sawà, sowà).

زَسَمَّ , نَسَمَّ ; (na)laġi, nīn, naġièġi.

רָשַׂיק, נְשַׂיק, Arm. אָסִיק; siġsiġe (nakabu).

ڳٽِڳ, Hi., ڊَٽِٽِ ; sik e, siko, sokata, sokar i.

יָכֵּר, נְשֵׁר, אָנָשָר, &c.; sar i, sāra, sore, soroa ki.

بَسَرَ; sere, masere.

נְתָּן, נְתֵּן, מָתָת, מתנה ,מָת, נְתָּן; tu, tua, bitu, bitua, N.G., Kubiri iteu, Oiun nitin.

زَدَز; tar i, bakatari; Mg. tarika, My. tarik, B. tari.

יָהְתִּיר , נְתַר; rat i, tat i, mirati, nrat i.

D

19D, see 101.

ስወረ, ተሰወረ; suru, surufa ki, tasuru.

אָס; ser i.

ָּלְלֵל ; sula, sūla.

1000; sum i.

קפָר, see אַסַגָּ, אַסַיָ.

رَهُ بَرِה, سَفَينَ , كِجَائِة, رَسَفَنَ, &c.; sama i, sama na, samā, sema, sesema, sema n, or seme n.

าరైర్గ్, స్ట్రీస్, స్ట్రీస్, soara (sowara), soar i.

υ

بُقَبَّ, مُبَابٌ, مُبَابٌ, مُمَّبًا بُ , عَبًّا بُ , عَبًّا فَي biau.

עַבֶּר, עָבֶר; afiti, bati.

OAR, OAL; be, bea, bebea. غُرُونَ; bila, bibila, bilenà. עֶבַר, עֵבָר; ġobera, kobara.

סחב, סחב, ביל (transposed); bara, d. oro, ruma (transposed).

عَبَلَ, 1, 2; bule, mafule.

אָבַת; batu, bate, mit.

غَجِلَ, ሕઢ৯; kal, bakal i, kekel, fakal.

ענל (v. נְלֵלְ, עְנֵר, הָבֶּלּ, תְּצֵלַ, מָבֶר, תְּצֵלַ, בָּבֶר, גַּבְּר, &c.; kel, kela, kelet i, kelufa ki, kelu, kola, kokola.

ערֵר, גֿבֿ, אָצֶר, atuta, taatuta.

غَدِيَ , عَدْقُ , عَدَا ; toitoi, teitei, tei.

مَذَرَا عَذَرَا , عَذَرَا ; atara, n-atara.

أَوْدَ , عَادِيَّةً , عَادِيَّة ; tuai, tuei, tua, matua, (Mg. matua), matuatua, bakatuei: atua, Mg. matuatua, a spirit, ghost.

عَوَى ; ao, au, bakau, bakauĭ.

وُ (mid. و); āfa, āfa i, ōfa, afāfa, bāfa, baofa.

غَنِي see للاز.

עוֹף (עִּבְּעֵף, to flutter; bebe, Sa. pepe, to flutter about, a butterfly, a moth.

For My. ayam, Cocos Island ufa, Zag. ibon, see Dict. s.v. toa.

, عَاضَ ; aul i, ol i, wil i, ul i, bakaul i, biauli, bioli, faulu, baul i.

بَعْ وَقُ , عَاقَ , عَاقَ , عَاقَ , عَاقَ , عَاقَ

יאָץ; bilo, bulo, buġa, buġafuġa, bulo-ni, buġo-ni, My. baġu-n, Mg. fuha, fuha-z.

עָוַר, ספל; bare, barea.

, مَعْزُولٌ , عَزَلَ misàl.

غَزَر, 2, אַנֵּך; sila i, tasila, dd. tasiga, ahika.

בُשׁׁ, הוֹטְצְעָ, Mahri 'aṭaiṭ, at'āt'; taot, tawot.

غَظُمَ ; d. tob, tob.

קטַע, אָניַ ; tofarofa, rofarofa.

עול (y), איל, עול (y), 'to suckle'; איל, 'a child,' Mahri gairu, galli(-an) (Carter), אול לי, 'a boy,' בוע ; kari, Bauro 'are, An. hal, Fi. jone.

عَالَ (mid. '), 4; mile, mole. عَيْنَ (mid. '), 1, 2, 3, 5, 8, عَيْنَ [مَعَن]; mata, mita, meta, bakamita.

زَمَعِيشَةً ,مَعَاشَ ,عِيشَةً ,عَيْشَ ,عَاشَ , mauri, mairi, mōle. עלה, בֿל, &c., יעלה; ulu, ulua, ulĭ, alĭ, lulu, ululu, þālo, lu.

وَكُونَ (final عَكُونَ , baġi, Maori عَكُلُ piki-t, Mg. akaṭa, My. mij''ah.

عَكِشَ ; ġusĭ, maġusĭ.

אָלֵלְ, אָבֶׁ, imper. אֶלֶבּ; alialia, ulùlia, luluia, lulia, lala.

عَلَقَ, 1, 2, 4, عَلَقَ, &c.; liko, likot i, luko, lukot i, luku-luku.

עַם; ma, me, &c.

قْم: auaua, (awawa).

عَهَدَ, 1, 3, 4, 8; 2, 5, ġkofita (ġokofita); fafatu, fata;

עמר, אָמֵר, פֿגֿפָנֿ, פֿגֿי, fet, uere, uete, uenr, uonda.

لَهِ , عَلَهُ ; meri, d. bri-ģi.

عَمُٰقَ, and عَمُٰقَ, كِيْرِهِ, وَمَعُنَى, oæḍ, وَمَعُنَى and عَمُنَى, وَمِهْمِ, oæḍ, وَمَاقَةً , حُصُده , bua, bokas, bua-riri, buġi, mobu, mbua, bubu, tibu.

שְׁבֶשׁ ; amo, amos i, amota ki.

. عَالَ , عَلَّ (v. جَنِّ), &c.; anu, ān'. إِذِلِمَ ; fanau.

نِ عَنِيقٌ , عُنْقٌ , كِنْقٌ , بِلاِدْم , عَنْقَ anōĭ, anua.

عَ.فَا, 3, 4; abu, au, mau.

رُفِرْ ; buli, bulia, mabulu, mafulu.

نَفَتَ; tef i, tetefi.

י آغاصِيرُ , עֲצְרָה , עְצֵרָה; tere, teretere.

ر مَفَضَ , عَفَضَ , 1, 8, (cf. عَفَضَ fls i); bos i, bus i, fls i, flfl, tafifl.

جَفَرَى , عَفَرَى , عَفَرَى , عَفَرَى , عَفَرَ

رَّأَعْمَاءُ , 00, ٨٥٥، بَرْلا , إِيّْا , أَعْمَاءُ , عَصَّوْ , عَمَا ; عَصَّاةً , عَصًا ; لِائِلْمَ , دَعْمَا , دُعْمَا , دُمْمُ , دُعْمَا , دُعْمَا , دُعْمَا , دُعْمَا , دُعْمَا يُوْمُ , دُمْمُ , دُمْمُ يَعْمَا يُوْمُ بُوْمُ يُوْمُ بُوْمُ يُوْمُ بُوْمُ يَعْمُ يَعْم

َ عَقَى بَعَقَ ; akò, aka, koa, aka, eka, uaka (waka), makå, makaka, kaka.

جَةَبَ; baġo, bako, maġo, baġa.

יָבְקָה, עָקָה, נֻעֲנֶקָה; þāka.

גַּבּׁבּ, 1, 2, 5, לְעָקל , עָקל ; kilakila, takel, takelkel, taġelĭ, taġeliġeli.

رُمُوْرًى رِهِ بِرِبَ , هِ بِهِ رَبِّ , بِهِ بِهِ , مَوْرًى , هُوْرًى , عُرِى غُوْرَى ; alia, li, lo, mala, malo, malmal, malamala, malu, &c.

غَرِيمُ; rūmå, tūma, (transposed) marou.

קּעָרֶהָ, מְעֲרָהָה מָעֲרָהָ, מַעֲרָהָ; fara, bifara ki, My. baris.

أَنُّ , عَرَّاتُ , عَرَّاتُ , عَرَّاتُ , عَرَّاتُ , 'diviner'; arĭfōn, 'diviner,' عَرْفَان , 'sciens.'

; تَأْرَضَ and رَبَعَرَّضَ , عَرُضَ las i, lasilasi, tilas i, bakatilasi, beles.

عَرَتَ, عَرَتَ, ori, My. urut.

עְשָׂה, עָשָׂה; uisi (wisi, wisiwis), bisi, busiwusi.

عُشْ ; uti.

غَشِقَ; sikot, sikut i.

جَشْرَ, کَشْرَ, &c.;
Tah. ahuru, Rotti hulu, Sa.
fulu, Ma. ġahuru, Vila and Meli ġafuru, nofuru, Santo ḥbulu, nafuru, &c., Mg. fulu,
My. puluh.

عَثَةً , عَثَةً ; ula ; عُثَةً , māta (m̄ for ġ, Fut. ġata, Fi. ġata, Ma. ġāta).

لَتْدَ, 1, 3; مَّلَدَّة, tila, tilas i.

بَعْتَمْ ; tamtam.

عَتَقَ, b, 3; tiki.

عَدَّنَ, بِنْ إِلَّ عَدَنَ, بِنِهِ (عَدَنَ, بِنِهِ ; asu, àsua. وَعَرَقَ (v. عَرَقَ); āüa, (a-, art., and ua), ua, Bu. urök.

غ

چَبَى see اغَبَى.

غَبَنَ; afina, afila, afin i, afit i, afis i.

جذف (v. قذف, and جذف).

غُوطَةً, غَاطَ ; ūta, uta i, uta ki, utu.

أَعْابُ (mid. '); āfa ki, ōfa ki; uwi, ui, N. G., Murua, Boniki kuvi, Mekeo lama, Epi yubi, Malo dam, ram, Ml. rum, see Ch. II, (§ 11) c; tāfaki, safaki.

غَيْثُ ; ūsa; My. ujan, udan, Motu medu, Bugis bosi, To. uha, Sa. ua, Amblaw ulah, Mg. urana.

غَلَّ, see غَلَّ ; Mg. iliṭa, idiṭa, Sa. ulu, uluf i.

१५५ غِلَانًى ,غَلَفَ , المِحْף; lāfī.

تَغَمَزَ ; fasu, tafasi.

غَمَّرُ ,غَمَّرُ ; moru, mōru, morua(ki), mōrĭ.

رَمَقَس , وَمَقَس); musu, mus ī, musag i, musamusa.

يَّنِي ; ĕni, èni, an, en, oni, a, o, ma, man, ba, ban, bao, baon, maon, bon, mba, mban.

پناءٌ , لإدِה ,غَنِي ; þinu.

بَغُفَر; fuluara.

غَفَر, (בְּכַּר); bulu, bulut i, mabulu, buloki, bubulu, bulubulut, fili. غَرْغَرَةٌ , غَرْغَرَ mēro, mēromēro, parapara.

غَرًا (غرى); ara, arāra, arāran i.

غَسَلَ , غُسَلَ ; sol i, sila i.

اَفُقَاءٌ; mota, motamota, Sa. ota, otaotā.

٥

نَ; ba, d. mba; bo; d. fe.

bua, ta bua i, tabua, mafua, fai, mafa, mafaifai, mawawa.

فَالَ ; fera, bifera ki.

נוֹל, פְאַם; fām i, bām i.

مَانَى , وَاَقَى , فَاَقَ , 'to emit hoarse guttural sounds,' وَقَفْقَ , 'to bark'; uak, uaġo, Fi. vuaka, Po. puaka, pua'a, puaa, 'pig,' 'swine.' The word is formed from the sound.

وَجَرَ, 2; fāra (ki nameta).

; fit.

زَاةَ; bē a, fē a, befe, fefe.

(قَاءٌ ,چَה), نَوة , فَاهَ ; momoa.

فُوهَةٌ, كَمْتُ, كَمْتُ, كَمْتُخَةً, be, bea, bei, fea, mia, tiamia.

فَاعَ, 6, (فَاعَ), mid. ; boa, tamo, nabo.

فَأَخَ, &c., أَنَّكَ; bok, bokauok. وَأَنَّ ; busa i, fusa i, mafusai.

אָם; fānu, fān (d. mēlu, see הוֹם, inf. of רַקָּ, (cg. רְּבָּה, inf. of רְּבָּה, (cg. רְּבָּה); bori, mauori, boriuoris i, bororis i, boris i.

thigh; ef. Santo wado, Ef. mäo, d. fäa, My. päah, Mg. fe, thigh.

أَكُمْ , أَكُمْ , أَكُمْ boġ, boġi, boġian, moġ, Kiviri (N. G.) pom.

ీ호, Hithp.; fira, firan i, bifira.

bid, s.asa, sell; mul i, mulimul.

לְּבֶלְהָּ (cf. קְלְהַ, בְּבֹלָהּ, Talm. בְּבְּלָהּ bulus i, fulus i, bulo, tafolo, tafulus, filora, bulora, bologa, tafiloga; Sa. fulisi, tafuli, milosi; My. pulds. pulir, Mg. fuli, fulesina, mamulisa.

לְּכְּהְ; bano, ban, (contracted) bā.

فِلْجَ , طِلْدُ milaġ.

ករុទ្ធ; bio-so, ra-fio-so.

َ فَعْلَةً , فَعَلَ , פַּעֵל; bolo, bolofolo, bolos i.

نَعَرَ , وَكِمْ , وَلِالّ mola.

□₽₽; bito.

فَضَى , فَصَّ , فَضَّ ; basu, base, pasul i, basera ki, mafasu, moàs, tapasuli.

رَفَعَ , 2, 3, bisi, 3, fisi (ef. الْفَتَعُ).

فَقّ ; buka, bukas i.

نَقَا, 1, 5; baku, mafaku, tafakka, tafaġka, (tafakka), 5, تَفَقَّا.

وَفَقَاحَ , فَقَعَ ; buġa, fuġa, buma, fuma.

فَقْمُ ; bamu, babu.

فَقُوعٌ, فَقَعٌ; monamona.

קרָה, פְּרָא, בּרָץ, אָבּרָץ, יְנָה fruit, bear fruit'; Arm. אָבּ, פִּרִי, H. פִּירָא, בּבּּ, 'fruit'; boüa, ua (wa), d. weti, Malo vira, Sa. fua, Mg. vua, My. buwah.

שׁבְּלוֹח), אַבְּלוּה; manu, wose-man, se-mani, My. buruġ, Mg. vuruna, Ja. manuk.

קְּבָּי; bora, fara, ōra, uora, bakauora ki.

بَوَرَى, وَرَى , فَرَى , فَرَ

פְּרְכֵּר, פּּרְכֵּר, פּּרְבָּר, פּּרְבּ, bera, fera, tabera ki, taberafera, berafera, tafar (taiar).

فَرَكَ ; baros i, farofaro, barobaroa.

بَوْرَغُ , פְּרַע; baro, bārua, marua, būra, barorŏ.

bau (Epi baru, Malo batu), baua, uau-a (uaua), bai, mau, taḥau, ḥau, bo, ḥo-fi, ḥefe.

ןְרַשְּׁ; biris i.

; birikĭ.

. bare, barefare ; فَرْقَرَ

רַבְּ, רְבָּה, biri, birifiri, tabiri, mafirifiri.

نَوْشٌ , فَرَشٌ ; bilis i, bolis i, uolis i, uol, mauolĭ, maolĭ.

بَعْمَةً , 4, وَمَثَاءً ; maosa (mawosa), taosa (tawosa).

. þatu ; فَتَاءُ , فَتَى , فَتَا , فَتَى

فَتُلْ , فَتُلْ , فَتَلْ ; biri, tafirofiro; Sa. fili, filo, Maori whiro, Tah. firi, taviri, Eugis bitoi, My. dd. pintal, bilan, pilin.

ካካ, ፌሐብ; mīlo, Ml. Mask. bigal.

۲, ۲

ጸሕጻሕ, ኮኒልኒኒኒኒ titu, titau, tatau, totau.

נְבָה, וְיְבָּא; tubu, tub, tōbu, tuma, d. tumbu.

صَبّ, 1, 5, 7, 8, and صَابَ (mid.); luba, luba ki, maluba ki, talubaki; My. tumpuh.

مَبَخَ ; mitămai, مَبَخَ ; mitămai, مُحْبَخَ .

פּמה, צווה ,צְוַת ; tuut i, tuut.

پَدِتِע, بَدِتِע, بَدِتِע, بَدِتِע, بَدِتِע, بَدِتِע, بَدِتِע, بَدِتِע, بَدِتِע, شَبَعَ , صَبَغَ , صَبْغَ , صَبَغَ , صَبْغَ , صَ

אָנְטַבַּע, רְּצְבַע, Ch. (A., H. id.); lolofa, lum, luma, lulum, lume.

َصَبْرُ, صَبْرَ; tau, taur i, taura ki.

نَبَرَ , لإدِר ; taua.

الْمُحْرِّ; tabètĭ.

A.C.C.; taruba, taruba ki, in taruba, taruba suk.

کِتِجٌ, مَدَقٌ , مَدَقٌ , کِتِجٌ; soko, masoko, le-soko.

تُونَّةُ; rōfa.

tiëlě. وَهِيلٌ , صَهَلَ , لِإِيرَا

קֿבָּ; tera.

אָנְיּ; tau, tautau, tona ki, dd. towana ki, dawana ki.

تَصَوَّحَ , 5, صَاحَ ; maritau.

20-0, ਪੁੱਖਾਂ, Piel; so, soso, bioso, ra-soso, so e, sos i.

ף אוֹר, Hi., צׁוֹּלְ, 2, צׁוֹּלְ; sōġ, so-ġon i.

مَارَ, 2; mitiri, d. misiri.

اَفِيْ, لَاضِ, الْبَيْةِ; matu, maru, maṭu, manru.

مَّارَ, 3, 5; sera i, misera; seri, seri-tau.

RPC; sela, sola, selat i, solat i, bisela.

ጸሐፊ, صَحَفَ , Amh. عَمْ: raf i, teraf i (reraf i).

َ تَاحِ , صَّحَبَ ; tā, bitā, bitānaki, beta, feta.

ጽሕመ, ቫኔ (cg. هَكَا), 'to be clear,' 'clear up'; sină, Fi. siġa (ጸሓይ=ፀሓይ, q.v.).

الكري; seri, sari.

رَّضَّلَ , صَلَّ (cg. كُلِّيًّا); sila, silasila, masila. مَلا, אַלְא, אַמּד; tarotaro, taros i.

مَلَى , مَلَا ; talai, tatalai.

אָלָהָה; אָלֶתָה; seloa.

ضَلَعَ ; tula.

. نَزِعَ see , صَلِعَ

سَلَغَ, صَلَغَ; mataloa.

עַלַע, צֵלָע; firi, fiti.

תְּבֶּי, תְּבֶּי; futum, bisau, busuf, atuma.

בְּיֵב, בְּיֵב; sabel, tamis i (tie, bind), My. simpul.

رَّغَاً , لَإِلَّا, h0\omega (to pour out); tāki, (si)rak, mitaki.

عَفّ; tefa, tetefa, bitefa, tefan i, tefaġ i.

نځي, نځځ; suer i.

הַבְּיָ; bakateba.

نَصَفَى , صَفَى tauien, or tawien.

رَصَفَقَ ,صَفَعَ ,سَفَعَ ,سَفَعَ , १६०७, $جون ;

sabe-l i, Fi. saba-la ka, My. tampa-r, J. tampe-l.

אָבְעַץ; miteftef, mitefŭtefŭ.

صَرِيرٌ ,صَرِ saru, saruru, saurua ki (sarurua ki).

بَ مَارِيةٌ , مَرَى Mod. A. sari,

'mast'; tere, 'mast,' Ma., Tah. tira, My. tiyag, Mg. salazana, id.

غَرِيعٌ, صَرَعَ; saru, misaru. ضَرَةَ and مَرَةَ; tarě.

غرا

لاِدّ, ضَبُّ , käu, äu.

أُضُبَاءٌ , ضَبَاءٌ , ضَبَاءٌ , ضَبَاءً , ضَبَاءً

هَبَطَ , ثَبَثَ ; tau ē, täuġ i. رَبِّ (عِدِّ) ; taua ki, taua.

نَهَبَ , 2; tibil i.

ضاء ; matātā.

نَانَ ; tabe, tābětāb.

نَّاحِيَةً, ضَّعَا ; tiki, tikitiki, tiģi, tiģitiģi.

j; sina; An. seja, (ne)t'iġ; Fi. sija; S. Ch. sina: v. علم, خَصَارَةً, كَانَاتُهُمْ.

هُمُ اللهُ (sun), أَكُّ أَ, 'sun'; Tig., Amh. ṣai; Epi, S. E. ndae, To. läa, Tarawan tai (cf. Sok. shihen), Meli and Sulu rea, lea, Cajeli lahei, Amblaw laei, Lifu t'u, do ('sun'), Mare du, Ef. elo, alo, ali, My. ari, Mg. anru, andru.

ضُرِّ; tera, dd. rera, tenr, rira, rire.

نَمَمْ; tam i, tàm i, täum ī.

ضَناً ,ضَنِي milaġo.

ضُفَّة: raba (rabba), nub, rub, roba.

فَرَعَ, 4; sori, sorisori.

D

אָבָּ, kofa, kofakofa.

خَدْنَ , جَذْنَ , غَدْنَ , غَدْنَ , عَذَنَ , عَذَنَ , عَذَنَ , جَذَنَ , جَذَنَ , عَدَنَ , عَدَنَ , عَدَنَ , Amh. ቀዙፍ, 'to row,' ma'zaf, 'an oar,' 'rowing,' A. migdaf, migdaf, mikdaf, mi"daf, and غَادُون , 'an oar'; uose, semani, uohe, balusa, Fiji vot'eta, vot'e.

كُدْرَةٌ ,كَدَرَ ,قَذَر ,كَادَ , kota, ġota, bukot.

َ قُهُلَّ , قَهُلَّ ; kola, kokola, ġkola, kōla.

َ تَهُرَ ,قَهَرَ ; kara, ġara, karakarai, taġaraġara.

טוף (אָיף, שְּנְיַן); kita i, ģita, kitakita i.

koto (bolo). قَوْطَةٌ

بَهُ , قَائِمَةً , قَائِمٌ , قَائِمٌ , قَائِمٌ , قَائِمٌ , 4 ; kaimis i, kaimas i.

زُون: My. kupiġ, chupiġ, Mg. sufina, 'ear.'

قَامَةً ; ġāfa.

يَّ katoro.

عُوسٌ; àso, àsu.

نَحُفّ ; kofe, kofēna.

قَطَمَ ; katau.

ነርር; kita, My. kate.

kut i, makoto, makot, motu, mot, bagotef, kokoto, gotokoto, makotokoto.

تُطْرُبُ; kusuwĕ, kusue, kusu.

אָבָּ, ቀስስ, לְלֵל; kāl, kāla, bakal i, makal, makalakala, makamakala ki.

ץ בְּיִלְ, وَبَضَ, بَعَبَضَ, אֲבִייְ; kamuti, ġamut i, kam i, kau, ġaua, ġau, aġau, nikam, kam-kam, kaukau, ġaut, ġāt, fakau, fakaua, taġau, taġauġau.

ِ ثَمْقَمُ ; kukum i, kum i, ġum i, mimi, mi, ġwi, um i.

קצב; kasau, transposed sakau.

ቀነው; kona i, konai, ġonai. ቍገውኒ, tinea, moth, white ant (worm, then winged), 'a tinea erosus'; '¿, 'to hum' (of insects), see E. G., p. 40; Mg. kankana, 'a worm,' kankanina, a., 'affected with worms,' My. aniani, 'white ant,' Sam. ane, 'white ant,' anea, aneanea, 'eaten by white ants, moth-eaten.'

مَقْعُوضٌ , تَعَضَّى; makita, bakita, b makitakita.

قَعَرَ; kërikëri.

قُفَّةٌ, قَفَّ; ġafikafi, s. and v.

يَّمْ, 1, 5, 8; kus i, takus i, us i, taus i, taos i, raus i (d. nrukus i), usus i, baus i, bausus i, faus.

قَصُّو , قَصَّو ; ēsu, kĭsau, kĭsur (ksur).

קצָה; bakauti, d. buti.

مَقْرُورْ, قَرْ; magariri (Malo); malārĭ, milātĭ, milānr; Maori makariri.

እንጋ ; kola, ģola, kokola, ġkola, kola-oli.

ָּקְרָא, קָרָה; ġara.

قِرْدِغَ , قَرْدُغَ , قِرْدِغَ ; kutu.

قَرَفَ, 3, 4; ġoloḥa.

قَرَضَ ; kinit i, kini.

قَشًا , قَشَ ; kas i, ġas i, makes i, kas.

مة, لمُمنة; kāsu.

تَسَا ; kasu, kasua, ġasua, kasuāna.

רָאָה, 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 8, 10, רַלְּאָה, רַאּרָת, רְאוֹת, רְאוֹת, רְאוֹת, רָאוֹת, רָאוֹת, רָאוֹת, רָאוֹת, רָאוֹת, רָאוֹת, רָלְּאָה, רָלְאָיָה, אָרָלְּאָה, אָרָלְּאָה, אָרָלְּאָה, אָרָלְּאָה, אָרָלְּאָה, אָרָלְּאָר, לּבְאָרָר, מּרְרָאָר, שּׁרָה, רבאר, דבו, rairai, borea, lē, lō, leo, leoleo, lele, lum i, limis i, libi, libis, loh, los i, lēka, malolo, maleoleo.

ראש (וּלְפְׁשׁ , וֹלְפְּשׁ , וֹלְפְּשׁ , וֹלְפְּשׁ , וֹלְפּשׁ וֹלִי , 'pillow for the head,' pl.; דְאֵשִׁילֶן (not found).

קבה, רָב, רְבָה, וְבָה, וְבָה, וְבָּה, laba, leba, lalaba, leba-leba, milāba, leb, lafulafu, barab, baraf, baram, barau, birirèfe (بُّتَ, أُبِّتُهُ , رُبُّتُ, رُبُّتُ, رُبُّرُ, رُبُّرُ

رَبُطَ ; rut i, rot i, rōt.

rakaraka, maraka, maraka, maraka.

רָגַע (cg. אְרַגְּא), נפּס; raġo, raġoraġoa.

رَدَة, رَدَة; lēs.

בְּיֵּם, and Ethpa., בּיִּם; בְּיֹּם, (בְּיַבְּיִּם); rubua, marafi, sarafi, ribu, taribu.

زَهْل; ran, Carolines ralo; Mg. ranu, Ma. ranu.

رَابَ (mid. و); roba, roroba, toroba, nrob.

רוֹח, Hi., בֹוֹ, 1, 2, 4; maro, mara, maromaro, bakamaromaro.

رواح (rawah); rau', ndau', rowo.

تَرْوِيلٌ, رَوْلٌ; taniū, tanu, tanua, N.G., Rubi kanuru, Sinaugoro kanunu, Galoma aniulu.

رَامُ , رَامُ ; lāġa, bilāġa, laġalaġa.

רְּמִּה , רְמָּה , רְמָּה , רְמֹּה , רְמֹּה , רְמֹּה , רְמָּה , תְּרוֹּמָה , תְּרוֹּמָה , תְּרוֹּמָה , מְרוֹם , בּמִּח ('rama, for ramat, 'the third heaven'), בּמִּח , הַבּצִּמי ('heaven'), הַבּצִּמי ('the heavens'), בּמִּמּי , causative; laġa, laġat i, laġi, laġilaġi, balaġat i, tabalaġa, balaġasa ki, liġ, liġa, laġ;

קְרוֹם (heaven); burau, or burou, or barou, 'the sky, heaven.'

رُوع), (ربع), 1, 2, 3, 5, 6; ro i, roro i, toro, toro i, rere, tere i, lōr, roro, malēră.

d. elol, d. loġa, d. roăra; d. elol, d. loġa, d. roăra; Maori and Po. roto, 'garden, lake or pool, inside, the inside, heart, mind'; رَاضَ, 10, 'to be well formed or constituted (said of the mind).'

יַנע, רוּעַ; rā.

رَاوَقُ , 2, رَاقَ) رَوْقَ , ('to strain'), رَوْقَ , (اَوُوَقَ), (and زَاوُوقٌ), 'colum, cadus'; rëakĭ, v., s., id. n. a. رَوَّاقُ (n. a. of 2).

اِرَحَضَ ; loso, lolos.

ርሕሰ; lausa, lousa, lūsa.

ρίπη, Ιάμοι, ΚαλΦ; toga.

رَاعَ (mid. '), 1, 2, رِيعَة ; rei, (ne)rei, ruru.

יְרְחַם ; rum i, رَحْمَ , رَحْمَ ; rum i, rom i: see Ch. III (c).

Pግ; rēko, rēa, rei, farea.

رِقَ (mid. '), 1, 4, وَرَاقَ , هَرَاقَ ,

مَهْرَاقٌ; liģi, liģis i, maliģi, maliģsi.

נֻזוּל, רֵיר; tiā.

رَاثُ (mid. '), مُرَيَّثُ ; murasa, burasa, marasa.

مُركَبُّ , رَكَبَ ; borau, rarua, raru, (raruwa).

رَكَا ; ruku, rukua, fakaruku, rā.

رَكَاءُ; riki, nriki, ţiki.

(final); raku, teraku, raraku, d. takut i, Sa. la'u, Ma. raku, Mg. rajuṭa, Marq. naku.

أَرْكَاحُ , رَكَّ ; laka, lakea ki, telaki, atelaki, laġa ki, telakea, lāġo ('prop'), rāġo ('rollers, joists, upon which a canoe is placed').

زَكَعَ , رَكَعَ , رَكَعَ , الله , laku, loko, roko, nrok, luku, lukuta ki, lakosa ki, lokota ki, talukoluko, taluk.

رَّنَ; riģi, ririģi, tiriģi, biriģiriģi.

ረሰየ; lisa ki, lisi.

רְעַע, אָרָעָל; rere, rerea, tarere.

רָעָב, רָעָב; rāba, rabaraba.

רְעָה , רְעָה , רְעָה , רְעָה , רְעָה ; miroa, mitoa, mintoa, mintoa, mititoa, ro, roro, rara (tan i), tara (tan i), toto, toto.

רָעַם, see אָּה; rufua, &c.

יָרַעַל, רָעַל; ruru.

رَعَصَ, 1, 4; risu, rusa, ros, nrus, risuġ i, rosaġ i, ṭosa.

רָעַשׁ; ras, tas, res, reres, teres.

رَفَّ , malafiafi.

رَفَاءَ , رَفَاءَ , رَفَاءَ , رَفَاءَ , roba. رَفَعْ

َرْغِيفُ; rubaki.

وَفَعَ ; laf i.

רָכָּה (cg. רָמָה), לֹפֹּי; roua (rowa, rowo), roa, towo, täo, tibe, mitäo, ro, mitefe, d. lubu, (Aneit. erop(se)), marobaroba.

َوُوْرَفَ ; rabaraba.

زَضِيعٌ; tasi, &c., tai na.

رَقَّ, رَقَّ; mirārā, bakamirārā. رَقَّى, 2; raka i, rakat i.

w. w

تُجَنَّة, رُجَّنَة ; rā, rārān, terā (te rā).

ַטְאָב, אָסְדָּה, &c.; sau, sauf i.

َسَالَةً, سَالَةً, سَالَةً, سَالَةً, سَالَةً, سَالَةً, سَالَةً, سَالَةً , سَالَةً , سَالَةً , سَالَةً

ባሏប៉ូ; safa, sefa, sōfa, sofa, sofa, sofasofa.

شُب, شُبٌ; subu, subua, sibi (in pr. nn.).

בְּבֶּל, אִבְּעֵּ; siba, sisiba, masiba, sibasiba.

َ Mg. fitu, Santo bitu, 'seven,' J. pitu, Sa. fitu.

َ سَبْقَ; sobu (= d. bea, precede, be first).

سَخَفَ, see ٩١٥.

קיבמוֹת, tălemāt, tŭlemāt.

رَّهُوَةٌ , شَهَا ; sau, mesau (d. mūri), sauta ki, sautoģa.

سَاءَ (mid. و); sā, sāsāna.

أو (mid. و); sau, tumana sau ki.

َسْ; sea, sesea, (Maġa) sesea.

َ siel. شُهِلَ

پُمْتُ ; semàn i.

יְּשְׁהָּ, v. יְּשְׁהָּ (tau), to, towo, tona ki, toun i.

ישׁוּחָ, הֹשׁיבֹּ, שׁוּחָה, לשׁוּחַ, לשׁוּחַ, &c.; tuku, tuk, tuk, tuki, tuki, tukituki.

يَسَوَى su, sua.

sikara. (mid. و), شَاكَةً ; sikara.

سَافَ (mid. و); siua (siwa).

ې نائى, كان بۇتى , pl. سَاتَى , نائى tua, tuo, tutua, tua.

آرو (mid. و), 2, 3; ser i.

(mid. و); masika.

שור ; saria.

שׁלֵּי, בְּאָר; roa, d. doa, rowa, biroa, taroaroa, biroaroa, meraroa, maroa, mare; mero, mo, ro.

َ الْحَيّْ ; sī, sisi, sīs, soi.

sike, sīke, sike (mau).

غَطَّ; sito.

َسُخَنَةٌ , هُمْ , سَخَنَ sīnu, tunu, bitin, biṣin, bitunu, &c.

جَمْتُ: samasamana.

تَحَلَّ; sila, masila, masilasila.

تَّوْنَ, كِالِّانِ; sok, soġa, soġoa.

לישׁבֶּל, מִשְּׁחֵר, שָׁחֵר; tola, rola, tolarola, matōl.

آلَّ ; sera, مَاءٌ سَيْلُ fluens aqua, Ef. fai sera, d., c. art., noai sera, id.

شَاعَ (mid. '); sai, saisai, bisai, sī, sui, sā, tā, seatī, soa, soi.

ِ مَيْنَ , 1, 2; sua, bisua.

آلَّهُ, 2, سَّارٌ, سَارٌ; sera, bisera, biserasera.

قُفْ, קَكِنْ; suk i, tasuki.

شَيْ ; misaki ; (sakit, maki, mai).

אָבֶן (سَكَن); seka, biseka.

שְׁלָה, Hi.; sal i, salisali.

َ مُلْشَلُ , turu, tur i, turua, tuturu, riri, turufà ki.

شَّز sela, v., s.

مَّۃ; sum i, sumil i.

رَّهُ (cf. ١٥٥ه); Sa. soģi, My. chyum; sumi, suģi, soģi.

המָשְׂ; semasema.

يَّمَطَ , شَمَطَ , شَمَطَ ; samit i, samat i, sumat i.

ثَعَّ; tu, tutu.

أَسِنَّة , أَسُنَّ , سِنَّ ; bati, beti. See Ch. II, § 16 b.

יִשְׁעָה, יִשְׁעָה; sao, saof i.

sulu, masula ki. شُعُولٌ , شَعَلَ

رَخُمْ; sereserea.

رَّسَّةَ soro, sorof i, bakasorosorof i.

هُمْ; takal i.

سَفُعٌ, 1, 6; sabo, tasabo, sabona ki, sasabo.

ِ siu. شِفَاعُ

رَّ أَنْ أَوَّ , سِفَارَ , siuer (siwer), suuara, suara (suwara), surata, sur; sera (to sweep).

بَسْفُولُ , سَفُولُ ; siuo, suua (siwo, suwa), sua.

سَفَنَ, see إِيِّ ; sema, sama.

مَّرِهَ ; soro, soroa, miseroa.

שְׂרָא שָׂרָה; seri, bakaseri.

, soroa.

שלם; sura i.

شَرَحَ ; telei, talai.

: surut i بَشَرَطَ ; surut i

קיִר, יָּבֶׁר, Pa., Aph.; sera i, sera ki, sera loamau, &c.

َ سَرَفَ ; salube, saluke.

بَرَبَ; serab.

האר, הְשָׁרִי, שְׁתִיּה, וְשְׁתִיּה, וְאַבּא, וּשְׁתִּיה, וּשְׁתִּיה, וּשְׁתִּיה, וּשְׁתִּיה, וּשְׁתִּיה, ווּמֹשׁ (minuna); mĭnu, minuma, minum (as to t to n, and s elided, see next word), munuma.

رَسَّة, Mahri itit; Mg. enina, enim-, My. anam, Sa. ono: 'six.' n تَبِيعٌ , تَبِعٌ ; tuf i, tafi.

קבר, כִּישְׁבְר, לְשָׁבֵּר; saberi ki, sabura ki, samura, tasabsabu.

نات , ثيدًى ; susu.

تُوَى ; tau, mitau, Sa. tau, Fi.

ទុរភ, ភគ្គភ់, ተፍት; tob, tobet.

קבָה, תְּבָה, תְּבָה, אָבָה, secondary radical from A. 8, see A. G., I. 148; toko, tok, to, ti, te, matoko.

تَّة, آأة; tōke, tōk.

تلاَوَةٌ, تَلا follow, recite, secondary رَبَلَا وَةٌ, تَلَا radical from وَلَى , 8; tili, tuli, A. G., I. 148.

nau, bunu, manubu, manuai, mafunufunu.

َدُّۃٌ; nu ē, nau i.

י אַמּנָה , נֹבּוֹשְ ; My. lapan (red. delapan), Savu panu, Mg. valu, Easter Island varu, Sa.

valu, Carolines wan, wal, Santo walu, alu, Fi. walu.

تَسْعَةً , تَسْعَ , الله , ال metita. زَيْعِطَ

رَبَاعَةٌ (mid. و), to flow, ثَاعَة vomit; ثَاعَ , n. a. ثَعَ , to vomit, to go out and be ejected,

, and تَعْةَ, vomit,

تَلَعَ , n. a. تَلَعَ , تَلَيْعً , n. a. تَلَعَ (Ef. luāna), to flow out, go out or away, be ejected, vomit; lua, lu, milu, lua ki, luana, tama lu.

ነጀባ; leana, lēġ, lēna.

تَقِيْةٌ, تَقَيْةٌ; taku, mataku, mita-taku, matau ki, My. takut, A.G., I. 148. From وقي, 8.

קַּקַע, m̄фø; saġo.

اثِنَانِ , نَجِدِاْهِ , اثِنَانِ , اثِنَانِ , اثِنَانِ , اثِنَانِ , اثِنَانِ), Mahri t'aro, Sok. tarawa; Celebes dia, My. duwa, Bis. duha, Mg. rua, Ef. ṭua, tua, rua, Epi lua, 'two.'

تَرْتَرَ; tĕratār.

تَرِيكَةٌ, تَرِكَةٌ, تَرَكَةٌ, تَرَكَةٌ, تَرَكَةٌ, تَرَكَةً, تَرَكَةً, تَرَكَةً, تَرَكَةً, تَرَكَةً, تَرَكَةً turubi-si; قِبِ تَا : see Ch. II, § 14 c.

اَتُرَكَ turubi-si : see وَرَكَ , Dillmann, p. 47.

•
		,

14 DAY USE return to desk from which borrowed LOIAM DEPT.

This book is due on the last date stamped below, or on the date to which renewed.

Renewed books are subject to immediate recall.

FEB 1 1968 6 4
proved and significant	W22849
MAR 21 1969 7 0	DEC 81969 44
REC'D LD JA	N8-70-8PM
pro. GIR. 1980 29 77 650
	REC. CIR. JUN 178
- TOP-319 6 58 58 6	STOR TONO

REC'D LD JUN 1770-1PM 80

D. S. Arras (MAY 1 1976 General Dibrary D. S. Arras (Missan)

U. C. BERKELEY LIBRARIES

S. S. BETINELET LIBRARIES

CD46992830

197701

Macdonald

